Doctors Feared Lung Trouble,
Restored to Health by Vinol.

The medical profession does not believe that lung troubles are inherited, but a person may inherit a weakness or tendency to them.
Mrs. Kate Beckman, Springfield, Ohio, says: "A few years ago I was in a very bad run-down condition, and the physician told me I had consumption. I tried another physician, and he told me I had ulcers on my right lung. I quit. The physicians and started on 'Vinol' today I am perfectly healthy, and that is why I recommend 'Vinol'."

Many lung troubles are due to indigestion and allow the cough. This creates an excessive strain on the digestive organs and gives the patient strength to throw off his indigestion.
Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.
P. S.—For any skin trouble try our new Pina-Pina. We guarantee it.
Karl F. Webber, Druggist, Plymouth

Many lues come from impure blood. Can't have pure blood with faulty digestion. Buy Vinol and straighten out the Blood. Bitter is recommended for strengthening bowels, stomach and liver and purifying the blood.

Obituary.

Mr. Albert Thomas Shafer departed this life, after an illness of several years duration, in his home at Plymouth, O., Friday morning, Feb. 20, 1914. Mr. Shafer was for some thirty years a well known citizen of this community, coming here from Belleville, O., where he had established himself in the grain business. He makes arrangements for his death, which he anticipated for months, and when the summons came he passed away peacefully in the presence of his family—Mrs. Shafer, Lee, the only son; Zoe Shafer, of Kenosha, Wis.; and Gertrude, of Detroit; the other daughter, Mrs. Grace Frost, of North Yakima, Wash., being absent on account of the distance.

The deceased was known as a man of quiet demeanor and benevolent disposition. With genuine kindness he was ever ready to extend the helping hand to persons he found in need. His high qualities of mind and heart were known to many sincere friends. The funeral service was held at the home, Monday afternoon, and was well attended. The Knights of Pythias, of which he was a member, sent a large delegation and furnished the pall bearers. Rev. A. B. Wilson, of Indianapolis, a member of the family, conducted a brief, impressive service. Some splendid floral decorations were placed on the casket. Ed. Whittett and M. E. Weatherly sang effectively three appropriate selections. Through the storm many friends accompanied the mourners to the beautiful Greenwood cemetery where the remains were interred.

Those attending the funeral from distant points were: Dr. V. Z. of Fredericktown, O.; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Alexander, of Belleville, O.; Mrs. Norris Kirkpatrick, of Mansfield, O.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schrodorfer, of Chillicothe, O.; Dr. Thad W. Ashley, of Kenosha, Wis.; and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Shafer of Chicago Junction, O.

Obituary.

Franklin B. Danner was born in Adams county, Indiana, on the 14th day of March, 1854, and died the 16th of February, 1914, aged 59 years, 11 months and 3 days.

He was the youngest child of a family of nine children born to James and Bessie Danner, of Adams county, Ind. Of this family two sisters and one brother survive him. Of his own family he leaves one son, Mr. W. Danner, of Decatur, Ind. The deceased came to Plymouth in the spring of 1882, and has made and called his home with his nephew, Dayton Danner, during the twenty-two years. He was familiarly known as Uncle Frank by all the neighbors and his characteristics were noted for his jovial and kind disposition. He was always wanting to help some one else rather than being helped or waited upon. He was generous to a fault. We might say he leaves no enemies but many friends.

Brought Here for Burial.

Margaret Beelman was born at Chouhstown, Pa., Oct. 28, 1839; died at Cleveland, Feb. 22, 1914, aged 83 years, 3 months and 25 days. She moved with her parents when a little child, in 1836, to Plymouth and resided in that town until 1879, when the family moved to Cleveland, where she resided up to the time of her death. Her husband died Nov. 11, 1895. She will be remembered by the older citizens by her husband being mayor of the village for several terms, also superintendent of the old Plymouth fair association for a great many years.

She leaves one son, R. E. Beelman of Cleveland, one daughter, Mrs. Nelson and grandson, Paul Nelson, of Wausatch, Wis., two brothers, Adam and Dan Brant, and a host of other relatives and friends to mourn her death.

The remains were brought back to Plymouth Feb. 24, for burial in Greenwood cemetery, her last resting place.

Practical Work Makes Proficient Dairyman.

One of the notable features of the work of the dairy department of Ohio State University is found in the practical work given to the students. Many of these students are not only interested in dairying but are practically dependent upon their relatives to pay their way through school. Coincidentally with this fact comes the interesting feature that the most successful dairymen to be traced out from the university have been while in the dairy while in school. All operations, from the care of the cow to the marketing of their products may be usually the most proficient when they take an real work at the close of their school course.

If You are Subject to Colds This Editorial will Interest You.

A Great Majority of People Get One or More Colds Every Season and It is of Vital Interest to All to Learn How to Avoid and Relieve Colds Quickly, Since Colds are Said to be Contagious.

Some people think colds are only caught through exposure. This in return is contradicted by the fact that Arctic explorers are peculiarly free from colds. It is more generally accepted that colds are the result of civilized life, due to super-heated rooms and a very rapid change in temperature which causes the nerve centers to be depressed, and still more largely due to contagion—one member of a family imparting a cold to another by sneezing or coughing.

A cold means nothing if relieved quickly. That such a purpose may be accomplished, a quick aid to a cold is an essential. A remedy especially devised to relieve colds quickly is PERUNA.

PERUNA contains such ingredients that have an especially beneficial influence upon the inflamed mucous membranes and the quicker these mucous membranes are given the benefit of a remedy like PERUNA, the quicker the relief and the less contagion.

A neglected cold may become a serious menace to one's own life, and far worse, may endanger one's family.

We insure our homes against fire, our lives against death. Why should we not insure ourselves against colds if possible by having a medicine in the family chest that can be used at once?

PERUNA is a reliable household remedy for colds and should be in every home, for there should be a desire to combat a cold as quickly as possible. This is enlightened hygiene.

People who are feeble and run down are more subject to colds than persons in normal health. Such persons need outdoor life and PERUNA to help build up a strong constitution. If you have a poor appetite that is often a warning that you probably need a tonic like Peruna for Peruna aids the digestive organs. When your appetite is fair and work and exercise do not quickly tire you, your susceptibility to colds diminishes very much.

Persons who object to liquid medicines can now obtain PERUNA TABLETS.

COMICS WILL FARM FOR STATE

SITE FOR NEW PENITENTIARY NEAR LONDON CHOICE OF COMMISSIONERS. TRACT CONTAINS 1,500 ACRES

Important Laws Signed by Governor Before He Departed for the Eighteenth. He Departed From Becoming Assessors of Property Under the Warnes Act, Rules Attorney General.

