31st bond of $500 due and payable March 1st, 1943.

Bidders will be required to state in writing and to figure the gross amount they will pay for the bonds bid for, besides the accrued interest at the date of delivery. All bids must be unconditional and no bid will be accepted for less than par and accrued interest at date of delivery.

Bidders will be required to deposit with each bid money or certified check upon some local bank in Plymouth, Ohio, in the sum of $200.00 as a guarantee of good faith that the bid so made if successful will be accepted in accordance with the terms thereof and requirements of the law and resolution and orders of said Township Trustees.
When awards are made all checks, drafts or money so deposited will be returned to bidders, except that of the successful bidder, which shall be held as part payment of bonds so sold.
Should such successful bidder refuse or fail to pay for bonds so sold, or in any other way violate his contract, then such deposit shall be retained to cover such township as liquidated damages.

Sealed bids will be received at the office of the Township Trustees at any blank bonds subject to the approval of the Trustees.
The Trustees reserve the right to reject any and all bids and to accept any proposal within ten (10) days after opening of the bids.
All proposals shall be addressed to the Township Clerk and indorsed

'BABE KILLED
By Big Four Express Train
Wednesday Morning.

Wednesday morning about 5:30 o'clock as Frank Stout, Mr. and Mrs. Quinn and their child, aged 2 years, were driving across the Big Four crossing at Shiloh, their rig was struck by a fast express train and the child was instantly killed, as were also the two horses. Neither of the others were seriously injured.
Mr. Quinn is a brother of Mrs. Allie Devore, of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Quinn and baby had just returned home and Stout had gone to the depot to meet them. As they were driving along they failed to notice the approach of the train, which is a fast express not stopping at Shiloh, until it was but a few feet away. Stout made almost superhuman efforts to pull his horses from the track but without avail and with a sickening crash the big engine was on them.
The baby was hurled from its seat between its parents and thrown against an iron gate post and instantly killed. The carriage was reduced to kindling and how the three grown people escaped with but slight bruises is a miracle.
The railroad crossing, although equipped with gates, does not have a watchman or gatekeeper until 6:30 p. m. They are also unguarded after 9 p. m., although Shiloh people have made repeated attempts at securing better protection. Immediate steps will be taken by the village to have the crossing constantly guarded in order to avoid similar accidents to the one of today. It is said that within a short time a large number of accidents have been narrowly averted.

News From Scout Headquarters.

An indoor meeting was held at the Mayor's office last Thursday evening. Three members of the Troop, Paul Smith, Gerald Howell and Royle Trauer, took a bicycle trip to Shelby, Ohio and surrounding points. The remainder of the troop spent the afternoon in swimming tests as required by the manual and in observing the progress of the locusts which infest this locality. They did their good turn by destroying as many as possible.

SCALY PSORIASIS ON LIMBS

Troop H, 6th U. S. Cavalry, Camp McCoy, Sparta, Wis.—I was troubled with psoriasis for nearly two years. Portions of my arms and limbs were affected mostly with the it. It appeared in scaly form, breaking out in very small dots and gradually grew larger and white scales formed when about the size of an ordinary match.

His Coffin Finished, He Dies. After seeing that his coffin was made, J. Welch, father of Mrs. Nelson, died from the ravages of cancer. He came from Oakland last fall to live with his daughter. Three months ago he requested that his coffin be made, so it might be finished before his death.

Old Acquaintance. A resourceful girl having danced a pink party frock to ribbons, took what was left of it and made a wonderful lamp shade. The next evening she was entertaining a crowd of the soft light and she said to him quite casually: "How do you like my new lamp shade?"

Selfish Constituency. "Are you going to send your congressman back to Washington?" "No," replied Paul (Garrison). "We've found out that he's such a good company that we've decided to keep him home."

AMERICAN CONSUL OF DURANGO Files His Official Report in Washington.

COMMERCE AT A STANDSTILL

T. C. Hamm Says All Industrial Enterprises Have Been Forced to Suspend Operations, Either in Whole or in Part—Uncertainty and Gloom Prevails.

Washington, D. C.—A striking review of the chaotic industrial conditions in northern Mexico is given in an official report just filed by American Consul Theodore C. Hamm of Durango. "From every viewpoint the year 1913 was one of the most disastrous ever known in this consular district."

