safeguard the I. and R., the statement by Hon. J. Milton Earnhart of Lebanon, a farmer member of the recent Constitutional Convention, drives home hardest the object of the proposal. He says:

"The viewpoint of a farmer, witch has been my chosen occupation. You will remember the persistent "efforts which were made in the Constitutional Convention and have been made at the polls for the adoption of a measure for the classification of property for taxation, and which is but the hand-maiden for the single tax." If adopted, it would make the farmer the goat. The farmer is willing to contribute a full share, but unwilling to assume additional burdens. And they, together with those persons who realize the necessity of giving this important branch of industry a 'square deal.' should line up solidity for this amendment to curb continual nagging by those who seek to force upon the people something which they do not went."

HON, GEORGE W. HARRIS, CINCINATI:—The initiative and referencom is one of the fundamental safestrands for the preservation of our democratic governmental institutions.
As a member of the fourth Constitutional Convention of Ohlo, I helped make the principle of the initiative that the principle of the initiative

HON. JOHN ROEHM, DAYTON.—
You will find by the records of the Constitutional Convention that I favored a workable I. & R. However, I did-not then or do I now favor an I. & R. that will continually keep the people in a turnoil relating to any particular subject defeated year after year. The continual agitation by submission of any such questions year after year must bring the I. & R. gradually in disrepute and will be finally the undoing of what was expected would be one of the great reforms in Invor of the people.

CINCINNATI ENQUIRER: — In-corsement by the voters of Ohio of the proposed amendment to the Con-etitution of Ohio to prevent the re-submission of issues twice defeated until after the lapse of six years will rob the initiative and referendum of rob the initiative and referendum of none of their potentiatity as a lastruments of popular government, but will restore to the people of Ohio a feeling of confidence and a degree of certainty in its laws. Ohio is committed to the principles of the initiative and referendum, and will continue to employ them unless their constant abuse by irresponsible agitators causes the people to rise in wrath and discard them allowether.

WAVERLY REPUBLICAN HERALD:—It would save the state hundreds of thousands of dollars in doing away with elections on twice-defeated constitutional proposals for a period of six years. ### I Choose Death

I Choose Death.

I knew the town well, and few changes had occurred since last I walked those streets hand in hand with my father. It had not grown any larger, and thus far the war had wrought little damage. The most of life in the sleepy old town centered about the Frest hotel, a three-story wooden structure, where the officers of the garrison lodged and the court-house, a dignified edifice of red brick, a block beyond, where in other days my father presided on the bench, now completely surrounded by a military camp. There were more Federal soldiers here than I had expected to see, but a remark exchanged between two of my guard informed me that most of these had strived during the night—a regiment of Ohio troops, and a battery of light artillery, destined to assist in a contemplated attack on Covington.

assist in a contemplated attack on Covington.
The head of our little column halted in front of the hotel, but Whillock should be command to the sergeant, and we rode on past, the guard closing up tightly. I kept my face straight shead, determined to make no sign, but nevertheless, I had a slimpse of the standing at her horse's head, or an instant, I felt certain her eyes were resting on me. Then Raymond spoke to her, touching her sleeve familiarly with his hand to attract attention, and she smiled up into his face, as if in answer to some witty remark. This was the hast glimpse I had as we clattered on down the street.

At the courthouse stops the sergent turned me over to the officer of day, and I was marched into the bent. The old fail had evidently which they thrust me had at one time protected the county records, was perlaips aims feet, sauars, with one nartive window high up in the wall, and as iron door. The floor and walls were of stone, and the celling beyond reach. A soldier threw in a box, to be utilized as a seat together with a couple of blankets.

"There, Johnny," he said carelessly. "I guess you'll stay here till you're wanted. There'll be some grub along after awhile."

wanted. There'll be some grub along after awhile."

