A Young Life Gone Out.

Irwin Raymond Trimmer, only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Trimmer, of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Trimmer, was born at Steuben, Ohio, August 19, 1906, and died at Plymouth, O, March 28th, 1915, aged 9 years, 7 months and 9 days.

hopefal.

When Irwin was two years old, his parents moved to Plymouth, and this was the only home he knew. He early started to Sunday School, and when but four years old, was the proud possessor of a gold medal, which was given to him for being present every Sunday during the year, unless detained by sickness.

He was a stunch little Lutheran, and the last two years, was a regular contributor to the church, fixing the envelope each week himself, from his own earnings. Can not we who are older learn a lesson from his faithfulness to his Sunday School and his church?

Irwin was of a happy, sunny disposition, ambitious beyond his strength; and from early childhood he was never so contented as when he could help the older ones with the work.

His teacher in the day-school will tell you that he was faithful and unian-taking, apt to learn, fun-loving, yet ambitious to do his best.

His parents, his sister his grandmother, will tell you that he was thife of the home.

The flowers today amid which hie is so peacefully, supplied by sorrowing schoolmates and friends, gives learn testitionny of the regard in which he was held.

He will be remembered as a fair flower, quickly blooming in the garden of earth, and then carried to the mansion of the Heavenly King.

Much as he was loved, if he has missed a life of long suffering and rarel pains, he can more easily be given up today, and thank God that he happiness of Heavn is his.

In one of the sweetest letters of con-fort ever written to parents on the death of a child, Malthle Babcock said: "It will be hard for you not to ask why this must be. # IMMENSE QUANTITY OF WHEAT TIED UP

There Will Still, However, Be a Heavy Deficit of the World's Normal Crop.

A grain expert who has been watch

A grain expert who has been watching the grain markets and the world's grain fields for a number of years, says:—

There is at the present time about two billion bushels of wheat, the production of the countries at war, tied up. This is about one-half the world's total production of wheat, which is four billion bushels. One writer argues that, granting that the warring nations produce a one-half crop in the coming year, a deficit of one billion bushels will still be shown. The three countries upon which the filling of this deficit of one billion bushels will still be shown. The three countries upon which the filling of this deficit of one billion bushels will rest are the United States, Canada, and Argentina. The combined output of these three countries is only 1,245,000,000, their exportable surplus would of course be much less, so it can easily be seen that the question is not one to be easily solved and it behoaves all the above countries to increase their respective productions as much as they possibly can, for when the war is over and trade begins to re-establish itself and the nations undergo a process of rehabilitation, the demind for all bredgatuffs will be the demand for all breadstuffs will be enormous.

"During the three years following the declaration of peace the farmers of all neutral wheat-producing countries will have ample opportunity to market their wheat at good prices, and it may safely be assumed that the demand will be heavy. Canada has an unusual opportunity in that she has the natural environment for wheat production; she is under the protection of the Brittish flag, and she will not be molested upon the water to any great extent; she can increase her acreage and greatly enhance her production. In other words, she can become a far greater wheat-producing country than she is at the present time."

time."

If the summing-up as made by this expert be correct, is there not the very best reason for the continued effort that is being made by the Government of the Dominion of Canada to secure settlers on the productive vacant lands of the country? Not only are these lands capable of producing high class wheat in large quantities, but easile, pigs, sheep and horses also do well. The climate is admirably suited.—Advertisement.

The reports from Cincinnati show that the increase in deposits between the two calls exceeded $2,00,000. As a whole, the condition of the banking business is entirely satisfactory, according to the reports.

Supt. Hall completed a tabulation, showing the condition of the banks in the six largest citles. This, with comparisons with the conditions of banks on December 31, 1914, when the preceding call was made, was made public.

Fares Going Up.

There are alsing unmistakable evidences that the railroads of Ohio have nearly won their fight for the increase of passenger fares from 2 to 2½ cents a mile. At the outset it was doubtied in the little of the country, even would fare so well as to receive a favorable report from the Public Utility Committee of the House or Representatives, in whose keeping it has been for many weeks. Now it is accepted that this barrier has been successfully passed and that favorable action is to be expected in the main hody. If the House, with its large agricultural representation, should indors the measure there is no doubtoncerning the approval of the Senate. Demand for the bill has been steadily growing, as represented in petitions signed by persons in all was of life and resolutions adopted by trade and commercial bodies. On the other hand, the early opposition is said to be dwindling. Legislative experts predicted that action by the committee might be looked for and that the bill would go on the calendar.

