Theresa Davis, daughter of Wm.

Theresa Davis, daughter of Wm. and Margaret Davis, was born in North Fairfield, O. Sept. 17th, 1836, died, March 31st, 1915, aged 79 years, 6 months and 14 days.

She was the last of a family of seven children, being deprived of a mother's care in her early Birlhood, which did not tend to making herearly life as pleasant as it might have been otherwise.

The family were residents of New Haven for many years She was united in marriage to Norman Hough, July 4, 1854, who preceded her from this life, Dec 27, 1899

She is survived by her two sons, two daughters, eight grand-children, Mr. and Mrs. Hough united with the Rioley Congregational church in 1872, of which church they were members until 1894, when they transferred their membership to the M E. church of New Haven, which they retained until the time of their death.

The deceased's greatest ambition retained until the time of their deathed until the time of their deathed coased's greatest ambition was to help others in times of sick mess and affliction, there being no visible limit to her energy in that capacity. Those who knew her best were her most devoted friends. Her health has been gradually failing after suffering a stroke five yearago. She has been under the car of her daughter, Mrs C. H. Underwood for the lact five months, where all was done that could be done to ease the suffering of the one whowas always ready to soothe the fevered brow of others.

The funeral services were held at the home of her daughter, Mr. and Mrs C. H. Underwood, at 12 o'clock, on Friday. April 2, services conducted by Mrs. Bell Gates, interment oeing made in the New Haven cemetery.

CARD

We wish to thank the many friends and neighbors for their aid during he sickness and death of our mother. Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Underwood, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hough, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hough, Mr. Wm. Hough.

State Spelling Bee For County

The biggest spelling match ever held in Obio or any other state will be held in Columbus June 4. Governor Willis has approved the plan and nor wills has approved the pian and fixed the date. It will be be state-wide and it will be held in the chamber of the House of Re-presentatives Every county in the state will send its best speller. The governor, in the role of the schoolmaster, will pronounce the words which the contestants will be asked to spell.

And be it remembered the governor is some speller himself. He best the "shocks" out of his colleagues in Congress in a spelling match they held down there a short time before he resigned his seat in that body to become governor of the Buckeye state. He spelled 'em all down, disposing with ease of a choice se-lection of polysyllable words, many of them more or less onsolete, which were propunded to him.

If one day isn't sufficient for the match, two will be taken. When the governor gets tired giving the words other state officials will take a hand at pronouncing them for the compact of the state they are holding spelling contests to determine who is the heat speller in each county.

Each county school super intendent has been asked to choole 100 words commonly used and often misspeller and to send them to the state agricultural commission. These word will be takulated in alphabetical or der, printed and sent to each contestant. It is expected that there will be at least 5,000 words in the list. If the number is not sufficient, this standard text books.

Information to this effect reached Washington on Sunday from Berlin. The formal declaration of Germany's purpose will be communicated to this government within the next day or purpose will be communicated to this government within the next day or two.

The authorities breathed a sigh of relief when advised of what they may expect from the German government. They feel they have gotten around an exceedingly difficult situation.

In its representations to Germany the administration was exceedingly careful not to make demands nor to use language which might give offense. The American note was confined to the statement of the facts and the reference to the bearing thereon of the treaty in force between the United States and Prussia. The treaty specifically provides for detention of a merchant vessel by the warship of the other in time of war.

Rushes—Staged at Havana.

Havana, April 7.—Jack Johnson, exthe from his own country, lost his chaim to fistic fame as the heavyweight champion of the world. The title was wrested from him by Jess Willard, the Kanasa cowboy, the biggest man who ever entered a prize ring, and a "white hope" who at last has made good.
Johnson returned to his rooms almost immediately after the fight.
Aside from a cut lip he was unmarked.

The fight probably has no parallel in the history of ring battles. For 20 rounds Johnson punched and pounded Willard at will, but his blows grew perceptibly less powerful as the fight progressed, until at last he seemed unable or unwilling to go tween the two huge men was little to more than a series of plastic poses of white and black gladiators.

So it was until the twenty-fifth round, when Willard got one of his widely swinging, windmill, right-hand smashes at Johnson's heart. This was the beginning of the end.

When the round closed Johnson sent word to his wife that he was "all in." and told her to start for home. She was on the way out and was passing the ring in the twenty-sixth round when a stinging left to the body and a cyclonic right to the faw caused Johnson to crumble on the floor of the ring, where he lay partly outside the ropes until the referee counted ten and held up Willard's hand in token of his newly-won laurels.