Uncertainty and Gloom. "Unfortunately 1914 opened with no better prospects. Retrenchment, uncertainty and gloom prevailed in all lines of industrial enterprise or commercial activity. At the beginning of the new year scarcely a wheel was turning."

No Railroad Communication. "The state of Durango has been without railroad communication with all other parts of the country since the early part of March."

Old Acquaintance. A resourceful girl having danced a pink party frock to ribbons, took what was left of it and made a wonderful lamp shade.

300,000,000 BUSHEL OF WHEAT IS FORECAST

FIGURES ARE GIVEN OUT BY THE AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT IN CROP BULLETIN. Predicts All Records Will Be Broken in United States This Year—Ohio on the List for Yield of 37,800 Bushels.

Washington, D. C.—Nine hundred million bushels of wheat, all records broken and biscuits for everybody! One hundred and thirty-seven million bushels more wheat than ever was grown before in the United States in any one year!

Excellent weather for the growing crop and an increase of 64 per cent in the acreage planted to wheat are responsible. The forecast in figures is given as follows:

Spring wheat: Area, 17,990,000 acres; yield, 22.4 bushels per acre; indicated yield, 14.6 bushels per acre; estimated production, 282,000,000 bushels.

Winter wheat: Condition, 93.7, yield, 18.1; production, 435,000,000 bushels. All wheat: Area, 45,527,000 acres; condition, 93.7; yield, 16.9; production, 900,000,000 bushels.

Admits Killing Husband. Charleston, W. Va.—I have killed my husband and I am willing to pay the penalty, sheriff remarked Mrs. Della McGraw, when she walked into the office of Sheriff Bonner Hill here. She said her husband, Bert McGraw, came to her home at New River, near here, after she was drinking, that he mistreated one of their children and tried to kill her with a pistol. McGraw, she added, hit him on the head and when he was down stabbed him with the knife.

Official Tells of Administration's Position in Mediation Negotiations. GIVES STATUS OF SITUATION

Antilla Will Be Allowed to Enter Tampico Unmolested—Rebel Chief Has No Objection to the Participation of His Delegates in Niagara Falls Proceedings.

Washington, D. C.—For the first time in the history of this country a comprehensive summary of the administration's position in the mediation negotiations has been obtained. It comes from a high authority—a man who has been intimately associated with the president and Secretary Bryan since the secretary first took hold of the Mexican problem.

It is true, he said, to consider mediation without the Constitutionalist being included in any resultant plan. There are three distinct parties at Niagara Falls: The mediators, the United States and Mexico, represented by contending factions, the Huertista and the Carranzista.

MEASURES GO THROUGH LOWER BRANCH OF CONGRESS BY DECISIVE VOTES. Clayton—General Trust, Interstate Trade, Commission and Federal Trade Commission Acts Approved and Sent to Senate.

Washington, D. C.—The anti-trust legislation, dictated by President Wilson, passed the house of representatives by decisive votes. The three bills, carrying plans for further reform of big business and in insurance of securities, were rushed to the senate.

Good old Dame Nature is doing her best to push along prosperity. The crop outlook has never been better in the history of the nation than it is this year. The fruit outlook is superb, the outlook being for such a plentiful crop of peaches that the price will drop below anything in recent years. The cereal outlook in the state and country at large is enormous, that of wheat being 103 per cent of a normal crop.

Plymouth is suffering from a disease technically known as traditis. The symptoms of this serious disease are easily recognized. The people do a great deal of trading away from town and roads in a general rundown condition. Traditis, if not checked, generally results in the death of the victim due to the loss of vitality. The cure is effected by the removal of the irritating cause. A counter-irritant in the form of better advertising usually proves sufficient.

When we contemplate the fact that Caruso, the noted tenor, and Rodeheaver, Billy Sunday's famous choir leader, had each lost out in an expensive breach of promise suits we are content that our lines have been cast in more humble fields.

If a man gets home an hour late for supper for ten straight nights, he is rich. But if he gets home on time the eleventh night and supper is five minutes late, he wants to throw bombs at the government and vote the Anarchist ticket.

Fifteen million dollars will be spent for good roads in Ohio this year, according to the estimate of State Highway Commissioner, James M. Marker. Of this sum, $9,000,000 will be spent on contracts under the supervision of the state highway department. The remaining $6,000,000 will be spent directly by counties and townships.