The iron door clanged behind him, and I heard the sharp click of a beavy rock, then regular steps passing back and forth across the atone floor, proof that a sentinel had been posted. There seemed little need of one as I sat down on the box and stared disconsolately about. The window afforded ample light but no hope of escape. The shelves on which had once reposed the records of Green Brigar county were of iron, as a safeguard sounty were of iron, as a safeguard sealing the records of Green Brigar county were of iron, as a safeguard sounty were of iron, as a safeguard sound which safe it is a safe if it is a boy I had played about this building, invading every nook and corner. But how could I hope to pry loose that protecting sheet of iron? Where could I discover a tool to give me the necessary leverage to dislodge those bolts? Could one of those supports be unscrewed or twisted off! If so, if might prove strong enough for the purpose. I stepped hastily across, and tested two off them with my hands, but found both these firm and immovable. I dare not exercise much force in fear the noise might be overheard, and besides it was time the jailer brought me in some food. So I went back to my seat on the box, and waited, my eyes on the iron, and my mind eagerly working on some plan which seemed feasible. I had a half dozen keys in my pocket, and a broken cartridges shell in my beit—nothing else available. The scarchers had stripped me clean. A careful survey of the floor revealed only a twisted fail, but there was something caught in the iron bars of the window; from where I sat it looked like the half of a broken horseshoe. I got up to see, but quickly sat down again—there was someone at the door.

It opened, and a soldier stood astle while two men entered. One was Fox.

down again—there was someone at the door.

It opened, and a soldier stood aside while two men entered. One was Fox, the other a heavy-set, gray mustached officer, in the uniform of a colonel of infantry. The captain greeted me gravely, and extended his hand.

"I would far rather meet you as I did before," he said, "but war gives us no choice."

"I took my chances and have no complaint," I answered heartily, for I liked the man. "I presume there is no doubt as to my fate?"

"I fear not, but the matter is not in my hands, for which I am grateful This is Colonel Pickney, in command."

In a Command. The command."

I bowed, and our eyes met. The tage contronting me was strong and reside, its expression that of regret.

"A very young man, Captain Fox," he said to his companion, "which fact adds to the unpleasantness of such duty. Your name is Wyatt?"

"You claim connection with the Confederate service—an officer?"

"You claim connection with the Confederate service—an officer?"
"A sergeant of artillery, sir."
He cleared his throat impressively.
"You have the appearance of an intelligent man, Sergeant Wyatt, and must realize the seriousness of your position. I am sure I need not dwell upon the fate which befails a spy when captured by the enemy. In your case there seems to be no defense possible—you wear Federal uniform; were within our lines, and papers have been found on you of a most incriminating character. It is my understanding you make no dealal."
"None, whatever, sir; it would be

There is always a way in which merey can be extended, he went on earnessty. "Doubtless you possess information which would be of the utmost value to us. I shall gladly use my influence on your behalf if the circumstances warrant."

I glanced saide at Fox, and caught the look of appeal in his face; then back into the expectant eyes of the coloned.

"You have authority to make me this proposition?" I asked quietly, "I am in command of this camp, and pledge you my influence with General Ramsay."

pledge you my influence with General Ramsay."

I stood motionless a moment, endeavoring to straighten the matter out in my mind. When I spoke it was as briefly as possible.

"I can only thank you. Colonel Pickney, and respectfully decline. I will not answer your questions, sir."
Fox gripped my arm, and as I glanced at him. I was surprised to see a mist of tears in his eyes.

"Wyatt." he exclaimed, making no pretense at calmness. "do not be hasty in your decision. I would not counsely you to any act of dishonor, but surely some compromise is possible. I not only sak you to consider the situation from ours. I accompanied Colone Pickney in the hope I might have some influence." He hesitated an instant, as though doubtful of his words. some influence." He hesitated an in-stant, as though doubtful of his words. "Perhaps I should say, my boy, that another urged me to come." "Another?"

The door opened to the rap of his knuckles, and the two men passed out, neither one giancing back at me. The sentry asked a question, and I heard Pickney answer:

"Yes, set the food within, but let no one communicate with the prisoner except on my written order. I will have another sentry posted above."

A soldier entered, bearing a campration and a pannikin of water, and placed these on the box. He said nothing, and the colonel stood beside the door watching until I was left alone. I put the food on the floor untouched and sat down on the box. I wanted to live; I was young, ambitious, and—I loved that girl. I realised this truth clearly, and it became the one ceaseless incentive to effort. Her face arose before me, and I felt that her message was meant for my encouragement. She wanted me to live; wished me to know that she was not indifferent; trusted me to accomplish all that a man could. And I must act now, if at all.

It proved to be and fitted the sharp edge into a screwhead of a shelf bracket. The nafl afforded little purchase, and I tried three of the screws before finding one loose enough to turn. By this time my fingers were numb and bleeding, yet the final success set my heart throbbing with excillation.