No fight between heavyweights that has gone to a finish was cleaner or less brutal. Johnson's left eye was partly closed in the early rounds, but not sufficiently to interfere with his fighting. His lip also was cut inside, and his famous goiden smile flashed from a red setting.

The end of the fight came with a suddenness that dazed the spectators. It followed two or three rounds of almost complete idleness on the part of the contestants, and the crowd settled down to a long-drawn-out struggle, believing that it would go the full limit of the 45 rounds without dither being able to register a knock-out.

The early rounds were filled with flashes of Johnson's former wonderful

The early rounds were filled with flashes of Johnson's former wonderful speed, when he would rain rights and lefts to Willard's body and face, delwering ten blows to one from the bliwering ten blows to one from the bliwering ten blows to one from the delwering ten blows to one from the bliwering ten blows and lefting with early and the defensive, and on occasions Johnson played with him, once standing with suard down and letting Willard swing at him, only to dodg and laugh at the awkwardness of his opponent.

In these rounds Willard took a beating which would have put an ordinary fighter down and out. The crowd got used to seeing him throw off these slashing blows, and expected to see Johnson jumping and continue fighting, just as Willard swung his right to the negro's chit in the fatal twenty-sixth round. They expected to see Johnson jumping and continue fighting, just as Willard had come back, but the old championship fight.

negro's chatter about as little as he did his blows. Willard's seconds were after Johnson all the time, warning him to keep away from Willard's terrific right. Through the twenty-first, twenty-second, twenty-third and twenty-fourth rounds Johnson hardly struck a blow. He kept feinting at Willard, who was ever ready to break ground. When Johnson finally went down in the twenty-sixth round he rolled over on his back. The sun was beating down with torrid intensity, and his arms drew up as if to shield his eyes from the glare while the referee counted him out.

Only two of the 27 convicted men are in jail. They are Alexander Aczel, alias Steel, who was arrested some time ago and held under $5,000 bond on a charge of attempting to corrupt government witnesses, and Timothy "Bull" Conway, who just before the trial opened was given a jail sentence in a local court for carrying concealed weapons.

Severe penalties can be imposed. The possible cumulative punishment under the four counts of the indictment is fines totaling $25,000 and imprisonment for 19 years.

The indictment on which the men were tried is in four counts. It charges that qualified voters were prevented from exercising that right, that qualified persons were prevented from serving on election boards and that persons who had committed no dense were deprived of their liberty without due process of law.

All the defendants, many of whom were accompanied by relatives, took the verdiet calmly and there was no demonstration of any sort. Among those found guit are:

AN EXCITING ELECTION

CHICAGO REPUBLICANS ELECT W H. THOMPSON MAYOR OF CITY BY OVER 125,000 PLURALITY

Chicago, Ill.—In the most excit-ing election that Chicago ever has had William Hale Thompson, Repub-lican, was elected mayor of Chicago Tuesday by a plurality of about 125,000.

25,000. Robert M. Sweitzer, the Democratic andidate, never was in the running. The vote was a veritable Thompson.

The vote was a veritable Thompson landslide.

In the 35 wards of Chicago there were eligible to vote 769,106 men and women. Early returns showed that more than 55 per cent of the registered vote was cast. The total vote was suce than 600,000. More than 200,000 women cast their ballots during the day, and the votes of the women played no small part in the triumph of the Republican candidate. Thompson received great support from the women in almost every ward in the city.

A German submarine has become securely entangled in a net specially designed for that purpose and placed off Dover, according to a Paris report. Miles of submarine traps have been set by the British navy at harbor entrances and other strategic points around the British lales to catch German submarines engaged in blockading England. The traps are not unlike gill nets used by fishermen.

An attack which the German military chiefs regard as the opening of a new phase of the western campalgn has been initiated by the French in the section of the front between the Meuse and the Moselle. The official statement from Berlin says that the French employed strong forces, with a large amount of artillery, in making assaults at several points.

The official statement from Paris gives few details of the fighting, beyond the claim that in two places advances were made.

Fighting on Eastern Front.
On the eastern from there has been further fighting near the Russian border. The German war office says that Russian attacks were repulsed. Undical Austrian news reaching London by way of Paris declares that the Austro-German forces in the vicinity of the Lupkow pass are in full retreat, but all other reports from this section indicate that the opposing armies are still locked in a deadly grapple.

