Obituary.

Frank M. Chapman was born in the village of New Haven, O., Oct. 25, 1846. He died at his home in New Haven, July 8, 1914, aged 59 years, 8 months and 16 days. He was united in marriage to Eva M. Kurtz May 15, 1870. Mr. Chapman was a well known and industrious citizen, one of the prominent men of the county and was in his prime, scarcely having entered the realm of old age. Yet after all it is not how many years that a man has lived that counts so much as how he lived. Some men have crowded into a few years the work of a long lifetime. Mr. Chapman had been all his life in this community and his life in an open book to all. Many good qualities he exemplified in his life here before men.

May the blessings of God rest upon his labors and upon his wife, and may relatives and friends. Those who have known him in the home realize more fully the great loss he has sustained while others who would only claim to be his friends, should have more evidence of great personal loss, and a sacred memory of his sweetness and purity of character will always remain with us. Perhaps we shall miss Frank but we shall cherish his memory as one who was ever cheerful, and unselfish in the performance of every duty. As he was often kind and generous. Not now but in the coming years, we'll read the meaning of our tears. We'll catch the broken thread again. Perhaps we'll know Frank's clouds in the end, then, we'll understand. Perhaps we'll know Frank's clouds in the end, then, we'll understand. Why some has ceased when scarce he begun, 'tis there we'll some time understand. How good was he long for most of all, eludes so oft our eager hand. Why hopes are crushed and castles fall, up there some time we'll understand. God knows the way. He holds the key. He guides us with his entering hand. Some time with tearless eyes we'll see. Yes, there, up there we'll understand.

The following poem was written by one who was with him during his last hours and is dedicated with loving sympathy to the bereaved relatives and friends.
He has gone, our gifted one in the spirit land to dwell;
Who gladdened our lives with his kind and loving hand.
Close beside the sparkling waters, in that bright and better land.
Farewell, Frank, we shall miss thee, the years go passing by.
Where we hope again to meet thee, where sad partings are unknown.
Yes, in memory keeps a "vital" yet, through all our grief and gloom.
And oft in dreams of fond regret we will bend beside Frank's clouds in the end, then, we'll understand.
For we are left almost heartbroken, to mourn our loved our cherished dead.
Thus bereft, yet thankful in our grief that the separation's not long but brief;
We're waiting to clasp again his hand, then forever to be reunited band.
He added to each pleasure of our joyous throng, for his cheery manner so loving and strong;
All loved Frank, who was happy as the day was long.
The earth's ties may be cut and broken, we hold you in memory thro' and fast.
Remembering the many kind words you've spoken we resolve to meet thee in heaven at last.

The funeral was very largely attended at his home on Sunday, July 12, at 11 a. m., Rev. L. R. Akers of Berlin and the remains consigned to Mother Earth in Maple Grove cemetery. The floral offerings were many and beautiful.

We desire to express our heartfelt thanks to Rev. Akers, for his comforting words, to the singers for their fitting songs, to the donors for the beautiful flowers, to the S. N. & M. employes for their courtesies, and to all of the neighbors and friends who in any way assisted, for making lighter our burden and dispelling somewhat the gloom, in our time of sorrow, in the passing away of our beloved husband, son and brother.

A NEW PROGRAM.

County Experiment Farm—Uncle Sam and His Farm a Partnership.
At November election many Ohio counties will vote on county experiment farm. Five counties now have such farms.
At Washington Congress recently enacted legislation that will give large sums of money to help the farmer. Annually Ohio will get a $1,000,000 from the government.
Counties having an experiment farm will get most help from state and nation. Uncle Sam and Ohio have agreed by way of contract, agent and demonstrator, and cost of experimental and demonstration work in counties that show their interest by securing experimental farm.

This money will be spent somewhere. If not in your county, then in some other. The program is made. It will be carried out. This plan worked out will put profit and money in the pocket of every farmer who grows crops and raises stock.
Purchase money for such farm is raised by taxation. Town and city must pay their share.
The nation, the state, the city, the town offering a helping hand to the farmer and the farmer. The farmer who thinks the matter over concludes that it is good business on his part to accept these offerings.
Many farmers have already discovered this new agricultural program in Ohio. They see the advantage of a county farm. The farm must contain not less than eighty acres.
Five per cent of the voters must sign a petition and present it to the county commissioner asking for a vote on such a farm. The cost and equipment of the farm should not exceed $200,000, payable in five or ten years if desired.
The annual cost of upkeep of such farm can not exceed $2,000. Do not expect this farm to make money any more than you can expect a school house to make money. Both are educational.

