Ducks Thick Over The Lake

The past few days have seen one of the greatest flights of canva-back ducks over the lake near Cedar Point in the past thirty years, so marine men and hunters report. The ducks, seemingly, came from the north and continued their flights south and hunters got few shots at them. It is said that many of the ducks were accidentally caught in the nets of fishermen during the recent big flight. Ducks diving into the lake put their heads through the mesh of the nets and were securely trapped.—Sandusky Register.

Coughs and Colds are Dangerous.

Few of us realize the danger of coughs and colds We consider them coughs and colds We consider them common and harmless ailments. However statistics tell us every third person dies of a lung ailment. Dangerous bronchial and lung diseases follow a neglected cold. As your body struggles against cold germs, no better aid can be had than Dr. King's New Discovery. Christmas Again.

Christmas again, with its peace and good will and wonder! How our friends multiply and increase in and good will and wonder: How our friends multiply and increase in value as the day of days draws near! How the touch of human hands thrills us and the look in numan eyes. To our surprise we are not ashamed to be good, to be kind, to be loving For this little space out of the long, selfish year, we are glad to be ourselves. We give freely of our love; selves, We give freely of our love; we offer our labor without price and we speak kindly words that are rare than rubies. Once more we take courage and let our hearts have their way, and life laughs and is glad. When Christmas comes the world suddenly grows better, shlees, lovely and heaven nearer—and all because a little Boy was born in Bethlehem, Perhaps—who knows—we might carry with us throughout the year the joy of this Christmas living.—Edwin Osgood Grover.

Dr. Frank H. Seeley, son of Dr. and Mrs. T. S. Seeley, of this city, who has been practicing his profession of dentitry in the city of Colorne, Germany, for several years, is again, incarcerated in a military prison in Germany, there to remain a prisoner until the war is over, unless he is liberated through the efforts of the United States government, of which he is a subject.

As a matter of fact, Dr. Seeley has been a military prisoner in Cologne for several months. The government has been importuned to take up the case and has already done something along the line of seeking his liberation.

Dr. Seeley's sympathies are so strongly pro-German that his relatives and friends in this country were at a loss to understand his incarceration, until the facts gradually came to light.

Soon after the breaking out of the war Dr. Seeley went to England and sessisted in returning to Germany, a number of students who were studying in England at the time.

The British government, on the ground that as a neutral country lis subjects should conduct themselves in similar manner. Lending an investigation of the case Dr. Seeley was placed in prison in Golomes, and the doctor was finally released.

While in prison, his partner, a native of Germany looted the office collected all the bills possible and then callisted in the German army as a nurse.

The second arrest of Dr. Seeley was caused by the jealousy and state his history of the partner, it has been since learned, has fallen in the war.

I stepped across the platform, hold ing her arm.

"Gold, the lady will watch the prisoner; you join the others at the door."

He moved off, evidently glad enough to be relieved, and i stood erect where I could gaze out through the nearby window into the moonlight night without. I had a moment in which to think, to gather my scattered wits together, to face the situation. Behind me the tramp of approaching horsemen sounded along the pike, the gruff tone of an occasional voice, the clang of accourtements. Then this noise cased, as the head of the cavalry column came up to where Cowan and his men waited. I could barely make out the murmur of voices in explanation, signified by the sound of approaching which, signifying the slower advance of the guarded wagons. I heard no orders given, yet the moonlight revealed more numerous figures in the line stretching across the open space. "Thar's edges of the man next the window. "Only to guess at it—a couple of hundred altogether. I should say—enough to make it interesting."
I leaned forward, attracted by the sight of two figures standing together in the full gleam of the moon—Cowan and Raymond. So they were to command the rear attack, while Fox and the infantryman remained out in front "Have you counted the fellows out there?" I asked.

"Bout fifty, near as I kin make out; they're movin' 'round some, an' the light is damned bad."
"Then the main body is still in front, and that is where the fight will likely begin. Pass the word no firing until you get the order."
I stepped back, whispering a word to Noreen as I passed, and took place beside the pulpit, where I could see and hear something of what was about to transpire.