Decision Arrived at Through Unanimous Vote of the Railroad Officials in Ohio.

(By Denny Donovan.)

Columbus.—Refusal to accept the proposed substitute for the Thatcher bill, increasing the maximum railway passenger rate in Ohlo to 2½ cents a mile, formally was announced by the executive committee representing railroad interests doing bushness in this state. As outlined in these dispatches this decision was reached at a conferstate. As outlined in these disparence this decision was reached at a conference of executives held in New York, the results being telegraphed to the campaign headquarters in this city. Accompanying the announcement was Accompanying the announcement was the statement that the decision was arrived at through the unanimous vote of the Ohio railroads. This rejected substitute proposed that the matter of increasing rates shall be placed under the control of the state public utilities commission which is to be given power to adjust tariffs within a maximum of 2½ cents, nithough it should be said that no final figure has been determined upon.

Campaign Abandoned.

Campaigning of the Ohio Woman's

Suffrage association for favorable conideration at the hands of the general assembly of the project for passing aw permitting female citizens to vote law permitting female citizens to vote for presidential electors has been abandoned. Miss Elizabeth J. Hauser, of Cleveland, chairman of the organi-zation committee, said that it had been decided to "pass up this sasembly." She says that the great statesmen bere have apparently determined that because women are neither ginseng, canary birds, nor pussy cats, they are therefore not meet subjects for legis-lation.

All Ohio Banks.

The banks outside of the half dozen large cities of the state were the ones to show substantial gains in gross resources since the last bank statement of December 31. The compiliation of the statements of March 4 shows total resources for all state banks to be $627.69,111.83, as against $616.707,673.85. Deposits increased from $519,458,178.33 to $530,940.211.46. The large increase was in the banks of the smaller population centers.

A ruling was given the state liquor licensing board by Atty. Gen. Edward C. Turner. He holds that a foreign distilling company, which has an agent in Ohio, who solicits and receives ororns, who souths and re-erves or rers and makes collections, is not lia-e for the $1,000 annual tax, but that the company has warehouses in hio and makes delivery from these arehouses to customers it is liable ary and has nopes or carrying our highway ideals on a strickly co-operative basis.

"It is too early for me to say definitely what sort of program I expect to carry our as state highway commissioner," said Mr. Cowen. "For I really don't know what the program will be. I've got to learn a few things about details in the office first. But I have ideals that have to do with road building, and it is my hope that they can be carried out without going counter to existing conditions. I don't purpose being so radical as to conflict with present legislation or with that which is—esemphised, for I have faith in the legislature and believe it is going to do-progressive work for the department I'm by take hold of. "When I speak of co-operation in highway matters I mean co-operation between the state and the counties and co-operation between the cause of the terms of the state and the counties and co-operation between the counties and co-operation is the countries of the countries and co-operation between the counties and co-operation countries c of the state's road system also must be considered, and that's why co-operation is essential."

An "interlocking working agreement" among township trustees, country commissianers and the state highway department, in Mr. Cowen's opinion, is the proper solution of the highway problem, for reasons not only of economy but of ultimate results as well. Pending legislation he would not comment upon other than to say that he believed the legislature would act for the betterment of the state's highways and take no reactionary steps.

Rate Bill Tabled.

By a decisive vote the Thatcher bill increasing railway passenger rates in Ohlo to 2½ cents a mile was laid upon the table by the Committee on Public Utilities of the House of Representatives. This was entirely contrary to the bellet of the railroad representatives who before the meeting were quite confident that their fight for favorable recommendation had been won.

Bids Are Received.

Bids for the construction of the first lap of the new Chesapeake & Ohlo route from the Ohlo river to Columbus were received at the Columbus engineer's office. The first 28-mile section will be built from Sciotoville to Waverly. This is said to be the most difficult section of the entire route and it is estimated that it will take nearly two years to complete this strip. Work on the remainder of the route to Columbus will not be started until next year.

This is one of the sensible changes which have been made by Mme. La Mode in wartime.

"Right up to the chin is now the rule for collars," said the representative of a Paris firm of modistes.

"Blouses that leave the chest exposed will soon disappear entirely so far as women who have any regard for fashion are concerned.

"The decollete blouse and corsage of the day gown have until quite recently been carried to the extreme. Not only has the V been worn as plainly as in evening dress, but in some cases it has extended for street wear almost to the walst."

