Chautauqua Almost Here.

The B. & O. R. R. will place upon the siding July 30 at 4:05 p. m. a special express car filled with the equipment for our Chautauqua, which is now being put on this part of the country by the Coit-Alber Chautauqua of Cleveland. This equipment is in charge of Prof. P. N. Sawyer, who will be Superintendent here during Chautauqua week. He is an experienced Chautauqua manager and will add much to the success of our Chautauqua. With him are three young college men, a foreman, cashier and gateman, who take charge of the equipment and who sleep in a small tent pitched close to the large one and within the canvas fence that surrounds the auditorium tent. The finest Chautauqua say that this equipment is the finest ever known in Chautauqua circles. Instead of the flaring gas lights usually used, the electrical Mazda incandescent lights are used costing more than ten times the amount paid for ordinary incandescent lights. The stage has a proscenium arch, drop curtain, carpet, footlights, overhead lights and looks almost as well as the stage at a well equipped theatre. The seats are comfortable, folding chairs instead of the rough board seats usually found at Chautauquas. These are especially made for the Coit-Alber Chautauqua as well as all the equipment, which represents an investment on their part of over $25,000.00.

The auditorium tent is spacious, seating over two thousand people. That it is waterproof goes without saying. Coit-Alber tents are found everywhere, particularly in the program that will be given, lasting for seven days, beginning with the afternoon program on Friday, July 31.

Much has been said in these columns and elsewhere about the quality of this program. The finest seven-day Chautauqua series of entertainments being given anywhere in America is the testimony of our own people. The Coit-Alber tents, Niles, Steubenville, Martin's Ferry, Conneaut, and a score of other towns and cities in Pennsylvania and Ohio, where the week's program has already been given.

One Pennsylvania editor said: "I have lived 2382 weeks, most of them in Blad Chautauqua tents. I have considered good weeks but I can frankly say that the past week, which was Chautauqua Week here, was by far the best I have seen. Similar testimony comes from Brookville, Ridgeway, DuBois, Irwin, California, and other Pennsylvania cities and towns. Every one of these has made arrangements for the return of the Chautauqua next summer and always under Coit-Alber management.

The opening concert by the Hampton Court singers is one of the most popular of the week, and from the first note they sing until the last swelling note five days later, played by the famous New York City Marine Band, there is great interest in everybody and intense enthusiasm expressed by all who attend.

The local business men, who are responsible for the coming of the week, report that there are a few season tickets still to be had at the special price of $1.50 for adults and $1.00 for children, while the single admission charge to the various double entertainments aggregate over $6.00 for adults.

The interest being shown would indicate that large audiences will attend all the programs but the banner entertainment will be on Sunday, Aug. 2, Women's day, Community Development day, Band day and closing day. Any day is as good as any other—there are no fillers in the entire program. A school superintendent at Akron said that he did not see how the Coit-Alber people could duplicate such a program another year, but Messrs. Coit-Alber only smile at such statements.

"Chautauqua is just one good thing after another," says Manager Alber.

Open Bids August 4.

Bids for three state aid roads, in Huron county, parts of the inter-county road system, aggregating 6 1/2 miles will be opened in the office of the state highway commission in Columbus, Tuesday, August 4.

The improvement will be concrete work, ten feet in width, and include the following highways:
Woodsen Road, connecting the Ashland-Norwalk road with Highland and Fitchville townships, 18,227 feet or 3 1/2 miles. Estimated cost, $48,809.55.
Havens Road in Peru township, filling the gap of poor road between Cleveland, Toledo and Columbus, 9,611 feet or 1.82 miles. Estimated cost, $18,271.15.

Peru road, in Norwalk and Hedgesville townships, known as old water works mill road, 6,000 feet or 1.07 miles, estimated cost, $12,200.05.
Assistant State Engineer LeVine says he will have under his jurisdiction the new roads to be let over $400,000 worth of improvements, aggregating about 40 miles of road.

For Sheriff of Richland County.

WHY WEAK LUNGS?
The toll of tuberculosis is claiming more than 450 victims every day in the United States, yet few realize their grave condition until the critical period arrives. Overwork, worry, weakness after sickness, catarrh, bronchitis, tender throats—all the weakening influence that invites consumption.