The removal of the screw, which by chance was the lower cone, enabled me to insert the remnant of horseshoe beneath the bracket fron. Slowly, fearful of creating alarm, the improvised lever wrenched the bracket free, until L was enabled to get firm

The bracket seemed as solid as ever. Now I must wait for night. on it with my hands.

It was dreary waiting, for every unusual sound reaching me brought with it a throb of fear. That my fate was already practically settled I knew, but how long the delay might be remained a problem. To learn all I could I dragged the box to a position below the window, and standing on it, managed to gain a narrow glimpse without, the visua revealing a flap of dirty tent cloth and part of an army wagon backed up against the building, leaving barely enough space for the guard to pace back and forth the length of his beat. I could see his blue-clad legs, with the white stripe, cross and recross in front of me. I tested the strength of the iron grating with my hands, but the bars were frmly imbedded and immovable.

the bars were firmly imbedded and immovable.

The sun must have been well down in the west when Fox returbed. I had been expecting him, trusting to his friendly interest, and with a fleering hope that Norsea might commission him to bring me some further message. Yet the moment I looked into his face, shadowed by the fading light. I realized that he brought no encouraging news. My heart sank, but I kept a srulle on my tips.

FALLACY OF LONG STANDING

That Frost is Most Likely to Occur in the "Light of the Moon" is a Wrong Idea.

One of the most tenacious beliefs is that the weather is affected by the movement of the moon. It is generally considered that frost is more likely to occur in the "light of the moon" than at any other time. For this reason crops which the frost is likely to destroy are planted at such a time as to be certain to avoid a full moon.

this reason crops which the frost is likely to destroy are planted at such a time as to be certain to avoid a full moon.

The moon reflects sunlight to the earth and produces the tides. It has minor effects, such as changing the position of the earth and causing minute deflections of the magnetic needle; these last are, however, so small that they have only effect upon refined instruments of detection, and it has been proved conclusively these two have no relation to the change of weather. Regarding the two former effects named, it is quite easy to understand that reflected sunlight from the moon cannot affect the weather. In the first place, more light is received from the sun in thirty minutes than from the moon in one year, and, moreover, the greatest reflection is at full moon; from a logical point of view then it should be warmer tinstead of colder at full moon. This should disprove any argument that the reflected light makes it colder at full moon.

Kitchener's Good Humor.

Kitchener's Good Humor.

Lord Kitchener is so much regarded as a man without a smile, writes a correspondent, that an ancedate illustrating his human quality may be to the point. One of my officers has a rich father who wrote directly to "K, of K." offering to settle 2250 apiece on each of his two sons if the war minister would give them commissions. "Settle the money on your daughters instead," came the reply; "if your sors are any good I shall be glad to take them for nothing." Sound common sense this, as well as humor touched with irony.—London Chronicle.

Officer's Wife a Car Conductor.
At a meeting of the Portamouth town council recently it was stated that two women, one a colonel's daughter and the other a captain's wife, were working as conductors on the municipal street cars. Their object is to release two eligible men for war service, and they devote their pay to charity. Portsmouth has now 30 woman conductors and 25 postwomes.

What the Woods Teach.

A week in the woods, with your car close to Mother Nature's heart and your eyes finding vistas up into the blue eternal mystery, may teach you that your little selfash strivings, your puny vanities, your petty harteds and jealousies, that make up so large a part of your daily living and your nightly worrying, are of no more worth to the world or you than are the nameless little gnats that so foolishly signag in the gloom.

How it Was.

"As you are aware, your honor, we who have not yet donned our winter anderwear were pinched by the cold until we were ahriveled like persainons. This cheery soul sidded up to me and began to burble about the exhilarating delights of the cold bath on mornings like these. I smote him. That is all."

"Ab, yes!" renited him.

IN THE GARDEN

Do not make the mistake of planting magnoliss in the autumn. Where they thrive there is nothing more showy than the Chinese varieties. The flowers appear about the same time as the crocuses and tulips in the spring. The spring is a better time for planting. Do not permit any weeds to go to seed. Better not allow the seed pods to form. Go carefully over the garden these fall days and clear out every weed. Will save lots of trouble next season.

Candy Habit a Great Evil to the American Children.

was declared to

Candy was declared to be "as great an evil to the child as liquor is to the adult" in a paper by Dr. Horace L. Howe, of Boston, read before the Pansma-Pacific Dental Congress at San Francisco, recently.

