A Noted Scholar Passes Away.

Professor Manuel J. Drennan, brother of our late townsman, William W. Drennan, and of Mrs. Artie McDonough, died at the home of his niece, Mrs. Wm. Hudson Harper, Monday, August 31, 1914, and was brought to Plymouth and laid to rest with his father and mother, brother and sister in Greenlawn cemetery Friday morning, Sept. 3, 1914.

He was born in Plymouth, Ohio, Sept. 25, 1833. His studious tendencies guided him to Oberlin College, from which he graduated, afterward studying at the University of Halle, Germany.

He headed the call of the church by preparing for the Presbyterian ministry at Union Theological Seminary, New York. Among his early services was a pastorate at Madison, Indiana, and work as a teacher in Hanover College in that city. Later his growing scholarship commended him to the publishers of Appleton's Encyclopedia, from this employment being invited to Harvard University as an instructor in the department of English. Here were valued days in the company of President Eliot, Prof. Barrett Wendell, Prof. William James, Prof. Dyer, Dean Briggs, Prof. Palmer, and here were founded memories which the careers of various esteemed pupils sustained in after years.

In 1853 Professor Drennan was called to Vassar College to become head of the English department, where he remained twelve years, this period of service being followed, after an interval, in the closing of his life as a teacher, by a year at Fisk University, Nashville.

Professor Drennan had not married, and so in his later days, as throughout his life, his chief interest was in his books. His literary tastes and attainments were classical, rather than contemporary, his scholarship seeking refreshments in English, German and French masters, in Anglo-Saxon and sociological science, too. As a writer and conversationalist he was a purist, and his deportment was marked by that amiability and courtesy which tradition still treasures as characteristic of a gentleman of the old school. He was of Revolutionary lineage and Dutch stock. His nearest of kin elsewhere resident are his nieces, Mrs. Wm. H. Harper of Evanston, Ill., Mrs. W. J. Geer of Galion, Ohio, his nephews, John P. Drennan of Decatur, Ill., and from Plymouth G. B. Drennan and Robt. McDonough, and a grandson is Paul Drennan Cravath of New York.

MRS. JOEN PETTIT DIES OF OLD AGE

Was Eighty Years Old at the Time of Her Death.

Mrs. Catherine Pettit died at the home of Andrew Pettit south of Plymouth, on the Plymouth-Bucyrus road at eight o'clock last week Thursday evening from the infirmities of old age, leaving several children in this vicinity. She was eighty years of age.

The funeral was held at the home of Andrew Pettit Saturday afternoon at 1 p. m. and was in charge of the Baptist minister of Auburn Center. Burial was made at the Shiloh cemetery.

Mrs. Catherine Pettit was the widow of John Pettit who died June 30, 1910. She was the daughter of Jacob and Catherine Sweitzer and was born in Pennsylvania May 25, 1834. She came to this part of the country when a girl and married John Pettit of near Shiloh Sept. 1, 1851.

To them were born Wesley Pettit, now of Ripley, O.; Andrew and William, Plymouth; Mrs. Jas. Cline of this city, and Mrs. Dye Ferguson of Willshire, Ohio. Two children died in infancy and one daughter, Mrs. Cora Gribben, died several years ago. She is also mourned by a number of grandchildren who reside in this vicinity.

Mrs. Pettit resided in Nebraska with her husband for several years and lived at Ripley where she joined the Baptist church. Several years ago they returned to Plymouth and resided with their son Andrew Pettit on the farm two miles south.

Her age at the time of her death was eighty years, three months, and one day.

Farewell mother, dear, dear mother,
Kind and loving, you've always been,
Shedding by thy kind and true
That thy heart was free from sin.

Farewell mother, dear, dear mother,
Thou' we bid you now farewell,
We will follow thy God's teaching,
That we may ever with thee dwell.

We desire to thank the neighbors and friends who lent a kind hand in care of mother, during her sickness, death and burial. Also to the Pastor for the kind words and those who furnished the music at the funeral.

Obituary.

Catherine Denk was born at Bremen, Germany, Dec. 25, 1838, and died at her home in Plymouth, Ohio, Aug. 27, 1914, aged 76 years.

At the age of 20 years she was united in marriage to John Wenslick. To this union five children were born, two sons and two daughters dying in infancy. After the death of the children they decided to come to America and settled for a time at New Washington, after which they moved to Plymouth, living several years in the country, later moving into town where they made their home. The husband was taken by death in 1900, and Andrew, the son, a year ago. Mrs. Wenslick was well known to everyone in the village. Fred, the grandson, is the only relative.

CARD.
To the neighbors and friends who so kindly assisted us and extended their sympathy in the time of sickness and death, we desire to express our sincere thanks; also for the floral offerings. We will always feel grateful.
Mrs. Ella Wenslick and Son.

Saloon Applicants to Apply in Person.

Richland county applicants for saloon licenses or renewal of licenses must appear personally before the county licensing commission, according to Jacob Reinhardt, president of the board. Each applicant must file his application between Sept. 1 and September 15.

Appeals to public officials or to personal acquaintances of members of the board, if known to the board, will operate against the applicant. The board will look with disfavor on any applicant who pays any person or agent for alleged aid in obtaining license.

The services of an attorney are not necessary in making application for a license. The board will help any applicant in making out his application if necessary.

Each application must be accompanied with $5 in the form of a money order or certified check. Applicants are warned to take notice of the provisions of the law forbidding the sale of liquor to minors, intoxicated persons or known drunkards.

Each applicant must send a certified check for $100 to the state license board at Columbus within ten days after he is notified that a license has been awarded to him. No applicant will be given his license until he shows the receipt from the state board.

According to the law the awards of licenses must be announced not later than Nov. 5.

Says Ohio's Coal Supply May Last Only 48 Years.

The annual production of coal in Ohio has in the past nearly doubled every ten years," says Frank A. Ray, Professor of Mining Engineering at The Ohio State University, in a book which he has recently published on "The Ohio Coal Supply and its Exhaustion."

"If this rate of increase should continue until total completion, the coal will be exhausted in 48 years, which means that at the end the annual production would have to be over 600,000,000 tons," he continues. "But this rate of increase cannot go on indefinitely. There must come a time when the output of coal for Ohio will be reduced to its natural markets only, and the annual production will grow gradually less and finally cease when total exhaustion is reached."

"If this constant production is allowed to double for the next ten years and then remain constant until the end, total exhaustion would be reached in 214 years," he says.

"All calculations upon the time of the depletion of Ohio's coal supply are more or less pure speculation, however," Prof. Ray declares. "Our knowledge is deficient. We must know more of the facts, both as to the coal reserve and the future consumption, before the date of total completion of the Ohio coal reserve can be predicted."

What Does Your Soil Lack?

On Friday, September 11, at 10 o'clock, Porter Elliott, of the college of agriculture, will be at the farm of William McKinney, near Shelby. All persons interested in the use of fertilizers are invited to be present. Fertilizer, the "crop," is the slogan of the soil fertility experts at the college of agriculture. They say it is a mistake to talk about "corn fertilizer" and "wheat fertilizer." Experiments show that an application of whatever mineral fertilizer will increase the yield of all crops grown. The important thing, then, is for each farmer to find out what his soil lacks. The object of this meeting will be to find out what the soils in this vicinity lack, and what is the cheapest way of supplying this lack. Come at 10 o'clock, and your experience to the discussion.

HEALTH PAST FIFTY

Careful diet is of utmost importance to men and women past fifty years of age; it keeps up their strength, and the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion is a nourishing food, a curative medicine and a sustaining tonic to regulate the functions.

It contains the medicinal fats of pure cod liver oil and science proves that they furnish twice as much energy as other foods—then too, it creates pure blood, sharpens the appetite, relieves rheumatism, strengthens the body and alleviates the ailments due to declining years. Scott's is free from wines, alcohol or harmful drugs. Beware of substitutes.

Court House to be Completed by Holidays.

The Huron county court house will be ready for occupancy by the holidays, according to Architect Redding, of Mansfield.

The roof is completed and the interior is now in the hands of the electricians who are doing the wiring, carpenters who are doing the interior woodwork, etc., and plasterers. The strike of stone cutters at the Amherst quarries is now a thing of the past, and the tower will be completed within a few weeks and all exterior work given the finishing touches.

It will be good news to the residents of Huron county who at divers times have business at the court house, to learn that the offices will soon be together under one roof. It has been a hardship running an over town from one court office to another to transact a little routine court business. And the county officials will also be much pleased to get settled.

Going to the Oberlin Business College Next Week.

Young people from all parts of Ohio and other states are going to Oberlin next Monday and Tuesday to enter the Oberlin Business College, the Fall Term of which opens September 8, 1914. Hundreds of men and women, now holding prominent positions in all parts of the country, look back upon the day they packed their trunks and started for the Oberlin Business College as the beginning of their successful careers.

This school, for many years one of the most thorough of its kind in the entire country, has taken a long step in advance in the erection of another new building to accommodate its rapidly increasing attendance. This building will be opened to students for the first time September 8. Those who go to Oberlin for business training get the best the country affords.

Rheumatism Pains Stopped.