An experiment farm must show fair returns with no success. The products of such farm may pay running expenses. The farm would be profitable if the products were given away.
If an experiment farm would add one-half bushel grain to each cultivated acre, it would pay for itself the first year.
The betterment of live stock, fruit, vegetables, grasses and seeds will make an experiment farm pay 1,000 per cent profit on its cost.
Smoking one cigar a month would be a greater tax than a county experiment farm.
Write the Agricultural Commission, Columbus, Ohio, for petition, bulletins, and copy of law.
A. P. Sandles, President.

Ohio Leader in Road Building.

While Ohio has been forging to the front and ahead of all states in the union, with the exception of two, with its road building progress this year, the state highway department set a new record last Tuesday as to efficiency.
Offering contracts that entailed an expenditure of over $1,200,000, the department succeeded in selling 91 per cent of these roads. This record has never been equaled. The nearest competitor is New York state which offered a like amount some time ago but sold only 85 per cent.
While the letting last week was the largest ever offered by Highway Commissioner Marker, he plans to do this on August 4, when roads to the extent of $2,000,000 will be offered for sale. His staff of engineers and clerks are now working upon the various jobs in the hope of cleaning up all the work on this date.
The jobs that brought no bidders when offered last Tuesday, with several small ones, were offered again on July 7. It is expected that this time there will be about 250,000 in approximately seven counties, the largest single one of which is about $70,000.
The next letting will not come until August 4. While last week's bidding was on quite a number of small jobs scattered in 29 counties of the state, the work on August 4 will be on longer strings of work, created in 38 counties. When this letting has occurred, the highway department will have under contract work aggregating close to the $6,000,000 in practically every county in the state. The counties that have not yet planned a program for this year, are in the minority.

Want Another Express Company.

C. G. Taylor, receiver of the S. N. & M. electric line, received a lengthy petition from business men of Chicago Junction and extensive growers of celery, under the outskirts of that thriving place, requesting him to extend the American Express service to that line, offering them a large business.
The U. S. express company recently quit business there and the Wells-Fargo company, operating over the electric line, went to the E. & O., over which the U. S. operated.
The merchants and celery growers complain that the service out of the town is now very much poorer than before. The petition presented to Receiver Taylor was signed by 89 business men and 25 celery growers. Mr. Taylor has referred the petition to the chief manager of the American Express company at Cleveland.—Norwalk Reflector.

Plymouth has two express companies, the Wells-Fargo operating over the E. & O., and the American Express over the N. O., while the S. N. & M. will still continue to handle Wells-Fargo express until such time as their contract expires.

HOW CHILDREN GROW

Children grow by nourishment—not overloaded stomachs or rich foods but qualities that are readily converted into H.S.-sustaining blood; too often their digestive powers cannot procure these qualities from ordinary foods which results in weakness, dullness and sickness.
If your children are under-size, underweight, catch cold easily, are languid, backward, pale or frail, give them Scott's Emulsion which is pure medicinal nourishment. It sharpens the appetite, builds healthy flesh, firm muscles and active brains. Scott's is growing-food for children. Refuse alcoholic substitutes.

Mrs. Alice Simons of Fredericktown, was the over Sunday guest at the home of her cousin, C. H. Knight. Mr. Knight has improved so much that he is able to be up every day.
Something Easy.
Even lawyers are sometimes taken in by shysters, as the following will show.
A man named Arnold appeared in Nashville several weeks ago. Going to a bank he inquired the address of a reliable lawyer. Then went to the lawyer and saving he wanted to get a divorce and the Catholic church prohibiting divorce, he and his wife agreed to separate and divide their holdings of $4,000. The lawyer was given the name and address of the wife, wrote to her and received a reply. The "wife" said the story of her husband was true and that the estate was worth $4,000 and that if the lawyer would effect a settlement she would send a draft for $2,000.
This proposition, being accepted, the draft came, the lawyer got a local bank to cash it and Arnold, or Haynes, disappeared after paying the lawyer $1,000 as a fee. The draft came back from the bank in another town as worthless and the lawyer paid over another $1,000 to square the account.

THE TIMBER LANDS OF THE WEST

Federal Bureau Will So Declare in Report to Be Published Soon.

PROBE OCCUPIES FOUR YEARS

Concentration of Timber Lands is Attributed by Investigators to Loosely Drawn and Slackly Administered Public Land Laws Now in Force.

Washington, D. C.—That three corporations own 233,000,000 acres, or more than 11 per cent of the privately owned timber in the United States, will be shown in a report which will be published within a short time by the bureau of corporations following an investigation which has occupied about four years.

Will Suggest Legislation. The report attributes the concentration of the timber land to the loosely drawn and slackly administered public land laws, under which the timber grabbers were allowed to build up their holdings.