"The candy habit is an important cause toward undermining the heatth of the American child," his paper said. "In front of almost every schoolhouse in the country there can be found a small candy store, which sale cheaps weets to children. In Easton no saloons can be opened with a certain number of vards of schools. The sange law might be applied to the selling of candy, as candy is as great an evil to children as liquor is to the adult.

"A broken down set of teeth in children is a serious measer to them and a great handicap to their future careers.

SPECIAL TAX LEVIES FOR BETTER ROADS

Ohio Good Roads Federation Conducting Campaigns in the Counties of the State to Interest Voters.

Columbus, O.—Voters in many counties will have put up to them on election day the question of approving special tax levies for better roads. The issue in many of the counties is engaging quite as much interest, or even more, as the election of local officers and the four constitutional proposals that are to be voted upon Nov. 2.

posals that are to be voted upon Nov. 2.

The general direction of the campaigns in the various counties is, by request of the local highway enthusiasts, in charge of the Ohio Good Roads Pederation, whose offices are as busy as those of state associations and organizations interested in the referendums now pending. Into the counties in which special road levies are awaiting the approval of the voters the federation is sending speakers and literature. More than 30,000 pieces of literature will go out in the next few days, all of it loaded with the gospel of good roads.

The enthusiasm in some of the counties is shown by the situation in Washington county, where 50 meetings ties is shown by the situation in Wash-ington county, where 50 meetings have been arranged as a whirlwind finish to the campaign.

The tendency is to adopt a "pay-as-you-go" policy and have special tax levies rather than bond issues. In townships in Geaugua county bonds are being voted upon, but the special levy is in greatest favor.

Raifroad Wreckers' Trial.

New York City.—Ex-President Mellen Friday testified as to what he and other New Haven interests did over 29 years ago to crush rivals—a process which later attained such "success" as to ruin not only competitors but the octopus itself. How the New Haven lockeyed its rival, the New York & New England, out of New Haven traffic and then, when the road was pounded into bankruptcy, secretly acquired control of the stock, was partly uncovered.

Chicago, III.—Would you prevent future war? Then limit the size of your faimly. Cut down the supply of "fodder for cannon." Briefly stated, this is the war preventative prescribed by Dr. Anna Blount, president of the Chicago Eugenic society, in an address before the Society of Anthropology in Corinthian hall, Masonie temple.

That war is primarily caused by pressure of population, forcing nations over boundaries and into conquests for more land to support its hungry hordes and to establish, "a new place in the sun," Dr. Blount amply demonstrated by citations from history, past and present.

CINCINNATI TRADE EXPANSION CLUB'S ENGINE

Cincinnati, O.—(Special)—The carried about the country on trade expansion. Club of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce recently purchased and now has on exhibition at the Ohlo Mechanics' Institute, at Cincinnati, one of the famous Bourden-Decauvily, engines used by the French company in their lifetated attempt at building the Panama canal, later by the United States government in completing the work. The engine was purchased for the purpose of creating sentent for an increased trade through the Panama canal. The engine will be placed at the Cincinnati Zoological Gardens in the summer months, except at such times as it is engine to any foreign government engaged in war.

Would Outnumber Those Sent to War From Other Sections is Claim.

Columbus, O.—Officials in the adju-tant general's department cited figures to indicate that in case of war Ohlo would supply a much larger proportion of volunteers and com-manding officers, compared with total mile population, than most other states.

meaning oncers, compares with total mile population, than most other states.

They pointed out that during the Civil War Ohio contributed $40,000 of the 2,685,900 soldiers in the Northern armies, while Massachusetts, the source and center of the abolition movement, furnished 146,000. In the Spanish-American War Ohio gave 15,000 of the $60,000 volunteers furnished by all states.

One-third of all males in the state more than 21 years old, or 22,951, volunteered for the War of 1812. This was 15 per cent of all soldiers engaged in the war. Out of the 56,926 soldiers in the Mexican War, 5,500 volunteers came from Ohio. Brigadier General Thomas A. Hamer, of Brown county, probably was the most noted volunteer officer from Ohio during the Mexican War. Other volunteer officers from Ohio in that war were Colonel George W. Morcook. The so-called "Fighting McCooks," who served in the Civil War, contained 15 members from we families of Carroll county. Noted Civil War generals who were natives of Ohio were U. S. Grant, W. T. Newsboys Not Employes.