The first application of Sloan's Liniment goes right to the painful part. It penetrates without rubbing, it stops the rheumatic pains around the joints and gives relief and comfort. Don't suffer! Get a bottle today! It is a family medicine for all pains, hurts, bruises, cuts, sore throat, neuralgia and chest pain. Prevents infection. Mrs. Chas. H. Wentworth, California, writes: "I did wonder for my rheumatism, pain is gone as soon as I apply it. I recommended it to my friends as the best liniment I ever used." RUSS ADVANCE TOWARD BERLIN

THIRD AEROPLANE RAID OF CAPITAL

Daring German Air Scout Drops Three Bombs Into Streets of Paris.

No One Is Hurt and Aviator Manages to Elude Shots Fired From Guns.

Paris, France.—A third daring aeroplane raid of Paris was made Tuesday evening by a German air scout and three bombs were dropped, but with no casualties.

Paris has been thrown into a state of terror by these successive invasions by German flyers. They have been of daily occurrence. The first was on Sunday, when three bombs were dropped into Paris; the second on Monday, when one projectile plunged into the heart of the city but failed to explode, and the third came Tuesday evening between 6 and 7 o'clock.

The aeroplane soared over the center of the capital. It was discovered by a sentry posted at the foot of the Column in the Place Vendôme. The aviator was circling above the Bank of France in the La Faux de France when the sentry raised his rifle and fired. The shot evidently hit the engine, and the aeroplane continued in its flight.

Other sentries took up the alarm and began firing from connecting posts. About a dozen shots were fired, but all failed to reach their mark because of the altitude at which the machine was flying.

The aviator passed directly over the office of the Paris bureau of the I. N. S. and then, hovering for a moment over the machine gun, he made sure of his aim, three bombs were dropped in quick succession, four blocks away, in the Rue De Hanovre, one block from the Place De L'Opera.

Either because the bombs were defective or because of a remarkable piece of good luck, not a person was injured by the missiles. In the Rue De La Paix and the immediate neighborhood from whence the sentries had been firing at the aeroplane the crowds flocked to the houses and sewers, expecting to see the machine plunge to the ground, but it made off apparently without being injured.

The success of these aerial raids have stirred the military authorities to action. The impunity with which the aviators of the enemy have down to the danger of their own lives, the special guns designed for the wings of air craft have been mounted on the roof of the Military club and at a corner of the Place De L'Opera and at other prominent points about the city.

LOUVAIN IS IN ASHES

London.—That Louvain was wiped off the face of the earth by the Germans without the slightest excuse is the allegation made by the Belgian legation here. The city has been completely destroyed. All of its magnificent buildings are in ashes. Its art treasures have been destroyed. The inhabitants are prisoners under guard of German soldiers. The Belgian legation says in the following account of the destruction of the city.

"Last Tuesday night the German corps which had been operating between Antwerp and Louvain was completely routed by a Belgian expedition. It was forced to retire toward Louvain in the utmost disorder.

"When it came near the city of Louvain the German garrison posted there mistook their comrades in arms for Belgians and fired on them, killing some and wounding others. The Germans, on realizing their mistake, and having fired on the Belgians, even in possibility as the Belgians, even including the Louvain police, had all been disarmed by order of the burgomaster when the town was surrendered to the Germans as it was hoped to save the town from war damage.

"Despite the protestations of the Louvain authorities the Germans directed the townspeople to march out of the city to a point officially designated. Then as a 'reproach' for their own acts the German commander of Louvain ordered that the city be given up to the flames. Bombs were fired with bombs and German artillery was turned on the city hall and the public buildings. The city is now reported in ruins."

The city of Louvain, reported destroyed by the Germans, was one of the most beautiful cities in Europe. It was a city of the Middle Ages, rich in famous buildings erected in the 15th and 16th centuries, when Louvain was the capital of Brabant.

Chinese Bandit Killed. San Francisco, Cal.—White Wolf, the celebrated Chinese bandit whose band of brigands murdered thousands of people in the raids on the villages and towns, was shot to death while sweeping down on a city in Hunan province, central China, according to a cable news received by prominent local Chinese news agencies from the gun of a soldier under President Yuan Shi Kai is supposed to have slain the outlaw and the $50,000 reward offered for the capture of White Wolf probably will not be paid.

GENERAL LEMAN

Heroic defender of the Belgian forts at Liege, who finally was forced to surrender to the Germans.

SEA LOSSES GREATER THAN IN SPANISH WAR

Destruction at sea during the first month of the general war has been greater than the naval losses during the entire Spanish-American war, when the value of the merchant vessels captured is taken into consideration. The cost these vessels with their cargoes, in many instances very valuable, must be added to the warships that had been destroyed.

The following are the naval losses thus far reported: Aug. 2.—German and Russian fleets fight off Iceland islands. Russians reported to have lost one ship. Aug. 3.—German mine layer Konigen Luise sunk by British torpede boats in North sea.

Aug. 5.—British cruiser Amphion sunk by mine in North sea. Aug. 6.—German submarine sunk by British cruisers in North sea. Aug. 15.—German cruisers Goeben and Breslau, and the ocean liner, captured. Aug. 16.—Austrian cruiser Zenta sunk off Antivari, Montenegro.

Aug. 17.—Unmanned German dreadnaught reported out of action and ashore at Trondhjem, Norway. Aug. 17.—Austrian battleship Zrinyi reported sunk by French warships. Aug. 16.—German cruiser Magdeburg blown up by her commander in the Gulf of Finland to avoid capture. Aug. 27.—German converted cruiser Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse sunk off Cape by British cruiser Highflyer.

Aug. 28.—Austrian destroyer sunk off Cape by British destroyer. Aug. 28.—Two German cruisers and two destroyers sunk and third cruiser put to flight, fire and sinking, by British fleet off Cape Haven.

RUSSIA ANNIHILATES BIG AUSTRIAN ARMY

FORCES LOSS OF 20,000 ON THE ENEMY, WHO SOUGHT TO CROSS VISTULA.

St. Petersburg Comments on the Operations of the Czar's Soldiers Against the Austrian Forces.

London, Eng.—The Central News publishes a dispatch from Rome saying telegrams received there from Bucharest, Rumania, declare that the Austrian defeat in Galicia was colossal. Trains are transporting tens of thousands of wounded and Austrian regiments have been captured. The dispatch says the Rumanian general staff considers the battle on the Austro-Russian frontier decisive. The Austrians are recalling troops engaged against France and Serbia.

"Late yesterday evening the main road from Louvain toward Brussels was blocked with retreating soldiers and fugitives. Wherever the people had turned to account their light cars, to some of which were harnessed teams of dogs, such as one seen everywhere in Flanders. Others had horses attached, and when animal traction failed, sons and daughters were forced to push the vehicles and laboriously toiled toward success, dragging the carts laden with the aged and infirm or weeping mothers with young children and babies in their arms.

Many Had Lost All. "Numbers of these poor people had lost everything, their money, their clothes, their homes, their cattle. The Prussian 'wolf' had decimated their people, their peaceful hamlet so rapidly that in many cases they had barely time to escape with their lives. "I covered with many of these homeless ones both on this side of the road to Louvain and this morning in Ghent. One man came across said he lived just outside Louvain and had been working in the fields, unaware of the proximity of the enemy. He turned round suddenly and saw his house in flames and the savage cries of delight shouted by the marauding

HOW WAR HOSTS OF GERMANY SWEEP THROUGH BELGIUM

London.—The daily Chronicle has a dispatch from one of its correspondents in Belgium, dated at Ghent, in which he tells of the determined sweep of the Germans through the section east of Brussels and the occupation of Louvain, which had been until then the headquarters of the Belgian army.

The correspondent says that an enormous German force was flung against Louvain, which was the weak point of the Belgian line, and from Diest to Louvain the Belgian left was turned.

Germans 120,000 Strong. Speaking with a French officer near Wavre on Tuesday the Chronicle correspondent says he was informed that at least three German army corps (about 120,000 men) were moving in a line from Tassel to Tongres and Waremme, with the object of breaking through the Belgian line at any cost. The force was covered by an immense cavalry screen, the same force with which the French and the Belgians were so hotly engaged all Tuesday.

The Germans on that particular day," the correspondent continues, "were repeatedly attacked and cut up by the French dragoons. But the all-cavalry, pursuing the retreating enemy far beyond the advanced posts of the lines, suddenly discovered the presence of a large German army. There was nothing for it but to fall back rapidly, and this was accomplished in good order and with practically no loss.

Battle Line Thirty Miles Long. "The main German advance over a front of about thirty miles appears to have begun at daylight yesterday. At six o'clock yesterday morning I reached an advance post, anticipating from some of the operations of the previous day that I was to witness the first great battle of this war. I then found that during the night the situation had completely changed.

"Some pickets of the allied cavalry had been driven in by the enemy's cavalry that they had been sent to reconnoiter, and they returned with the information that they had come in contact with large bodies of the enemy moving by routes parallel with the Belgian and French line.

"The first shock of the invader was encountered at Diest. This place, which so heroically resisted them last week, was fiercely attacked. The old forts and walls, most of which are on the northern side, formed but a weak protection against the heavy fire of the enemy. The impetuosity made the defenses untenable and the garrison retreated, evacuating the town.

"The Germans then advanced cautiously fearing a surprise. The Belgian cavalry, which was covering the rear guard, had several brushes with the enemy, who repeatedly sought to cut them off. The impetuosity of the Belgians led to their charging the enemy and incurring great losses.

Louvain Easy to Win. "Louvain was the next place at which the Germans flung themselves. Here their task was comparatively light, as it was unattended.