(By Denny DuBovan.) Columbus, O.—The selection of the London, Madison county, site for the new penitentiary has been approved upon the report of a penitentiary commission, composed of Lieutenant Governor W. A. Greenlund, Dr. J. A. Leonard, superintendent, and the following members: H. R. Shepherd, of the state board of administration, and Dr. Harris R. Colby, of Cleveland. There are 1,500 acres in the site and the commission will pay $10 an acre for the land.

That was the price fixed by the jury in the condemnation suit brought by the state. Formal acceptance of the terms fixed by the jury was made by the committees at a meeting held at the office of the state board of administration at Columbus. The prisoners will not only furnish food enough for themselves from the farm products but will be able to supply other state institutions.

Bliss Signed at the Last. Measures laid to be signed by Gov. Cox before he left for Florida and are now laws are those carrying out the school reform, defining willful aid in the work of the commission, the title screen bill, the Guthery bank bill, and that to prevent delay in the courts, to authorize restoration of public property damaged by floods in March and April, providing relief for the blind, providing safeguards for the initiative and referendum, making changes in the municipal code for Cincinnati and to create a fund for mothers' pension.

Women Can Not Be Assessors. Women cannot be assessors of real and personal property under the Warnes act, says a ruling by Attorney General Timothy S. Hogan to the state civil service commission. The question of the commission grew out of its certification of an East Cleveland woman as being eligible to appointment, she having passed the civil service examination with good grade. The district assessors of Cuyahoga county named her for the position but she had discovered that the statute requires that the work must be performed by electors, and under the Ohio Constitution women are not electors. That she was signed in from positions as tax listers. Several other women were certified by the commission, but in no other cases were appointments made.

Sandies Strikes Back. Angered at interviews given out in Washington in which certain officials seek to disparage the trips of Ohio crops, President A. P. Sandies, of the state agricultural commission made a statement in which he asserts that there are "many soreheads" who are jealous because the Bureau of State sent 1,600 boys and girls through the volunteer work while the best volunteer could do so to bring $6.

As a final shot he says he has announced one year ago opposed an appropriation to fight hog cholera and would have done the same this year if they had not discovered that the tidal wave would engulf them. This same bunch makes it necessary for Secretary Houston to reorganize and disfect the United States department of agriculture, which ought to have been consummated long ago.

New Budget System. The final sessions marked the perfection of the budget system in the appropriation on the enactment of the first general bill based upon the state budget system carries $8,455,545. The budget bill for 1913-14 was $1,238 carried in the last bill under the old system earlier in the year, a difference of $956,625.99. Only a preliminary opposition was made by the minority, which did not vote solidly as expected. The funds and salaries bill, aggregating $370,000, was passed, and several reduction bills were passed. The total amount of the new system is a relief separation of real property from unforeseen expenditures was made.

To Protect Buckwheat Cakes. Buckwheat cakes are being safeguarded, the state dairy and food inspection department thinks, and Commissioner S. E. Strodt announced, that consumption of presentation of dentures in adulterated buckwheat flour will be started soon. Finely ground corn meal has been found in much flour sold for pure buckwheat product, and samples of which have been taken in many parts of the state. Simultaneously the dairy and food department will review its action on Florida on a fishing and hunting trip.

EMPLOYERS HOLDING OUT.

Nearly 15,000 employers who are subject to the provisions of the workmen's compensatory commission have failed to become subscribers or have neglected to make provision for carrying their own insurance, according to a report given out by the industrial commission. The further statement is made that the commission has threatened to take proceedings to collect premiums from those in default for a short time, in order to give every one an opportunity to become subscribers voluntarily. The commission finds that the employers are paying in at the rate of nearly 190 a day, and believes that within the next few weeks its task of gathering in the delinquents will be much easier. There are now 8,111 employers, with 67,250 employees, who are under the state plan. Their contributions in premiums have exceeded $2,000,000, of which almost half has been received since January 1.

In addition, 137 employers have elected to carry their own insurance under Section 22 of the law.

ASSEMBLY ARE ASPIRING.

Several members of the eighteenth general assembly have signified their intention of staying in the political game. Representatives Von der Heide of Dayton and E. C. DeFuria of Cleveland, and C. Woodworth of Athens, aspire to be state treasurer, respectively. Von der Heide is running for secretary of state. Senator Hudson of Portsmouth wants the nomination for congress from the Sixth district, embracing Clermont, Highland, Pike, Brown, Adams and Selco counties. Cooper and Diser are after the congressional nomination in the new Eleventh, and C. Taylor, secretary of the labor group in the house, wants the congressional nomination in the Seventeenth. Senator Green, labor leader, has no opposition for re-election to congress from the congressional nomination in the Seventeenth district.

REFERENDUM TO PROTECT TANGS.

More than 4,000 Columbus citizens today formally declared they want the tango to continue. Through the German-American Alliance there was filed with the Franklin county board of elections a petition for referendum on an ordinance of the city council, passed over the veto of Mayor George J. Karp, designed to put the tango dance under strict control so that they would be forced out of business. The ordinance will be voted on at the polls next fall. This is the first time in three years that it has been effected that the municipal initiative and referendum has been employed.

One of the applicants for appointment to the job of United States Marshal at Columbus was John H. Jones, a resident of this city, who is a member of the Ohio National Guard, director of public safety at Columbus.

Out of 41 prisoners whose cases were heard by the state board of administration, sitting as a board of parole, only 15 were granted conditional release. In the unfortunate class was former State Senator Isaac E. Huffman, of Butler county, convicted of having taken a bribe.

What is termed the McNulty Faction of the International Brotherhood of Bricklayers, has been defeated in the supreme court, when a decision was handed down affirming the Cuyahoga county courts in awarding to the winning bidder, of more than $92,000 in funds and the regular title to the international offices.

Speed was displayed in the matter of the correction of an error found in the Duffly bill fixing the salaries of common pleas judges. Gov. Cox sent it eight days, that the former police lieutenant had, the night before the murder, expressed the hope that someone would "get Rosenthal."

Decide to End Conference. Philadelphia, Pa.—The conference of bituminous miners and operators, which has been detatched more than a week over the demands of the former, failed to reach an agreement at Stratford's station at the Bellevue, Pa., where the miners' demands of the miners, which represent the workers of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, are for an increased wage and other concessions. The decision to end the conference was taken after eight days of continuous deadlock.

John P. White, president of the Ohio National Guard, is chairman of the committee, said that if Rosenthal had not been elected should not spread fear of a strike after the present working contract expires on April 1.

Two Warship Plan O. K'd. Washington, D. C.—Formal approval of the construction of two battleship program by the house naval affairs committee after the "small navy" men had made their final bid against it.

As reported to the house the bill carries $149,200,000, exclusive of amounts to be spent for armor and

MISS LUCY BURLESON

WESTERN CANADA CAME INTO EVIDENCE

AT THE CRUCIAL PERIOD FOR SUPPLY OF WORLD'S FOOD-STUFFS

The present demand for foodstuffs in all parts of the world, and the expense of producing it on high-priced lands, would make it seem that western Canada is the only or, in country, the opportunity that will be a large factor in meeting this demand. With its millions of acres of land, easily cultivatable, highly productive, accessible to railways, and with accessible climatic conditions, the opportunities that have offered and stored are too great to be overlooked.