GUADALAJARA IS TAKEN BY REBEL GENERAL OBREGON TAKES BIG MEXICAN CITY.

Battle Believed Prelude to Fall of Mexico's Capital—5,000 Prisoners Are Taken.

Guadalajara, Jalisco, Mex., July 11.—Guadalajara, capital of the state of Jalisco and the second largest city in the republic of Mexico, is occupied by the constitutionalist forces under command of Gen. Alvaro Obregon, commander-in-chief of the department of the northwest, after a terrible defeat of the federal garrison.

Five thousand prisoners were taken. The number of dead and wounded on both sides is great, but cannot be given in detail at this moment owing to the fact that the battle was fought over a zone more than 100 kilometers in width.

From prisoners it is learned that the garrison numbered 12,000 men and that not more than 5,000 succeeded in cutting their way out after abandoning their wounded, all their artillery and stores, including great quantities of small arms and ammunition.

After the occupation General Obregon lost no time in sending a heavy column in pursuit of the fugitives and as they are on foot he believes he will have fewer than 20,000 when the attack began. Comparatively little damage was done by the bombardment.

PETRAS JURY IS DISMISSED

Suspect Is Returned to Prison to Await New Trial on Charge of Murder Following Disagreement.

Geneva, Ill., July 13.—After deliberating almost constantly for three days the jury in the murder trial of Tony Petras reported to Judge Clinton Irwin on Friday that there was no possibility of its reaching a verdict and, after an address by the judge, was discharged from further consideration of the case.

Following the discharge of the jury Petras was returned to jail, where State's Attorney Tyrus says, he will remain until tried again on the charge of killing Tressie Hollander. Homer Eddy was the one juror who held for the conviction of Petras. The charge made several days ago that the defense in the trial of Anthony Petras had framed up its case was made again when State's Attorney Tyrus said perjury charges will be made against two of the witnesses.

NEW STOCK

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION BARES LOOT OF NEW HAVEN ROAD.

BLAME PUT ON DIRECTORS

Federal Body Calls Financing of Eastern Railway One of the Most glaring Instances of Maladministration in History of Nation's Railroad.

Washington, July 15.—"One of the most glaring instances of maladministration revealed in all the history of American railroad," is the interstate commerce commissioner's characterization of his findings in the investigations of New Haven railroad financial affairs, reported to the senate on Monday.

In a report of 30,000 words, probably the most drastic in terms of any ever made by the commission, the New Haven directors were pronounced "criminally negligent."

Evidence pointing to violation of law has been transmitted to district attorneys in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and New York, and the federal department of justice.

The report, moreover, will be made the basis of proceedings by stockholders to recover millions of dollars alleged to have been wasted by the management.

"A reasonable estimate of the loss to the New Haven by reason of waste and mismanagement," says the report, "will amount to between sixty and ninety million dollars. Directors who have individually failed to detect civil and criminal laws for the manner in which they discharge their trust."

All the commission's strictures were upon the management of the New Haven system under former President Mellen.

The report cites these "significant incidents" in the management:

"Marked features and significant incidents in the loose, extravagant and improvident administration of the New Haven system, as shown in this investigation, are: Boston & Maine despoilment. Inequity of the West Chester acquisition.

Recklessness in the purchase of Connecticut and Massachusetts trolleys at prices exorbitantly in excess of their market value.

Unwarranted expenditure of large amounts in "educating public opinion."

Disposition, without knowledge of the condition of the stocks and underlying on the public at the higher "market price."

Unwarranted diversion of corporate funds to political organizations.

Extensive use of a paid lobby in the matters as to which the directors claim to have no information.

Attempt to control utterances of the press by the directors.

Payment of money and the profligate use of free passes to legislators and their friends.

Investment of $400,000 in securities of a New England newspaper.

Regular employment of political bosses in Rhode Island and other states, not for the purpose of having them perform any service but to prevent them, as Mr. Mellen expresses it, "from becoming active on the other side."

Retention by John L. Billard of more than $100,000 in a transaction in which he represented the New Haven and in which he invested not a dollar.

Insolvency of Oakleigh Thorne to account for $1,023,000 of the funds of the New Haven intrusted to him in carrying out of the West Chester proposition.

Story of Mr. Mellen as to the distribution of $1,200,000 for corrupt purposes in bringing about amendments of the West Chester and Port Chester franchises.

The HOOKER

HENRY HOWLAND

NOT NEEDED

"I am not needed here," he said. "I often wish it I was dead." "The world is none at all, I guess; it seems my luck is always bad. It hits me everywhere I go: God's Father's kindly other side, She never lands me favors, though. "I've never had no chance to rise. There's always something in the way. Luck never handed me a prize. But others get from every day: I'm sick of life, I'd like to be at rest and free from all my care. There ain't no place on earth for me. I ain't been treated on the square."