"It is a sleepy-looking little medieval town, noted for the profundity of its classical learning and the beauty of its gothic architecture. "A small force of infantry and cavalry held the place as long as possible and then retreated. A number of shots were fired at the enemy by the small defending force, and it is informed that later the invaders made this slight resistance a pretext for burning several houses in the vicinity of Louvain.

"Late yesterday evening the main road from Louvain toward Brussels was blocked with retreating soldiers and fugitives. Wherever the people had turned to account their light cars, to some of which were harnessed teams of dogs, such as one seen everywhere in Flanders. Others had horses attached, and when animal traction failed, sons and daughters were forced to push the vehicles and laboriously toiled toward success, dragging the carts laden with the aged and infirm or weeping mothers with young children and babies in their arms.

Many Had Lost All. "Numbers of these poor people had lost everything, their money, their clothes, their homes, their cattle. The Prussian 'wolf' had decimated their people, their peaceful hamlet so rapidly that in many cases they had barely time to escape with their lives. "I covered with many of these homeless ones both on this side of the road to Louvain and this morning in Ghent. One man came across said he lived just outside Louvain and had been working in the fields, unaware of the proximity of the enemy. He turned round suddenly and saw his house in flames and the savage cries of delight shouted by the marauding

COMMANDER BLOWS UP FORT AND SELF TO CHEAT GERMANS

Fort Chaudfontaine, one of the Liege strongholds which the Germans had taken to the east of Louvain, was subjected to a continual and extremely violent bombardment. When it was reduced to a mere heap of ruins and Major Nassebe, the commanding officer, judged that further resistance was impossible, he blocked up the tunnel by running several locomotives into each other and set fire to the fuses leading to the mines surrounding the forts.

children. He died in complete ignorance of the fate of his wife and children.

After evacuating Louvain the Belgians retreated to a high, wooded country and found an excellent defensive position. Meanwhile, having cleared Louvain and occupied the town, the Germans pushed forward with great celerity, their cavalry opening out in fan shape and spreading across the country. They ran against the enemy in a strong position and the Belgian artillery punished them severely.

Germans Intrench Beliefs. Reinforcements were hurried up and the Germans, with a view to holding on, started to intrench themselves. They seemed to be meditating vigorous attack on the Belgians. The German guns next came into action, but though their shooting showed considerable improvement as compared with what I saw last week they were unable to make any impression on the Belgians, whose front was protected by farm lands and marshy ground.

"Later in the afternoon the enemy had enough of this encounter and withdrew. An advanced force to the other side of Louvain. A Belgian patrol which pushed its way cautiously forward found the town deserted by the enemy.

"Owing to the fear that they might be outflanked if they held on the Belgians in the afternoon received imperative orders to evacuate their position.

"To prevent its being cut off the force holding Wavre was also ordered to carry out a simultaneous retirement.

Fighting at Tirlemont. "The fighting at Tirlemont is described by the Oostend correspondent of the Express, who says he witnessed it from a church tower at Tirlemont. "Until lunch time on Tuesday," he says, "Tirlemont was quiet and normal. Suddenly about one o'clock came the sound of the first German gun. The artillery had opened fire.

"From the church it was possible to see distinctly the position of the German guns and the bursting of their shells. The Belgians replied from their positions east of Louvain.

Wheat Fields Torn Up. "It was a striking sight to the accompaniment of the ceaseless thud, thud of bursting shells, with their puffs of cottonlike smoke, tearing up the peaceful wheat fields not far away.

"Gradually working nearer, the shells began to strike the houses in Tirlemont. This was a signal for the populace, which heretofore had been confident the Belgian army would protect them, to fly blindly and unresistingly. All they knew was that the Germans were coming.

"From the tower the scene was like the running of rats from a disturbed nest. This was a signal for the populace, which heretofore had been confident the Belgian army would protect them, to fly blindly and unresistingly. All they knew was that the Germans were coming.

"The firing was heavy. The wounded began to come in. Riderless horses came along, both German and Belgian. These were caught and mounted by civilians glad to have so rapid a mode of escape.

Belgian Woman Leads Retreat. "I remember watching a black-clad Belgian woman running straight down the middle of a road away from the Germans. Behind her came the retreating Belgian troops, disheated but valiant. This woman, clad in mourning, was the symbol of the Belgian populace.

"At some of the barricades along the route the refugees and soldiers arrived simultaneously, making the defense difficult. All about Tirlemont and Louvain the refugees continually interfered with the work of the troops. The road to Brussels always was crowded with refugees."

LEGS CRUSHED, GUNNER BEGS FOR LAST SHOT

Vichy.—The presidential palace and all the hotels have been converted into hospitals and are now filled with wounded. All branches of the services are represented, the patients including artillerymen, infantrymen, chasseurs, dragoons and hussars.

A gunner who was in the battle at the Bonhomme pass told this story of a soldier: "He was a marvelous pointer and he got the bull's eye every time, but they got him at last. His legs were crushed, but he asked to be carried to another gun point for one last shot."

Germany to Enlist Boys? London.—The official news bureau says: "The German papers of August 13 made a public order that boys of about 16 to 18 years of age should go to army or navy training. Retired officers are to be engaged as instructors."

HIGH MARK HAS BEEN REACHED

NUMBER OF CONTRACTS WILL BE AWARDED BEFORE THE ROAD SEASON CLOSES.

AGGREGATE MUCH SMALLER

Contracts Are Let For Twelve New Roads In Nine Counties—Will Cost $220,061.55.

(By Benny Donovan.)
Columbus.—The high tide in letting road contracts for 1914 has been reached and past by the state highway department, but Commissioner Marker still has on his list quite a number of good contracts to be offered before the season is over. But the aggregate will be much smaller than has prevailed recently. The department has let contracts for the construction of new roads, 12 contracts in nine counties.

The work on this lot is estimated to cost $220,061.55 on 24.83 miles, divided as follows: Macadam, 11.55 miles; brick, 9.27 miles, and concrete, 4.04 miles. For the repair of high ways, the commissioner will offer six contracts in four counties or a total of 28.49 miles, of which 26.25 miles are located in Franklin county. The estimated cost on this lot is $128,811.56, or a grand total on this letting of a fraction less than $500,000. The department will offer no more road work for some time.

Trees Are Advocated.

"There is no reason why Ohio should not have trees planted along all of its public highways," said Prof. W. R. Lazenby, of the department of forestry at Ohio State university, in speaking about the proposed forestry law for Ohio. "Not only would trees planted along all country roads serve to beautify the state, but they would also prove a valuable source of income." In connection with the state highway commission, State Forester Edmund Serber and the state reforestation committee, Prof. Lazenby is working upon plans to plant fruit, forest and shade trees along public highways in Ohio and to create several forest preserves from the school and ministerial lands in the state which are unused at the present time. These lands aggregate 24,000 acres.

New State Banks.

State charters have been taken out by three banking institutions, according to State Superintendent Emory Lattanner. At Lodi, Medina county, the Lodi State Bank has been chartered. It will be owned and operated by the same men who control the Lodi National Bank. The new corporation is formed for the purpose of handling real estate loans. Charles L. Darlington, of Xenia, also arranged to take out a charter for a new state bank at Xenia, to be operated by the men who control one of the national banks in the town. The Exchange Bank of Cedarville, Greene county, changes from a private to a state bank, as does the Farmers' and Citizens' Bank of Tiro, Crawford county.

No Referendum.

Ruling on a question growing out of the Zaneseville waterworks controversy Attorney General Hogan held that there can be no referendum election on an emergency measure passed by the Zaneseville council. The council had been ordered by the state board of health to install a new mechanical filtration plant. A resolution of council putting this order into effect carried an emergency clause. Advocates of a deep-well system of water supply filed a referendum on the resolution and at the same time initiated a measure calling for deep wells.

New Lighting System.

The Statehouse and McKinley monument at its front was illuminated for the first time by the new lighting system installed by the Columbus Conventions and Publicity Association. The improvements made will be completed soon. By the new lighting system, the light from many high-powered Mazda lamps will be concentrated on the flag on the Statehouse dome by strong parabolic reflectors. A strong light at the top of the flagstaff will enable the flag to be seen for miles.

First Case to Be Considered.

It is expected that one of the first cases to be considered by the supreme court when it takes up its fall work will be the suit to determine if the office of the clerk of the supreme court

Believing that the law seeking to change the office from an elective to an appointive one is unconstitutional, most of the parties will present candidates for this place at the fall election.

Good Books in Library.

The library at the penitentiary is now one of the most complete of its kind in the United States. It now has a supply of about 8,000 books, of which three-fourths are fiction and the remainder histories, books of travel and adventure. Nearly all of the latest fiction and educational books can be found among the volumes stored in the library, and according to the latest report of the department, there is a monthly circulation of about 4,000 books, not including the great number of magazines which are read.

Judges Cause Much Delay.

Confronted with an amazing mass of suggestions, the execution of which would lead to radical changes in the laws relating to the courts, the committee named, under authority of a special legislative act, to devise ways and means of judicial procedure simplification was in session.

Organizing by choosing Supreme Court Justice James Johnson chairman, the committee speedily adopted a resolution presented by Simeon M. Johnson, of Cincinnati, to ask suggestions from the Ohio State Bar Association, which has worked persistently on judicial simplification; various local bar associations, business and credit men's associations, Chambers of Commerce, lawyers and the public generally.