We came to the platform, and felt our way up the steps. It was darker here, yet my eyes, accustomed to the gloom, caught glimpse of crouching figures beyond the pulpit. Outside, sounding some distance away, Kelly's sharp, penetrating voice shouted an brder, accompanied by an oath. One of the kneeling figures rose slowly until his eyes were even with the window sill.

"Men." I said quietly, barely loud enough to reach their ears. "I am a sergeant in the Stanton horse artillery. Your lieutenant has just assigned me to take command at this end of the church. How many are there of you?"

"Ton, sir," answered the one nearest, sir, answered the one seat, after a pause, turning his head slightly. "Three at each window, and four at the door."

"You have a prisoner, I understand." He gave a muffied sound, as though stilling an incipient laugh.

"Nutthir 'ter worry 'bout; he's lyin over thar in the corner with Jack Gold aguardin' of him. I reckon the cuss likes prayin' better ner fightin any day of ther week."

"All right." I dropped my voice to a whisper. "Norem, it will give us an extra fighting man if you will keep an eye on Nichols, and we'll need have a mile and the corner with Jack Gold aguardin' of him. I reckon the cuss likes prayin' better ner fightin any day of ther week."

"All right." I dropped my voice to a whisper. "Norem, it will give us an extra fighting man if you will keep an eye on Nichols, and we'll need have a man and any of her week."

"You me me?"
"Not the faintest shadow. I—I wanted to thank you for the choice you made."
"You mean my coming with you? You are gial I did?"
"Yes, very glad," I said earnestly, "for you are just as safe here, and—and I would rather have you near me. This may prove a desperate struggle; we are terribly outnumbered—and—and, well, you know, you—you trusted yourself to me—you are under my protection."

There was no answer; perhaps i had said too much. Suddenly a volley roared out, startling in the stillness—a shout of command—the sharp bark of carbines—then a grim, threatening yelp of voices. One leap brought me to the window, with gun barrel thrust forward across the sill. The two black shadows were breaking up in headlong rush toward the door at the south corner. I saw figures, not faces, a gleaming of poised weapons, a huddle of leaping bodies.
"Fire!" I roared. my voice rising above the hideous din. "Give it to them!" and pulled trigger.

I have no clear knowledge of what followed—it was all so quickly over with; a mere mad moment crowded with vague gilmpsen, vanishing and changing in the lurid light of the guns. The whole interior of the church blazed and echoed, the smoke choking is with its fumes, the noise stunning our cars. I heard the chug of bullets fattening against the logs, smothered eaths, the crash of an overturned bench, a scream as shrill as a woman's, that made my heart leap, and Harwood's voice calling out the same word again and again. But although lheard all this, I hardly knew it, my whole thought riveted on those black figures in front of me—those reckless devils we had to kill or drive back.

And we did it! From every window, from every hastily smashed panebade the door, we poured our fre—the carbines spitting into the dark, their sharp barking incessant. from the article:
"I have known stenographers who felt that it was beneath their dignity

A JAPANESE GARDEN.

A JAPANESE GARDEN.

Do you own a Japanese garden? If not, you should get one right waw, because it is the intest fad to have one. First of all, you will need a shallow baking pan in which to plant the garden. This may be round or square. For soil you must have sand, and you must also have some coarse pebbles or pieces of broken stone. This can be had for the asking some place where a building is in course of construction. Half a panful of sand and several ahandfuls of pebbles will be enough, in addition, you must buy some bird seed or Japanese grass seed to plant in the soil. The rest of the garden material can be picked up at home. There are any number of arrangements for the garden that can be worked out, and you can replant your garden from time to time to make it different. Fig I shows a good plan to follow for your first one. Pile up the sand around the sides of the pan, forming hills and hollows, and leave an 'tregular-shaped space in the center, and extending over to one side of the pan, for a pond. Make a shore line of pebbles around the pond, and scat-ter other pebbles here and there over the sand.

One of the hills must be selected as a site for a little Japanese house. This house may be made of cardboard. Fig. 2 shows patterns for the walls. The dotted lines indicate where the pieces are to be folded. The strips outside of the dotted lines are to be turned in and pasted to adjoining surfaces, in fastening the walls. foundation and roof together. Fasten the walls upon a cardboard foundation (Fig. 1), and glue another piece to their tops for the roof.