Cast your dollar upon the waters of home trade and it will ride with you after few days, but send it to the mail order house or spend it with the merchant in the nearby town, and it is had case of wanderlust and leaves you pinning your heart away on an empty pocketbook.

Schumann-Heink, when asked if he had faith in mankind, answered: "No! Who could lose faith on a beautiful day like this?" There's food for reflection in this reply. Let's all take some.

Nothing tends more to produce a good impression upon visitors in a town than cleanliness and order. Dirty streets and alleys and unsightly heaps of rubbish certainly do not produce a pleasing impression. Plymouth, with her fine shade trees and nicely paved streets, can easily be made one of the most beautiful towns in the state, the only thing necessary being the hearty cooperation of her citizens. Let's be at it for these things are well worth while.

It is rumored that the political game is being worked in the contest for membership of the county Board of Education, and also county superintendent. This is wrong, as the schools should be kept out of politics. Presidents of Boards of Education who have a voice in the selection of the county board should steer clear of any deals and support the men best qualified to fill the office, which is a most important one. The success of the new system will depend largely upon the men who are to be elected on Saturday of this week.

A benevolent woman loaned $50 forty years ago and recently received a bequest of $50,000. Unfortunately this handsome proceeds lost its value when we begin to realize that such incidents don't happen more than once in forty years.

Saturday was "Rooster Day" in Ohio and it is quite likely that many chicken dinners were enjoyed Sunday. If the plan of Commissioner Strode was carried out fully there was some tough chewing at some of the Sunday dinners and the dentists will probably have to keep their offices open early and late for some time to come. All of which goes to prove there is no evil without some good.

It seems too bad that the weather bureau can't manage to give us enough rain for the crops without throwing in so much lightning and wind. It looks as if there was mismanagement somewhere and that we need a change in administration.

Owing to the fatness of corn planting season, the closing date for entries in the Boys' Corn Growing Contest has been extended from June 1 to Tuesday, June 16th. Boys who have not yet entered will have a chance to get in the game. The season is backward in all parts of the state and one boy has as good prospects as the other. If you do not have any ideas, make your request for same by addressing the Agricultural Commissioner at Columbus.

 Very interesting temperance meetings were held at the Methodist church last Sunday. Rev. E. H. Gentry, of Delaware, district superintendent of the anti-saloon league, gave a very able address. Rev. Curtis was unable to be present at the evening meeting and Rev. Griffiths, of the Presbyterian church, was asked to preach. He responded with an excellent sermon, which was appreciated by all.
 The state tax commission and other tax officials are not only increasing valuation of property which would be greater than the true market value, the supreme court decided this week in the Jefferson county court of appeals, which granted a permanent injunction against the collection of a 20 per cent increase in taxes from Chas. S. Cole and 100 other property owners of Wells township. The state tax commission in 1911 ordered the increase. The court in 1912 ordered for the southwest County Treasurer Robert E. Blinn, but the common pleas court decided that the increase was just. The court of appeals reverses it.

 A bill has been introduced in congress which has for its aim to prevent salient members of congress, senators and heads of departments going on the lecture platform while in office. The bill is aimed at William Jennings Bryan and has already many Chautauqua lectures and is criticized for doing so.
 Dr. C. S. Walker returned Sunday from Myersdale, Pa., where he had laid last week by the illness of his mother which later resulted in her death. Dr. Walker had arrived but a few hours when his mother dropped into a quiet sleep from which she never awakened and passed peacefully away Thursday at the age of seventy-two. Mrs. Walker had been an invalid for eleven years and death, to her, was a relief.
 The present indications are that there will be no Sunday excursion out of this city to Sandusky and Cedar Point this summer over the B. & O. railroad. The Point opens next Sunday and no excursion is expected by the local agent of any change in the passenger schedule. In other years the summer schedule always went into effect a month before this but so far not a word has been received of a change of any kind.
 O. B. Tamm, postmaster at Cedar Point, says the Cedar Point Express Co. through President George A. Boeckling, refuses to permit him to land at the resort and accordingly prevents him from putting the post office there in readiness for the season. He so advised the postoffice authorities in a letter in which he seeks for advice. Officials of the resort refuse to discuss cases except to say Tamm has no rights on the resort grounds and that he will not be permitted to land except as an excursionist.
 The presidents of the boards of education of the various township and village districts in each county will meet about the middle of this month at the call of the county auditor to choose the five men who will constitute the county board of education. This is a matter of vital importance. The schools and it is to be hoped that the very best men will be selected as this board will have control over all the schools outside the cities. It will select the county superintendent.