Little new legislation and a minimum of changes are expected to flow from the report of the committee. Mr. Johnson, who has had wide experience in reform movements, and Judge Scott Stahl, of Port Clinton, strongly urged a policy of conservatism, arguing that the people are desirous most of all of a period of legislative rest and do not wish to see many innovations.

Engineers Are Appointed.

Twenty appraisal engineers and eight appraisal clerks were appointed by the state public utilities commission. They will all begin their work at once. The appointments were made from a list of names certified by the state civil service commission. Under a recent law, the utilities commission must make appraisals of utilities when requested by the city council of any municipality. Requests for the appraisals of the electric and street car companies of Cincinnati and three telephone companies in Cuyahoga county have already been received, and expert men to do the work were demanded. A requisition was made to the state civil service commission, and a special examination was called. Of those who passed this test, twenty-nine have been appointed to positions within thirty days after the date of examination, a new record for both departments.

Mid-Winter Fair.

Columbus is to be the scene of a big exposition of an unusual character next January. It is to be a combination horticultural, dairy, apple, corn and poultry show and will be styled "The Columbus Mid-Winter Fair." Through the courtesy of the state agricultural commission, the grounds and buildings of the state fair grounds will be placed at the disposal of the various organizations comprising the Mid-Winter Fair association. The date of the mid-winter fair has been set for the second week in January, from Wednesday until the Wednesday following. Not less than 50,000 visitors are said to be assured for the fair, which is a novel departure from the exhibitions that were formerly given by each organization for itself, at different times and on a comparatively small scale.

Kite Flying Employed.

Kite flying is the latest device for use in modern political canvassing and the display of cards in windows of homes, while not so new, is another. It is the prohibitionists, or supporters of the state-wide dry amendment to the Ohio constitution, who are about to employ them. Prizes are to be offered for the best kite-flying contests, the soaring machines to carry the inscription "Vote Dry" or "Ohio Dry November 3." Window cards are to be supplied bearing the device: "This Home Is Dry."

Autoing Prices Slump.

Bargain day for state automobile and motor-cycle licenses began September 1. According to the announcement made by Registrar Shearer, the gas will be cut in half. Licenses for gasoline cars will cost $2.50 and electric $1.50. These licenses will be good until January 1, 1915. This reduction is only for private owners. Mr. Shearer expects the total of cars licensed this year to reach 120,000. The number to date is about 115,000.

Complete Absorption.

The Manufacturers' Light and Heat Co., chartered in West Virginia, has asked permission of the Utilities Commission to absorb the Tri-state Gas Co., that supplies natural gas to Steubenville and nearby places; the Wheeling Natural Gas Co., that supplies Martin's Ferry and nearby places; the Ohio Valley Gas Co., that supplies East Liverpool and other places near, and the Wetzel Gas Co., that supplies several places in Monroe county.

No Immediate Meeting.

Wayne B. Wheeler, superintendent of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League, said that no immediate meeting had been planned by the executive board of the league to "fix the dry attitude" in the coming political campaign. The Anti-Saloon League is a non-partisan organization and it will not come out directly for any one party in this campaign, said Mr. Wheeler, "unless the trustees of the league change its policy."

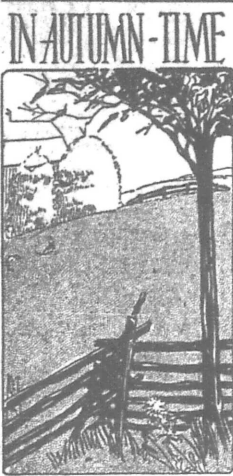

Abandons Ticket.

In the fight on movement to form a coalition of all the independent voters and those favoring equal suffrage behind the leadership of the Progressive party, the State Prohibition Central Committee abandoned its state ticket and virtually declared in favor of James M. Garfield for governor and Arthur L. Gorham for United States senator. By a unanimous action it decided not to let the petitions prepared for the nomination of J. A. Dickson, of Wooster, for governor, nor for his associates on the executive ticket.

Oh Looker

HENRY HOWLAND

IN AUTUMN-TIME

In autumn-time the good world seems to leave all hate and strife behind. It is a time for pleasant dreams. The clanking gold and crimson dressed, in softest gold and crimson dressed, Calm Nature seems to pause awhile. To lure her children to her breast And show a reminiscent smile.

In autumn-time the orchards yield. The riches they have treasured long. The rounded stacks that grace the field Proclaim a faith still sure and strong. A haze that softens and subdues. Leads grace to distant, rugged slopes. The lambs that play beside the ewes Are eloquent of well-won hopes.

In autumn-time the world appears To turn awhile from fretfulness. Contentment comes to banish fears, And love reclaims the pitiless. Ropes that were dear in former days Contend no more for vain desires. And all the peaceful, winding ways Lead heavenward, in autumn-time.

CANDID OPINION.

One good thing about a church is that one needn't feel ashamed if one is seen going in even at a side door.

Most of the explaining is done by men who act upon their first impulses.

Conscience, like the housebreaker does most of its work after dark.

If only one fool is born every minute it is evident that fools never die in their infancy.

Optimism is a good thing, if one doesn't try to use it as a substitute for hard work.

The man who is always going to do something important tomorrow may never do it, but, even so, he has an important advantage over the man who thinks there is no chance left for him.

A Liberal Soul.

"I tell you, it's unreasonable for a man to expect his wife to get along on nothing while he is spending money having a good time."

"I agree with you. Most of the domestic unhappiness is caused by men who expect their wives to take care of their homes and get nothing for it but what they have to eat and wear."

"You've got the right idea. I give my wife a dollar a week for pin money, whether she needs it or not."

Lucky.

"I consider my wife the loveliest woman in the world."

"I congratulate you. A man who considers his wife the loveliest woman in the world has a blessing that is greater than riches. He is luckier than the man who has millions and is bored when he has to be alone with his wife. How long have you been married?"

"It will be six weeks next Thursday."

Sensible.

"Your son's wife seems to be such a sensible girl."

"She is sensible. When his salary was raised $5 a week recently she stubbornly declined to have her mode of living changed so that it would cost them $10 a week more."

A CRUEL MAN.

"My dear, we've got to call a halt. We can't go on forever living beyond our income!"

"There," he replied. "I knew you'd go and bring up some disagreeable subject to spoil the day. This is the first morning for a week that I haven't had a headache."

He Couldn't Help It.

"I have to laugh every time I see that man."

"He can't help his looks."

"I know; but his wife thinks every other woman is trying to lure him away from her."

Tires at Before-War Prices

Goodyear Prices
It is Folly Today to Pay More

34 x 4 " " "	24.35
36 x 4 1/2 " " "	35.00

There exists now a new, compelling reason for buying Goodyear tires. It results from War conditions.

These leading tires—built of extra-fine rubber, in the same way as always—are selling today at June prices.

You will find today a very wide difference between most tire prices and Goodyears.

Due to Quick Action

Early in August—when war began—the world's rubber markets seemed closed to us. Rubber prices doubled almost overnight.

Men could see no way to pay for rubber abroad, and no way to bring it in. We, like others—in that panic—were forced to higher prices. But we have since gone back to prices we charged before the war, and this is how we did it:

We had men in London and Singapore when the war broke out. The larger part of the world's rubber supply comes through there. We called them to buy up the pick of the rubber. They bought—before the advance—1,500,000 pounds of the finest rubber there.

Nearly all this is now on the way to us. And it means practically all of the extra-grade rubber obtainable abroad.

Today we have our own men in Colombo, Singapore and Para. Those are the world's chief sources of rubber. So we are pretty well assured of a constant supply, and our pick of the best that's produced.

We were first on the ground. We were quickest in action. As a result, we shall soon have in storage an almost record supply of this extra grade of rubber. And we paid about June prices.

Now Inferior Grades Cost Double

About the only crude rubber available now for many makers is inferior. In ordinary times, the best tire makers refuse it. Much of it had been rejected. But that "off rubber" now sells for much more than we paid for the best.

The results are these: Tire prices in general are far in advance of Goodyears. And many tire makers, short of supplies, will be forced to use second-grade rubber.

Be Careful Now

In Goodyears we pledge you the same grade tire as always. And that grade won for Goodyears the top place in Tireworld—the largest sale in the world.

And, for the time being, our prices are the same as before the war. We shall try to keep them there.

We accept no excessive orders, but dealers will be kept supplied. And we charge them, until further notice, only anti-belium prices.

That means that Goodyears—the best tires built—are selling way below other tires.

ARRESTED AS A SPY

James A. Patten Tells of His Escape From Europe.

Chicago and His Wife Suffered Hardships in Their Thrilling Flight From Carlsbad Through Belgium.

New York.—James A. Patten, the former west operator of Chicago, who was one of the American refugees returning by the Red Star liner Finland, told a thrilling story of his escape from Germany after war had been declared. With Mrs. Patten he left Carlsbad on August 2 and traveled via Herberthal and Liege, where they arrived just as hostilities had begun. "We left Carlsbad for Nuremberg by train, as the authorities took my automobile," said Mr. Patten. "We did not know the war had broken out then as no news of the situation was given out in Carlsbad.

"Trouble began as soon as we struck the German border. We reached Nuremberg at 9 p. m. and were promptly turned out of the train and arrested as spies. My wife and I were taken to the police station and cross-examined. I showed what credentials I had, but it was not until the American consul there showed up that we were released, two hours later. A great crowd which had gathered outside, expecting possibly to see us executed, hoisted us as we left the station.