The disappearance of the pneumonia blouse and the return of the full skirts which are now in vogue will increase the primness of women's appearance, in that the figures will be fully covered from ankle to ear.

Big, emphatic buttons weighted the front of the skirt very eleverly white from the barriers of the hanging description, and both large and small has been a pretty feature these last six months or so. The dear of hanging a button from a fing either slik thread-covered meal or dyed bone, was of course, in the same vein. Perhaps the prettiest of all these buttons is the accorn make, and the most interesting, because the parts may be of contrastin, stuffs; for instance, the cup of velvet, and the rest of old brocade or gold tissue. The clever may themselves embroider the button in question, which in most cases must, of course, first be made by the special button machine.

The conviction in many minds that the popular hat will be the sailor must be considerably strengthened by the success, whether partial or complete, of the new skirt. Easter—The anniversary of the resurrection of that life, which was laid down that we might live, was the particular theme for all sermons, and there were excellent discourses given, commemorating in supplication, prayer and song, His resurrection?

tion, prayer and soven, tion?

The feature of the services at the Prestyterian church Sunday morning, was the Easter program which was excelledly carried out by the Sunday School—The readings by the Misses Marian Heath, Liura Whit. ing, was the Easter program which was executed by the Sunday School.—Ine readings by the Sunday School.—Ine readings by the Misses Marian Heakth, Lura Whitter, Julia Bevier, and Mis- Varner, and the solos and music by Miss Marian Waterman of Chicago, Mrs. Phiip Nixon, and the Misses Wanda Trago and Laura Whittier, were well received and appropriate to the occasion, as well as the recitations and songs by the primary classes, with an excellent talk by the superintendent, Mr. Dayton Danner.

At the Lutheran church the services began at 10:30, at which time, Dr. V. G. A. Tressler, president of Wittenberg Synod. Springfield, O. delivered an appropriate and inspiring sermon and held the regular Easter Communion and baptism. The Easter Vesper service was at 1:00 o'clock. The Organ Voluntary, by Mr. John Koot, a solo, entitled. 'In the Garden of My Heart.' (b. Eurnest R. Ball.) by Mrs. E. E. Weatherby, was a most pleasing feature, as was the address by Dr. VG. A. Tressler, and the anthem, "The Singing of Birds." [Warren.]

At the Methodist church Sunday morning, the pastor, Rev. Chas. F. Mott, delivered an interesting and appreciative Easter sermon, and threney members were received into the church.

In the evening, the Choir under the direction of Mr. J. L. Judson, assisted by the Sunday School gave a fine program. Mrs. Philip Nixon sang a solo, with piano arcompaniment. Mrs. Jara Seville sang a solo, with flut and organ obligato. Revitations and songs by the members of the Sabbath School and wiolin and piano solos by the young misses of the school, and a short address by Kee Mott, completed the evening. Easter praise. These sacred and impressive services brought to the close a beautiful Easter day, the anniversary of the resurrection of Christ and the awakening of earth to beauty and fragrance.

Now the automatics and the rides from the redoubt to which the Browns had fallen back opened fire. So close together were these bulletmanchines that the orbit of each one's swing made a spray of only a few yards breadth over the redoubt, where the Browns guadre had not for a moment ceased its persistent shelling, with increasingly large and soild targets of fesh for their practice. "We got into the enemy's works but had to fail back temporarily." he said.

"Temporarily! What do you mean?" demanded the premier.

"I mean that we have only begun to attack!" declared Westerling. He liked that sentence. It sounded like the shibboleth of a great leader in a crisis." I shall assault again to-morrow night."

"It can assault again to-morrow night."

"Then your losses were not heavy?"
"No, not relatively. To-uporrow night we press home the advantage we gained to-night."

"But you have been so confident-each time. You still think that—"
"That I mean to win! There is no stopping half-way."

"Well, I'll still try to hold the situa-tion here," replied the premier. "But keep me informed."
Drugged by his desperate stubborn-ness, Westerling was believing in his star again when he returned to the ilbrary. All the greater his success for being won against skepticism and fears! He summoned his chiefs of divisions, who came with the news that the Browns had taken the very redoubt from which the head of the Gray charge had started; but there they had stopped.

Gray charge had started; but there they had stopped.