 To be cured you must know the cause.
 If it's weak kidneys
 You must set the kidneys working right.
 A resident of this vicinity shows you how.
 Mrs. Coble, 163 Central Ave., Chicago Junction, Ohio, says: "I used several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured me of a serious kidney trouble that had bothered me for about a year. I had a constant, throbbing ache in the small of my back and the pains darted through my kidneys radiating throughout my body. I was also subject to dizzy spells during which my sight became blurred. Spots often appeared before my eyes. I was tired and nervous all the time. A friend advised me to use Doan's Kidney Pills and I did so. They promptly relieved me and my condition rapidly improved until all symptoms of the trouble disappeared. This was several years ago and I have had no return attack."

opened and Della came toward him still wearing her hat. She knew nothing of the seriousness of Callis' injuries, and Tom considered it unnecessary to tell her. Since the excitement has passed without tragedy," she said, her manner and utterance extremely formal. "There is no reason why I shouldn't proceed with my errand—unless I am a prisoner."

BOOK III. CHAPTER V.

Della Gave Ashore. The boat was quickly guided by Mercer's shouts to the point where the two men had drifted. With one arm hooked over a life-buoy, she was sustaining with the other hand the limp form of John Callis, who appeared to be unconscious. A minute or two later both bedraggled figures were upon deck.

The first officer, finding that his captain was obdurate in the matter of "just one job" to drive out the chill that had entered into his veins, split out an oath and reminded Tom that he might have swum ashore instead of wasting his energies upon a surly gear like Callis.

"I take it for granted," was the sharp retort, "that you have more sense of your duty than to do such a thing—or to stand here rag-chewing with your superior officer. What's the matter with the fellow? He hasn't had time to drown."

Mercer cast a scowling look at the limp form outstretched upon the deck. "I don't know," he replied, "unless he struck his head upon something floating in the water—my plank, likely. He's bleeding like a stuck pig. I hope to hell he broke his neck!"

"After the expression of this kindly sentiment in behalf of the injured man, Mr. Mercer hastened away after a dry change, and Callis was carried to his berth, where an ugly scowl wound was neatly dressed by Hewitt's adept fingers. Della had already retired to her own room, and Tom stood watching the attendant.

"I don't like the looks of it, captain," said the latter. "He ought to have a doctor. His skull may be cracked." "If Mr. Willard doesn't show up pretty soon," announced Tom, "I'll take the liberty of fetching one."

yacht, the sailor in charge of the launch and his two assistants himself climbed upon the landing, where he was soon lost to sight in the moving throng. This maneuver was observed by Tom with a grim smile of comprehension. It could mean only one thing—Miss Della's errand would not consume much time, she was not going any considerable distance—certainly not all the way down to the city; and Mercer had ordered the man to wait. So the Kohlnur's master lit up and lighted his pipe, and defining a course from gangway to stern and back again, fell to pacing it with pendulum-like regularity and patience.

Meanwhile, no sooner was the launch away from the yacht than the girl's mood underwent a sudden change. Mercer had entered into the apparent gay humor of the adventure; he was even casting ahead, hoping that the opportunity would present itself of acquiring indefinite quantities of liquid refreshment, but his hopes and the illusion of gaiety were dispelled at one stroke when his companion addressed him in a tone of deep concern.

"Mr. Mercer," she said, "my errand is one of pressing importance, or, at least assured, I should not have undertaken to go down alone at this hour. Thank you very kindly, I do not have to go alone, and my destination is the city only because I know of no nearby telephone station where I may be certain of privacy."

"If that's all you want," he returned, "we need go no further than the Claremont. But, I am disappointed."

She colored. In spite of her outraged feelings, she could not deny that this big, blundering, stupid, simple-hearted man and his adjectives are all her own—affected her in a way that filled her soul with an extraordinary commingling of gladness and terror. She was struck by the strongest discord of emotions—a joy that is incomprehensible, and a powerful something within her that instinctively rose up and smothered the mighty, smothered delight. She looked wonderingly upon the man who had wrought this miracle, and then an imp of perversity seized her, and he had better beware of me. I will give him a taste of my own—make him smart and wretched. Tom stood watching her with a look of grave concern.