Moore Prepares Bill.

Senator Moore, of Jefferson, said he is preparing to Introduce a bill that will give any coal company the right to condemn private property for right-of-way purposes. Meny valuable tracts of coal lands in various sections of the state can not be operated, it is said, because the company can not obtain, rights of way across adjoining property to build railway switches into their mines. A similar bill was introduced by Senator Moore during the Inst Assembly, and passed the Senate, but was buried in the avalanche of bills in the House during the close of the session.

Backers of the bill predict that this provision will result in placing on the tax duplicate several millions of dollars of intangible property haver before taxed. Charges for "inspections" are also so restricted as to prevent extortionate collections. All assignments of wages must be filed in the county courthouse, and in no case can more than half a person's salary be taken. Injured persons may recover illegal interest collections by suing either the loan agent or his bondamen. The importance of the meeting at Frankfort, Ky., at which the time "Blue Grass" countles were represented. The representatives were represented to the proposed route of the highway, so as to make its terminus at Cincinnati. They held that no highway would be representative of Dixie which did not pass through the famous Blue Grass district. As a result of this conference at Frankfort, Secretary Edwin L. Quarles, of the Lexington Board of Commerce, communicated with Executive Secretary W. C. Culkins, of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, urging his attendance at a meeting at Lexington.

Consolidate Departments.

Determination has been reached to consolidate the State Departments of Banks and of Building and Loan in spection, now operated by independent staffs of inspectors. With the approval of the state administration, Chairman Frank Reighard, of the Appropriations and Finance Committee, is drafting a bill which soon will be introduced. It will place all building and loan companies under the jurisdiction of the State Banking Department and abolish the separate building and loan organization. Intimation was given that the administration leaders also had decided to support the bill of Representative Charles D. Brown, of Union, strengthening the law for the taxation of building and loan stock.

Secret Probe On.

It was learned that state and government officials are conducting a secret investigation of an alleged conspiracy among cattle dealers and dairymen in the Cincinnati district which, it is said, is the direct result of the foot and mouth disease among dairy cattle. Recent visits of cattle dealers to dairies, followed by an outbreak of the disease in these dairies, has given rise to the suspicion that the spread of the contagion is not due entirely to normal conditions. A clew is being followed which indicates that diseased cattle have been put among healthy herds for the sole purpose of infecting the others.

The first number will be given December first and the others to the three weeks to a month apart. We noticed, last week, a very large stone being drawn by our local teamster, Frank Myers, from the B. & Odeput to the cemetery, and upon inquiring learned that the large stone was for a shaft monument, which was erected unon the Sol Suear family burial lot. We were told that this tapered shaft was eventeen feet long and twenty inches square at its base. It took a force of men, with the aid of a large derrick, three days to erect this shaft upon the pedestal, which is six teet high. It was rather a difficult matter to raise perpendicular a tall shaft weighing over three tons. The pedestal consists of hree blocks concaved to conform with the shaft, which makes a very handsome needle shaft monument, and the first of its kind erected in this vicinity. As a rule they are very seldom seen outside of the large city cemeter's. The material in this gnounent is of Grey Barre, Vermont granite, all fine hammer dressed. We were told by one of the men that the entire weight of monument is over eleven tons and the total height twenty-three feet. The monument is a structive and irs lines symmetrical. Then the telephone in the redoubt brought some news. The staff begged to inform the army that the enemy's casualties in the last three days had been two hundred thousand! #### CHAPTER XIX

In the closet off the Galland library, where the long-distance telephone was installed. Westerling was talking with the premier in the Gray capital. "Your total casualties are eight hundred thousand. That is terrific, Westerling," the premier was saying, "Only two hundred thousand of these are dead!" replied Westerling."

"Only two hundred thousand of those are dead!" replied Westerling. "Many with only slight wounds are already returning to the front. Terrific, do you say! Two hundred thousand in five millions is one man out of twenty-five. That wouldn't have worried Frederick the Great or Napoleon much. Eight hundred thousand is one out of six. The trouble is that such vast armles have never been enaged before. You must consider the percentages, not the totals."