"Of course! Of course they stopped!" exclaimed Westerling. "They are not mad. A few are not going to threw themselves against superior numbers —our superior numbers beaten by our own panic! Lanstron is not a fool. You'll find the Browns back in their old position, working like beavers to make new defenses in the morning. Meanwhile, we'll get that mob of ours linto shape and find out what made them lose their nerve. To-morrow night we shall have as many more behind them. We are going to attack again!"

night we shall have as many more behind them. We are going to attack again!"

The staff exchanged glances of amazement, and Turcas, his dry volce crackling like parchment, exclaimed:

"Attack again." At the same point?"

"Yes—the one place to attack!" eaid Westerling. "The rest of our line has abundant reserves; a needless number for anything but the offensive. We'll leave enough to hold and draw off the rest to Engadir at once."

"But their dirigibles! A surprising number of them are over our lines," Bcillini, the chief of intelligence, had the temerity to say.

"You will send our planes and dirigibles to bring down theirs!" Westerling commanded.
"I have—every last one; but they outnumber us!" persisted Bellini. "Even in retreat they can see. The air has cleared so that considerable bodies of troops in motion will be read-ily discernible from high altitudes. The reason for our failure last night was that they knew our plan of attack."

"They knew! They knew, after all our precautions! There is still a leak! You—"

"This means an improvised organization; it breaks up the machine," said the tactical expert to Turcas when they were alone.

"Yes," repiled Turcas. "He wanted no advice from us when he was taking counsel of desperation. If he succeeds, success will retrieve all the rest of his errors. We may have a stroke of luck in our favor."

In the headquarters of the Browns, junior officers and clerks reported the words of each bulletin with the relief of men who breathed freely again. The chiefs of divisions who were with Lanstron alternately sat down and paced the floor, their restlessness now that of a happlness too deeply thrilling to be expressed by hilarity. Each fresh the floor, their restlessness now that of a happlness too deeply thrilling to be expressed by hilarity. Each fresh etail only confirmed the completeness of the repulse as that memorable hight in the affairs of the two nations slowly wore on. Shortly before three when the fring had died after the Brown pursuit had stopped, a wireless from a dirigible flying over the from tier came, telling of bodies of Graytroops and gene tenor. The chiefs frew around the table and looked into one nanther's eyes in the significance of a common thought.
"It cannot be a retreat!" said the vice-chief.
"Hardly. That is inconceivable of Westerling at this time," Lanstron replied. "The buil charges when wounded. It is clear that he means to make another attack. These troops on the march across country are isolated from any immediate service."

It was Lanstron's way to be suggestive; to let ideas develop in council and orders follow as out of council. "The chance!" exclaimed some one. "The chance!" we thank!"

It was the most natural conception to a military tactician, though any man who made it his own might have builded a reputation on it if he knew how to get the ear of the press. Their acces were close to Lanstron as they leaned toward him eagerly. He seemed not to see them but to be looking at Partow's chair. In imagination Partow was there daring risk, this! What would Partow say? Lanstron always asked himself this in a crisis: What would Partow say?

"Well, my boy, why are you hesitating." Partow demanded. "I don't know that I'd have taken my long holiday and left you in charge if I'd thought you'd be losing your nerve as you are this minute. Wasn't it part of my plan—my dream—that plan I gave you to read in the vaults, to atrike if a chance, this very chance, were to come? Hurry up! Seconds count!"

"Yee, a chance to end the killing for good and all!" said Lanstron, coming abruptly out of his silence. "We'll take it and strike hard."

The staff bent over the map, Lanstron's finger dying from point to point, while ready expert answers to his questions were at his elbow and the wires sang out directions that made a drenched and shivering coldiers who had been yielding and holding and never advancing grow warm with the thought of springing from the mree of trenches to charge the enemy, And one, Gustave Feller, in command of a brigade of field-guns—the mobile guns that could go forward rumbling oid world and I'm right fond of it—so full of the neces irot—saw his dearly be loved batteries swing into a road in the moonlight.

Turning the Tables.

Through the door which the aide had left open the division chiefs, led by Turcas, filed in. To Westerling they seemed like a procession of ghosts. The features of one were the features of all, graven with the weariness of the machine's treadmill. Their harness held them up. A moving platform under their feet kept their legs moving. They grouped around the great man's desk silently, Turcas, his lips a half-opened eeam, his voice that of crinkling parchment, acting as spokesman.