He slouched away, still murmuring about the address of his case: He was an unattractive thing. With ragged stubbles on his face: He had not mastered any trade. Never even learned his native speech: Of letting me understand that I am to be benefited. Unflattering attempts to reach.

Why He Was Hurt. "My friends," said the minister, after he had finished reading his text for the second time, "I promised last Sunday, as you will remember, to preach a sermon this morning that should be only 15 minutes long. I am very glad indeed to see such a large number of brethren and sisters present, but there is one thing that causes me extreme sorrow. It is not that the large turnout today is probably due to the fact that I have decided to make my remarks brief. I realize that few men would have such gifts of oratory as to be interesting or instructive for an hour, or even half an hour at a time. It was this conviction which led me to decide to cut down the length of my sermon. It is not that the large turnout but I do feel hurt, my friends, when I see at least a dozen of the brethren in the front pews take out their watches, as I begin my remarks, for the purpose of letting me understand that I am to be timed. I had hoped that if I was not able to thrill you I at least possessed your confidence."

What He Imagined. "Don't imagine," he said after he had refused him, "that I am going away to blow my brains out or drink myself to death."

"No," she replied, "I have no idea that you will do anything of that kind. You are going away to do some wonderful thing which will bring you wealth and glory, and make me regret all the rest of my life that I didn't believe you when you intimated that you were one of the greatest little men that had ever come over the asphalt."

TRAINED. "How in the world were you able to eat the stuff they served up at that supper which you recommended to us?"

"It was easy. I had my own cooking for three weeks before I went away."

Success. Some men succeed by working hard. And some by dreaming splendid dreams. Some gain through luck. And some through hard work. And some through dark and staid ways.

Some men succeed by being right. And some because they are right. And some because they are right. And some because they are right.

Worried. "The minute my husband gets a dollar in his pocket he wants to run out and spend it."

Phy. "Bibberon always, so he tells me, reads over his after-dinner speeches to his wife before he goes to bed on his face to deliver."

"Four old chap. Think of his having to do that when it is such a bore for others to hear his resolutions."

Organized liberals of the state have opened a campaign for submission to Ohio voters at the November election an initiated amendment to the constitution prohibiting state-wide prohibition and county local option and winning from the state books all county option laws.

A yield of 85,000,000 bushels of wheat is predicted in Ohio for this year, as against an average annual yield of 29,200,000 bushels during the past five years. The yield for the United States is forecast at 927,000,000 bushels, as against an average of 686,500,000 bushels. It is estimated that there are 10,000,000 rats in Ohio and that each rat eats food to the value of $1.50. That would make the total cost $15,000,000. Another great objection to the rat is the well known fact that it is the carrier of the germs of that much dreaded disease, the bubonic plague. Every rat should take a hand in the extermination of rodents as soon as possible.

There ought to be a tremendous vote in Ohio this fall. Never before have so many important questions to be up at the election in November. County and state offices are to be filled; a state legislature, congressmen and a United States senator are to be chosen, and three amendments to the constitution - woman suffrage and state-wide prohibition and the opposing liberal proposition, are to be submitted.

All school children in the state will sing "The Star Spangled Banner" at 9 o'clock, central time, on the morning of September 14, the anniversary of the song's composition by Francis Scott Key. Frank W. Miller, superintendent of public instruction, announced yesterday. He will ask county superintendents when they meet in Columbus, July 31 and August 1, to make arrangements for the simultaneous program.

Hog cholera which has caused a loss of $250,000 annually to farmers of Fayette county, is now under control, so it was announced by the agricultural commission. It is the first time in years that a statement could be made truthfully. The last assembly appropriated a sum of money to make a test fight against cholera and the commission decided to try it in Fayette county, where the ravages had been severe. With less than $20,000 spent, the state fight has been a success and the elimination of the source is now in sight, the veterinary department has reported.

Rising majestically from what less than a year ago was a stretch of swamp land covered with marsh grass and thick undergrowth, the main shaft of the memorial of Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry and the battle of Lake Erie, is now visible from several points far removed from Put-in-Bay, the island upon which it stands. The cornerstone was laid by ex-President Taft on Sept. 10, 1913, the 100th anniversary of the battle. The main shaft will be 355 feet high. As soon as the shaft is completed work will be done on the plaza and the museum and colonnade that will flank it on the right and left. This will require at least two years, so that the monument cannot be dedicated much before the fall of 1916.

Obituary.