A high arched bridge must be built over a narrow portion of the pond, as shown in Fig. 1, Make this of a piece of a peach-basket handle (Fig. 3), with a cardboard railing (Fig. 4) tacked to each edge. The arch of the

ONLY A ROSE

"You do like my gown then?" Nancy questioned. She reached out and extracted a collitary pink rose that had lent its beauty to his writing table. 'It think I need this in my hafr,' she said and tucked the flower among the riot of golden curie. After his smile of approval she skipped off. It was quite time for the first guest to arrive for her coming-out party.

Kennard watched her go and sighed a trille wearily. He was old beyond his thirty-live years in that he had, at the age of twenty-one, gone through a frightful train wreck which left him mentally aged and physically lame. At twenty-five, his closest friend-older by many years than Kennard, had died, leaving a slim, delicate girl orphaned and oddy alone in the world. Kennard had adopted Nancy Vale because Vale heal left, her to him.

The doorbell rang many times and men and women flocked into the great Kennard drawing-room where Nancy, looking not more than fitnen in her simple gray frock, welcomed her guests. Often her big eyes glanced swiftly at the stairs leading from the library, but each time they returned to smiles and laughter with a hint of wistfulness growing in their clear depths. "Nunky" was so absorbed in his story as to forget that he had promised to come in and join her party.

It was not until silence reigned again in the great house and a small pink rose drooped wearly in Nancy's curis that she tiptoed softly to the library door. The quite of that room told her that the story was finished and that "Nunky" was smoking the restful cigarette that always followed the completion of a good day's work. "May I come in!" she questioned, already over the threshindd. Kennard opened wide his eyes. "I just wanted to easy good night," she said softly, and stroked back the lock of snowwhite hair that lay across Kennard's broad forehead. "You give more like your father every day," he said in quick appreciation of her instinctive understanding. "He was the most unselfah and considerate man that ever walked the earth. I'm sorry, kiddle, that your old uncle forgot the comingout party. I could only have limped about trying vainly to banish my here and his woes from my mind. I will get you another string of those beads."

She looked anxiously at him. "You late now."

"Only till the cigarette puffs out," he told her and watched her skip off and up to her room.
Kennard sat for a few moments wearly looking at the door through which his ward had gone Gradually his eyes focused themselves on a faded pink flower that lay just within the library door. It was the rose Nancy had worn in her hair.

"Sat of the same of the same of the sate of rose and picked it up and returned to his deak with it. He sat gazing softly, tenderly, at it and, a

"God!" he cried in terror at his own few minutes later his head went forrard on his arms and the rose was senin against his line.

A few minutes later his head went forward on his arms and the rose was again against his lips.

Nancy, creeping softly down the stairs, tried to stiffs the beating of her heart when she glanced swiftly at the floor just within the library door. There was no rose lying there. She stood for a moment, her great eyes devouring Kennard's bent shoulders and bowed head. The very softest saits secaped her and Kennard raised list eyes slowly, believing a splendid vision had appeared to him. Surely the slim little creature in the docrews was not Nancy. There was golden hist piled high and bound by the matchies pink pearis and a white throat rose like the stem of a lity from a low-cut bolloe. The arms were bare and gleaming white.

a low-cut bodies. The arms were bare and glesuming white.

"This is the new gown aunity bought for me," she explained swiftly, her words hysterically broken. She had seen the crushed rose under Kennard's hand. Her eyes were like stars and her body was trambling with elation. It was unbelievable, this wonderful thing that had happened. Paul Kennard loved her!

He brushed his eyes dazedly. He dared scarcely to look at Nancy so great was his longing for her. Her widening the work of the start of t

HOW TO GROW PRIMROSES

By BESSIE L. PUTNAM.

The best way to propagate pignroses is from seeds, which should be sown in May or June, or as soon as the soil becomes thoroughly warm.

The seeds are quite small, but are easily started by sowing in a box or a bed. The soil must be sifted fine and of a moldy consistency which will not bake or become hard. Press the surface of the soil smooth and level, sow the seed evenly and thinly, and cover lightly. It is a mistake to sow deeply.

to the sash.

Two of three inches of coal ashes should be placed in the bottom, on which to set the pots. Ventilate when the weather will allow and cover with straw or old carpet to keep out the frost in severe weather.