"Yes. The ground is such that it is a tactically safe and advantageous move for Laustron to make. He strikes at the vitals of our machine." "But what about the remainder of the force that made the charge? What about all our guns concentrated in front of Engadir?" "Was complete the The rout of the complete the total of the complete the theory of the complete the comple

"I was coming to that. The rout of the assaulting column was much worse than we had supposed. Those who are strong enough cannot be got to reform. Many were so exhausted that they dropped in their tracks. Our gune are at this moment in retreat—or being captured by the rush of the Browns' infantry. Your Excellency, the crisis is sudden, incredible."
"Our wire service has broken down. We cannot communicate with many of our division commanders," put in Bellini, the chief of intelligence.

"Yes, our organization, so dependent on communication, is in danger of disruption," concluded Turcas. "To avoid disorder, we think it best to retreat across the plain to our own range."

At the word "retreat" Westerling sprang to his feet, his cheeks purple, the veins of his neck and temples sculptured as he took a threatening step toward the group, which fell back before the physical rage of the man, all except the vice-chief, his mouth a thin, ashy line, who held his own.

"You cowards!" Westerling thundered. "Retreat when we have five millions to their three!"

"We have not that odds now," replied the parchment voice. "All their men are engaged. They have caught us at a disadvantage, unable to use our numbers except in detail in trying to hold on in face of—"

"It to ly ouw exannot retreat!" Westerling interrupted. "That is the end. I know—"

This brought fresh alarm into faces which had become set in grim stoicism by many alarms. If the people were in ignorance of the hasten feet in ginnerance of what passed over the long-distance wire between the chief of staff and the premier.

"I know what is best—I alone!" Westerling continued, driving home his point. "Tell our commanders to hold. Netther general nor man is to budge, the officers of the staff were no least in ignorance of than what he set when he chief of staff and the premier.

"I know what is best—I alone!" Westerling continued, driving home his point. "Tell our commanders to hold. Netther general nor man is to budge. They are to stick to the death. Ayone who does not I shall hold up upoble shame as a poltroon. Who knows but Lanstron's attack may be a council of desperation." The irrows may be worse off than we are. Hold, hold! If we are tired, they are tired. Frequently it takes only an onnee more or resolution to turn the tide of battle-frent story! We are going to whit "It is for you take the responsibility." "I kee the responsibility. I am in command!" replied Westerling in unfi ing him to his isolation.

After Marta had learned, over the telephone, from Lanstron of the certain repulse of the Gray assault, fatigue—sheer physical fatigue such as made soldiers drop dead in slumber on the arth, their packs atill on their backs—overcame her. Her work was done The demands of nature overwhelmed her faculties. She slept with a nervous twitching of her muscles, a resitiess tossing of her lithe body, until hammers began beating on her temples, beating, beating, beating with the sound of shell bursts, as if to warn her that punishment for her share in the killing was to be the eternal concussion of battle in her ears. At length she realized that the cannonading was real.

Hastening out-of-doors, as her glance swept toward the range she saw hurst of shrapnel sancks from the guns of the Browns nearer than eines the fighting had begun on the main line, and these were directed at hodies

"You need rest. Our center, where we have the column of has night's attack still concentrated! If anything would convince me that I have to fight this convince me that I have to fight this war alone—!—" Westerling choked in irritation.

voice that had a ring of relief and joy in place of the tension that had characterized it since the outbreak of the war.

"Thanks to you, Marta!" he cried. "Everything goes back to you.—thanks to you came this chance to attack, and we are sugceeding at every point! You are the general, you the maker of victories!"

"Yes, the general of still more killing!" she cried in indignation. "Why have you gone on with the slaughter! I did not help you for this. Why?"

No reply came. She poured out more questions, and still no reply, She pressed the button and tried again, but she might as well have been talking over a dead wire.

One man alone against the tiderather, the man who has seen a tideries at his orders now finding all its sweep against him—Westerling, accustomed to have millions of men move at his command, found himself, one man out of the millions, still and help-less while they moved of their own impulses.

As news of positions lost came in, As news of positions lost came in, he could only grimity repeat, "Hold! Tell them to hold!" fruitlessly, like adjurations to the wind to cease blowing. The bell of the long distance kept ringing unheeded, until at last his aide came to say that the premier must speak either to him or to the vice-hief. Westerling staggered to his feet and with iurching steps went into the closet. There he sank down on the chair in a heap, staring at the telephone mouthpiece, Again the bell rang. Clenching his hands in a rocking effort, he was able to stiffen his spine once more as he took down the receiver. To admit defeat to the premier—no, he was not ready fire that yet.