There have been booms in almost every civilized country and they were looked upon as such, and in the course of time the bubble was pricked and was burst. But in no country has the development been as great nor so rapid as in western Canada, or in country, as in western Canada.

The provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta have the largest areas of available land, and their cultivation has just begun.

Even with a two hundred and fifty million bushels of wheat, less than eight per cent of the land is under the plough, four per cent being in wheat. Less than five years ago the wheat crop was only 71,000,000 bushels. It is a simple calculation to estimate that if four per cent of the available cultivatable area produced something like 200 million bushels, it will be 44 per cent of the total production? And then look at the immigration that is coming into the country. In 1901 it was 49,749, in 1902 it was 117,000, in 1903 it was 179,000, in 1904 it was 189,000, of which 57,000 were Americans, and in 1913 it was 500,000, of which about 148,000 were Americans. But why have they come to Canada? The American farmer is a man of shrewd business instincts, just as his Canadian brother is, and he finds that he can sell his own farm at from $100 to $200 per acre and move into Canada and become a rich and prosperous man for himself. Similarly for all his sons who are adult and of age upon lands as rich and fertile as those he left, and producing almost double bushels to the acre in excess of anything he has ever known, it will take more than an ordinary effort to prevent him from coming to Canada.

BECKER GETS RETRIAL, FOUR WOMEN TO DIE

POLICE LIEUTENANT, CONVICTED OF MURDER, HAS THE DEATH SENTENCE STAYED.

Decision by High Tribunal Means Way is Opened for Bitter Warfare Between Police Gunmen and Smugglers.

Albany, N. Y.—By a vote of six to one the court of appeals granted a new trial to Charles Becker, former New York police lieutenant under sentence of death for causing the murder of a man named Rosenthal. Becker was convicted Oct. 24, 1912.

Four women who killed Rosenthal, a notorious gambler, were denied a new trial. The gunmen who must die the electric chair are "Big Red Blood," "Lefty Louis," "Whitey Lewis" and "Dago Frank" Cirodici.

The decision means the way is again open for retaliation on the bitter warfare between police gunmen and gamblers resulting from the exposure in the trial of Becker trial. The written decision of the court was sent to Chief Clerk Carroll of the court of general sessions. An order for the transfer of Becker from the death house at Sing Sing was immediately issued, and he was taken to the Tombs in New York to await his second trial.

The decision in Becker's case did not come as a big surprise, for it had been rumored among lawyers for several weeks that he would have another opportunity to establish his innocence.

The prevailing opinion was written by Judge Hiscock and concurred in by all the judges except Judge Werner. It does not pass either way upon the argument made in behalf of Becker that his conviction should be reversed because the verdict that he was guilty of Rosenthal's murder was against the weight of evidence, but the reversal is based upon errors committed by Justice Goff during the trial.

Trouble between Becker and Rosenthal began in the spring of 1912, when the police lieutenant and his strong-arm men, raised by Becker, were engaged in a gambling game. Rosenthal told Becker afterward that unless he had police removed from his place of business he would be ruined.

Rosenthal was murdered at 1 a. m. July 16, 1912, in front of the Hotel Metropolitan, in W. 43rd-st. New York.

Becker was arrested by police officers from East Side gunmen, afterward convicted and sentenced to death. It was testified to at Becker's trial, which closed 17 days, that the former police lieutenant had, the night before the murder, expressed the hope that someone would "get Rosenthal."

Becker's appeal was argued before the court in Albany, N. Y., on July 10. The court was composed of Chief Justice C. B. Anderson, Justice Goff, Justice Sutherland and Justice Goff.

Justice Goff, who presided, said that the court was of the opinion that the conviction should be reversed because the verdict that he was guilty of Rosenthal's murder was against the weight of evidence, but the reversal is based upon errors committed by Justice Goff during the trial.

Justice Sutherland, who concurred, said that the court was of the opinion that the conviction should be reversed because the verdict that he was guilty of Rosenthal's murder was against the weight of evidence, but the reversal is based upon errors committed by Justice Goff during the trial.

WESTERN CANADA CAME INTO EVIDENCE

AT THE CRUCIAL PERIOD FOR SUPPLY OF WORLD'S FOOD-STUFFS

The present demand for foodstuffs in all parts of the world, and the expense of producing it on high-priced lands, would make it seem that western Canada is the only or, in country, the opportunity that will be a large factor in meeting this demand.

With its millions of acres of land, easily cultivatable, highly productive, accessible to railways, and with accessible climatic conditions, the opportunities that have offered and stored are too great to be overlooked.

There have been booms in almost every civilized country and they were looked upon as such, and in the course of time the bubble was pricked and was burst. But in no country has the development been as great nor so rapid as in western Canada, or in country, as in western Canada.

The provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta have the largest areas of available land, and their cultivation has just begun.

Even with a two hundred and fifty million bushels of wheat, less than eight per cent of the land is under the plough, four per cent being in wheat. Less than five years ago the wheat crop was only 71,000,000 bushels. It is a simple calculation to estimate that if four per cent of the available cultivatable area produced something like 200 million bushels, it will be 44 per cent of the total production? And then look at the immigration that is coming into the country.

In 1901 it was 49,749, in 1902 it was 117,000, in 1903 it was 179,000, in 1904 it was 189,000, of which 57,000 were Americans, and in 1913 it was 500,000, of which about 148,000 were Americans. But why have they come to Canada? The American farmer is a man of shrewd business instincts, just as his Canadian brother is, and he finds that he can sell his own farm at from $100 to $200 per acre and move into Canada and become a rich and prosperous man for himself.

Similarly for all his sons who are adult and of age upon lands as rich and fertile as those he left, and producing almost double bushels to the acre in excess of anything he has ever known, it will take more than an ordinary effort to prevent him from coming to Canada.

TO QUIZ GRAIN "TRUST"

HOUSE RESOLUTION PROVIDES FOR TRADE BOARD INQUIRY.

Representative Manahan Says Bulk of Wheat Crop is Controlled in Chicago, Duluth and Minneapolis.

Washington, Feb. 21.—A sensational attack was made in congress on the kings of the American wheat pit by Representative Manahan of Minnesota when he introduced in the house on Thursday a resolution providing for the appointment of a special committee to investigate charges of manipulation of the price of wheat by unfair practices by the Chicago and Duluth boards of trade, and the Minneapolis chamber of commerce.

This resolution demands that the committee inquire whether these three bodies "exercise any unfair restraint or control over the buying and selling of grain coming to said terminal markets from Iowa, Nebraska, the Dakotas or any other state, or over the price thereof." It requires information also on the use of public warehouses, terminals elevators, mixing and blending elevators, and grading facilities, and all other means of artificially affecting the price of wheat.