"We were able to get a train to Cologne, however. Into which city thousands of troops were pouring when we arrived. We got a train supposedly for Ostend, but we were stopped at Herberthal on the Belgian border. We had to get out of the train at 10 p. m. It was raining and we had nothing to eat and no place to go.

"There was no chance to get another train, but about one o'clock the next morning I managed to get hold of a one-horse cart driven by a peasant, who said he would take us to Verrier, where he thought we could get a train for Liege. He gave us some crusts of bread which was the first we had to eat for 18 hours.

"On the road we passed the most pitiful procession of German refugees fleeing from Belgium. Some were in vehicles, but the majority were trudging in the dust, pushing or pulling their baggage in carts. Women with babies at the breast were walking in the poonday sun.

"From Verrier we proceeded by another cart toward Liege. We had not progressed three miles when we came upon a party of Belgian engineers mining the road. They had great piles of dynamite stacked there ready to plant in the ditches they were digging across the roadway.

"They advised us to go to Liege by another road, we hastened to do so.

"Two hours later another party of Americans were halted at that very spot by a skirmish between the Belgians and Germans. They were forced to lie in a ditch while the Belgians fired over them. Next day 3,000 Germans were killed by the same mines we had seen the engineers planting.

"Soon after we got a train for Ostend. We did not see any of the fighting at Liege, but could hear the firing."

One Argument.

"Is your car a good one?"

"Discriminating people choose them," said the gift automobile salesman. "More of our cars stolen than any other make."

Choice in Divorce.

Maud—Would you recommend the lawyer who got you your last divorce?

Beatrice—Well, his charges are reasonable, but I've enjoyed more notoriety with others—Life.

AMERICAN REFUGEES FLEEING FROM WAR ZONE

American refugees, with their baggage, on a hay wagon making their way along the highroad above Arrycourt, a French village near Lunerville. This party, which was without food from early in the morning of August 3, reached the railway at Emberment half an hour before all train service was suspended.

MUST KNOW HUMAN NATURE

Functions of the Novelist Are of the Highest Order, According to Sir Gilbert Parker.

Although Sir Gilbert Parker has enjoyed a popular vogue such as is almost never granted to a serious novelist, there are few writers in the world who take a truer view of the writer's functions than does Parker. In a recent article at the time of the issue of his new novel, "You Never Know Your Luck," Parker observed that, keen though the politician's eye must be if he is to obtain popularity and manage men, it is as nothing compared with that of the writer, who must observe the characteristics of human nature infinitely more acutely.

Says Gilbert: "He must not note only the symptoms, which may indicate a passing functional development of the moral and mental constitution, he must go infinitely deeper if he wants to know character. He must find out, it may be, the more or less obscure thing, the disease or corruption lying behind the many aberration symptoms, and it is probable that he will find his key in some small, unthought thing which is a danger signal to the trained mind to which is given access to the trained eye.

"To a registering eye, an eye which sees and photographs, there comes under stress of the cause and the limitation which follows, a moving picture of inner reality. When in their proper places, the instruments of the thousand variations of human

Maps, ordinarily rather dull sort of affairs, have come into great popularity and are eagerly studied, while general articles, having to do with some phase of the conflict or touching upon some matter of information regarding the countries involved, are being read with interest by a very large proportion of newspaper readers.

There will be little if any crime, fewer drinking scenes and even kissing in the pictures which will be shown in Ohio movie theatres hereafter. The reason is to be found in the announcement that the state movie law went into full effect, September first. From now on anyone showing uncensored films will be liable to prosecution under the state law.

The United States will use every honorable effort to keep out of this foolish war, but if we are eventually forced into the conflict the other fellow is liable to get his share barked. There are a hundred million people in this country, and about thirty million of that number are sturdy fighters when aroused. Snapping curs are wise when they avoid the snuff's teeth.

Our foodstuffs are accumulating, bumper crops are reported in many sections of the country, we can't ship it to Europe with dispatch, we have few ships to send it to South America, yet we are forced to pay higher prices—war prices—for what we eat. The government is asking why and should compel the answer. It is not the fault of the producer nor of the retailer generally.

Another American product, the corn-cob pipe, will come into its own, if the war in Europe lasts much longer. The pipe supply in this country is sufficient to last but six weeks, and after that time, the price of pipes will soar, according to advices from pipe manufacturing concerns in this country. This is due to the fact that the importation of pipe material into the United States has stopped.

The young girls on the farm who find their pin money scarce have an excellent opportunity for having full purses all the time by devoting their spare time to poultry and eggs. Fifty good laying hens properly handled should bring in a profit of about a hundred dollars a year, and the care of these birds would not be any great task. It would be pleasant work for the idle moments of each day.

How many dogs are there in Richland county and how much are the people of this county willing to pay for the privilege of owning them? The answer to the above question is obtainable from a census which is being completed at the office of District Assessor W. B. Martin. Last year the dog owners of the county paid over $3,487 to save their canines from the execution that awaits all dogs, big and little, whose right to live is not secured by tax receipts.

In addition to electing state and county officials, a United States Senator and congressman, the people of Ohio this fall at the election, November 3, will vote on four proposed constitutional amendments. Statewide prohibition, woman's suffrage, a proposition to wipe out local option backed by the wets and an amendment to the taxation section of the constitution which will permit the classification of property for taxation are the questions which will be voted upon.

Just how many saloons in Richland county will be entitled to next year will not be known until in October when the Richland county liquor license commission will receive from the state board population figures based on the government estimates. The state commission is busy now compiling its data. The number of saloons in Richland county at present is 55. Forty-three of them are in Mansfield, one for every 500, estimated from the 1913 school census of 21,004. Shelby has 10 based on the 1913 estimate, and Plymouth has 2, from the 1910 census.

The high price of sugar can be happily reduced by keeping it out of your coffee. There is where most of it goes. That is what makes the refined sugar cost 10 cents. Now is the time for a new declaration of independence, committing oneself to a sugarless life so far as coffee is concerned. It is easily done. All one has to do is to swear off for a week and the reformation is reached.

Postmaster Granger received official notification Tuesday morning from the First Assistant Postmaster General to the effect that on and after Nov. 1, 1914, New London would be favored with free delivery service, says the New London Record. For a number of years there has been a growing demand for this service but it was not until postmaster Granger, Mr. Sharp to use his influence that the postoffice department has consented.

Over one-half of the necessary $10,000 for the new manufacturing plant has been raised, says the Shelby Review. Mr. Malmberg, the man holding the patents, was in town last week looking over the town as a manufacturing site and seemed very much impressed with our village. The name of the new company will be The National Metal-lic Company, and the $10,000 is only to get the plant started. The chief articles to be manufactured are fire-proof metallic doors, safety deposit boxes, etc. At the present time there are only two companies manufacturing this line and the profits are attractive.

Mrs. Mary G. Selover, aged 87 years, died Saturday afternoon at the home of E. G. Lemon, on Sherman avenue, following an illness of several months. Death was due to the infirmities of old age. The deceased made her home for a number of years with W. S. Ward, of Park avenue west—Mansfield News. The body was brought here over B. & O. train No. 17, Monday forenoon, and a short funeral service was held at the chapel, after which the remains were interred in Greenlawn cemetery. The deceased was well known in this city, having for a number of years made Plymouth her home, being a sister of the late Mrs. W. B. Cuykendall.

Stationery printed at this office is giving the best satisfaction. Last week we printed 500 statements for a man, and by their aid he collected a small fortune. Two months ago a man bought of us some note paper and envelopes to use when writing to his sweetheart, and now she is married. Another man forged a name on a check printed at this office, and is in jail. Another stole some of our paper with which to make cigarettes; he is dead. A young lady bought some of our paper to curl her hair on, and now she has a beau. (We only have a little of this kind left.) By using our statements a person can collect old accounts, tell fortunes, cause rain, change the color of the hair, have teeth extracted without pain, find out the name of your future wife or husband, be successful in business, and get elected to office. Give us a call.

Photographers May Have to Close Shops. Several Mansfield photographic galleries may have to close within a few months on account of a scarcity of photographic materials caused by the European war. The high cost of having your picture taken has already been affected and prices are steadily soaring.

The photographers are probably harder hit than any other profession. Most of their materials are imported from Germany, France and Austria, countries now firm in the grip of the war god.

The glass for plates is made in France and Austria. The developing base is imported almost entirely. Most of the chemicals are imported in bulk. They cannot be had here.

Hydroquinone and metol, two developing agents that are essential to making photographs are both produced in Germany. The American supply on hand. Even should the war end, it is probable that it will be some time before the chemicals are manufactured again. -Mansfield News.

Mr. Weatherly has been hard hit with the rest of the profession by the druggists and dealers in photo supplies at Chicago Junction have interested themselves and are trying from their various dealers to secure material for him, but so far have been unsuccessful.

Bans Called Sunday.

The wedding of Stephen Dalton of this city, the popular young clerk at John Kirkpatrick's shoe store, and Miss Katherine Week, only daughter of Mrs. Lenora Hoff, of Plymouth, will take place two weeks from today in the Catholic church in Chicago Junction, Rev. Cohen officiating. The bans were called for the first time in St. Mary's Catholic church Sunday morning.

The young couple will reside in Shelby following the ceremony and a short trip to points along the lakes. -Shelby Citizen.