To guard against consumption, thousands of people take Scott's Emulsion after meals because its rich medicinal nourishment strengthens the lungs, puts vigor in the blood, and builds up strength to resist tuberculosis. Scott's Emulsion is nature's strength-builder. Refuse substitutes.

Danger From Traction Engines.
An order prohibiting the operation of threshing machines with unscreened smoke stacks will soon be issued by the department of State Fire Marshal DeFenbaugh in an effort to safe guard rural property. According to estimates furnished DeFenbaugh, more than $50,000 is destroyed annually by sparks from the machines while they are traveling over country roads. Most of the losses are through the destruction of standing fields of grain, but a number of dwellings and barns have also been burned since the thrashing season began.

Department Announces Result of Bird Census.
Approximately 2,030,000,000 native birds, exclusive of sparrows, inhabit the United States east of the great plains states, according to partial returns announced by the first bird census in the history of the government now being made by the department of agriculture.

Apparently the most numerous of these birds is the robin, of which it is estimated there are 100,000,000 east of the Mississippi river. They average 50 pairs to the acre, while all field birds average 1,000 pairs to the square mile, after omitting land planted in crops, where there are small chances for birds to nest.

Claims Money is Due for Services.
Sarah E. Barall has filed a petition in common pleas court asking for a judgment against Edward Channing, executor of the last will and testament of Joseph R. Channing, deceased, for $3,896.

She claims this amount is due her for work done in and about the house and for nursing and caring for Joseph R. Channing, when ill from 1890 until April 10, 1913. She further claims that Joseph R. Channing promised during his lifetime that she should be well paid for the services she had performed during his illness and for all the kindnesses she had shown to him and further promised that she would be remembered in his will and that she should be allowed the same as a valid claim but that he refused to allow the claim and still refuses to allow and pay it.

Mrs. Green, Green & Skiles are her attorneys.

New Haven.

Mrs. F. P. Vogus and little daughter of Lorain, are visiting in the home of her father, G. W. Dickerson.

Frederick Layer spent Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. family.

Mrs. J. C. White and daughter of Cleveland, have been spending the past week at the home of her cousin, Mrs. C. H. King.

Mr. and Mrs. George Spearing of Greenwich, and their daughter, Mrs. Drake and husband, of Chicago Junction, spent Sunday, at the home of their cousin, Mrs. W. A. Garrett.

Tuesday afternoon Arthur Wells was injured while hauling hay from the field. His team frightened by going down a hill and ran away, throwing him from the wagon, & doctoring was called but found no bones broken.

Will Mann of Toledo, is spending his vacation with his grandfather, Wm. Long.

Miss Rebecca Cheeman entertained at tea on Thursday last week, Mrs. Artie Metcalf of Toledo, Mrs. A. F. Dawson and children of Chicago, and Mrs. W. A. Garrett.

Mrs. Frank Long last week moved to the home of her mother, Mrs. Emily Stewart, who has been in failing health for some time and requires the care of her daughter.

Mrs. Harry Dewitt received word recently of the death of her mother, Joe M. Wilcox. His wife was formerly Miss Nettie Keeler of this village.

ASSOCIATES IN THE COX'S MESSAGE LAID BEFORE SPECIAL SESSION OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

GIVES COMPREHENSIVE REVIEW

Tells of Taxation Legislation From 1886 to Now, Showing Economic Development Apparent in Present Time Here, But Evolutionary in Character.

Columbus, O.—In a message of some thirty thousand words Gov. Cox laid before the special session of the general assembly the subject of taxation. The opening paragraphs stating explicitly that reduction of the state tax levy was the "sole question" to be dealt with.

The major portion of the message was a most comprehensive review of taxation legislation from 1886 to the present time, and showed that the economic development apparent at the present time had been evolutionary in character and demonstrated that the new taxation laws were fundamentally correct and just and were producing most gratifying results. Following is a synopsis of the governor's message: To the General Assembly.