Water 'the plants thoroughly when potted and then give water very sparingly to all plants in the plt during the winter.

old hours will prevail.

County Surveyor Merkel is planning to start in on the road work early and is making every effort to get as much state aid for Richland county roads as possible. He says the county is entitled to at least $17,000 for intercounty highways. The amount of money the state has for intercounty roads is divided by 88. This gives each county $17,000 this vear. Should some of the counties not make application for this money, the amount is divided by a smaller number, and the counties which do make application get more money.

County Auditor J. N. Case has received a communication from R. W. Archer, state treasurer, in which he asks for a report of all banks in Rielland county. He wants to ascertain whether they are national, state or private banks, and the city and village in which they are located. He wants this information for the purpose of distribution of the state funds and making state depositories. It appears, from the letter, that the state treasurer anticipates distributing more liberally than heretofore the state funds among the smaller financial institutions over the state.

"Fame, with her scorching finger, touches lightly the forehead of Youth—then filts away, intangible and elusive. Sometimes—this is rare, Youth comes up with Fame and clasps her jealously to him. But in every case, he who seeks Fame, he who would inhale the purer air of Art, must needs shake from his shoulders the ties that bind him to the Earth. Sometimes he is alonythen it doesn't matter. Sometimes he has friends, on whom it is cruel; and sometimes there is a wife, on whom it is worse than death. But here is the tale: A young singer, aglow with the fervor of inspiration, eager for the social intercourse his art may open the way to, gets married. He marries a woman whose conception of ideal happiness is simple domesticity. Opportunity comes, may be the sometimes of the story of the social intercourse his properties of the social intercourse his properties. WILLIS SPEAKS BEFORE BUILDERS' EXCHANGE

Expressed Himself as Strongly in Favor of Additional Defenses by Development of the National Guard

Cleveland, O'— Governor Willis came to the city Monday and delivered an address before the Builders' Exchange. In his talk the governor emphasized the importance of national defense, the development of a merchant marine and the attainment of a definite fiscal policy which would secure to Americana the benefits of their industries.

In the same position as "babes in the woods" among animals eager to devour.

"The world has ceased to be provincial anywhere. By quick leaps it is being weided into an intimate relationship, and we must see to it that we are not obliterated in the race for supremacy, nor even for equality of power, for very existence itself."

The governor expressed his view that the development of the National Guard is much more practicable and far less expensive than any attempt to develop a third form of defense, the so-called "continental" army, advocated by the secretary of war. He described the disappearance of American shipping from the seas as "both graphic and tragic."

The governor voiced his opposition to the government ship-owning policy, pointing out its dangers in time of international complications and expressing the view that anyway this is a business that should be developed by individuals with governmental assistance until it can get to the place where competition with the world is possible.

"A few days ago the most distin-

"A few days ago the most distringuished exponent of the present fiscal policy declared within the borders of our state that he would like the thrilling pride of realling that there was nobody in America who was afraid to match wits with the world.

"I differ with the gentleman on the question involved. This is a conflict of economic conditions, not of wits. Very different is the nation's industrial situation today. The man who works for nine cents a day and the American who receives from $2.50 to $3 per day must necessarily live under very different conditions. The problem facing this country today is cheap wag competition and what we shall do with it. Are we to permit our jaboring men to have similar conditions of life to those existing abroad, or are we to maintain the standards we have?"

in small detachments have crossed the Greek frontier in pursuit of the Franco-British forces withdrawing on Saloniki. This pages Pranco-Britlah forces withdrawing on Saloniki. This news comes from Paris and Rome dispatches. A Saloniki dispatch, by way of Athens, says a small Bulgarian force has advanced five miles beyond the Greek frontier. According to another Athens dispatch the allies have brought their retreat to a half just south of the Serbhan line, where they were abelied by Bulgarian batteries. Some of the shells fell in Greek territory. A lively lattle is in progress, according to this report.

Caused Surprise in London.
These various reports caused surprise in London as it had been understood that the Bulgarians had decided definitely not to provoke the Greeks by carrying the fighting across the frontier and that this task would be left to the Austro-Germans.

demintely not to provoke the Greeks by carrying the fighting across the frontier affilt that this task would be left to the Austro-Germans.