According to the New London Record, the school building in that town must be in a terrible condition. It says: "The condition of the building from a sanitary standpoint was found to be almost beyond belief. The six rooms in the basement were all piled full of old rotting refuse, the mud and dirt deep, and the stench frightful. Not a room in the building had been properly cared for. In every corner was to be found piles of dirt, some of which had to be cut away with a putty knife. The desks were filthy, evidently not having been washed in many months."

Miss Ethel Rummell of New London, a former Plymouth girl, was united in marriage Monday morning at Norwalk, with Mr. Glenn Darby, also of New London. The young couple were guests at the Weatherby home for several days and when they returned after the ceremony at Norwalk, they were met at the Mills avenue crossing by an old-fashioned wedding party who crowned the groom with a "plug" hat and marched the pair to their stopping place, where they received congratulations. Later in the day they went to Columbus, to take in the sights at the state fair.

Mrs. Fred Webber, residing south of Plymouth, who for several months past has been more or less ill, died at the family home Friday evening of last week aged 61 years, 4 months and 23 days. She was a lady much esteemed by all, and will not only be missed in her home but by the people in general in the community in which she resided. She leaves to mourn her death her husband, Fred Webber, two sons, Frank, of Cleveland, and David, of this city, and one daughter, Mrs. Edna Jones of Michigan, who was permitted to be with her mother in her last illness. She is also survived by three brothers and one sister, as well as numerous relatives. Funeral services were held from her late home Monday forenoon, conducted by the Rev. G. A. Crafts, the burial taking place in Greenlawn cemetery.

What amounted to one of the most severe electrical and rain storms of the season prevailed in this section from 4 to 7 o'clock Tuesday night, the lightning being exceedingly sharp and rain falling in abundance, soaking the ground to a considerable depth and ample for fall seeding. During the storm lightning struck the home of D. E. Hoffman, corner Third and Main streets, and the house did not only slight damage as well as giving the occupants considerable fright. Evidently the lightning struck a water conductor on the southeast corner of the house, following it downward to a kitchen window, striking the window sash in two places, from which it went on the inside to the cellar and on the outside into the cistern. Leaves from a couple of wall paper catalogs, lying on the window, were torn loose, set afire and scattered about the room, and it is strange to say, that not a single bird was killed, although on either side of the window casings, were not even stunned. Mrs. Hoffman, with a couple of neighbor ladies were in a room just off the kitchen, and other than being slightly annoyed and badly frightened, escaped without injury. Dan, a son of the house, but near enough to make him think the Germans were dropping a few bombs in this section.

As the result of the work of two middle-class boys Chris Weber will take all his pleasure joints on foot, or at least until his new Studebaker Six is returned from the factory where it was taken Sunday for repairs. Last week Thursday his sisters took the machine and drove out to the home of Mrs. Johnston, south of Plymouth, where they expected to see them the day. Just before they were ready to start for home a heavy rain set in, and rather than drive the machine home through the mud, the sisters decided to leave the auto at the Johnston home and returned on an interurban car. The following morning Oakley Trago and a lad named Weber, a neighbor of the Johnstons, entered the barn, and boy like, always anxious to see the "wheels go round," got into the machine and in maneuvering around turned the switch on the electric start of the machine being on the reverse, it shot backward out through the barn, breaking off the barn doors as it went and finally landed with the rear up against a tree, and thus stalled the wheels before it grinded deep into the earth, until in their excitement one of the boys by good luck happened to turn off the power and the engine stopped. It stripped the top from the auto and bent in the back of the body, was about the sum total of the damage done. Had the machine been driven forward it would have dropped about eight feet to the ground and no doubt the boys would have been seriously injured, if not killed, and the machine a perfect wreck.

SYNOPSIS.

Bud Hooker and Phil De Lancy are forced, owing to a revolution in Mexico, to go up their mining claim and return to the United States. In the border town of Gadsden Bud meets Henry Kruger, a wealthy mine owner who makes him a proposition to return to Mexico to acquire title to a very rich mine which Kruger had blown up when he found he had been cheated out of the title by one Aragon. The Mexican subsequently got a large sum in an unsuccessful attempt to re-claim the mine and then allowed the mine to revert to taxes. Hooker and De Lancy, known as Fortuna, return to Mexico. They engage the services of Cruz Mendez, who has been friendly to Aragon, to acquire the title for them and get a permit to go to preliminary work. Aragon protests and accuses them of jumping his claim. Bud discovers that matrimonial arrangements make it impossible for Mendez to secure a valid title to the land. Bud, who has become interested in Aragon's daughter, Gracia, decides to turn Mexican and get the title in his own name.

Undoubtedly, in his own way, he was in love, but he would not admit it, that he knew, too. So he sank down on the blankets and swore harshly, while De Lancy stared at him in unfeigned surprise.

"Well, then," he went on, taking Bud's answer for granted, "what're you making such a fuss about? I'm going to a dance, with a girl without you jumping down my throat!"

"Why, sure you can!" rumbled Bud, now hot with a new indignation; "but after getting me to go into this deal against my will and swearing me to some mean-foll pledge, the first thing you do is to make friends with Aragon and then make love to his daughter. Is that your idea of helping things along? Dye that tact's the way a partner ought to act? No, I tell you, it is not!"

"Aw, Bud," protested De Lancy plaintively, "what's the matter with you? Be reasonable, old man; I never meant to hurt your feelings."

"Hurt my feelings!" echoed Hooker scornfully. "Huh, what are we down here for, anyway—a Sunday school picnic? My feelings are nothing, and they can wait; but we're sitting on a mine that's worth a million dollars and you do it to make friends with Aragon and then make love to his daughter. Is that your idea of helping things along? Dye that tact's the way a partner ought to act? No, I tell you, it is not!"

Is that your idea of helping things along? Dye that tact's the way a partner ought to act? No, I tell you, it is not!"

"Don't need to," responded Bud; "you can do what you please."

"No; I'll match you!" persisted Phil. "That was the agreement—whenever it was an even break we'd let the money talk. Here's your quarter, and if I match you I'll become the Mexican citizen. All set? Let 'er go!"

He flipped the coin into the air and caught it in his hand.

"Heads!" he called, without looking at it. "What you got?"

"Tails!" answered Bud, and Phil checked his money into the air again and laughed as it dropped into his palm.

"Heads she is again!" he cried, showing the Mexican eagle. "I never did see the time when I couldn't match you, anyway. So now, old socks, you can keep right on being a Texan and busting Mexicans like nortey-tortey."

"I'll match you for it," proposed De Lancy, diving into his pocket for money.

"Don't need to," responded Bud; "you can do what you please."

"No; I'll match you!" persisted Phil. "That was the agreement—whenever it was an even break we'd let the money talk. Here's your quarter, and if I match you I'll become the Mexican citizen. All set? Let 'er go!"

cocks talking with their hands and eyebrows and everybody else backing off. I stepped in close and looked at the girl.

"And she's some girl, too, believe me! The biggest brown eyes you ever saw in your life, a complexion like cream, and hair—well, there never was such hair! She was fanning herself real slow, and in the language of the fan that means: 'This don't interest me a bit!' So, just to show her I was wise, I pulled out my handkerchief and dropped it on the floor, and when she saw me she stopped and began to count the ribs in her fan. 'That was my cue—it meant she wanted to speak with me—so I stepped up and said:

"Excuse me, senorita, but while the gentlemen talk—and if the senora, your mother, will permit—perhaps we can enjoy a dance?"

"And say, Bud, you should have seen the way she rose to it. The girl is a sport, believe me, and the idea of those two novices chewing the rag while she sat out the dance didn't appeal to her at all. So she gave me her hand and away we went, with all the old ladies talking behind their fans and Manuel del Rey blowing up like a volcano in a bunch of carabao or worse. Gee, it was great, and she could dance like a queen.

"But here's the interesting part of it—what do you think she asked me after we'd had our little laugh? Well, you don't need to get so grouchy about it—she asked about you!"

"Aw!"

"Yes, she did! So you see what you get for throwing her down!"

"What did she ask?"

"Well, she asked—here he stopped and laughed—"she asked if you were a cowboy?"

"No!" cried Bud, pleased in spite of himself; "what does she know about cowboys?"

"Oh, she's wise!" declared Phil; "she's been to school twice in Los Angeles and seen the wild west show. Yes, sir, she's just like an American girl and speaks English perfectly. She told me she didn't like the Mexican men—they were too stuck on themselves—and say, Bud, when I told her

"No!" cried Bud, pleased in spite of himself; "what does she know about cowboys?"

"Be careful there!" warned Bud, suddenly fixing his eyes on one of the four retainers. "If you touch that gun I'll kill you!"

There was a pause, in which the Mexicans frozen to their saddles, and then De Lancy broke the silence.

"You must not think, Senor Aragon," he began, speaking with a certain bitterness, "that you can carry your point like this. My friend here is a Texan, and if your men stir he will kill them. But there is a law in this country for every man—what is it that you want?"

"I want this mining claim," shouted Aragon, "that you have so unjustly taken from me through that scoundrel Mendez! And I want you to step aside, so that I can set up my monuments and take possession of it."

"The Senor Aragon has not been to the agente mineral today," suggested De Lancy suavely. "If he had taken the trouble he would not—"

"Enough!" cried Aragon, still trying to carry it off cavalierly; "I sent my servant to the mining agent yesterday and he reported that the permit had lapsed."