Mary Jane King was born to Elias and Katherine King, September 27, 1855, and died July 1, 1914, aged 78 years, 9 months and 4 days. Her parents moved from New York to North Fairfield when she was but three years old, where she resided until her marriage with Amos A. Dow in 1884. They moved to Auburn Center, where they lived until about a year and four months ago, at which time they came to live with their daughter, Mrs. Grant Howe, of Shelby, O. To this union four children were born, Sherman B. LaDow, Era R. Howe, Lois A. who died at the age of 7 years, and Lotta C. Stock. Three grandchildren are also left to mourn the loss of a mother, Estelle M. Howe, Beatrice M. and Ina Vi Stock. Two brothers preceded her in death, she being the last of the family.

At the age of 25 she was converted and united with the Baptist church at North Fairfield, and later united with the Auburn Center Baptist church, of which she was a consistent member, and always was active in the interest of the church until broken down by ill health, when she could no longer attend worship. She mourned over the loss of her husband, who departed this life Jan. 27, 1914.

LAXATIVE for Aged People

THE BANE of old age is constipation. The bowels become weak and unable to perform their functions without aid. For this purpose only the mildest and gentlest laxative should be used. The use of harsh cathartics aggravates the trouble and makes the constipation worse. Chamberlain's Tablets are a favorite with people of middle age and older on account of their gentle action.

SYNOPSIS.

Alph Van Vechten, a young man of... "Who is it?" demanded Tom brushing his first mate as he entered the room.

the accommodation-steps, where Mercer was parleying with some one in a boat.

BOOK IV. A Specter at the Feast.

CHAPTER I.

What the box contained. Jessie Willard's visit to Rudolph Van Vechten partook more of the nature of a visitation—of some healing shrine's patron saint; for by Saturday night he had so far recovered that, at his uncle's repeated urgent solicitations, he was able to attire himself in the habiliments of formality and attend the directors' meeting.

might have been one of them, though none had seen him previously that night. His white hair, his smooth-shaven, finely wrinkled face, his magnetic eyes, were all a part of a commanding personality, and it was no more than natural that he should be looked to for an explanation of the episode.

Perfectly composed, there was no mistaking the fact that he completely dominated the situation.

With an air that implied many to follow his example, the stranger consulted his watch; an average declaration of all the watches would have fixed the time at twelve minutes till midnight.

He advanced to the table, from which everybody else shrank as far as the confines of the room permitted, and laid a hand upon the casket. Glancing once more at the watch which he still held in the other hand, he quietly remarked:

"Gentlemen, this coffin contains enough willardite to wipe New York off the map. It is connected with one of my pocket-books, and I am prepared to explode at midnight precisely." His commanding regard met Theodore Van Vechten's, as he added:

"But, as briefly as possible, I want to make clear to you that an accident is possible for the occasion that has brought you together here. With my perfected time-lock and permanent steel—only metal that will withstand the oxy-acetylene flame—combined with Theodore Van Vechten's business talent and his commanding position, whosoever he can persuade, either of the country's financial institutions to purchase an Atlas safe, whether they want it or not, the concern's business has not been a phenomenally prosperous one."

garding the speaker. The latter's eyes met the Man of Iron's intent look, and he added: "—or else I shall annihilate every one of you and myself." He looked at his watch again.

"You all understand. You have just six minutes within which to make up your minds."

The Man of Iron was not of the stuff that is easily frightened—else he would not have been the Man of Iron. He was taken unawares and rendered bewildered—as who would not have been—but he was first to recover himself. His voice rang out with an authority which commanded that the casket be removed.

"Just a moment—if you please. I have only to press a trifle harder upon this bit of ornament and the explosion will be precipitated. I trust for your sakes; I don't care so much for myself, that you will not force me to such an extreme."

"However, I have come here prepared for any turn. If my rights are not to be recognized, then it is a question of indifference to me whether I destroy myself along with the rest of you. I prefer not to do so, of course; but I have no objection to the first movement of opposition I shall terminate this unpleasant scene."

An impulsive movement of Theodore Van Vechten was followed by a gasp of horror; for the stranger was so self-possessed and determined that nobody doubted his dispassionate determination. It was only too obvious that he would do to the last extreme exactly what he said he would.

The Man of Iron's fists suddenly clenched, and he took a step toward the speaker. The man's magnetic eyes turned upon him with a steady, inscrutable look.

"Theodore Van Vechten," the quiet voice went on, "it lowers his head in feeling of respect and admiration which I entertain for your genius to which you choose the role of a fool now."

"Max Willard," retorted Van Vechten evenly, "you know me well enough to recognize that I can not be coerced; but to you who play the part of a fool. Can't you see that this means your utter ruin?"