Developments in the general fiscal and taxation affairs of the state suggest to me the expediency of convening your honorable body in special session. The state laws provide a levy of taxes for certain special purposes. This tax rate was determined by the financial condition of the state at the time, and the need for these functions, and the size of the total state tax duplicate, and the state treasury also being an element in the calculation of the draft on the general revenue fund is provided under certain contingencies.

The state tax duplicate has assumed such proportions, however, under the recent change in the methods of listing property and the financial condition of the commonwealth is so favorable that the rate carried by the state levy cannot, with justification, be imposed this year.

To needlessly assess taxes from the communities is so repugnant to every idea of public policy that the small financial cost of bringing together and the personal inconvenience occasioned the members are considerations vastly outweighed. I feel assured, both the relief to the citizen and the people and the spirit of patriotism that possesses your honorable body.

By the Governor.

It is the duty of the state to reduce the tax rate. If it is diminished, then the weight of taxation will not only be reduced on our households and industries, but spur will be given by the state government to the moral sense which is awakening in the community. The rates in every tax sub-division in Ohio. Never in our history has so much attention been given to the general subject of taxation. The result of the things can be more helpful to the welfare of our people than the present discussion which is going on everywhere within our borders. It is the real economic meaning of taxation and its relation to social and governmental life to be better understood as a result, but the moral sense, and the subject will leave so deep an impression that our taxation policies in the future will be a surer guarantee of the security of rights under our institutions of government.

That the economic development apparent at the present time is purely evolutionary in character, and a brief but comprehensive review of the subject. He goes back to the days of direct taxation in 1886 and follows the course, but persistent development to the present day.

Billion Added to Duplicate.

While the information in the possession of the commission at the present time is not complete enough to make an accurate statement as to the amount of the tax duplicate for the year 1914, yet it is estimated that the duplicate which will be handed to the county treasurers on the first of October, 1914, will be from $900,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 more than that of 1913, and this increase will be principally in the intangible property of individuals and the property of incorporated companies.

That a change in the method of listing property came at a propitious moment no one will deny who studies the significance of events without prejudice. If the new tax law had been installed this year, the Smith 1 per cent tax law would have been destroyed, or a number of Ohio cities would have hopelessly detailed on streets.

Efficient Tax Listing System.

A reduction in the state tax rate is possible this year because we have an intelligent and efficient tax listing system. The work of listing property in the state for taxation having been practically completed, we should now devote our efforts to the important task of conveying to the people the relief a beneficial system makes possible. The state should take the lead in the reduction of the tax rate, depending upon a vigilant public opinion to compel the same action in the state, municipalities and townships. With a sufficient showing, an increase of approximately $1,000,000,000 and with a substantial reduction in the state rate, then the rate should be cut in every subdivision of the state.

A Determining Influence.

The desire not to cripple municipalities and the belief that considerable dependence can be placed in local officials in the carrying out of the law have been the determining influence in the matter of reforming the budget laws at this time. Many believe that it is unwise to expect any one man to give three local officials plenary power in the making of the tax rate within the limitations of the Smith 1 per cent law and that there is a sentiment quite widespread and insistent that their powers be restricted in some degree. As experience is the safest refinery, it is doubted whether it is best to expect the governor to go over to the next session of the general assembly, when it will be easier to determine what change, if any, should be made in the law, when last assembled authorized the appointment of a committee to report to the Eighty-third general assembly on the subject of the tax rate. The established fiscal relation as between the state and local governments. It is highly probable that experience will be gained in the carrying out of the law, providing that budget commissions shall first levy for essentials. The law now provides that a levy be made initially for interest on the state debt. If this were supplemented with a further stipulation that the public health, school police and fire protection services should be the first to be provided, the result would doubtless be very helpful to the communities.

An Amazing Degree of Misapprehension.

There is an amazing degree of misapprehension with reference to the real purpose and intent of the state revenue law. It is made of the following items:

Table with 2 columns: Item and Amount. Includes Common school, University, Highway, Total.

Not one dollar of money derived from the state levy goes into the general revenue fund of the state. Not a cent of the current expenses of any of the state departments. They are maintained by excise taxes levied on corporations and the liquor traffic for the most part.