"If he had taken the pains to inquire for new permits, however," returned De Lancy, "the would have found that one has been issued to me. I am now a Mexican citizen, like yourself."

"You!" screamed Aragon, his eyes bulging with astonishment, and then, finding himself tricked, he turned suddenly upon one of his retainers and struck him with his whip.

"Son of a goat!" he stormed. "Pig! Is this the way you obey my orders?"

But though he raved and scolded, he had gone far, and there was no putting the blame on his servant. In his desire to humiliate the hated gringos he had thrown down all his guards, and even De Lancy saw all too clearly what his intentions in the matter had been.

"Spare your cursing, Senor Aragon," he said, "and after this," he added, "you can save your pretty words, too—for somebody else. We shall remain here and hold our property."

"Ha! You Americans!" exclaimed Aragon, as he chewed bitterly on his defeat. "You will rob us of everything we have after this. You are a Mexican citizen, you must give this barren mine very highly to value the protection of your government. But perhaps you are acquainted with a man named Kruger?"

"He would sell his honor any time to defend a Mexican of his rights, and I doubt not it was he who sent you here. Yes, I have known it from the first—but I will fool him yet!"

"So you are a Mexican citizen, Senor De Lancy? Bien, then you shall pay the full price of your citizenship. Before this you are now no more than that poor peddler, Mendez. You must appeal now to your consul at Gadsden—you are only a Mexican! Very well!"

He shrugged his shoulders and smiled significantly.

"No," retorted De Lancy angrily; "you are right, and I appeal to your government! But let me tell you something, Senor Mexicano! An American needs no government to protect him—he has his gun, and that is enough!"

"Yes," added Bud, who had caught the drift of the last, "and he has his friends, too; don't forget that! He strode over toward Aragon and beckoned him with a threatening finger.

"If anything happens to my friend," he hissed, "you will have me to whip! And now, senor," he added, speaking in the idiom of the country, "go with God—and do not come back!"

"Ph!" spat back Aragon, his hate for the pushing foreigner showing in every glance; "I will beat you yet! And I pray God the revolution come this way, if they take the full half of my cattle—so long as they get you two!"

"Very well," nodded Bud, and Aragon and his men turned away, "but be careful you do not send any," he added, "and he continued talking glibly at the pallid Phil; "now we got him where we want him—out in the open. And I'll just remember them four palanos he had with him—there's his handy men, the boys with nerve—and don't never let one of 'em catch you out, De Lancy!"

"Heaven's, Bud," he groaned, "I never would have believed it of him—I thought he was on the square. But it just goes to prove the old saying—every Mexican has got a streak of yellow in him somewhere. All you've got to do is to trust him long enough and you'll find it out. Well, we're hep to Mr. Aragon, all right!"

"I never seen one of these polite, palavering Mexicans yet," observed Bud, "that wasn't crooked. And this fellow Aragon, I mean, to boot. He said he had got the mine, and two can play at it, I don't know how you feel Phil, but we been kinder creeping and slipping around so long, we've all cramped up inside. Never suffered more in my life than the last sixty days—being polite to that damn Mexican. Now it's our turn. Are you game?"

"Count me in!" cried De Lancy, raising from his rock. "What's the play?"

"Well, we'll go into town pretty soon," grinned Bud, "and if I run across old Aragon, or any one of them four boys, I'll be glad to make 'em a show. And as for that big brindle dog of his—well, he's sure going to get popped and drug if he don't mend his ways. Come on, let's hitch up our horses and go in for a little time!"

"I'll go with," agreed Phil with enthusiasm, and half an hour later, each with his favorite horse, they were tearing down the cañon. At the turn of the trail, where it swung into the Aragon lane, Bud took down his rope and smiled in anticipation.

"You go on ahead," he said, shaking out his loop, "and I'll try to put the catgut on bridle."

"Oh like a flash!" answered De Lancy, and, putting the spurs to his fiery bay, he went dashing down the street, scattering chickens and hogs in all directions. Behind came Bud, rolling joltily in his saddle, and as the dogs rushed out after his partner he twisted his loop once and laid it skilfully across the big brindle's back. But roping dogs is a difficult task at best, and Bud was out of practice. The sudden blow struck Brindle to the ground and the loop came away unflinched. The Texan laughed, shifting in his saddle.

"Come again!" commented Bud, leaning sidewise as he coiled his rope, and as the womenfolk and idlers came rushing to see what had happened he turned Copper Bottom in his tracks and came back like a streak of light.

"Look out, you ugly man's dog!" he shouted, whipping his rope as he rode; and then, amid a chorus of indignant protests, he chased the yelping Brindle down the lane and through a hole in the fence. Then, with no harm done, he rode back up the street, smiling amiably and looking for more dogs to rope.

In the door of the store stood Aragon, pale with fury, but Bud appeared not to see him. His eyes were turned rather toward the house where, on the edge of the veranda, Gracia Aragon and her mother stood staring at his antics.

"Good morning to you, ladies!" he saluted, taking off his sombrero with a flourish; "lovely weather, ain't it? And with his tongue in his cheek and a roguish glance at Aragon, who was struck dumb by this last affront, he went rattling after his partner, sending back a series of joyous yips.

"Now that sure does me good," he confided to Phil as they rode down between cottonwoods and struck into the muddy creek. "No sense in it, but it gets something out of my system that has kept me from feeling jaded. Did you see me bowing to the ladies? Some class to that boy—no? You would look out—I'd bet my eye on that gal, and I'm sure a hard one to head. Only thing is, I wouldn't like the old man for a father-in-law the way matter stand between us now."

He laughed boisterously at this witticism, and the little Mexican children, playing among the willows, crouched and lay quiet like rabbits. Along the sides of the rocky hills, where the peons had their mud-and-rock houses, mothers came anxiously to open doors; and as they jogged along up the river the Chinese gardeners, working in each separate rock and eddy of the storm-washed creek-bed, stopped grubbing to gaze at them inquiringly.

"Wonder what's the matter with their happiness had ceased to effervesce; they sit up like a village of prairie dogs! Whole country seems to be on the rubber neck. Must be something doing."

"That's right," agreed Phil; "did you notice how those peons cowered when I rode down the street? Maybe there's some insurrectos through. But say—listen!"

He stopped his horse, and in the silence a bugle-call came down the wind from the direction of Fortuna.

"Soldier!" he said. "Now where did they come from? I was in Fortuna day before yesterday, and—well, look at that!"

From the point of the hill just ahead he saw a column of soldiers come into view marching in the lead.

"Aha!" exclaimed Bud with conviction. "They're started something down below. This is that bunch of federals that we saw drilling up at Agua Negra."

"Yep," admitted De Lancy regretfully; "I guess you're right for once—the open season for rebels has begun."

They drew out of the road and let their men pass—a long, double line of shabby infantry, still wearing their last year's straw hats and summer uniforms, and trailing along in a lopsided parade.

In front, were two men bearing lanterns, to search out the way by night; slatternly women, the inevitable camp-followers, trotted along as the sides of the little column, and behind, a long line of stragglers, with their heavy guns and a job lot of bolts and peaks, shuffled patiently past the Americans, they flashed the whites of their eyes and rumbled a chorus of "Adios!"

"Adios, American!" they called, gazing indignantly at their fine horses, and as they passed Bud touched his hat and wished them all Godspeed.

"Poor devils!" he murmured, as the last tottering camp-followers, laden with their burdens, brought up the rear and a white-skinned Spanish officer saluted from his horse; "what do these little fellows know about liberty and justice, or the game that is being played? Wearing the same uniforms that they had when they fought for Diaz, and now they are fighting for Madero. Next year they may be working for Orozco or Huerta or Salazar."

"Sure," muttered Bud; "but that ain't the question. If they're rebels in the hills, where do we get 'em?"

CHAPTER XI.

The plaza at Fortuna, ordinarily so peaceful and sleepy, was alive with hurrying men when Bud and Phil rode over. Over at the station a special engine was waiting, and hanging after its heavy run and, from the train of commandeered ore cars behind, a swarm of soldiers were leaping to the ground. On the porch of the hotel Don Juan de Dios Brachamonte was making violent signals with his hands, as if any rode up he hurried out to meet them.

"My gracious, boys," he cried, "it's a good thing you came into town! Bernardino Bravo has come over the mountains and he's marching to take Mocotuma!"

"Why, that doesn't make any difference," answered Phil. "Mocotuma is eighty miles from here—and look at all the soldiers. How many men has Bernardino got?"

"Well, that I do not know," responded Don Juan; "some say more and some less, but if you boys hadn't come in I would have sent a man to fetch you. Just as soon as a revolution begins the back country becomes unsafe for Americans. Some of these low characters are likely to murder you if they think you have any money."

"Well, we haven't," put in Bud; "but we've got a mine—and we're going to keep it, hot!"

"Ah, Bernardino Bravo hasn't got any men!" scoffed Phil; "I bet this is a false alarm. He got whipped out of his boots over in Chihuahua last fall, and he's been up in the Sierra Madre ever since. Probably come down to steal a little beef."

"Why, Don Juan, Bud and I lived right next to a mill all last year and if we'd listened to one-tenth of the revoluto stories we heard we wouldn't have taken out an ounce of gold. I'm going to get my denouncement papers tomorrow, and I'll bet you we work that mine all summer and never know the difference. These rebels won't hurt you an arrow!"