"The public does not know!" said

"The pure. Westerling.
"They guess. They realize that we stopped the soldiers' letters because they told bad news. The situation is

"If they are apprised of our plan and are able to concentrate more artillery than our guns can silence, the losses will be demoralising," he observed. Westerling threw up his head, frowning down the objection.

"Suppose they amount to half the forces that we send in!" he exclaimed." into the position, which means the pass and the range, worth it?"

"Yes, if we both take and hold tit not if we fail," replied Turcas, quite unaffected by Westerling's manner.

"Failure is not in my lexicon!" Westerling shot back. "For great gains there must, be great risks."

"We prepare for the movement, your excellency," answered Turcas. It was a steel harness of his own will that Westerling syore, without admitting that it galled him, and he laid it off only in Martis' presence. With her, his growing sense of isolation had the relief of companionship. She became a kind of mirror of his egoism and ambitions. He liked to have her think of him as a great man unruffled among wealth of the garden, involuntarily as can who has no condidant speaks to himself, reserving fortitude for hie part before the staff, while she, under the spell of her purpose, silently, with serene and wintfully listening eyes, played hors, he outlined how the final and telling blow was to be struck.

"We must and we shall win!" he kept repeating.

"But and a rubber disk held to his car in the closet of his bedroom a voice, tremulous with nervous fatigue, was giving Lanstron news that all his aircraft and cavalry and spies could not have gained; news worth more than a score of regiments; news fresh from the lips of the chief of staff of the enemy. The attack was to be made at the right of Engadir, its center breaking from the redoubt manned by Fracasse's men.

"Marta, you genius!" Lanstron cried. "You are the real general! You."

"Not that, please!" she broke in in my redoubts to pleces; guns enough to make their shells as thick as the bullets from an automatic!"

"Well used as sheavy a shell for him of human being.—a weak lunatic sort of one, just now!" she pr

"Then, soon I'll give the public something to think about, myself!" Westerling broke in. "The dead will be fore porten. The wounded will be proud of their wounds and their fathers and mothers triumphant when our army descends the other side of the range and starts on its march to the Browns capital."

"But you have not yet taken a single fortress." persisted the premier. "And the Browns report that they have lost only three hundred thousand man."

"Go in! Go in, as I toid you!" he cried. "Stay in, alive or dead! Stay! I can't do any more! You must do it now!"

"Then this may be truly the end," thought Marta, "if the assault falls."

And silently she prayed that it would fall; while the flashes lighted Wester-ling's set features, imploring success.

In the Browns headquarters, as in the Graye', telegraph instruments were sellent after the preparations were over. Here, also, officers walked restlessly, glancing at their watches. They, too, were glad that the mist continued. It Here, also, officers walked restlessly, glancing at their watches. They, too, were glad that the mist continued. It meant no wind. When the telegraph did speak it was with another message from some aerostatic officer saying, "Still favorable," which was taken at once to Lanstron, who was with the staff chiefs around the big table. They nodded at the news and smiled to one another; and some who had been pacing stat down and others rose to begin pacing afresh.

"We could have emplaced two lines of automatics, one above the other!" exclaimed the chief of artillery.
"But that would have given too much of a climb for the infantry in going in—delayed the rush," said Lanstron.
"If they should stick—if we couldn't crive them back!" exclaimed the vice-chief of staff.
"I don't think they will!" said Lanstron.

To the others he seemed as cool as ever, even when his malined hand was twitching in his pocket. But now, sud-copping forward, as if he would collapse.
"Oth the murder of it—the murder!" he breathed.
"But they brought it on! Not for Poor Mrs. Smith.

Poor Mra. Smith.

A minister was recounting some of his amusing experiences in marrying people, "There's an old custom," said he, "that the bridegroom shall kiss the bride immediately after the marriage ceremony is over. It's a good, practical custom, for it serves more handily than anything else that I know of to dissipate the awkward pause that almost always follows a simple, informal ceremony. For this reason I keep the custom alive. "One day a man whom I shall call Smith came to the parsonage to be married. Mr. Smith was a pompous, consequential little man. The prespective Mrs. Smith was a fine, win-some girl. After the ceremony, Mr. Smith, in suptie of his pomposity, did not seem to know just what was the next thing to do, so, as is my practice in such emergencies, I said: "My dear sir, it is your privilege to salute the bride." He turned around and extending his hand formally, said: "Are. Smith, I congratulate you."

