It was not necessary that she should do so, but she did it, sufficiently.
Do you remember either of the addresses of the letters, or shall I refresh your memory? I continued.

There was a silence for some time; Mr. Gilbert crossed his legs, tapped the top of his boot with his riding whip, and passed his right hand fingers several times thro' the thick brown locks that fell over his forehead.

He found himself: I felt apart and dumb.
Sometimes in sorrow, oft in joy divine;
My lip like water, but my prison's heart
Springs forth, to measure its faint pulse with thine.

Plymouth Advertiser.

land now waste under cultivation. We need scarcely add that with proper drainage, we shall no longer have those poisonous miasmas produced by decaying vegetation, spreading disease and death, but families will settle the land and cultivate it, and that which is now comparatively worthless will be of great value.

3. Plymouth needs and must have a road across the prairie. If we can succeed in getting the road made, we may depend on a largely increased trade immediately; all the wheat, corn and oats raised along it will be brought here. In a few years when large quantities of land now unutilized shall be cultivated, who can calculate the extent of the business that will be a business connection with the country lying along the proposed road that would be most advantageous that would be found about us, particularly as there is but little probability that any Railroad will sever it. We must use every effort to get it, and that soon, too, for convenience as Plymouth is as a market, other towns will carry off the prize, unless we hasten to secure it.

To say we consider this enterprise of great importance to our place, is but feebly expressing our sentiments. We have now an opportunity of getting a great trade. It is worth it to continue an important point we must offer every inducement and every facility to bring customers—we consider it a matter of necessity that an effort be made to extend our business. With so many towns in our vicinity, rivalling us in population and business, there is no such thing as standing still. We must either go ahead or fall behind.

In view, therefore, of the urgent necessity which exists, we beg to ask the prairie will offer to our business, we most earnestly hope the matter will be taken hold of by our citizens with a hearty good will. By all means let us have this road, and once more our streets will be crowded with wagons, and our stores and workshops thronged with trade.

Postage—Grab-Like Reform.
Our readers will find in our report of Congressional matters, an abstract of the new Postage Bill, reported by Mr. Olds of this state. It appears that the reports of the Post Master General, who has been sent to examine the Department at the settling of each quarter's accounts; that the deficit now amounts to several millions which, under the present system, can not be met by the postal receipts, and that the object of this bill is to make the Department self-supporting.

We are inclined to believe that the gentlemen who filghtly this bill have put their foot into it lightly. The reduction of the rates of postage in 1861, was hailed by all classes as a reform—a step forward in fact it gave universal satisfaction. It was truly a demystric measure, for its good effects were felt by all alike. How then, will the people receive this proposition to almost double their rates of postage? The plea that the Department does not sustain itself is a poor one. The National Treasury is overflowing—twenty-six millions of dollars now lying idle. To what better use can this money be put than in sustaining the Post Office Department, at the present rates? If the economical government would have the Department sustain itself, they should do away with the franking privilege for ever. Every mail bag is clogged with books, speeches, bundles of documents and letters, sent everywhere and anywhere, by free of charge. No wonder the Department doesn't sustain itself. If members of Congress would dispense with the free mail matter, letters might be carried for one cent instead of three, five or ten.

None of the members who are making such an ado about the amount sunk in the Post Office Department, offer the slightest objection to paying 100,000,000 new acres of land banks down to the United States—this can expend $15,000,000 for the Navy in one session, for which there is no return to the Treasury, without a twinge, yet with a full treasury, they would impose a heavy tax upon every man, woman and child in the Union, merely because the department, bartered by the free mail matter of these very economists, and plundered by speculators and contractors, does not pay for itself. What we call railing impudently and impudently upon the old rates of postage. If the administration is uneasy at the plethora of her money chests, there is nothing that will afford such permanent relief, that does not pay for itself, as to recognize that in the direction of Congress. A vote of the people, to-morrow, would be

Some Things I Like to See.
1. I like to see people, and especially church-going people. It is but quite late on Sabbath morning. It is a sure sign that they are laboring faithfully during the previous week.