The sinking fund item grows out of the provision made originally through an ordinance passed by congress July 18, 1862, that the tax on the land in each township was reserved for school purposes. It was a misfortune that this reservation was not made perpetual, but the present law has made it so. The lands and pledged itself to pay annually 6 per cent on the amount so derived into the school fund. This agreement required $240,000 to be paid over to the 88 counties of the state. The money derived from the common school levy is paid by the state to the counties on the basis of $2 for every enumerated child.

The university levy goes directly to the state treasury and is not received entirely for the construction of a modern highway system in the practice.

By both provision and practice any deficiency in the sinking, common school or university funds is made up out of the general revenue fund of the state, so that the intention manifestly is that that thought should first be given to the available funds in the treasury not to the amount of the levy to be paid, and the amount of the levy should then be determined by this consideration. The state treasury now has the largest surplus in its history and the state tax duplicate will be increased this year, on the authority of the tax commission of Ohio, approximately $1,000,000,000. It is recommended, therefore, that a new state levy be made up as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Item and Amount. Includes Sinking fund, University, Highway, Total.

It will be seen that the saving to the people in the new tax paying year, beginning August 1, 1914, will be approximately $4,000,000,000. JAMES M. COX.

listing system. Courageous performance of duty by the tax listing system—has resulted in hundreds of millions of dollars in personal property income on the additional tax levied the first time. That every diagnosis of the past was sound is demonstrated by the vastly greater increase in personal property income this year.

The work of listing property in the state for taxation having been practically completed, we should now devote our efforts to the important task of conveying to the people the relief a beneficial system makes possible. The state should take the lead in the reduction of the tax rate, depending upon a vigilant public opinion to compel the same action in the state, municipalities and townships. RAIN GIVES CORN CROP

Recent Rainfall Does Only Short Way in Making Up Deficiency.

Columbus, O.—Rain which to the corn crop had an estimated value in excess of $2,000,000, fell in Ohio, breaking a long drought and bringing relief to thousands. The precipitation was general, covering the entire state. According to the weather bureau an average of one-half inch of water fell. Near Dayton, the storm exceeded the proportions of a cyclone and considerable damage was done. Many barns were burned, having been set on fire by lightning, and several buildings were destroyed by the wind. Large iron struck a large oil tank near Findlay, starting a fire which destroyed the tank and damaged three others. Weather men point out that the fall gives only a short way in making up the big deficiency piled up by a drought, which in central Ohio, lasted for 76 days. Precipitation for the year is still 3.39 inches below normal.

When anyone comes into our town grasp him by the hand and tell him what bright prospects the town has don't stand around like a lot of dummies before a clothing store all year long faces with gloomy looks that see only the dark side of things. Above all, don't go whining and make a shadow on the bright day. If you really have not the heart to speak a cheery word or lend your influence in behalf of your town, for mercy sake hide yourself when strangers come to visit us.

The thirteenth and last annual Patterson or Boxwell commencement was held Saturday afternoon in the high school auditorium, Mansfield, when more than one hundred pupils, representing every township in the county, passed from the grade schools into the high schools. About 85 per cent of the graduates usually attend some high school in the county. The new school code does away with the Patterson and Boxwell laws, and at next year the pupils will go from the eighth grades without any public examination.
Grover Bevier and wife, together with their mother, Mrs. Geo. Horst, motored to Cedar Point Sunday, going by way of the new road to the point, which was officially opened Sunday. A toll of 25 cents for each car must be paid in passing through the gates, regardless of the number of passengers, into the drive, which starts at Rye Beach, 7 miles distant from Cedar Point. Every car as it passes through the gate is registered, so that every day they know just how many autos pass over the road. It is wide enough for four and is said to be one of the finest drives in the state.
Plymouth extends a cordial welcome to the people of the surrounding territory who come here to enjoy the Chautauqua, starting July 31 and running for five days. You will not need to leave the public square to enjoy each and every moment, as the mammoth tent will be pitched on the pavement on Broadway where it will be dry and as light at night as in the day time and has been found the people from the north arrangements have been made with the S. N. & M. tract in company to hold the last car here until the close of each night's entertainment, which will get all out of town guests home in ample time.

SYNOPSIS.

hand swept back a lock of white hair from his forehead, and again he addressed Mr. Van Veelken, who was watching him narrowly.

