Accident-Apology.

As we were going to press last evening, we had the misfortune to have our third page blocked into it. The Editors of the hour, and the impossibility of procuring hands, compelled us to "double" the fourth page. We regret it the more as all the new advertisements, the markets, the telegraphic news, and a large amount of reading-matter was involved in this week-end matter and crash of worlds.

We hope our patrons, both advertisers and subscribers, will bear with us for a week or two, when we will make our appearance as usual.

Nebraska Bill-Fitcuffs-Important Suggestion.

After a struggle unparalleled in the history of our country, the slave power has gained the ascendancy. The Nebraska bill will probably pass the House, though it is very uncertain. In Congress it is still being debated, without a probability of its coming to an end for several years. The contending parties are so nearly equal that it is very doubtful which will, finally, obtain the mastery, but present indications are one of the opinions that will pass—though only by a very small majority.

As regards the unpopularity of the bill, there can be no question. The Washington has been flooded with petitions against it, emanating from almost every State in the Union, while as yet, none have been presented urging its passage. But that has not affected the question, in the least degree. The South have determined that the bill shall pass, and pass it will.

The debate has been, so far, characterized by more than the usual amount of blackguardism. Members seem to have forgotten the entire vocabulary of the Fifth Point, and their arguments have become, in many instances, worse than the language of the demagogue.

Bravos that would disgrace a dog, have repeatedly taken place, and the Sergeant-at-Arms has had all his time employed in attempting to keep the infernalities within gunshot of decency, but has most signally failed. Ducks will swim, birds will fly, and by the same law, man will do as he is taught.

By law by some means that the bill will pass. The cheerful genius of the South, hesitate not when worsted in debate to appeal to fitcuffs—the style of argument they understand the most thoroughly. Occasionally they catch a tart, as in the Cutting and Breckenridge affair, and more recently, when Edmundson cooled down one of the Hotspurs who had signified his intention to treat him to a dose of Southern anger, by pulling off his coat, and expressing his willingness to settle the dispute in a duel.

Mr. Hunt, and Mr. Craig, of North Carolina, have had a set-to, in which the epithets "scoundrel," "blackguard," etc., were the least objectionable used. We would suggest that a portion of the Capitol Buildings be converted into a gymnasium, with a pistol gallery attached, and teachers of pugilism, fencing, and other modes of defacing humanity, be employed at the expense of government, that members may perfect themselves in these Congressional arts. Time was when intellect was considered an essential qualification for a Legislator, and when the Legislative Halls were the arena in which mind struggled with mind for mastery, but as that day has gone by, and as fitcuffs have taken the place of intellect, why let it be done well. Let our rulers be distinguished for something, and if we cannot plumb ourselves upon their being statesmen and orators, we can boast of their being "sooner" in a knock-down.

The opponents of the Temperance law of the last session sit and protest the question whether, on its passage, that portion of the new Constitution which requires each bill to be read three several times, be different days, be complied with. The bill will be introduced into the Senate, and will be read on the second day, and will be read on the second day, and will be read on the second day.

It is now proposed that temperance men be the only ones to strike in, but they have failed upon the subject in vain, for they have given us a law that can never be enforced, and even if it could, would not lessen the amount of intemperance one iota. Look at it.

It makes the sale of all intoxicating liquors except ale, beer and native wine, an offense, punishable with fine and imprisonment. What is there ever anything more absurd? "Except ale, beer and native wine!" Two thirds of the liquor drunk is "ale, beer and native wine," either will be a person, drunk as spirituous liquors—they contain the same amount of deleterious drugs—the one in them produces the same appetite—in fact "ale, beer and native wine," may be ranked as the most prominent in this family of "blue devils."

As a friend of temperance, we would wish our friends to be particularly on their guard, for it is with such these the youth begin, by the use of these contracts the habit which finally bring him to a drunkard's grave.

The law also provides that a wife, child, etc., injured in person or property in consequence of the intoxication of a person, they may sue the one who sold the liquor that made him drunk, or damages sustained. How can it prove where a drunken man procured his liquor?

Wisconsin provision is a good one. It is Wisconsin law, and it is a law that is maintained under it. It was found to be wholly useless to attempt to procure sufficient proof to fasten upon any liquor dealer the crime of making a person intoxicated.

This beautiful specimen of legislation also makes it a crime for a man to get drunk. As we said before, men can get drunk as well as women, and we are not aware that any man can prove he got drunk on either of these "excepting" liquors.

"Excepting" liquors, should be punished? Certainly not. The law allows it to be sold—discriminates in its favor—how then can it punish any one for it? By its action it declares the use of spirituous liquors to be an evil—by exempting malt liquors and wine, it declares them to be no evils and virtually approves of their use. How can it punish a man for the use of that it encourages?

The law is but a mass of absurdities—no exacting, the friends of prohibition demanded a law, and the Legislature gave them one, but so loosely constructed, that it is not only a positive injury to the cause it is a positive benefit.

Mr. Soule and Spain.—The well informed Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, says that the Government of the Spanish Government the immediate recall of the Spanish General of Cuba, which demand was peremptorily refused. It is also said Mr. Soule is suspected, by the Queen's party, of being more or less connected with the revolutionary movements in Catalonia; that he was, from his arrival in Spain, surrounded by men of doubtful loyalty. A venture no opinion as to the probably cause in Madrid, Mr. Soule, if they are crushed to the necessity of demanding his passports, he may receive them.

Mr. A. singular abuse of the franking privilege and fraud on the Post Office for the purpose of defrauding the Government of its money. A packet clerk for 2 members of Congress authorized to use their names for franking documents, has been detected selling franking documents for $100 each. A list of 1,400 franking documents passed through the Post Office, which an investigation led to the detection of the fraud. The matter was suppressed.

The season for sheep shearing is now near at hand, and speculations are already indulged in as to the probable prices of wool. We are not prepared to give any precise quotations, but we think the market is likely to open; and we are enabled to assure our readers that prices are likely to be very considerably—lower than last year.

At this time in 1853 a very large amount of the wool clip was engaged on the "Bible," but—speculation being bought up in this advance; this year but little of this, if any, has been done. It is probable that the market will open upon the market. Last year the supply of the previous season was exhausted, and immense orders were eager buyers from the start. This year there is considerable stock on hand—enough to last the manufacturers until the new clip reaches purchasers. The present clip, moreover, is much larger than any that has preceded it, the high prices prevailing last year having induced farmers to save all the sheep they could. There has been less than a depression of prices.

In addition to this, there has been since last year a material decline in the price of wool. It is now about 20 per cent. below the price of wool in England, and still tending downward, a heavy import of wool from the Continent is now being increasing use of cotton along with wool, by manufacturers. Besides all this it is a general opinion that the first effect of the war in Europe will be to produce large quantities of European woolen fabric on the American market, and this should be a great detriment to the wool-growers of this country, as it is sufficient to have as depressing an effect on the value of the present clip as all other causes combined.

The market for wool prevailing in the eastern markets are from 10 to 12 cents a pound less than this time last season, and quotations still look downward. Money also is more scarce than it has been for some time, and it is not likely that it will be perfectly safe, on a downward market, for a probability of European revolution, and other causes, will result in a 2 or 3 per cent. more.