"Surely," he said presently, "you are not thinking of going down alone at this time of night? It is past eight."

"Captain Phinney, do your responsibilities as master of the Kohlnur anchor beyond the length of her anchor have?" I am not entirely helpless; if necessary I can appeal to Mr. Willard."

"No, No, No! Take Me Away—To the Kohlnur—At Once." "No, no, no! Take me away—to the Kohlnur—at once." "No, no, no! Take me away—to the Kohlnur—at once."

"I don't think of taking Captain Phinney away from his duties," she said sweetly. "You were saying this to me when I was in the city. I am not a stranger to you. You are a gentleman, and you are a gentleman."

"Thank you, sir," returned Tom, stiffly. "I wish I had known this; I can follow orders only as I receive them."

"I can't think of taking Captain Phinney away from his duties," she said sweetly. "You were saying this to me when I was in the city. I am not a stranger to you. You are a gentleman, and you are a gentleman."

"I can't think of taking Captain Phinney away from his duties," she said sweetly. "You were saying this to me when I was in the city. I am not a stranger to you. You are a gentleman, and you are a gentleman."

For despite her nervousity still giving the girl credit, she was still saying, "If you can walk out of the tables, perhaps a little wine—"

"Your voice is so beautiful," she said, "I should like to hear it more often. I can make it if you will let me hold your arm."

She was fairly dragging him along the hall way toward the entrance. "Your voice is so beautiful," she said, "I should like to hear it more often. I can make it if you will let me hold your arm."

"Thank you," she said, "I should like to hear it more often. I can make it if you will let me hold your arm."

EASILY MADE AT HOME. NECKWEAR NOVELTY REALLY PRESENTS FEW DIFFICULTIES. Gladstone Collar, Expensive if Purchased, Not at All Hard for the Skillful Needlewoman to Fashion—Artificial Fruit.

The big neckwear novelty is the Gladstone collar, high in back and pointed over the ears. Although they were worn by all the well-dressed women at the Annual Races in France, and consequently attained their popularity and price, they may be easily duplicated by using a fine organza handkerchief and a half-yard of fine, boning.

Put a dot in the center of the handkerchief with a lead pencil and cut on straight lines from two corners of the handkerchief so that they meet at the center dot. Then cut a small semicircle with the former dot as center, making a place for the collar to fit the neck snugly. Sew strips of wire collar supporters from the neck circle diagonally across to both corners of the back and bend so that the collar stands up. The wire strips may be neatly hemmed or bound with a bias strip of the same material.

Little artificial fruits are used extensively this season. A certain red and yellow silk apple is especially popular and may be used to trim hats or as corsages and in many instances has been used in place of flower trimming on evening gowns.

Artistic as they are, they may be made with little difficulty by the girl who wants to look "chic" this season. Roll small bits of cotton wadding into a hard ball and cover over with a small circle of brightly colored silk—red and green and yellow are all appropriate. Tie together at the bottom with strong thread and cut away all surplus material. With a coarse needle, threaded in black darning cotton, make a large French knot on the top of the apple, and draw the needle through to the other side. Pull tightly so as to make a slight indentation where the knot lies, and fasten with a few strong stitches. Where various colored silks are used, the knots may be made in corresponding shades of color; for example, green thread may be used on the yellow apple and yellow thread on the red apple.

They may be bunched together for hat trimming or branched along a strip of narrow ribbon when used on evening gowns.

FEATURES OF TAILOR-MADES Many Distinctive Effects Will Be Noticed Among the Styles of the Coming Season.

The three-quarter coat finished at the bottom with a closely knitted frill will be a feature of many of the season's tailor-mades, and a folded mask of figured material will be another. A very advanced tailor-made model in brick-red drapery had a knee-length coat with a knitted frill some six inches deep around the bottom. A sash of oriental silk was draped round the waist with one long folded-over end hanging down the back slightly to the right side. At the back the skirt of the coat was cut into a pointed tail, which buttoned over onto the sash. The same pointed tail effect was shown in the new sleeves, the tab being cut in one with the shoulder, and the long sleeve up to separately. This is a most effective little coat, and so thoroughly up to date that it is certain to remain in fashion for many months to come.