"For Miss Carey," he said, "a word or two of explanation is necessary. This young lady, fully conversant with all the circumstances, with a complete understanding of how my daughter and I had been wronged, has not only been in full sympathy with my plans, but has lent me an active, material support."

"To a certain extent, however, I have taken an unfair advantage of her trust and confidence. But when I am through, gentlemen, I want you to remember how desperate were my chances—that I had to sink or swim—and that I am right!"

"The first time he showed a spark of emotion, and the last expression was uttered in a burst of earnestness that made manifest the intense feeling lying behind it."

"The consented to disappear for a time, until her family's alarm was given, and she was to be seen on any occasion in making this demand; but she did not dream that she was to appear in such a role as this."

"Theodore Van Veelken came forward toward the speaker, but a dozen words sufficed him, and the millionaire shook himself free."

BOOK IV.

Pointing to the satin upholstering which the fair head rested, Mar Willard said briefly:

"The willardite is there." Once more he glanced at his watch, with an indifferent air, and snapped it shut.

"There was a sudden cry from one of the guests, an inarticulate outburst of alarm—an indication that those ladies were giving under the tension."

"You mean?" returned Willard, hastily feeling with deft fingers among the cushions.

"The Kohlnur goes to sea." It was not long until all the loose ends were brought together.

"In the beginning, the one thing clear to all of them had been the fact that the Man of Iron was protected by an invulnerable field barrier, and that if redress was to be obtained at all it must be accomplished by means of some surprising coup that would catch the magnate amid such conditions that he could not resist."

"That you win," announced the Man of Iron, shortly.

"It was characteristic of the regard which the Man of Iron was universally held that Mar Willard asked for no further assurance. He might take any advantage of you in which he saw fit, and he was pleased to regard as partaking of the nature of open warfare; but his word since passed, and he was bound to keep it."

"One Minute Till Twelve," he announced.

"The large army of persons who have found relief from many chronic ailments by changing from coffee to Postum as a daily beverage, is growing each day."

"There's a Reason" for Postum. "This is a Reason" for Green.

Rudolph's condition that had so agitated her on the night she went to the Claremont accompanied by Phil Mercer.

"The intelligence that Paige had brought back to Jessie already reposed and anxious over her abandonment of Van Veelken to Callis, had driven the girl distracted."

"The death of Jim O'Neill, and Tom Phinney's subsequent accidental intrusion at Rocky Cove—whence the conspirators had fled—had finally thrown them all into a panic."

"The death of O'Neill was the first of a sequence of events that plunged Mar Willard into hot water almost at the moment when he saw success for his undertaking."

"Theodore Van Veelken had answered the advertisement blindly; but soon as he stepped across the threshold of Number 1313 he had been recognized as the traitorous employe of Willard's who had surreptitiously sold the time-lock drawings and mental formulae to Theodore Van Veelken."

"The Man of Iron, Theodore Van Veelken turned upon him."

"What do you mean by that?" he demanded.

"Simply that I have sat in at your own game—and won. The great American game of bluff, Theodore; as you presented it to me at Harvard; I have not forgotten."

"There is no explosive here—nothing to be alarmed at save this cheap alarm-clock. There is nothing the matter with Paige—dead child! But—"

"For a moment the Man of Iron seemed to be choking. But at this juncture a disturbance was heard in the street."

"A seryant entered hurriedly. Before he could make any announcement he was flung aside. He went sliding headlong in getting down, and grasping at every object within reach, pulling down chairs and tables and everything movable in the path of his headlong rush, until he brought up against the wall."

"Tom Phinney was standing just inside the doorway, taking in the scene. Beside him stood Mr. Flint."

"There's a Reason" for Postum. "This is a Reason" for Green.

He methodically closed the book, snapped the rubber band around it, and stared it to his pocket, while Jessie stared at him in blank amazement.

"That Mr. Flint pursued, his eyes crinkling in a smile, 'he that Mr. Rudolph Van Veelken told me at a time when I honestly believed you to be a case of the moon and the stars was wrong.'"