The committee shall also specifically inquire, says the resolution, "into the ownership and control of each of the separate memberships of the above mentioned boards of trade, the Minneapolis chamber of commerce and the Duluth board of trade, with a view to preventing the variation of their policies to the organizations of selling grain consigned to them to subsidiary concerns or to dummy.

Facis discovered at any time during the investigation which in the judgment of the committee would warrant criminal prosecution are to be immediately reported over to the attorney general for such action as he may deem proper.

Goethals Asserts All Ships Should Assist in Paying Back $400,000,000 Cost to Construct Big Ditch.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Col. George W. Goethals, governor of the Panama canal zone, explained to the house appropriation committee today his estimate of $23,700,000 for next year's work on the canal and for the maintenance of the zone government.

He proposed a 10 per cent toll on free canal tolls for coastwise American shipping again when he told Chairman Adamson of the house transportation committee that the canal should be run on a business basis with favors to nobody. "We have spent $100,000,000," said Colonel Goethals, "to construct this canal, and now we ought to have an opportunity to make the canal pay back this cost. American vessels as well as foreign ships should bear the burden."

MURPHY FORCED OUT

TENER AND TAFT PUT CUB'S OWNER OUT OF BASEBALL.

Discard in League Stirred Up by Chicagoans is Suddenly Ended by His Resignation.

Chicago, Feb. 24.—Charles Webb Murphy has sold his stock in the Chicago National league club (the Cubs) and has resigned as president and director of that organization.

An announcement carrying the news that Mr. Murphy has sold out and quit the game was made in Cincinnati Saturday following a meeting between Gov. John K. Tener of Pennsylvania, president of the National league, Mr. Taft, Harry Ackerman of Pittsburgh, a stockholder in the Chicago club, and John Cowan Toole, a director of the Boston National league club and legal adviser to the National league.

Sir Edward Grey Tells House of Commons of Crisis On the Villa Excursion—Calls Situation as Exceedingly Serious.

Vera Cruz, Feb. 25.—A federal troop train carrying a company of infantry from Mexico City, destined for Jalapa, was blown up by rebels near the Liza station of the Interoceanic railway, 140 miles from Vera Cruz. The entire train was demolished. All on board, including 55 officers and men and the English engineer, were killed. A passenger train, which was following in the wake of the troop train, was fired on by the rebels, but escaped by backing rapidly.

London, England, Feb. 25.—The history of the Benton affair as contained in the information furnished to Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, British ambassador to the United States by the state department at Washington, was communicated in official form to the house of commons by Sir Edward Grey.

William S. Taft, secretary of state, said that Sir Cecil Spring-Rice had told Secretary of State Bryan that the public opinion of Europe was likely to be seriously affected by Villa's attitude, an encouraging cheer rolled through the house.

A full house listened with intense interest to the explanation given by Sir Edward Grey and by Francis Dyke Acland, parliamentary under-secretary for foreign affairs. They both spoke of the British government's attitude and discussed their communications with Washington.

Sir Edward Grey explained that Great Britain did not hold the United States responsible for Villa's acts, but he said the British government was powerless to take any measures in the disturbed regions.

Juarez, Feb. 24.—William S. Beaton's resistance to General Villa's barring him from Mexico brought on the execution of the British subject and owner of a 100,000-acre ranch in Chihuahua, according to the record of the British consul's investigation into the death.

It was charged that he tried to murder Villa while relating the general's record was revealed on Saturday it opens with the statement that an extraordinary council of war was held at the residence of General Tuesday by Col. Fidel Avila. The council convened a court-martial, of which Maj. Jesus Rodriguez was president.

There have been reports as to the amount of money that would be required to buy out Murphy's control of the club. Some have set the figure at $200,000 others at $700,000. Frank Chance's ten per cent of the stock in the Cubs was bought by Ackerman when "he" quit for $40,000.

Gen. John C. Sposka, head of the fish and game division of the state agricultural commission, predicted that within ten years quail and Hungarian partridges will be sold lawfully on the markets in Ohio, and that hunting will be recognized business though held proper bounds by regulatory laws.

One of the most sweeping changes made in prison rules by Warden Thomas since he was placed in charge of the penitentiary came Monday when he announced that convicts would be permitted to talk to each other while working. Almost since the time the prison was first built it had been one of the stringent rules of the institution that prisoners could not talk with each other while at work. This rule was always adhered to strictly.

There is absolutely no use to have a receptacle in which to store tin cans. This fact was made known by a prominent resident who announces a way to get rid of tin cans is to burn them in the furnace where coal is used. The cans can be filled with fine coal and will easily burn. The person responsible for the story said he had tried it and found the cans disappear entirely which is much cheaper than paying for the cartage to be detouring grounds.

Registrar J. A. Shearer, of the state automobile department, is expected to run his office in Columbus night and day during the next two months in order to register almost 90,000 automobiles which have been waiting for the courts and legislature to straighten out the new automobile laws. Extra forces of clerks will be put to work in order to complete the work as soon as possible. The department expects to begin issuing the 1914 licenses and tags within a week.

The new law providing for the grading and standardizing of all rural schools will make the Boxwell-Patterson examinations unnecessary after September 1, 1915. This operation of the new law will become operative September 1, 1915. It will require a year or more for the counties and districts to superintend and grade and classify all the rural schools. Hence the examinations will not be necessary this year and will have next year also. They will be held on the third Saturday of April and May, the same as heretofore.

Smoking hot buckwheat cakes with maple syrup on cold winter mornings must be safeguarded, the state dairy and food inspector department thinks, and Commissioner E. E. Strode announced a campaign of prosecution of dealers in adulterated buckwheat flour will be started soon. Fifty ground corn meal has been found in much flour sold for pure buckwheat product, samples of which have been taken in many parts of the state. Simultaneously the dairy and food department will renew its crusade against dealing in adulterated maple syrup.

A party of twenty young people have been counting on a sleigh ride and chicken supper tonight, says the Shelby Globe of last week. Thursday. All arrangements have been made with the Derringer hotel at Plymouth for a steaming hot chicken supper to be served at the hotel upon the arrival of the Shelby party. They have given orders to spare no expense and to prepare about twenty chickens. Each person believes he will be able to consume one chicken after riding over the bumps for ten miles between Shelby and Plymouth. They will leave Shelby about 6:30 or 7 o'clock and will reach Plymouth about two hours later where the Derringer hotel will be turned over to them for the remainder of the evening. Besides a fine chicken supper the young people are counting on a dance before returning home. Altogether the evening will be a merry one for this sleighing party.