Another stylish model is exhibited in a fashioned of cloth. The skirt is draped high in front under a tab of the cloth, under which a pair of black satin trousers is shown. The trousers are tucked into the back to a point.

ARTIFICIAL JEWELRY

Black Satin Girdles. No matter how much or how little color is used in any one season, black always holds a place, sometimes big, sometimes small, in the realization of the dressmaker. This is a season of black hats. There are black hats and black frocks, too, in abundance. This year's black satin girdles are no exception. They are made of a material used to give character to many of the most elegant dresses. The material is made of black and white and colored.

Mat Box Device. Silt upon the two upright edges of your hat box so that when the cover is raised this side will drop as if by magic. This is a good plan when the hat is kept on a shelf. The device is taken out without taking down the box. If the hat boxes are covered with a pretty wall paper, the appearance of the cardboard is improved.

STUTTERER IN HARD LUCK

Cure May Be Effected, but the Process is a Slow One, and Uncertain in Its Effect. There is no cure for stuttering. This does not mean that no stutterer can be cured—far from it—but that there is no treatment which is sure to cure. If a stutterer be taken in childhood, where the affliction is first noted, and carefully treated, he can sometimes be cured, and generally much improved.

It is not when laughing or crying or in the paroxysms of whooping cough. He must never be tickled. All moves, fresh air, scrupulous cleanliness, plain, nourishing food, moderate exercises and plenty of sleep in a dark room are essential. Mental treatment is of great importance. Any means which will increase mental poise are of incomparable value. The stutterer must be impressed with a desire to overcome what is only a temporary hindrance to his success. He must be encouraged to study the great art of speaking correctly. Thus, be careful, patient, work on the part of his parents, teachers and friends. He must be gradually made himself, or at least so improve as to make the affliction cease to be serious.

Following the lines of the short coat. A big turnover collar having points on the shoulders is of white linen, with black bands, embroidered in black and red tones. PLATED SKIRT WELL LIKED. Made of Many Materials, Though Probably Tartan Leads All of Them in Favor.

Plated skirts are much seen. They are in fine serge, in silk, satin and crepe de chine, the plait fastened with much pressing of the great front used by tailors. Tartan skirts are plaited in this way and worn with black coats turned back with the tartan, or perhaps with a tartan waistcoat. Instead of trimmings of the Scotch material, they are incorrectly called "plaid" in England. The plaid is the shawl or rug. Tartan is the pattern of it, and the Scotch word starts associated at some of the tartans worn in France and Belgium and America, without the remotest reference to clan.

Plain woolen materials, very soft and fine, are worn in plaited skirts, and this is a favorite form for traveling on account of the very high step to the carriages on French and other continental railways, which can easily be negotiated in a tight skirt. These fine woolen materials are ideal for gowns and costumes at this season. Long coats are made of material, lined with tartan or plain silk, very cosy and extremely light.

SHOWER BOUQUET

The "shower bouquet" is preferred by some brides, this pretty style being effected by innumerable narrow satin ribbons falling from the bouquet, trailing down, and knotted with blossoms, making a shower all the way to the foot of the skirt.

Baskets. The latest sashes are flower leaves, crushed and dried, then highly spiced, to which a dash of sachet powder is added. This mixture is then inclosed in a net which has been lined with a thin scrim and tied about the top with satin ribbons. These make the most attractive and the sweetest literally sashes to tack into chiffonier drawers, to hang from a closet hook or, in fact, to put any place where clothes are kept.

Inexpensive Jardinieres. Instead of buying expensive jardinieres for your potted plants, simply paint the ordinary flower pot and decorate with white paint. This is a simple way to harmonize with the color scheme of the room they are in. Flower pots painted a green-blue or a Chinese blue are not hardly more expensive.

String of Jet Beads in graduated shades and alternating with pearls is shown on the upper left. To the right of this is a brooch in cameo effect with decorative rhinestones. A necklace of jet and rhinestones is shown at the upper right. A novel effect is shown in the center design, where from a single strand of brilliants are suspended little squares composed of jet, each of the diamond is of jet and rhinestones with pendants of small jet beads. The remaining brooches and belt buckles are of cut jet and rhinestones.

The ONCOLETER OF HENRY HOWLAND A JOY RIDE for KATHLEEN

I'll take you home again, Kathleen. We'll have a hair-raising ride. I've smugged out the new machine. And it shall now be fully tried.