CELEBRATION IN GREEK COUNTRIES

Intense Fervor and Devotion Shown in Easter Ceremonies-Places of Pilgrimage Numerous.

grimage Numerous.

The All the Greek orthodox countries—
Russia, Roumania, Greece, Bulgaria, Servia, Montenegro, and a large part of Austria-Hungary—Easter is celebrated with great fearor and devotion.
The Easter kiss is a well-known incident of these celebrations. A curious story is told of Czar Nicholas II and the Easter kiss. On leaving his apartments one Easter morning; he kissed the guard outside with the usual salutation, "Christ, is risen," to which the response is, "He is truly risen." But the man answered, coolly, "He is not risen." The emperor was aghast, and shouted, furiously, "He is risen!" But the man, with the utmost composure, repeated his denial. He was a Jewi

Russia, as the premier Greek Orthodox nation, is very much in evidence in the Holy Land, and of late years has asserted her supremacy in the Christondom of the Orient in many ways—not only by generous contributions in magnificent buildings and financially, but also politically fin strengthening the position of the Greek church. Especially at Easter it is interesting to observe the contrasts which take on a certain political hus between Latins, Greeks, Protestants and Gregorians (Armelians).

Greeks, Profestants and Gregorians (Armealans). Protestant religious activity in Jerusalem, which at one time was largely English, has of late years been much strengthened by the influx of German colonists, especially Susbians, Away from the ecclessatical corremonial the pilgrim in Easter time seeks the traditional places where our Lord spent his last days and nights. Of these Gethaemane is the principal goal, and here the difference in creed among the many visitors is obliterated by an earnest and quiet devotion which is unexpectedly free from the emotional.

rhich is mexpectedly free from the motional.

Another figure has a prominent since in Easter celebrations in Jorualem; that of Moses, whose liberation of the Jewish people from the blee of Egypt is commented in the scient Helevey neathst feast, Bur it not the Passever calebrated by the rious Jewish olonies of Palesting-older Spatish-speaking, the Turkating people from Bothara and there central Astatic regions, the thick-speaking leves from Yemes, and Polish, Russian and German lever todish tongue. Jerusalem, the holy city, is the holy Jerusalem, the holy city, is the holy of holies."

The tradition is that Ommi Selma, wife of the prophet, heard these words one day from Mohammed, "He who makes the pligrimage from Jerusalem to Meeca will obtain forgiveness of sina, past and ruture, and will carn paradise."

There is a pligrimage at Easter time which does not go quite as far from Jerusalem as Mecca, but whose goal is the burial place of Moses—Nebil Musa—between the city and the Dead, sea. Although, according to Christian and Hebrew belief, the Lord buried Moses, and his grave is hidden from poeterity, the Mohammedans regard a certain rulned sanctuary, some three or four hours' distance from Jerusalem, as covering the remains of the prophet.

or four hours' distance from Jerusalem, as covering the remains of the prophet.

In cosmopolitan charm Easter in Constantinople almost equals that in Jerusalem. The capital of the Turklab empire is, of course, in itself highly cosmopolitan, and there is no other city in the world where so many languages are heard in the streets, not by foreigners but by the variegated native population. The background here is not Jewish and Mohammedan, as in Jerusalem, but Mohammedan, been a very numerous Armeniae Geben predominate, but there has always been a very numerous Armeniae Hement in Constantinople. The magnifact cent Greek Orthodox ceremonial well reflects the towering strength of that church in the Levant, which for centuries, under the absolute rule of the Ottoman sultans, acted in the capacity of imperial overseer of the Christian peoples under Turkish sway. Until the comparatively recent rise of the Balkan nationalities—Roumanian, Servian, Bulgarian, Montenegriu—Greek was the language of all cultured people of orthodox faith outside of Russia and Austria-Hungary. And Greek intellectual, social and political control through the unifying power of the Greek church was more complete under Ottoman rule than it had been under the Byzantine emperors.