Newsboys are in business for themselves and are not employes of newspaper publishing companies, according to a ruling of Judge Rogers, of the common pleas court, here in non-suiting a case brought by Mrs. Sadie Deppeler against the State Industrial Commission for the death of her husband, John Deppeler, a bildn here dealer. The Industrial Commission had refused compensation on the ground that Deppeler was not an employe. The court held further that no evidence had been introduced that Deppeler was injured when in the course of his employment or that he died as the result of an accident.

History-Making Decision.

In a history-making decision, the Ohlo Supreme Court ousted the Ohlo Northern Traction & Light company from Stark county. The question involved was whether perpetual franchises are constitutional in Ohlo. The company claimed a perpetual franchise in Stark county, and refused to make rate changes demanded by the ounty. In ousting the company, the supreme court holds there can be no such thing as a perpetual franchise in Ohlo. It is expected the effect of the decision will be to force the company to meet the county's demands.

WARNED TO CLEAN PIPES.

Bert B. Buckley, state fire mar-shal, issued a bulletin urging per-sons to clean stove pipes before winter sets in. Excerpts from the bulletin follow:

"To jar a piece of pipe loosens the soot well enough, but its inner surface should be scraped to remove scales of rust. The seam along each pipe should be inspected to determine if it is spark tight. "A stove pipe should not stand within less than three feet of the unprotected woodwork. London, Engiand—Serbian troops have recaptured Veles, south of Uskup on the Saloniki-Nish railway, according to an official dispatch received in Athens Tuesday night. Other Athens dispatches state that it is semi-officially reported that the Bulgarians, advancing from Egri Palanka and Uskup, have occupied Prizrend, in the heart of Serbia, half way to the Montenegrin frontier.

Pollowing the reported promise of the entente to Serbia that aid will reach the beleagured Serbian army within five days, a gathering of troops from all directions is reported. British, French and Russians are preparing to move to the aid of the Serbians, while Austrians, Germans and Turks are getting rapidly underway in an effort to head off the entente forces which seek to strike at the Bulgarians.

First, let us see how to make the unique reels shown in Fig. 1. With this strapped to your right leg, your hands are free to handle the line. The line can be unwound by pulling it as you pay it out, and resied up by dropping upon the left knee in the position assumed by the boy showy in Fig. 1.

Fig. 2 shows the completed reel, and Fig. 3 the construction. A large ribbon spool is necessary bot, the winding drum of the reel (A, Figs. 2 and 3).

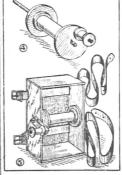

The diameter of the spool flanges must be increased by adding pieces of about twice their diameter (B). Bore a hole through the exact center of pieces B, of the same size as the spool hole. The frame in which this winding drum is mounted, consists of two end blocks C nailed to a piece D Cut D a trifle longer than the winding drum, and blocks C just large enough to accommodate the axie for the winding drum. Bore a hole a trifle larger than the spool hole through blocks C for the axie, being careful to get the hole in one exactly opposite that in the other. Cut the axie enough longer than the winding drum to project beyond blocks C, one-half inch beyond one, and two inches beyond the other. The crank is made of the strip E, with a hole bored near one end for the axie, and the spool F pivoted near the other end by means of the nail G (Fig. 3). Nail the winding drum and the crank to the long end of the axie.

The upright stick upon which the reel is mounted H, Fig. 2) should be of the right length to reach from the instep of your foot to your knee (Fig. 1). Nail block D to H (Fig. 2), and then tack three straps to H—loop I to pass around the foot, and straps J and K to buckle around the leg.

The simple hand reel in Fig. 4 has a drum like that in Fig. 3. Make the axie long enough to provide a handle to hold the reel by This axie must fit loosely so the drum will turn freely and nails must be driven through it to keep the drum from slipping. A spool pivoted with a nail to one sud of the drum forms a crank.

Fig. 5 shows a body reel to strap about the waist. The winding drum and the crank for tursing it are made the same as those for the lag reel. A cigar-box is used for the mounting, to strapilly the construction. Qut two shows in each side of the box through which to size nater of selection.

FUN FOR HALLOWE'EN.