2. I like to see people come to the church. It is an evidence that they are industrious, and that they have their engagements for the Sabbath so arranged, as to lose no time in idleness. 'Tis 'tis precious.

3. I like to see people enter the house of worship after service has commenced, for then they attract general attention; besides, it will be remembered that they too, were at church.

4. I like to see professors of religion go to church without either hymn book or bible—shows that they have their memories well cultivated, and besides, have come posted up for the exercises.

5. I like to see people lay their heads gently on the back of the pew in front of the service—it shows that they have enjoyed the sermon, and that they will preach well enough without being watched.

6. I like to see people put out their watches during the sermon, whether they have the organ or time and other developed.

7. I like to see tobacco cherishes used their quid, in church, and after the service is over, they have all discarded their organs for digesting a serene in good condition, besides, they make an impression as they go along.

8. I like to see all the children ten years and under, left at home, or run on the streets, &c., while the parents attend divine service in church. It proves that the parents have learned that it is not best to begin too early to train their little ones in the way they ought to go.

THE MANFIELD AND SANDUSKY CITY ROAD.—From the figures below it will be seen that the business on this road is increasing with the greatest rapidity. The Company are having forty new cars built at Zanesville to accommodate the increasing demand. The earnings of this road for the month of March, 1854 were as follows:

Passengers,	$14,101.82
Freight,	10,704.10
	$24,805.99

The earnings for the corresponding month, last year, were:

Passengers,	$9,421.82
Freight,	9,075.71
	$18,497.53

Showing an increase of 32 per cent. It has been supposed that in the receipts for freights there would have been a falling off, owing to the very limited crop of wheat in the section of country penetrated by the road, but in this department of its business there has been a slight increase, notwithstanding the unfavorable circumstances referred to. The passenger business is growing in importance daily, and bids fair to yield a large revenue. With an average crop of grain the current season, we may look for large freights as the result of the present year's business of the road.

One evening last week, Judge Tracy, of Mansfield, being unwell, took some extract of dandelion, as he supposed, a medicine he had been in the habit of using for a chronic disease with which he was afflicted, but by mistake took the extract of Belladonna, or deadly nightshade. Physicians was sent for, and every means resorted to, to remove the poison from the stomach. No medicine could be made to operate, and with difficulty the pump could be used. By means of a portion of the contents were removed. A rumor has gone abroad that the druggist had made the wrong medicine. This is a mistake, as Judge Tracy kept both on hand, and blame is laid on none. The patient is somewhat uneasy the next day, and at last recovered in a very precarious manner.—Herald.

We are sorry to learn that the Rev. Mr. E. Smith, editor of the Christian Statesman is lying very low with typhoid fever. For a week or more his life has been despaired of. What turn the disease may take God only knows, but we trust his name may be spared for many years to come. Rev. Mr. McGone has charge of Christian Statesman during his illness.

Mr. Newcomb—Holbrook & Long, Cleveland, have sent us the following: Little Katy's Voice, Hot Corn, or Katy's Cry, and Eva to her Papa. The two former are really beautiful productions—sweet, plaintive melodies, that should be found upon every Piano. We would mention in this connection, that the above named dealers in the west, and that everything musical may be obtained from them.

NEWSPAPER CHANGE.—Wm. L. Bancroft, Esq., has succeeded the editorial tripart of the Por Huron (Mich.) Commercial, viz. Geo. F. Lewis, resigned. Mr. Bancroft is a ready and agreeable writer, and handles the quill as though he knew the use of the article. We wish him all possible success.

HOTEL CHANGE.—The Western Exchange, of this place, formerly kept by H. Linsinger, has gone into the hands of John Smith, Esq., of York county, Pa. Mr. Smith intends repairing the premises and keeping a good public house.

Fitch, Holbrook & Co., at the Buffalo Store, have received their spring stock of goods. This firm are doing a fine business—the result of enterprise and advertising.