"It's a lie!" Westerling declared vehemently.

"The news has reached the press," the premier proceeded. "Editions are already in the streets."

"What! Where is your censorship?" gasped Westerling.

"It is helpless, a straw protesting against a current," the premier repited. "A cansorship goes back to physical force, as every law does in the end—to the police and the army; and all, these days, finally to public opinion. After weeks of secrecy, of reported successes, when nobody really knew what was happening, this sudder disillusioning announcement of the truth has sent the public mad."

"It is your business to control the public!" complained Westerling.

"With what, now? With a speech or a lullaby? As well could you stop the retreat with your naked hands. My business to control the public is not ontrol the public is not ontrol the public hankers and business and professional men included. "My food did not agree with me, and I grew thin and despondent. I could not enjoy the simplest social affair for I suffered constantly from nervousness in spite of all sorts of medicines.

"This wretched condition continued until I became interested in the letters of those who had cases, like mine and who were being helped by esting Grape-Nuts.

"I had little faith, but procured a pkg, and after the first dish I experienced a peculiar satisfied feeling that I had never gained from any ordinary food. I slept and rested better that night and in a few days began to grow stronger.

"I had a new feeling of peace and restrainess. In a few weeks, to my great joy, the headaches and nervousness left me and life became bright and hopeful. I resumed my studies, and later taught ten months with ease-paing Grape-Nuts every day. I am now the mistress of a happy home, and the old weakness has never returned."

pulling or cutting off the plant below the crown.

Don't mow the lawn too closely during the heated term: but do not allow weeds to go to seed.

Deep working, thorough pulverization, effective fertilization and a thorough raking and rolling down to a smooth level are all necessary to a smooth, level lawn.

Get your lawn seeds of a reliable seedsman, and ask for the best and the freshest. Don't use old seed left over from last year, but insist on having it fresh, and of a good mixture.

The best time to seed a lawn is during the latter part of August or the early part of September. At that season, the beat is over and showers are almost sure to come, and the young grass will have several months of cool, moist weather in which to grow before winter.

THE PERENNIAL FLOWER BED

By JULIE ADAMS POWELL.

Last month we talked about the hardy bulbs. This month we are going to make a flower border of perennial plants, plants which sow their own seed and of plants that are biennials, and we are going to buy or beg them all.

Suppose we have a border from Suppose we have a border from twenty to forty feet in length and from six to fitteen feet in depth. Or to fit our "estates," our border can be made much larger or very much smaller. A border planted by a woman should not be over twenty by eight feet in size, for if she did all the work except the heavy diggling, it might not be possible for her to give a larger one the right and necessary care.

Such a border should run north and south, and if possible, face the east. The background may be of hollyhocks, both single and double, goldenglow, the single tiger lilly, the ever bloom-ing flame flower, the tall meadow-rue, and tall meadow-weet, set out alter-nately.

Always use warm water. The roots will enjoy it quite hot, but this is death to the stem. Some place a ring of tin around the base of the stem pressing it down an inch into the soil. With this protection the hot water can be freely used.

Bottom heat may also be supplied by placing the pot on a hot brick. By keeping a pair of bricks for this purpose and alternating every 12 hours the buds can be forced more freely.

Give liquid manure once or twice a week, gradually increasing the dose as the plant seems to thrive.

Rout the red spider by spraying with cold water, and the scale with soapsuds.

Nicotina affinis can be planted in this row early next spring and from year to year it will sow its own seed and will come up so close to where the old plants grew that it will not often need transplanting.

Then we will have the hardy gail-lardia, grosphila paniculata, or baby's breath, lavender, Lychnis, rose campion, monard didyma splendens, also called the bee balm and robin runaway, the Chinese bell flower, the hardy perennial popples and the garden heliotrope.

A double border we wiil make of two heights of planta, setting the tailler ones a little back of the very low ones. The snap dragon, the double anemone, the mullein pink, the sea pink, English daisies, the hardy double and single pinks, the polyanthus, the hardy primoses and the English cowsilps all will help to make our hardy slower bed a "thing of beauty and a Joy forever."

flower bed a "thing of beauty and a joy forever."