A Hallowe'en party, if it be ever so small an affair, requires previous preparation to make it a success. Either you or your chum, dressed as a ghost, should meet the guests at the door, at the appointed hour. In the room where the wraps are to be left, it is well to have another ghost standing on guard. This may be a dummy ghost made as shown in Pigs. 1, 2 and 3. Bind the handle of a broom to a chair back with cord, turning the broom portion up, as shown in Pig. 2. Pasten a white faise-face to the side of the broom for the ghost's face.

Drape a sheet around the chair and close up to the head, fastening it at the top to the straw of the broom. Then hang a pillow-case. or other for arm sleeves (Fig. 1). Make the hood out of a pillow-case, folding it into the form shown in Fig. 3, with a peak at the top and the front turned peak at the top and the front turned up.

The party would not be complete without some of the old-fashioned games, such as bobbing for apples placed in a dish-pan filled with water, and a doughnute-ating contest in which doughnutes, suspended on strings from the tops of downways, are eaten while both hands are bound behind. Be sure to arrange for these.

Then there is ghost-story telling. You must not overlook that Another plan is to have a witch tell stories. A witch's caldron suspended from a tripod as shown in Fig. 4 should be placed in the center of the story-telling room before the guests are allowdo enter. A large black kettle is beat for the caldron, but, if you cannot get one, take a dissi-paa, tie a rope around its outside just below the rim (Fig. 5), and to this rope attach three ropes at equal distances apart by which to suspend the paa.

The room should be lighted only by a few rays of light allowed to enter from the adjoining room. Have the guests seat the-mselves upon the floor, forming a circle around the caldron.
The witch should mumble her words when telling her story so that no one may distinguish more than a few words now and then. And as she talks she should stir the contrast of her caldron with a large spoon. The condens she had the manust, having their kernels removed and replaced with slips of paper and the shells glued fast together again. On the pieces of pa-per should be written directions whereby each guest may find a card forcetelling her fortune. When the witch finishes her story, the should pass the nuts around. Then the lights should be turned on, the suits opened and the merry were begun for the hid-ing places of the fortune eards.

Continued Agitation and Higher Taxes

Prohibition is an issue again this year only because Professional Agitators forced the proposed amendment on the ballot.

The voters thought they settled the liquor question in 1912 when they put into the Constitution by 85,000 majority the best liquor license provision ever written into law. The Prohibition amendment would repeal that successful provision of the Constitution.

In 1913 the Prohibition Agitators got the question before the people through the Anti-Shipping Bill. When the voters defeated that by 95,000 majority they were confident they had settled the question.

In 1914 the Agitators put state-wide prohibition on the ballot and that was defeated by 85,000 majority. The voters were sure then that the matter was settled for all time.

But the Prohibition Agitators have forced the question on the ballot again this year. Four votes in four years on the same general issue and majorities against the Agi-

Prohibition agitation pays the professional Agitator well and costs the taxpayer much.

Taxes Always

Taxes have increased in Ohio in the last ten years $36,000,000.

On the Increase Ohio in that time has been without Prohibition. Every taxpayer wants to know what would be the increase in taxes if Prohibition were to carry. This question does not disturb the Prohibition Agitator who does not help pay the bill.

Here Is the Annual Prohibition Tax Bill:

$15,000,000 now paid the state by the Vote Ohio Liquor Industry would have to be made | No up by the general taxpayer. Thirty per cent of all general taxes, it is estimated, is paid by the Farmer. Hence the Farmers' share of the deficit would be $4,500,000.

$17,000,000 now paid to the Federal Government by the Ohio Liquor Industry would be lost by Prohibition in Ohio. That loss Ohio taxpayers, with other taxpayers in the nation, would have to make up. Instead of taking revenue away from Uncle Sam, right now every patriotic citizen is trying to work out a plan to help secure additional federal revenue.

To Pay Necessary Taxes Is Bad Enough

To pay unnecessary taxes is worse. To at the same time increase taxes and cut down the income from which taxes are to be paid is worst of all. Industries allied with the established liquor business derive much income from it. Farmers alone receive from that industry $8,576,872 for agricultural products used in the making of beer and liquors in Ohio during a single year. Decreased governmental revenue, decreased individual income and Higher Taxes is the Prohibition program.

Vote "NO" on Prohibition November 2 and help make the majority so decisive that paid Professional Agitators will emircrate to other States.