In all probability the next big battle will be fought in Greece in the opinion of military experts. This in spite of the efforts of King Constantine and his cabinet to keep Greece out of the war. The diplomatic situation of Greece has been further complicated by the kaiser's request for information as to whether the Athens cabinet views the use of Greek territory by the troops of the entente as a breach of neutrality. It is believed this inquiry fadicates plans for participation by German troops in the pursuit of the French and British.

Bulgars Only Menace.
Germany, however, has but small numbers of troops in lower Serbia and it is believed that the allies have only to consider the Bulgarians as an immediate menace on this front.

The Austrian forces are occupied with the detention of the Montenegrins and Serbians in Montenegrins and Serbians in Montenegrins.

C.—Further light was thrown upon the scope of the ad-ministration's defense plans Tuesday when the war department's estimates for coast defenses in the coming year were submitted to the military com-mittees of congress in the form of a preliminary draft of the fortifications appropriation bill, carrying a total of $22,305,123, for all purposes, including maintenance and increase of perma-nent works in Hawaii and the Philip-pines.

Settlement Will Be Satisfactory.
Washington, D. C.—The Ancona controversy will be settled by Austria to the sutisfaction of the United States, according to officials handling the case here. Germany Accedes to Demands of the United States for Removal of Men Who Were Too Zealous.

The recall of the two men was demanded by the United States following, connection of their name with munitions plots and other attempts to violate United States neutrality.

It was reported in New York on Wednesday that the two men will sail for Germany next Tuesday.

So far as is known Germany has not asked the United States to obtain safe conduct for them through the allies' lines. It is presumed, however, that this will now be done.

Cancellation of the exeguatur of Alexander von Nuber, Austrian consul general in New York city, and a demand that he leave the country of acc criminal charges will be the answer of the United States to the domand of the Austrian charge here that the department of justice withdraw its charge that he plotted to destroy American ammunition plants.

It is understood on high official authority that this action would have been taken before except that President Wilson did not desire to start any additional controversy with Austrian Hungary until the Ancons demand had been considered at Vienns. It is expected that not only will Yon Nuber's exequatur be canceled, but that similar action will be taken in the cases of at least three additional Austrian consular agents.

still strongly for the Progressive faction and that the deliberations of the convention would be influenced by that sentiment.

One Week Sefore Democrats.
Some of the committeemen who bear the scars of the conflict of 1912—men like Crane, Barnes and Smootwere expected to show their resentiment by refusing to return to so hostile a field. Until late Monday night this argument, plus the appeal for aid to carry Missouri, seemed certain to result in a St. Louis victory. But the resolution successfully urged by Committeeman Ferkins of Washington Tuesday morning setting the convention date one week ahead of that of the Democrats ended St. Louis chances. It was evident that the Republicans could not finish their work and get away from that city in season for the Democratic gathering.

"The committee is so desirous of doing all that it can to heal the breach wight the Republicans who left in 1912 that it has sent the convention to the rey center of progressivelsm in order that there may be no charge of four play," said one committeeman.

"We think the danger of another Roosevet outbreak so trivial that we are perfectly willing to go right into his 1912 citated with our convention." Side another.

Conciliation or Defiancs.

Either for conciliation or in confident deflance the Republicans have seen fit to overlook Chicago's hostility in the one most generally seumided in the meeting places, though there are not wanting some who insist that the Progressire movement is so thoroughly shattered that no consideration whatever seed be given to il.

Of the confidence of the Republicans who have been here this week there can be no doubt. The meeting has manifested the enthusiasm of a party convinced of coming victory. While there has been more discussion of policies. That every possible effort will be made to force the safet of the result of the result of the root as the dominant is always amade apparent by the friends of every candidate.

WILSON WEDDING A FAMILY AFFAIR

Ceremony at Galt Home Marked by Simplicity.

DETAILS ARE KEPT SECRET

Only Relatives of President and His Bride Are Present—Start on Honey-moon Trip to South—Try to Avoid Crowds.