Said the other: "Everything that has gone wrong has accompanied the fact that end has been done—by you, Theodore. And now, just one more chance. Your life has been missing for some time, has it not?"

Theodore Van Vechten started. The inventor went on: "I merely want to add that—in addition to my well-calculated charge of willardite—the too is in this casket—in this moment." Again he glanced at his watch. "It is precisely two minutes till twelve."

Nothing was to be heard save the regular ticking, each pulsation marking off one more fatal second. The two men—Max Willard, cool and steadfast in his purpose; Theodore Van Vechten, an image of power and indomitable—looked long into each other's eyes.

With a quick movement, Willard's hand slid to another part of the casket. It could be seen that he pressed a trifling device. The whole thing fell apart into the shape of a dove-pot lounge.

In the midst of the creamy cushions thus disclosed, clad in its white yachting costume which, in its present setting might well have been the ornaments of the donor, her hands clasped lightly and naturally upon her bosom, reposed a beautiful young girl. Her glowing hair afforded the one mark of vivid color against the ivory and dull gold of the casket and the pallor of the huge table's spotless napery.

London.—Countries along the Mediterranean sea are noted for the excellence of their climate. Malaga, Spain, possesses one of the best climates in Europe. The rainy days are said to number only 40 in the year.

With such a rainfall the tumber of dull and cloudy days is necessarily very small—almost perpetual sunshine may be said to prevail, and a high degree of atmospheric dryness is felt at all seasons.

The Man of Iron's fists suddenly clenched, and he took a step toward the speaker. The man's magnetic eyes turned upon him with a steady, inscrutable look.

AND THE BOSS THOUGHT HARD. Boy Lived Up to His Treatment, Consequently the Profits Were Net Large. Beatrice Forbes Robertson, one of the leaders in the new School for Suffrage Workers, said in New York the other day: "A woman has been complaining that her husband treats her like a child. She isn't capable of voting, he says, but she's capable of running his household for him."

CHAPTER III. He walked off to the taffrail, upon which he leaned and stared into the night at the point where the launch had vanished, and he could hear upon his arm and the voice of Jessie Willard. She spoke with an agitation that had an electrifying effect upon him.

"Why, I haven't seen her all evening," he returned, "I supposed she was in her room or with her maid."

"The girl all at once seemed to shrink with a sudden unerving fear. "She's not in her room!" she cried. "I thought she was, but she has not been. Neither have I seen her—not a since dinner." There was a pause.

"Didn't she go ashore?" Jessie presently inquired. "No," Tom replied. "How long the ensuing silence lasted, while they stood staring helplessly into each other's eyes, it is not known, realized the significance of the girl's absence, neither of them afterwards ever knew."

They first looked into every likely place that might conceal a girl, terror and dread growing with each step that brought nothing to light. Tom scarcely noted an elderly, English-looking man and in a soothing manner, tried to compose the most hysterical girl.

As for Tom, he was from the very first torn with conflicting emotions of fear, but he acted with a dispatch and directness that left no possibility neglected.

Their own hurried but nevertheless quite thorough search proving ineffective, all hands were called, and the Kohlnur had such a fine-combing as must have brought to light the slightest of lost articles, to say nothing of a young lady.

Then, in disregard of express instructions, both of which had been brought into light, which explored with fingers of dazzling light every inch of the river's surface for miles downstream, while the boat's cabin was piled litter and tither in the quest.

But it was all of no use; not the slightest trace of the missing girl was to be found. Yet Jessie, with her elderly companion, hoping in the face of despairing certainty, watched and waited until the last boat returned.

"Gentlemen," said he, "some of our friends have not forgotten the occasion we are assembled here tonight to celebrate. We have here, I am assured, something that will commemorate this happy event in a most remarkable and fitting way."

And much more to the same effect. Then a space was cleared in the center of the long table, a few of the diners were disturbed, and the box was deposited thereon. The porters withdrew.

Everybody eyed the innovation curiously—and a bit distrustfully, too. The box, suggesting as it did the end of human endeavor, was not at all inspiring confidence, nor was it in harmony with the temper of the evening; but after much loose speculation respecting its contents, and the host's command servants appeared with screw-drivers, and amid an expectant hush, the lid was removed.

The disclosure was not at all to the very heart of the company's good humor, was realized only reluctantly; for the box did not belie what it exacted. It really contained a coffin, one distinguished by its elegant cream-colored silk-plush covering and pure rose-gold inlay. The long extension handles were of the same metal, as was also the name-plate. Upon this latter was a single engraved line:

"THE TIME LOCK." With the injection into the banquet of an element so sensational and so unexpected, the dinner's interest was to depart vanished, he was not unaffected by the excitement that stirred the rest of the company. But presently he observed that the attendant conveyed a special meaning to certain of those present—particularly to his niece.