The legislation of 1914 will doubtless affect the teaching profession more than any other legislation and for admission will be raised, and the rewards to those who are well prepared will be increased. After 1914 no person will be admitted who has had no professional training in a normal school or normal college approved by the state superintendent of public instruction. All schools of the state are to be brought under supervision. There is not to be a single isolated school in Ohio without a superintendent near at hand. All schools enrolling less than an average of 12 pupils, will be closed. Centralization will be encouraged and consolidation urged in hundreds of schools. This will probably reduce the number of schools required by at least 1,000. The poorly prepared teacher must quit, but the well prepared teacher will receive re-

One of the most successful affairs ever given by the local order of Huron Lodge No. 490, Knights of Pythias was Thursday evening, Feb. 19, when members of the Order and invited guests numbering four hundred, participated in the celebration of the Golden or Fifteenth anniversary of the Pythians, which event was being celebrated by that Order in every part of the country that evening. Each guest was given a white satin badge as a souvenir of the occasion. Fifty years ago, Julius H. Greason, inspired by the ancient Greek story of Damon and Pythias, instituted the order, which exemplifies friendship as the underlying principle of the Knights of Pythias. The reception was held in Hamilton's Hall and when all had assembled, Mr. Louis Shields, as Master of Ceremonies, introduced Hon. John F. Kramer of Mansfield, O., as speaker of the evening. Mr. Kramer favored those present with a very stirring address, along the lines of gaining and giving. He said, most people are not what they could give, but that the truly great men were those that had given something to the world, regardless of what they would gain, speaking of the great inventions and the men that gave them and the benefit they had been to the world.

To the strains of music by the orchestra, the guests entered the K. of P. banquet, the banquet tables were spread. Chancellor Commander Ralph Hoffman called the vast company to order and asked them to remain standing while Rev. Wilson returned thanks. Three hundred and sixty guests were seated at the tables, which were covered with crepe paper, in the emblematic colors of the lodge, yellow, blue and red, and decorated with a profusion of carnations and ferns, the remaining guests having to wait for the second tables. A dainty and delicious two course luncheon was served, and the detail of serving was complete and efficient.

Chancellor Commander Ralph Hoffman, in a happy manner, introduced Mr. Louis Shields, as toastmaster, who after welcoming the guests and speaking of the merits of the Order, spoke on the following gentlemen for short talks: Rev. A. B. Wilson, of Indianapolis, Ind., a former member of the lodge, gave a witty speech and gave the joke on Assy Trauser. Mr. Trauser did not intend to speak but Mr. Shield thinking advantage was being taken, allowed him to plead his own case, so watch you, Mr. Ray Sykes, W. M. of the Masonic lodge, spoke for that organization.

The dancing began about 11:30 and continued until a late hour, with the Huron Orchestra furnishing the order of the dance. There were many out-of-town guests present.

The music and songs were carefully selected and the drills perfectly executed all of which combined made it one of the most pleasing entertainments given in Plymouth in years, and all connected with the entertainment can justly feel proud for its successful presentation. The entertainment was only billed for Tuesday evening, but by request and urgent solicitation was repeated the following night to an almost capacity house, thus giving an opportunity to attend the Gibson Family Band and if you failed to be one of their guests you certainly missed a good share of your life, and the entertainment with the Gibson will drive away dull care and the blues.

SYNOPSIS.

Bobbed Van Vecheon, a young man of leisure, is attracted to a man called Tom...

BOOK I.

The door had closed behind the girl a minute or so...

"My Jupiter!" he exclaimed under his breath. "Tom, there's a scuffle going on over there, or I'm an Indian!"

And his surmise was promptly attacked. The door now opened with a final jerk and a woman...

Save for themselves, the room was now once more deserted...

Suddenly the man drew back his right arm and struck a mighty blow straight from the shoulder.

"Blimey!" shouted Tom in gleeful admiration. "Oh, my! Wouldn't I hate to get a punch like that!"

"Whoever did, obviously had no further stomach for opposing the erstwhile one, for the latter rose loosing and ran down the steps.

It was at about this time that Van Vecheon arrived at the man who had been arrested at his friend's arm.

Twelve, they afterwards called him, accosting him with the hour. He was smiling and considerably disheveled...

"Hello, Tom!" Van Vecheon was up and dragging at his friend's arm. "Our last! We must overtake that chap!"

With a speed that amazed Tom, Van Vecheon led the way to the street. The man was walking rapidly...

But by the time they turned into Twenty-third street a good deal of the pursuers was almost a run when they turned the same corner...

Still There was Something About Her That Teased and Perplexed Him. They saw him disappear eastward into Twenty-third street.

"He's not acquainted with the neighborhood," he was making for the Twenty-third street station. Hurry!

But by the time they turned into Twenty-third street a good deal of the pursuers was almost a run when they turned the same corner, in spite of which they had not gained upon their quarry.

"Wonder what's doing?" Tom exclaimed. Van Vecheon's response was an increased forward pressure on the other's arm and a repetition of the injunction. "Hurry!"

A second later they arrived at the alley, where a knot of excited people was tightly drawn around the object of interest. Tom unconsciously forced his bulk through the press...

"What terrible, gripping horror was that seemed to be paralyzing all his faculties? What did this man's death signify to her more than it did to any other?"

To one such as Van Vecheon, accustomed to reading the all but imperceptible indices of schooled features, this was like a flash of lightning.

And now he discovered, suddenly, that he was not the only person interested in the agitated girl. His attention was somehow drawn to a man standing in the crowd...

gilted himself so vigorously but a few moments previously, was lying at their feet—dead.

CHAPTER IV.

The Face in the Crowd.

Up to the present moment the two young men had been confronted only by a series of mystic, lock-me-up, baffling, be sure, but bearing nothing sinister upon their face...

But here, in the twinkling of an eye, was tragedy stark and grim. Only a minute or two ago and this man was pulsing with the perfect vitality of young, vigorous manhood...

Both were profoundly sobered by the shocking end of their brief chase, and even Van Vecheon's more active mentality was slow to accept realization.

The spell of horror was in a measure broken by a policeman's belated arrival. He stooped and turned up the man's face, and a thin crimson line would be seen staining the left temple.

"Blissed," was the officer's sententious conclusion. Standing upright, he shot a glance round the crowd.

"Nobody replied; only an uneasy stirring undulated through the small gathering, which promptly settled again into silent immobility, and the blue-coat was usually hapless in such cases, inept to cover with rudeness his incompleteness to handle the situation.

It was at about this time that Van Vecheon forever afterwards remembered, that he first became aware of the face. He was standing behind Tom, a bit to the left, and opposite the alley mouth.

He watched her with an eagerness, naturally enough, up to this time had been that she had not come from the feet. It was the face which the stranger, therefore, that his mind should have been attracted and held elsewhere, even temporarily.

Straitaway he became sensible of the pulsing of an abrupt quickening of the pulse, which he could not in the least account.

He watched a second officer and the young surgeon step into the crowd; the first to join his comrade in holding the crowd in check, the other to render such aid to the stricken man as any faint light of the night call for.