The earth for a perennial border should be light and porous. Never try to raise flowers in soggy, wet soil. As soon as the planns are well rooted have a forkfui of well-decayed etable manure spaded in well around each plant unless they are very small plants, then use your own good judgment.

Just before freezing weather a mulch two or three inches deep of stable manure should be spread over the bed a little heavier about each plant, and if the plants have any spooky branches they should all be trimmed back quite close.

ASHES DISCOURAGE BUGS

Especially among areas I find great value in ashes, containing as they do phosphates which tend toward sweetening the soil. No parasite will contentedly find courage to live in or cuter such an unpleasant soil home. Ashes are also beneficial in strengthening and stiffening stalks and for this reason I advocate them for gladiolus beds—but not miked with manure as some might do—rather strewn over the surface soil after fertilizers have been well worked in. When thus treated they seem to release the amtreated they seem to release the ammonia of the fertilizer, relieving it of its most valuable properties.

Woman Gets Rid of "Coffee Habit."

The injurious action of coffee on the hearts of many persons is well known by physicians to be caused by caffeine. This is the drug found by chemists in coffee and tea.

A woman suffered a long time with severe heart trouble and finally her doctor told her she must give up coffee, as that was the principal cause of the trouble. She writes:

"My heart was so weak it could not do its work properly. My husband would sometimes have to carry me from the table, and it would seem that I would seem that I would seem that I would never breathe again.

"The doctor told me that coffee was aussing the weakness of my heart. He said I must stop it, but it seemed I gould not give it up until I was down in bed with nervous prostration.

"For eleven weeks I lay there and suffered. Finally husband brought home some Postum and I quit coffee and started new and right. Slowly I got well. Now I do not have any head-aches, nor those spells with weak heart. We know it is Postum that helped me. The Dr. said the other day: I never thought you would be what you are. I used to weigh 22 pounds and now I weigh 158.

NO WAR TAX ON CANADIAN LANDS

Interested Parties.

Defaming a neighbor at the expense of the truth does not help those who are guilty of the practice, and it may be said that those spreading false reports about Canadian lands, in the hope that they may secure customers for their own, will certainly fail of their purpose. False statements so maliclously circulated will sooner or later be disproved. And, as in the case of the lands of Western Canada, the fertility of which is now so well known to people of every state in the United States, the folly of this work shows an exceeding short sightedness on the part of those guilty of the pragitice.

war tax on land imposed by the Canadian Government a number of former Dakota farmers who went to the British Northwest will be compelled to return to the United States. Information has been received that the tax will amount to about $500 fer each farm of 160 acres, which in the case of many of the former residents of the two Dakotas would practically amount to confiscation."

To show that the public has doubted, hundreds of inquiries have been made the Government at Ottawa, Canada, only to bring out the most emphatic denial. A full-fledged lie of this kind has, of course, only a short life, and will tell in the end against those who forge it and spread it, but, as a Winnipeg paper points out, it is most complimentary to the agricultural possibilities of Western Canada to find that rival farming propositions need audacious mendacity of this description to help them.

Those vacant lands held by non-residents in Western Canada form a grave problem. They are making for poor communities, poor schools and poor social and economic conditions generally. Ply having them cultivated the owners as well as the districts in which they are located will benefit allike. It is for this reason that the Government has recently asked the co-operation of the non-residents. Bees.

In cold climates the bees are now in a state of repose, and it is little short of criminal to disturb them, as it will only do then more harm than good.

All progressive bee men know that where the bees were properly prepared for winter there need be no concern for them now. And even though the snow may cover the splany completely, no barm need be feared, as the snow adds to their warmth.

no barm need be feered, as the snow adds to their warmth.

Late in the fall, after the close of the honey flow, bees cluster in a compact mass for the winter, assaily on the central cumbs, and so remain until broad rearing is well established. If the beekeeper tries to winter bees on the summer stands in any form of a hive other than a chaff or double walled hive, he will probably lose more in the value of bees than the extra strengs he would incur in making chaff hives of some kind.

Ownership.

Friends of the municipal ownership of public utilities are over) over over the fact that the notorious kehne bill has been killed by the Ohio Senate. This is a body slow at the oublic utility lobby.

The bill required that all ordinances for any municipal ownership development must go to a compulsors referendum and must got two-thirds of the votes of the communication to be sustained.

The defeat of this bill, which is one of a set of five bestile to municipal ownership, by a decisive margir indicates that the public utilities comporation will get none of their legis lation through at this assession.