Was the whole thing a huge practical joke? The Man of Iron pointed out that if it was, it must have been an extremely poor one for the perpetrator. Then came the suggestion of an infernal machine, and once more a hush fell upon the gathering.

There was however were not lacking in courage. Very cautiously the casket was removed from the box, the box was given the place of honor, where it reposed like a beautiful but unattractive epigram.

"A strange idea accompanied this operation a distinct ticking sound, emanating from the casket, was plainly audible, and the diners, some of whom were already on their feet, hesitated, stood staring in horror at this unexplained prodigium of the grave.

"An armed boy delivered packages in a hush, and called, 'Between the shafts, bending to his lord, he trumped the streets among the vans and drays."

"At this moment, the door opened and a man entered, bearing this

"But, as briefly as possible, I want to make clear to you that an accident is possible for the occasion that has brought you together here. With my perfected time-lock and permanent steel—only metal that will withstand the oxy-acetylene flame—combined with Theodore Van Vechten's business talent and his commanding position, whosoever he can persuade, either of the country's financial institutions to purchase an Atlas safe, whether they want it or not, the concern's business has not been a phenomenally prosperous one."

"You gentlemen who are fortunate to be among the stockholders, and Theodore Van Vechten, are reaping the harvest—I get nothing—the inventor's portion."

"Through my lack of business acumen I was frozen out of the company, and I do not ask long for my share that every avenue of legal redress was closed to me. Please bear in mind that brilliant eyes swept the wondering audience. "Why, either to accept the situation as Theodore Van Vechten stated it, or recover my rights by force."

"Now, gentlemen, virtually I have been robbed of a fortune. I am not seeking vengeance—no, nor, nothing of the kind—only justice and compensation. I have spent months in preparing for tonight; more than once my secret operations have nearly met with shipwreck, and you must realize that I come here fully determined to exact the uttermost farthing of my property, and you must consent, if you to enjoy them, call it blackmail, call it a hold-up, call it whatever you will, the fact is that I am here to enforce what is not of me, mind you—but to enforce a distribution of my share of the profits of the Atlas Safe Company, and my reinstatement into the position of superintendent of which I have been unjustly deprived."

Theodore Van Vechten had gradually returned to the head of the table, and he stood with his feet on the back of his chair, composedly re-

HEMSTITCHING ADDS DISTINCTION TO ANY GARMENT.

Popular Trimming May Be Done on Sewing Machine if One Is Careful and Will Follow Directions Given.

The home dressmaker should give thanks that one of the most popular trimmings in fashion today is hemstitching and its sister, the pique edge.

Of course few need to be told the stitching is more effective if put out to be done, but in remote places one cannot always find a person to do it.

To make a hem baste a strip of material to the portion of the garment, cutting it the desired width. Then place several thicknesses of newspaper between.

Hemstitching put out to be done costs ten cents a yard, little enough for such a pretty and fashionable trimming.

When one wishes a pique edge no hem is set in. The material is sent with just the raw edges cut perfectly even, whether on the bias or the straight of the goods.

When it comes home, press with an iron and cut through the line of stitching. This creates a nice edge, and is used to finish the edges of collars, sack ends, cravats and ruffles.

A simple frock with collar, cuffs and ends all trimmed with the stitches named will suggest good taste and style.

MEANING OF INTENSIVE FRUIT CULTURE

Timely Spraying Saves the First Crop.

A great deal has been said lately about intensive farming, and farmers have been urged to confine their energies to smaller areas and to give better cultivation and more attention to details.

Intensive fruit growing means the cultivation of comparatively small areas and the application thereto of such labor as will produce a maximum of fruit by the exercise of scientific methods and careful attention to details.

AWOKE THE HUNTER INSTINCT

Alert Traveler Evidently Imagined Providence Had Thrown "Game" Within His Reach.

Gilbert Parker, the English author, tells of an English gentleman who recently came to this country to visit some friends in California.

It seems that in mounting the grade a freight train had broken apart, the rear portion having descended the grade and blocked the track.

Immediately the "hunter" instinct was awakened, harking to his birth, he procured his gun and started for the door, saying:

Marriage Causes False Fire Alarm. Seven minutes of blasts from the whistle of the Passaic Metallurgical company.

A Rough Road. "My dear sir," said the philosopher, "when we look about us and see the troubles that afflict other people, we ought to rejoice that our own paths are so smooth."

For Real Enjoyment. "Going to the theater again?" Why, you think that piece only the other night.

Up to Date. He—A husband must be obeyed. She—Oh, cut out your musty philosophy!