"You see, I hadn't Mr. Van Veelken very steady. I had never seen you, and appearances were all against you. I might say, the odds were against the correctness of his estimate—in which case I meant to show him these words."

"The girl's eyes were dewy. Her voice lowered.

"Then," said she, "this if your way of telling me that all your doubts are removed. Thank you."

"The girl's eyes were dewy. Her voice lowered.

"Van Veelken came eagerly forward and took the girl's hands into his. Mr. Flint still stood looking intently at Jessie—Jessie Willard, said Van Veelken. 'We do not have to wait the week. I am more eager now than ever. I understand everything, dearie!'

"Very deliberately she disengaged her hands, looking at him desperately.

"'Truly,' she said with an evident effort at sarcasm. 'You seem indeed to be very sure of yourself.'"

"He caught her hands again, and as her head drooped, drew her toward him.

"'Why, God bless my soul, yes! It's all up to you, girl. . . . What was that?'

"It was Paige Carey trying—warily—to break loose from Tom Phinney's estate bear-like hug. Swinging her back from the door and between the curtains, she stood confronting the dumfounded gaze of the other two."

"'Looky here, Rudie,' said Tom. 'Mr. Willard's got a yacht on his back. She's all ready to put to sea—what's the matter with the four of us?'

"'The very thing!' Van Veelken declared, interrupted, looking intently at Jessie Willard. Jessie averted her gaze, and her color mounted again."

"'And listen here,' Tom went on eagerly. 'She's all ready to put to sea—take advantage of some opportunity! What do you think?'

"What otherwise could Paige and Jessie think? Here was an argument that even a woman could not successfully oppose. And so, the next day, the Kohlnur weighed anchor, dropped down the river, and by sunset had lost the Steps of Liberty behind her."

THE END.

PAU JUNE 1919

Young Blizs Knew Much, But He Found That His Knowledge Could Have an Addition.

Young Olozo Blizs was an erudite youth, and a regular demon for knowledge in that he studied the "swotted" to tell you the truth, he spent eight or ten hours every day. To give you some little idea of his worth, he knew the age of the earth, the actual weight of the moon and the earth, and how far the stars were away.

"I would tell you the same, my eyes are not dead, my forehead and headgear are not good to eat, they only can refer to the old man's head."

"Blizs—his course taught you anything, Blizs?—the it is you ought to see an old man's headgear."

gave him a start. In fact, he was crammed full of wisdom and not a bit of it was in his headgear.

"One can't ever learn so much with a smile he would say. But he altered his mind, overhauling the old man's headgear, and he found that the way, stating facts new to Blizs without doubt."

"What an ugly old beaver that Blizs had! He was a regular demon for knowledge. Blizs learned the man. And the knowledge Blizs had, he had been much more than he was an old man's headgear."

"Blizs—his course taught you anything, Blizs?—the it is you ought to see an old man's headgear."

The Thinning of Fruit.

The early part of July is a good time to do thinning in apple and peach orchards. Few growers who have tried thinning and seen its results are willing to grow a crop without making this a part of the work. The chief object in view is to secure the largest amount of first quality fruit. Other considerations are the relief of overburdened limbs which might break from overweight, and a reduction of the strain upon the tree which maturing too large a crop would bring. In the first place all fruits, imperfect because of insect, disease or physical injury, are removed. Then, specimens that are in clusters or close enough to touch should be thinned off. When choice is allowed, those fruits which are most nearly uniform in shape and dominant in size should, of course, be allowed to remain. The indefinite part of the practice of thinning is the total amount of fruit to be removed. Here is where the thinner's judgment must be displayed. He will have to take into consideration, the kind of fruit, the number of specimens on the tree, the size he desires together with the strength of the soil and the probable rainfall. While some need thin apples and peaches to four, six, eight and ten inches apart, yet it is better to adopt an elastic system which includes a consideration of immediate conditions.

CHAMBERLAIN'S TABLETS

THIS is just what you need, madam. Many women who were troubled with indigestion, a sallow, muddy skin, indicating biliousness and habitual constipation, have been permanently cured by the use of Chamberlain's Tablets. Before using these tablets they felt miserable and despondent. Now they are cheerful and happy and relish their meals. Try them. They only cost a quarter.