Washington, Dec. 18.—In the presence of reintives only, President Wilson and Mrs. Edith Bolling Galt were quietly and simply wedded this evaning in the pariors of the bride's unpretentious home at 1305 Twentieth street. There was no fuss and feathers, and official and social circles must wait for tomorrow's newspapers before they know how it all came about. Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo was the jone official present and he was there simply as Mr. Wilson's soci-hislaw.

Miss Bertha Bolling of this city atl her sister, the bride, and a orchestra from the Marine band hed the nuptial music. The bride a dark traveling costume and and a desired the nupidal maste. The bride were a dark traveling costume and carried a huge bouquet of orchida. She met the bridegroom at the foot of the broad statuway in her home and together they went slowly to the altar of flowers erected at the east end of the pariors. The president placed on her third left-hand finger a plain gold circlet engraved with her initials and his own. The ceremony was the utmost in simplicity and taste—in keeping with the best American traditions.

Permanent Organization.

Permanent Organization,
Permanent organization of the Ohlo
Peace Movement Commission was effected at a meeting held in the Chamber of Commerce building, attended by 28 of the 32 persons named by
Gov. Willis. The governor was present and endorsed the project enthusiastically. The officers selected are:
John E. McCreben, chairman; Mrs.
Mattle E. Lear, first vice president;
Gen. R. B. Brown, Zanesville, second vice president; R. J. Williams, secretary, and Foster Copeland, treasurer.
The purpose of the commission is tocreate sentiment and secure contributions throughout the state, which will make possible the erection in Columbus of a fitting monument commemorating the peace that has existed fofo years between the states and the attisfaction of the people of Ohlo that they have not been embrolled in the wars raging in Europe.

No Radical Move.

The statement was made here authoritatively that nothing will be done to tear up State Departments as the result of the decision of the Supreme Court sustaining the Barnes-Moore civil service law. It was said, however, that it is probable that further additional changes will be made, but that they will not be of a radical nature. In many of the departments nearly all available places already have been taken.

Private Buildings Exempt.

A ruling was given to the state board-of health by the attorney general that clears up a question that has long been in dispute. It is held that the provisions of the building code do not extend to private dwellings, and the board is without power to extend the operation of the code to private dwellings by orders issued under its general powers.

Control of the state tax commission over the listing of property for assessment is to be practically as drastic under the Parrett-Whittemore law, which becomes completely effective January 1, as it was under the Warner law, which it succeeded. The commission gave a clear indication of this intention to exercise strict supervision, and while the assessors of property have been elected, and will be under the immediate control of the county elective auditors, the final county elective auditors, the final word will be with the tax commission, whose members are appointed by the Money for Christmas.

The thousands of families who depend to a large extent upon the semimonthly distribution of benefits paid by the state of Ohio under the work men's compensation fund, are to have their checks muiled earlier. The state industrial commission decided upon this action. The regular custom of the department is to send these checks so that they will be received avery other Saturday. Deficit Will Be Paid.

The state emergency board quizzed the members of the state board of agriculture about the various items in the $13,000 state fair deficit, which the latter wants the former to pay, at a special meeting. The opinion of the emergency board members was that the "ag" board members had contracted the obligations for the fair in good faith, and that while they should have kept the expenses of the fair within the appropriation, consideration should be given to the fact that the board had only been appointed just before the fair time and so had little time to prepare.

Salaries for Christmas.

All state employes whose salaries are not being withheld on account of the question of the constitutionality of the new civil service law will received the pay due them on December 24, a week or more earlier than usual. The early payment of salaries is done to give the employers as much Christmas money as possible, and means additional funds for Christmas shopping of thousands of dollars.

Extends Time Limit.

The state board of agriculture announced it would allow dealers until December 18 to comply with requirements of the state measures law upheld by the supreme court. This act requires the use of low, wide measures, instead of those with deep, parrow dimensions, Definite dimensions are prescribed for measures.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.
Columbus, O.—How much is Onic's public school property worth in dollars and cents? Here is the answer: $101,241,108. Some princely amount for a state to spend for the education of its school youth, is it not? These figures are official. They cover the year which ended August 31, 1915, and were prepared by Prof. H. D. Swygert, statistician in the state department of public instruction.