WRONG BREAKFAST. Change Gave Rugged Health. Many persons think that for strength, they must begin the day with a breakfast of meat and other heavy foods.

Many persons think that for strength, they must begin the day with a breakfast of meat and other heavy foods. This is a mistake as anyone can easily discover for himself.

A W. V. carpenter's experience may benefit others. He writes "I used to be a very heavy breakfast eater but finally indigestion caused me to waste my strength, I became afraid to eat anything."

"My wife suggested a trial of Grape-Nuts and as I had to eat something or starve, I concluded to take her advice. She fixed me up a dish and I remarked at the time that the quantity was all right, but the quantity was too small—I was disappointed."

"But she said a small amount of Grape-Nuts went a long way and that I must eat it according to directions. So I started in with Grape-Nuts and cream, two soft boiled eggs and some crisp toast for breakfast."

"I continued on a lot of other stuff, but I had been used to eating all my life and was gratified to see that I was getting better right along. I concluded I had struck the right thing and stuck to it. I had not only been eating improper food, but too much."

"It was working at the carpenter's trade at that time and thought that unless I had a very hearty breakfast with plenty of meat, I would play out before dinner. But after a few days of my 'new breakfast' I found I could do more work, felt better in every way, and now I am not bothered with indigestion."

SUGGESTIONS AND NOTES OF THE GARDEN

Give the cabbage worm a dust spray of one part Paris green and 15 parts of soap or alcohol. Dip.

Save your own tomato seeds—pick off the choicest fruit—and see if you cannot improve every year.

In sowing potatoes for seed, keep only those that are perfect in form. Take none from poor hills.

A garden hoe-plow will prevent backache and do three times as much work as the common hoe.

If the melon vines are rusty, pull them up and burn them. If only wilted, they may find a better about the ground.

SENATOR'S WIFE TO SPEAK HERE

Mrs. LaFollette Will Debate With Anti-Woman Suffragist.

ADVOCATES BETTER HOME LIFE

Is Charming and Versatile Woman and Has Won Fame For Herself in Various Fields of Activity—Every one Should Hear Her Tell Why Women Should Have Right to Vote.

One of the most strikingly interesting women, prominent in the public eye in America today, is Mrs. Bella C. LaFollette, the charming, able and versatile wife of Senator Robert M. LaFollette, the militant progressive Republican leader of Wisconsin. Mrs. LaFollette, unlike many wives of celebrities, is not a mere minor star who shines by reflecting the great white light which beats about her distinguished husband, but has won fame for herself by her work in various fields of activities. As a contributor to the daily press and magazines of the nation her words have reached the minds and hearts of the best women of America, and in recent years her able and determined advocacy of equal suffrage has placed her prominently in the foreground as one of the ablest, if not the ablest, exponent of that great forward step in the political life of the country.

Perhaps the most appealing thing about Mrs. LaFollette, to the majority of women, is that, with all her manifold public activities she has never lost sight of the fact that a woman's first duty is to her home, and that in the rearing of a fine family of four children and the making of a home

MRS. ROBERT M. LAFOLLETTE. Ideal in all that goes to make up a real home, she has put added emphasis upon her basic argument for equal suffrage, "that it will make her home." Desperately in earnest in her advocacy of everything which is near and dear to her, Mrs. LaFollette has entered her husband's arena in the struggle for the ballot for women because she believes in present this argument "it will make better homes." What a splendid indeed, for a woman who has earned the highest art in the application of home-making possibilities which are now hers, and who seeks for her sisters only added opportunities for better home-making.

A classmate of her distinguished husband in the University of Wisconsin, she and her husband were married shortly after their graduation. Their early life was a struggle, in which the wife was ever a helpmate. In addition to her duties in the home Mrs. LaFollette voluntarily began the study of law, in order to share more fully the labors and problems of her husband, and on one occasion, when illness prevented him from preparing an important brief for presentation to the supreme court, the wife performed the task, and to exceptional in its insight into and elucidation of the law was the paper prepared by her.

On one occasion she even took occasion to commend the husband upon its presentation for what appeared to be his particularly able brief. In all of Senator LaFollette's campaigns she has been his enthusiastic partner, on numerous occasions taking the stump in his behalf.

The announcement that this distinguished woman is to appear upon our Chautauqua this summer will be hailed with delight not alone by the women of this vicinity but by all our people. She comes here to engage in a debate on woman's suffrage, taking the affirmative of the proposition that women should be granted equal privileges with men. Against Miss Lucy Price, Secretary of the Ohio Anti-Suffrage Association.

On this day, which will be known as Woman's Day, Mrs. Cleveland French, noted social worker and club woman of Boston, will share with Mrs. LaFollette and Miss Price the honor of the occasion.