Van Vecheon saw, hastily, the young physician indicate the mark on the man's temple, and lay the tip of a forefinger upon another spot behind the left ear, while he talked in undertones to the two policemen.

It was with something of a shock that he realized she was no longer content with her glance fixed quickly hither and thither—even hoping for the sandy-haired man, as a sort of clue—but she was now looking to the fronting him.

Both had vanished. The ambulance was now departing with its silent burden, the crowd was dissolving or breaking up into little groups to discuss the tragedy, and the two friends were walking at a leisurely pace back to the Povlatian.

"Why the dickens didn't you want to tell him what you know?" he demanded. "The answer was uttered softly. 'Tom, whatever reason I may have I couldn't put into words. At least, I shouldn't attempt to just now. You surely know what a 'hunch' in your scheme of life seems largely to be governed by them.'"

"His great Tom, without understanding, but inadvertently hitting upon a part of the reason for his friend's reticence. 'It is the veiled lady in the last; you think you are on the scent of an adventure. Hats! No adventure there. She was a lady, I can tell you that.'"

"The other gave him a sharp glance, as if estimating the degree of his participation. 'How much could Tom tell me after he is gone? If you must talk—and I know your limitations as compared with your intention—I promise me that you will not mention the lady in the last—to anybody.'"

"Van Vecheon's manner was so deliberate that Tom favored him with a questioning stare. 'Why, sure, Buddy?' was the prompt and hearty response—"It is as serious as you can be. Van Vecheon said: 'No, I don't. But I think that I should—' which is quite a different thing.'"

"I know that one phase of the morning's happenings would not be too much for Tom to keep to himself, and with a convincing reason Van Vecheon wanted to it be the mysterious lady of the taxi-cab."

As they were turning into the Povlatian street, Van Vecheon ten bent an inquisitive glance toward Number 1212. His curiosity was now immeasurably augmented by a fresh interest, and he received another shock—one that fairly staggered him.

For the first time in all the months of his acquaintance with Van Vecheon he caught a movement at the corner of the blinds. It was drawn aside, and he was afforded a momentary glimpse of a slight smile—the face of the girl in the crowd.

But it was not this circumstance alone that stirred him. She was laughing, and he was laughing with her. She was both bitterly scornful and accusing. In this new alien the face was even more beautiful than he had dared hope for. But why should she be withering him with a look of contemptuous disdain and rebuke? He had never in all his life seen her face before this day.

He was actually stung to an involuntary expression of protest. "My God! Don't—don't look at me like that!"

"Er—that?" Tom jerked out, elevating his gaze following Van Vecheon's what? But the blinds were again closed. "You need a cocktail," Tom commented. "This thing of not going to bed at night is to be up before noon has got you to seeing things."

the dead man, and intent only upon catching her eye. And then the magnetism of his look had its effect; her eyes were drawn to his, and she came to herself with a start. A tinge of color appeared in her cheeks; but Van Vecheon observed that the terror and despair still lingered in her eyes.

Van Vecheon turned his attention to the man with something like resentment stirring in his bosom, for the fellow's manner suggested a proprietary relationship toward the girl, which for a reason he did not accept just then to explain, made him angry.

As far as attire went, the man was presentable enough; but Van Vecheon was not favorably impressed by the sullen, battered countenance, the coarse, sandy hair, nor the big, loose-jointed, powerful body.

Then the cautioning glance of a sudden accounted for; the man, satisfied that the girl had caught his meaning, looked back at her.

Van Vecheon's manner was so deliberate that Tom favored him with a questioning stare. "Why, sure, Buddy?" was the prompt and hearty response—"It is as serious as you can be. Van Vecheon said: 'No, I don't. But I think that I should—' which is quite a different thing.'"

"I know that one phase of the morning's happenings would not be too much for Tom to keep to himself, and with a convincing reason Van Vecheon wanted to it be the mysterious lady of the taxi-cab."

As they were turning into the Povlatian street, Van Vecheon ten bent an inquisitive glance toward Number 1212. His curiosity was now immeasurably augmented by a fresh interest, and he received another shock—one that fairly staggered him.

For the first time in all the months of his acquaintance with Van Vecheon he caught a movement at the corner of the blinds. It was drawn aside, and he was afforded a momentary glimpse of a slight smile—the face of the girl in the crowd.

But it was not this circumstance alone that stirred him. She was laughing, and he was laughing with her. She was both bitterly scornful and accusing. In this new alien the face was even more beautiful than he had dared hope for. But why should she be withering him with a look of contemptuous disdain and rebuke? He had never in all his life seen her face before this day.

He was actually stung to an involuntary expression of protest. "My God! Don't—don't look at me like that!"

"Er—that?" Tom jerked out, elevating his gaze following Van Vecheon's what? But the blinds were again closed. "You need a cocktail," Tom commented. "This thing of not going to bed at night is to be up before noon has got you to seeing things."

"My dear fellow," was the composed reply, "you can't imagine how eminently correct you are in that conclusion. And as they passed inside: 'This cocktail, though, thanks. And if you do not mind, go talk to somebody else; I want to think.'"

Interest in Colors of Bears. The color of bears is a matter of many points of interest. All the ancient tapestries show Cain and Judas Iscariot with yellow or red bears, and Pontius Pilate in ancient art always was given a bear. (Being a Roman of good family, he probably had no trouble in procuring a bear.) A reddish bear, however, does not carry the significance that goes with red hair. In fact, the reddish bear is a brown bear, and has reddish bears.

What Did He Want? One of the most curious cases of a British territorialist is a diary of a certain gentleman who has written a very interesting remark about the man in front of him. The victim turned with indignation and assumed a fighting attitude. Then the captives remained sharp. "That will do there. We don't want any fighting men in this region."

Enjoy's Travel in Old Age. Lord Strathcona, Ninety-Three Years Old, Thinks Nothing of a Journey of 7,000 Miles.

Lord Strathcona, high commissioner of Canada, who recently celebrated his ninety-third birthday, returned to London after a highly enjoyable tour in Canada, in the course of which he covered over 7,000 miles in 15 days. Lady Strathcona, who is eighty-nine, accompanied her husband.

"I enjoyed the trip immensely and feel all the better for it," said Lord Strathcona. "A journey like that is a great tonic in these days when we are so busy and so full of care."

There is no better investment on the farm than good farm buildings. During a very rainy season, a barn will absorb part of the profit in the saving of feed alone, not counting the gain in housing animals and the value of manure. It pays to build a barn now, rather than to wait until it is too late.

CARING FOR THE ORCHARD AND VINEYARD

The commercial fruit farmer of today generally recognizes the fact that a well-kept orchard and vineyard is essential to uniform and profitable results...

Stem Tumor of Apples.