Vast as this sum is, it does not include nearly all expended by the state for education. It does not take in what is paid in salaries to the army of 30, 000 or more teachers who toil in these schools, or what is paid out for the establishment and maintenance of the state's colleges, normal schools and universities. Ohio in no wise has

Of the more than $100,000,000 invested in school buildings, lands and equipment, $85,215,247 was spent in cities, $11,781,278 in viliages, and $118,244,583 in the rural districts. The grand total shows a gain in expenditures over the year before of more than $6,000,000, indicating that during the year just closed such as sum was spent for new schools and for new improvements to old buildings.

In 1910 the total value of all public school properly was placed at approximately $68,000,000 and two years later it was $77,000,000. This shows that the state is making consistent advance in providing for additional school facilities. It is expected that the new year will show the biggest gains for any year yet.

year will show the biggest gains for any year yet.

There are 12,339 school buildings in the state, of which 232 were erected during the year. There are 597 buildings in the cities, 917 in the villages and 10,425 in the rural districts. There are 28,256 rooms in these buildings and 1,105,227 seats in these rooms. The enumeration of school youth between six years and 21 years exceeds 1,000,000. The daily enrollment is in excess of 900,000. The number of pupils to a class averages more than 30.

WILL TEST THE CASS LAW

Cuyahoga County Commissioners to Fight Turner's Ruling.

Cleveland, O.—A suit to test the Cass road law, passed by the last leg-lature, will be filed here. The law, according to a ruling made recently by the attorney general, provides that the county is not obliged to maintain county roads inside village limits. County officials here want to get a court ruling on this question.

WOMAN SHOT IN THE BACK.

Steubenville, O.—Mrs. Wm. Steele, wife of a prominent merchant of Brilliant, O., near here, was shot in the back as she was seated at the piano in her home. The bullet, fired at close range, came through the front window The would-be assassin, who escaped, is believed to be the same man who fired into the Steele home recently. The bullet then just missed Mrs. Steele.

PRINT FIRST STATE REPORT.

Mansfield, O.—The first copy of an annual report of the state board of administration to be printed by prison labor is in the hands of the printers at the Mansfield reformatory. Heretofore this report has always been printed at a considerable cost to the state. Hundreds of copies are printed each year, and copies sent to all state officials, representatives, senators, the press and the managing officers at other out-of-state institutions An unusual amount of state p-inting is also being done at Lancaster.

Bowling Green, O.—Coroner Dan D. Spiller rendered a vertilet of sulcide in the case of the hanging of John H. Willey, near Glosonburg, November 28. Willey was found dead on a tree on a farm near that of his wife's grandfather, Joel Kimbile. Willey's hanging was investigated by county officials, together with Adjutant General B. W. Hough, under direction of Governor Wills, to ascertain whether he had been lynched, as was claimed by his friends, or took his own life.

For a long time it was thought that President Wilson and Mrs. Gait would be married in the White House. Feeple just supposed that Mrs. Gait would want to go down in history as an actual White House bride. From the general feminine point of view it seemed really the only thing to do. Charming, inctrial Mrs. Gait decided long ago, however, that a woman should be married in her own home and not in that of her husband. Sixty popular lectures, many demonstrations and moving pictures all combined into a three session five day course will provide instruction on every phase of arriculture including ponltry culture, soil fertility, apple growing, livestock raising and dairying.

ple growing, investors raising and dairying.

Farmers' Week is the dream of President Thompson of the Ohio State University who wants to give the farmers of Ohio a chance to attend the University which they support. He has excused all classes maintained for the instruction of 6,000 students in engineering, medicine, education, pharmacy and law, so that the farmers can come to college. Practically all the buildings on the campus of the University, costing $5,000,000 will be utilized for the event.

We want you to come because we have the best program possible. The farmers made Farmers' Week the biggest event for boosting agricultural conditions in Ohio flast year. So we have decided to offer double the advantages this year. Now you cannot afford to stay away," says Clark S. Wheeler, Director of the extension work of the University, who is in charge.

It is open to the old and young. Last year a man of 88 sat beside a boy of 12 at the lectures. A note book is all that is needed. Farmers' Week has been arranged so that many farmers could leave their farms during the slack season. The men in charge guarantee that the results of information gained st Farmers' Week will mean handreds of dollars in the next few years to every man who attends. Write for a complete program.