"No! Only beg a little grub!" added Bud scornfully. "Come on, Phil; let's go over and look at the soldiers—let that bunch of Yaquis we saw up at Agua Negra."

They tied their horses to the rack and, leaving the solicitous Don Juan to squawk, hurried over to the yard. From the best metal ore cars, each a rolling fortress in itself, the last of the active Yaquis were helping out their women and pet dogs, while the rest, talking and laughing in high spirits, were strung out along the track in a perfunctory line.

If a few officers in command had ever attempted to teach them military discipline, the result was not apparent in the line they formed; but one man who looked at their swarthy faces, the hawklike profiles, and deep-set, steady eyes, would know that they were fighters.

After a few straight lines on parade had very little to do with actual warfare and these men had proved their worth under fire.

To be sure, it was the fire of Mexican guns, and perhaps that was why the officers were so quiet and unassertive; for every one of these big, upstanding Indians had been captured in the Yaqui wars and deported to the benighted fields of Yucatan to die in the miasma and heat.

But they had come from a hardy breed and the whirligig of fortune was flying fast—Madero defeated Porfirio Diaz, great revolution broke out, and the victor and, looking about in desperation for soldiers to fill his ranks, Madero fell upon the Yaquis.

Trained warriors for generations, of a race so fierce that the ancient Aztecs had been turned aside by them in their empire-founding migration, they were now the fiercest and bravest of rebels, if he could but win them to his side.

So Madero had approached Chief Bule, whom Diaz had taken under a flag of truce, and soon the agreement was made. In return for faithful service, Madero had agreed to let the Indians the one thing they had been wanting a hundred and sixty years to attain, their own country.

And there they should be permitted to live in peace as their ancestors had done before them.

And so it was that thousands of more of his men, the crafty old war chief, taken service in the federal army, though his mind, poisoned perhaps by the treachery he had suffered, was not entirely free from guile.

WOMEN WHO ARE ALWAYS TIRED

May Find Help in This Letter.

Swan Creek, Mich.—"I cannot speak too highly of your medicine. When through neglect or overwork I get run down and my appetite is poor and I have that weak, languid, always tired feeling, I get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it builds me up, gives me strength, and restores me to perfect health again. It is truly a great blessing to women, and I cannot speak too highly of it. I take pleasure in recommending it to others."—Mrs. J. CAMERON, R.F.D. No. 1, Swan Creek, Michigan.

Another Sufferer Relieved. Hebron, Me.—"Before taking your remedies I was all run down, discouraged and had female weakness. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sensitive Wash, and find today that I am an entirely new woman, ready and willing to do my household work, where before taking your medicine it was a dread. I try to impress upon the minds of all suffering women I meet the benefits they can derive from your medicines."—Mrs. CHARLES ROWE, R. F. D., No. 1, Hebron, Maine.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letters will be promptly read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

ECZEMA SPREAD OVER HANDS

101 S. Boots St., Marion, Ind.—"First the eczema started on my fingers, then spread all over my hands. It broke out in tiny blisters, then would get dry and crack and swell so I could not have my hands in warm water they hurt me so badly. I could not do all my work. The itching and burning were terrible. The more I scratched my hands the worse it made them. They were so bad I could not help scratching them and would walk the floor they annoyed me so. I could not sleep, lost many nights of rest on account of the eczema.—My hands were not fit to be seen and I kept them wrapped up and wore mittens that I made out of old linen.

"I was about one year using remedies, then I saw an advertisement in the paper saying that Cuticura Soap and Ointment were good. I wrote at once for a sample. Then I bought one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment. Before the second box of Cuticura Ointment was gone my hands were well and have remained well ever since." (Signed) Mrs. G. IN THE SPORTING WORLD

Carl Wellman, leading pitcher of the St. Louis Browns aggregation, is a southpaw and stands six feet five and a half inches in his stocking feet. He is a good pitcher. He is the most improved pitcher in the American league. Ranking forty-second among the American league pitchers last season in the matter of earned runs—American league teams averaged 3.41 earned runs per game as he worked—this season so far Wellman has held the opposition to an average well under two runs per game.

Other facts about Mr. Wellman might be summarized in this fashion: He pitches fewer curved balls than most pitchers; he is one inch taller than Bill James; he is one-half inch shorter than Myles Main of Detroit; he has an undying ambition to be a 300 hitter and may be following any time in practice working with the bat, and he has, with Roy Mitchell, the most perfect control of any pitcher among the Browns.

Rattled the Umpire.

Players throughout the American league live under the impression that Harry Coveleskie, the Tigers' southpaw, can be rattled by the persistent whistling, singing or playing of "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

At different times this season opposing teams have tried to make the big Pole slip by following up this practice. They have yet to succeed, but ball players are persistent individuals.

New York's Highlanders started the tune when Coveleskie was pitching a game at Detroit.

All through the first inning they whistled and sang and stamped their feet in accompaniment. A double play pulled Coveleskie out at the end of the first period and in the second the Highlanders renewed their efforts.

Through the second inning and into the third they went.

Coveleskie, intent on pitching, paid no heed.

But behind the bat there was one person who possessed nerves that were not attuned to such music. This was Billy Evans. The league's best umpire finally bawled:

"Cut that out, you fellows. What d'ye think this is—a county fair?"

Golf Courses Costly.

There are not many persons outside of those on the inside of the game of golf who fully appreciate what amount of money it requires to establish a golf course along thoroughly up to date lines, nor to what extent a man will delve into his personal fortune for the sake of gratifying his heart's desire in the building of links which will rank among the best in the section. Not long ago 150 Philadelphia golfers were asked to subscribe $1,000 each that a new course could be built in the Chestnut Hill section. When the National Golf Links of America was first projected at Shinnecock Hill, N. Y., there were $1,000 subscriptions obtained in sufficient number to bring about the completion of a course now ranked as the greatest in the world. Nearly $1,000,000 in all has been spent.

Race Yachts Expensive.

Various estimates have been made of the cost of the Defender, as well as the Vanitie and the Resolute, the yachts built to battle for the honor on numerous occasions. The Defender, Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger Shamrock IV. The war has called off the races.

One of the latest phases of the cost of the Vanitie and the Resolute at $200,000 and that of the Defender at $100,000.

Strunk Seldom Mentioned.

The one player on the Philadelphia team from whom little is heard and yet who is one of the most valuable players Mack has is none other than the center fielder. It is but on rare occasions that Strunk is ever mentioned in connection with the champions, and yet it is doubtful if, barring perhaps Collins and Barry, there is a player in the lineup who does more to help his team than he.

PLAINT OF A NOISE HATER.

This Rich Man Would Like to Kill a Whole Lot of People.

As a public protest against shrieking motor horns and yelping dogs a retired Manchester merchant has canceled a bequest of £20,000 to the local hospital. Writing to the London Mail, he says:

"I have become so disgusted by the stupidity of the authorities who allow the health of the people to be ruined by fiendish noises from motorcars, yelping dogs, etc., that I have made up my mind as a protest to cancel a bequest in my will of £20,000 to Manchester to use in the hospital. The money to other channels, where I hope it will be put to better use than patching up people who do not appear to have sense enough to protest against these brutal and unnecessary nuisances, which are destroying the health of thousands of people, including myself."

"I am suffering from nervous irritation, and for seven years I have been seeking some place where I can be quiet. I have lived in London, Manchester, Southampton and St. Ann-on-the-Sea. They are all bad. Now I am going to live in Cheltenham. The town clerk there assures me they have bylaws against yelping dogs, bawling hawkers, shrieking motor horns and crowing fowls. If these bylaws are not properly enforced at Cheltenham I shall go to live in the Hartz mountains under a sensible government. I have not definitely decided what I shall do with my money. I would like to spend it all on powder and shot for the people who make and encourage unnecessary noise."

Raisin Puffs.

One-half cupful of sugar, a heaping tablespoonful of butter, two eggs, a cupful of milk, two cupfuls of flour, a cupful of raisins chopped and floured, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Steam in buttered cups one-half hour. This makes twelve cups. Sauce for puffs—two cupfuls of brown sugar, two cupfuls of hot water, two tablespoonfuls of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour, a teaspoonful of vanilla. Cook until thick. Serve hot.

To Keep Rice Grains Whole.

Have plenty of water boiling rapidly in a large saucepan, add to it the strained juice of a lemon, put in the rice, stir with a cooking fork (never stir rice with a spoon), boil hard for fifteen minutes uncovered. Now add the salt, stir well, boil ten minutes longer, pour it into a colander, shake well, put into a warm oven for five minutes to dry, serve in a hot uncovered vegetable dish. The lemon juice does not favor the rice.

Rendering Lard.

Cut leaf lard into small pieces and run through the meat chopper before rendering and you will have almost all lard and very few cracklings when through cooking. A teaspoonful of common baking soda in the water in which you start your lard to rendering makes it white and sweet. Sprinkle a thin layer of salt in the bottom of jars before pouring in your newly rendered lard and it will not get rancid.

Pork Cakes.

One pound of salt pork chopped very fine, one pint of boiling water poured on the pork, two cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of molasses, one heaping teaspoonful of cloves and of cinnamon, one pound of chopped raisins, two teaspoonfuls of soda, one small teaspoonful of baking powder and about six cupfuls of flour (enough to make it rather thick, but not too stiff). Bake slowly and be sure that it is done before taking from the oven. This cake will keep for weeks if wrapped in paraffin paper and kept in a tin box or a covered jar.