Recent events have once more shown the force of the people of Greek speech. Through the breaking away of the Bulgarian exarchate, Greek in religion, but Bulgarian in ispeech and political aims, it had been temporarily weakened.

Inquisitiveness is not generally regarded as an admirable trait. Yet when inquisitiveness is properly directed. It is one of the most useful habits of mind. A story illustrating this point is told by John J. Arnold, vice-president of the Pirst National bank of Chicago. In a talk to employees of the members of the Chicago Association of Commerce he related the experience of a young man he had known as a boy in a wholesale house in Chicago, where the latter started his career as a helper to a salesman.

started his career as a helper to a salesman.

"He got hold of certain classes of goods." Mr. Arnold said. The names appealed to him. He set to work and studied the history of that particular fabric. He got the name of the factory. He wrote to the factory in England and asked for particulars as to the institution. He studied that institution from one end to the other and he studied all of the fabrics, all of the different things that went to make up that particular piece of goods, and in that way he analyzed every piece of goods that came into his hands. He was not astisfied merely to take the goods and hand them out, but he wanted to know what he was handing out. The result is, to day he is one of the most expert buyers in this city, in one of the createst wholesale houses. Those are the things that count. Argument on Suffrage.

Two women were having a ladylike argument on suffrage in a New York street car. "Tim not so old-fashioned as to insist that our only place is in the home, but—" said the blonde. "Well!" asked the brunette, with battle in her dark eyes. "Couldn't we save all this trouble and fuss by just leaving things as they are? Why can't we go on letting the men represent us? They do the very best they can, and everyone I know has a man somewhere or other in the family." The brunette's voice was, calm, but firm. "Jack is a Republican and I am a Democrat. How can he represent me, when he can cast only one vote." she inquired sternly. For a few minutes the little blonde sat very silent. Then she spoke, "Why, I never thought of that before. If you have a misrefire-sentative man in the family, I stypose you do need the vote." Her voice sank in a whisper. "But please don't say I you do need the vote." Her voice sank in a whisper. #### Prune For An Ideal Tree.

Prune For An Ideal Tres.

The man who intends to develop an orchard or improve one should, according to Prof. R. B. /Cruickshank, of the College of Agriculture, have in mind an ideal tree. A man with such an ideal in mind can train a young tree with more or less foresight and decision. He knows what he wants the tree to look like when it becomes older and he can build it into that shape as it grows. He has something definite from the beginning to work towards. The ideal in the case of the orchardist takes the place of the architect's plans used by the carpenter in building a house. To use further the illustration in the above paragraph, the pruner is like the carpenter who alters and remodels an old house into a new one, sometimes of far different aspect, in accordance with plans already concived and drawn up. Upon approaching a mature tree with the intent of pruning it, the orchardist with an ideal tree in mind is able to see exactly what changes he will be required to make in order to bring the tree into a desirable conformation and general appearance. If it is too high for his ideal he can cut it back; if too thick he can open it up; if too close he can spread it out; if

MORE STRENGTH FOR OLD PEOPLE

Mrs. Hutchison—Eighty-One Years Old—Uses No Oth-er Tonic but Vinol and Rec-Hutchison-Eighty-One ommends It to Friends.

Greenville, S. C. "It is with pleasure I tell others of the great benefit I have desived from Vinol, for the past servaral years. I am fil years old and I find Vinol gives me strength, a healthy appetite and overcomes nervous disorders. Vinol is the only tonic reconstructor I have used for several years. I have recommended it to a great many of my friends and it has always preved actisfactory." — Mrs. M. A. HUTCHIBON, Greenville, S. C.

shle to supply the demand.

It is the thesse building, curative elements of the cod's livers, aided by the blood making strengthening properties of tenic iron contained in Vinol, that makes it is necessaril in building up strength for old people, delicate children and for all run-down conditions. Vinol is also a most successful.

DISORDERS of the stomach and constinution are the most common diseases of children. To correct them you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Tablets. One tablet at bed time will do the work and will make your child bright and cheerful the following morning. Do not punish your children by giving them castor oil. Chamberlain's Tablets are better and more pleasant to take.