The things that get in front of me I'll smash, and care the state hold to your hat and you shall see.

Some might say something now, Oh, I will take you some place. And if we give to aching pain, I'll blithely hurry from the scene.

For Her Father's Sake. "I want to have an understanding with you," said the outspoken old man when the expert in voice culture had asked him to sit down.

"What do you dare to look me in the face and intimate that I am never likely to be able to sing?"

"I am very sorry, sir, but if you will compel me to speak the truth, it is as you say."

"Then why the devil have I been letting her come here for two years and hand you my good money in return for your lessons?"

"Because I have wanted to serve you, sir. Whenever I tell young ladies they can't sing they go to a teacher on the poor belief, and charge 50 cents a lesson more than I get."

WHY THEY QUARRELED. "I thought I overheard you and your wife quarreling a little while ago. What was the trouble?"

"She brought home a new hat and, after putting it on, she turned to me and said she didn't believe it was becoming."

"I agreed with her."

Heretofore Righteousness. The Turk, believing that his soul will rise to heaven at once if on the field he die while fighting Allah's foes, is but a slave to that poor faith which leaves him at the grave.

He that from sin and from temptation fears because he fears the God above him, is, like the foolish Turk, a haunted slave who goes at last down to his grave.

They are the heroes who, unafraid to die, still follow duty where the bullets fly. And he is righteous who, unchecked by scorn, snubs all altitudes, holding virtue dear.

Some Other Reason. "Do you suppose your father objects to me because of the fact that I am a poet?"

Some Other Reason. "Oh, dear, no. Pa has a judicial mind and never believes in condemning on hearsay evidence."

Some Other Reason. "She claims to be much younger than she really is, I think."

COOKING FLAVORS FROM FLOWERS

By EVA RYMAN GAILLARD. The use of nectarium seed-pods for giving a special flavor to mixed pickles, or in caper sauce has become quite general and a few housewives know that either the leaves or flowers, petals, make a delicious dilling for sandwiches.

Roses, too, are coming into favor and alone for their flavor but for coloring matter as well. Jelly made from the green varieties of gooseberries is as good as that made from the red varieties, but does not look good because of its peculiar color—or lack of it. A handful of pink rose petals, cooked with the berries before straining, will give a pink tint that adds materially to both flavor and color.

If a small roll of butter is placed in a dish with rose petals over and all around it and then closely covered, the butter will absorb the rose flavor to a degree that makes it extra fine for spreading sandwiches—of the dairy kind. If a couple of fine, large petals be placed in the sandwich with the butter, just showing between the bread slices the effect is very appetizing.

Place a handful of rose petals with a cupful of fine granulated sugar and slightly bruise them. Then add a little water and simmer until thick. The result will be equal to a delicious rose-honey.

In using roses three things must be remembered: Don't use those that have been sprayed with poison—select the very fragrant varieties—use the petals while fresh and full of the properties that hold fragrance.

Violets of the fragrant varieties and other flowers may be used in these same ways; and the Chinese use chrysanthemums, carnations and various flowers with stronger flavors in many ways, often using a little of the foliage (finely chopped) with the flowers.

Dropping a rose-geranium leaf in the bottom of a jelly-jug and pouring the hot jelly over it is a not uncommon practice but comparatively few cook know that four or five leaves in the bottom of a cake pan will flavor the cake. The leaves should be well buttered to prevent them from rising in the batter.

While speaking of leaves it may be said that two or three cherry-leaves laid over the rhubarb in a pie will give a delicate flavor in baked rhubarb; for sauce the effect is equally good, and the hint is worth remembering when the family tire of the rhubarb.

Peach leaves, scalded in the milk used for custards and cream will give a delicate pistachio flavor. Remove the leaves when milk reaches the boiling point.

The Fingerless King. Lillian Russell, during a recent visit to Atlantic City, was amazed to see the number of slashed skirts that still prevailed on the boardwalk.

"They must be last spring's left-overs," she said.

Just then a young girl in a skirt outrageously slashed at back and front, asked her companion, in passing:

"How do you like my new dress?"

"Pis like a glove, doesn't it?"

"Pis like a mitt, she'd better say," murmured Miss Russell, with a smile.

Still a Bachelor. "Patience: What good did it do your brother to join the militia?"

"Patience: Why he's been mixed up in four engagements and he hasn't been taken prisoner yet."