In the fence corners is just as important to the health of the trees, vines, or other crops as is the proper care of annual refuse to the health of live stock or man. An orchard or vineyard which has been planted in a fertile soil is a beautiful as well as a profitable one. It pays to keep things cleaned up, because there are a number of diseases which need not be given a chance to get a foothold in the vineyard...

GROSS IGNORANCE IN FRUIT CULTURE

Care and Cultivation Alone Will Improve Some Plants, but Not Fruit Trees.

One of the most profitable, useful and commendable undertakings to which one can devote himself in these times is the cultivation of fruits and fruit trees. It is worth while to give a part, though even so small, in helping to raise mankind to a higher plane of living; and the fruit-grower's services are of value in solving the problem of the ever-increasing cost of living.

Probably there is no other branch of agriculture in which there is so much gross ignorance still prevalent as in fruit culture. How many farmers understand to any degree the arts of budding and grafting and pruning and training of vines; and yet they are the very persons who, above all others, should be familiar with these processes. The rest of the undertaking is comparatively easy. To begin with a "poor grade of nursery stock is to invite failure at the start, and to assume a handicap which can never be overcome."

Market Poultry Fat. Poultry marketed from the farm consists of cockerels, or males under one year, roosters, pullets culled from the flock, and young chickens, guinea fow, ducks, geese and turkeys. They are generally sold alive in summer and early autumn, and both alive and dressed in late autumn and the winter.

To bring the highest market price, market poultry, whether alive or dressed, should be in good health, of standard weight and fatness. The large size and well fattened market poultry marketed should be fat. This condition is the chief factor in determining the price per pound. Fat old, heavy birds, of whatever weight, often command a higher price than young, tender chickens.

For Greater Efficiency. In every branch of industry there is a striving for greater efficiency in methods of production. In agriculture, this is accomplished by employing scientific principles of management. There is a chance for a better way than the methods of a decade ago.

SUBSTANTIAL FARM BUILDINGS ARE URGED

MME. MERRI'S ADVICE

IDEAS FOR SIMPLE THOUGH PLEASANT ENTERTAINMENT.

Gypsy Party May Be Recommended as Most Enjoyable—Venerable Game of "Buz" Is Good—"Lady Jane" for Children.

If any of you have any bits of birch bark or can get paper in the imitation of wood use it for invitations to a gypsy party. Ask the guests to come in costume. You may word the cards something like this: "There will be a meeting of the 'Bonny Rye' two hours after sundown. At (Give place, day, date). Please come wearing the costume of your tribe."

Read up on gypsies and have the time of your life at this very picturesque party. Beads, brooches, ribbons, white waist, gay skirts and velvet bodies may be worn by the girls with low shoes and bows to match the dress skirt. A broad brimmed hat or a red and yellow kerchief on the head with hair loose or in braids down the back. Boys should wear high crowned hats with quills and maybe a feather, gaily striped shirts, red jackets, long waist coats, full trousers with bright stockings and buckled shoes. Long ties or handkerchiefs knotted around collared necks.

A gypsy kettle may be the centerpiece with few ketles for individual place favors. A picnic lunch may be served.

"Buz." Sometimes a game was initiated into the good old game of "Buz," much to the amusement of the kiddies who thought it was great to find a pastime with which I was not familiar. Here is the way to play it:

The players sit in a circle and the one designated begins to count, his neighbor says the next number and so on until seven is reached when, instead of giving the number the player says "buz." The next says "eight" and so it goes until fourteen brings another "buz," and so on, for every number having a seven or a multiple of seven the word buz is substituted. The player who forgets to left out of it or must pay a forfeit.

"Lady Jane." Do you know her? It not introduce her to the children the next time they ask you "what to play." It is done by forming a circle, then give to each child the name of an article of a woman's belongings, a parrot, a fan, a hat, hippers and so on. Another player spins a plate in the middle of the floor and says "Lady Jane is going a-visiting and needs her hat," or some other article, and the person to whom the hat was given must raise the plate before it ceases to spin, else as he twirls it the name of another one of Lady Jane's possessions.

MME. MERRI'S FASHION HINTS

For cotton waists the most favored materials are plain and fancy crepes, velvets, lace and net; for silk there are crepe de chine, chiffon, tulle, China silk and satin.

Blossoms and dresses will be made of a wonderful white broche crepe that washes. Knowledgeably fashionable are the drop ornaments of every variety. Very new are the hats of straw trimmed with a touch of fur.

The girle socks of evening gowns are finished with long bead tassels.

The newest handbags are of silk and should match the suit in color. The jaunty outdoor hat is trimmed with broad, flat feather quills.

OF SILK POPLIN

This frock has just been completed by one of the best known designers on a bridge and afternoon costume. One of the subtlest features of the winter silk poplin was chosen for the material, fashioned on the simple draped lines that give the new figure effect and with just a tiny slash at the feet—for the slash is still in the mode. The baler opens over a vest and lower sleeves of the softest batiste machine embroidered in imitation of hand work. The button strap sandals are most French and very stylish.

NECKLACE MADE OF BEADS

Simple and Inexpensive Ornament May Be Made in the Old Moments of Leisure.

Most charming necklaces that cost very little indeed, can be made quite easily with beads. All that is required is the shape of necklace, will be thread, a clasp that can be bought at a good small shop for a few cents, and beads.

The small beads, as in sketch, may be glass or metal, this will depend upon the taste of the worker. The necklace illustrated is made of a lovely iris blue metal bead, the larger beads are the same color, and a few pearls are threaded here and there. So that one bunch of the small beads will be needed, two beads of the long shape, one large round bead, and nine pearls.

When buying beads, it is better to buy sufficient to make two or three necklaces; it will be found cheaper than getting exact quantities, as, of course, the larger beads are sold at retail prices.

SEAT LITTLE GOOD TO HIM

Smart Youth Had It But He Did Not Proceed Far Toward His Destination.

An important looking and haughtily acting young man was wandering up and down on the platform of the railroad station of a small western city, was intent on finding an empty seat in the express, which was almost due to start. Vainly did he search each car. Suddenly he assumed an official air and, walking up to the last car, he cried out: "All change here. This car will be taken to empty seat."

The occupants of the crowded car uttered exclamations which proved their dissatisfaction, but hurried out and packed themselves in other coaches. The face of the young man assumed a bland and childlike expression as he settled himself very comfortably in an empty seat.

Shortly after, the station agent put his head in at the door and said: "I suppose you're the smart boob who told the folks this car wasn't going, aren't you?" "Yes," replied the bright youth, with a grin.

"Well," responded the station agent, "you were right. It isn't. The brakeman heard you calling out about it, and so he unhooked it. He thought you were an official—'Applicant's Magazine."

"Hardly Good Material for Angels. A little girl of eight, living on the South side, asked her mother: "Mamma, what are boys after they are dead?" "No, dear," replied her mother, "they are angels, as all other people are when they die, if they have been good. Why do you think they would be else?"

"Well," the child answered, "I don't think they ever could be angels, I should think they'd be brownies, or elfs, or kewpies, or something like that," was the child's answer.—Kansas City Star.

FACE BROKE OUT IN PIMPLES

Falls City, Neb.—"My trouble began when I was about sixteen. My face broke out in little pimples at first. They were red and sore and then became like little boils. I picked at my face continually and it made my face red and sore looking and then I would wake up at night and scratch it. It was a source of continual annoyance to me, and made me feel very red and spotted and burned all the time."

"I tried to do nothing to cure it, but I had been troubled about two years before I found Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and tried them and I then bought some. I washed my face good with the Cuticura Soap and hot water at night and then applied the Cuticura Ointment. In the morning I washed it off with the Cuticura Soap and hot water. In two days I noticed a decided improvement, while in three weeks the cure was complete."

Sick Women Made Well

Reliable evidence is abundant that women are constantly being restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The many testimonial letters that we are continually publishing in the newspapers—hundreds of them—are all genuine, true and unsolicited expressions of heartfelt gratitude for the freedom from suffering that has come to these women solely through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Money could not buy nor any kind of influence obtain such recommendations; you may depend upon it that any testimonial we publish is honest and true—if you have any doubt of this write to the women whose true names and addresses are always given, and learn for yourself.

Read this one from Mrs. Waters: CAMDEN, N.J.—"I was sick for two years with nervous spells, and my kidneys were affected. I had a doctor all the time and used a galvanic battery, but nothing did me any good. I was not able to go to bed, but spent my time on a couch or in a sleeping-chair, and soon became almost a skeleton. Finally my doctor went away for his health, and my husband heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me some. In two months I got relief and now I am like a new woman and am at my usual weight. I recommend your medicine to every one and so does my husband."—Mrs. TULLIN WATERS, 1135 Knight St., Camden, N.J.

And thence from Mrs. Haddock: UTICA, OHLA.—"I was weak and nervous, not able to do my work and scarcely able to be on my feet. I had backache, headache, palpitation of the heart, trouble with my bowels, and inflammation. Since taking the Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, my health has been restored for twenty years. I think it is a wonderful medicine and I have recommended it to others."—Mrs. MARY ANN HADDOCK, Utica, Oklahoma.

Now answer this question if you can. Why should a woman continue to suffer without first giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial? You know that it has saved many others—why should it fail in your case?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments should fail to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health. Write to LYDIA E. ### Controlling the Elements.

Orchard heaters, to protect the orchard and garden from the ravages of spring frosts, are practically fast-year an important loss was suffered by Ohio farmers from the effects of late spring frosts. In some sections, however, the loss was prevented by the use of orchard heaters. One of the best examples of this was found in Delaware county, where it is estimated that $40,000 was saved by a few growers in a certain section where the fruit trees were protected. These men got together, used orchard heaters and cooperated with the weather bureau in such a way that special warnings were sent them during the dangerous frost season. The saving was estimated to be the fact that the growers in the same neighborhood who did not use heaters lost the larger part of their crop.

Orchard heaters, to protect the temperature of the air in the orchard by burning some easily combustible material. Oil heaters are most used in Ohio. These heaters do not cost a great deal and can be used for several seasons. If alarm thermometers are used it will be necessary to light the heaters only for a short time each night and this practice for a few nights may be the means of saving a crop of fruit. Other types of heaters, such as coal or wood, which may be used, serve the purpose just as well. The wealth or business will want special machines to any farmer or group of farmers during the dangerous frost season.

A Story of A Mystery

By MARRHA V. MONROE

At thirteen I found my father, and since I felt his affairs in a very bad state it was absolutely necessary that I get married. I lived in a suburban town not far from a city, and the cops as soon as they had received an education left it for jobs that furnished better opportunities for making a living. Consequently there was no one for me to marry. Ned Freeman was one of the boys, but he had no means and was not engaged in any business. I wished he would do something to get about for himself, but very much, and I fancied that if he could support a wife he would ask me to marry him.

The idea of advertising for a husband occurred to me. I was young and unacquainted and did not realize that matrimonial advertisements are not likely to bring satisfactory results. I wrote out what I wished to communicate and started out with it to do some shopping, intending to mail my letter addressed to a newspaper in the city at the same time. I did not take a bag with me, and having no pocket I carried the letter in my hand. I was so underwhelmed about posting it that I carried it about with me while I made my purchases. Then I missed it. Whether I had laid it on a counter or dropped it I couldn't tell. But my instinct decided the question as to what I should do about it, for, being addressed and stamped, the letter would drop it in the mail.

The next day I looked in the newspaper for my advertisement, and, true enough, there it was. I thanked heaven that whoever had found it could not know from anything on the envelope that I had advertised for a husband. In a few days I went to the office and for my replies there might be for me. I was handed several of which, except one, I scribbled bits as soon as I had read them. The exception was apparently genuine. It was couched in respectful language, seemed to indicate that the writer really wished a wife and was quite practical. He proposed that we correspond till we should get some knowledge of each other by that means, then marry.

All this led me to place confidence in him, and I replied to his letter giving him a fictitious name and the number of a box I had rented for the purpose at the postoffice. We corresponded for several months. That he was an excellent man there was no doubt. I asked for his occupation, but he declined to give it. This aroused a slight suspicion, which I indulged in next letter. Then he confessed that he was trying to do something in a literary way. He had written some short stories which had been published in obscure periodicals. He was now finishing a novel and would soon have it ready to offer to publishers.

This announcement cast a damper on the affair. I had had several girl friends who had tried to make money by writing and had failed. I felt that since I had fallen into the hands of one who was down with the literary fever, nothing would ever come of it all. I did not reply to his letter making the announcement for some time, then I received a letter from him which was a trifling reproachful wherewith I wrote him that I feared he was impractical.

I received no reply to this for some time, then he wrote that he had secured a publisher for his novel and it would be issued the next spring. He added that if it were a success he would take steps to make my further acquaintance; if not, the matter between us would better be dropped. I sent none.

One morning while looking over a newspaper I saw an advertisement of a forthcoming novel by Edward Freeman. How singular that the only two men I had ever thought of marrying should both be novelists. I was surprised as I would better be dropped. I sent none.

"I'm not going to interfere with anybody or anybody with me. I know all about your correspondent, for I'm the man himself."

"Oh, he's here?"

"One day I walked behind you on the street and saw you drop a letter. I picked it up and mailed it for you. Wondering why you were writing to a newspaper I looked over the same the next day and saw your ad."

NOTHING that we could say would so thoroughly convince you of the value of Chamberlain's Tablets as a personal trial. We can tell you of thousands who have been permanently cured of chronic constipation, indigestion, biliousness, sick headache and disorders of the stomach and liver, but this will have little weight with you as compared to a personal trial. That always convinces.
