Life-Long Sweethearts Wed.

An event of unusual interest to their friends everywhere was the marriage on Morday afternoon, June 14th, of 16t, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Soi Spear, to Mr. John S. Fleming, member of the old and worthy allied families of Sherman and Fleming.

Mr. and Mrs. Sol Spear, to Mr. John S. Fleming, member of the old and worthy allied families of Sherman and Fleming.

Aithough a yery quiet wedding with only the members of the family present, it was in all respects a wonderful one, for never has such a flood of tender good wishes gone to the marriage altar with any bride in our little city, as filtered with the golden sunshine into the home where the father and mother, whose tender caretaker she is, and where four devoted brothers were bent on expressing in every beautiful way their desire to make her happy.

"All the world loves a lover", and this was a record case of long and persistent wooing, hundreds of friends old and young were glad on the day that saw united two who had been sweethearts all their lives. The solemn marriage rite was performed by Rev. Dr. Henry Englander of Cincinnati. The house was daintily decorated with peonles and white roses and the table on which the wedding dinner was served was laid yith damask, silver, china and crystal, all gifts to the bride.

And the best part of all is, we are still to have them among us; the home in which Mrs. Fleming has been the light and comfort is still to keep her, and this new on is to fill the place made empty by the going out into the world, one by one, of the four other sons.

Mr. and Mrs. Fleming are an investment of the control of Plymouth. They have been with us hand in hand through joy and sorrow. They have actively enlisted in all movements social, moral or docational for the least of the common control ties and we are right glad that one can be solved and opposed by sa said.

Cupid at Work.

Cupid at Work.

The young people of Plymouth need to be on their guard for the mischievous god of the bow and quiver has been getting in some fatal work.

His latest victims are Miss Marian R. Lent and Mr. William L. Bodine, both of Plymouth, who were married at Mansfield, Tuesday June 15, by Rev. S. P. Long.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lent, of Plymouth street, who moved here from Elyria about a year and a half ago. Miss Marian has made many friends here and her pleasant voice will be missed from the telephone exchange when she takes un the duties incident to her new position.

The groom is one of our promising young men and is well known about town.

The happy couple will make their home in the Trauger property on Portner St. We join with their many friends in wishing them happiness.

A delightful social function was the party given by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Heath at their summer home in Midwanga Saturday even-ing, June 12, when the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marian, to Mr. Everette Krueger of Cleveland, was announced.

of their daughter, Miss Marian, to Mr. Everette Krueger of Cleveland, was announced. The cottage was beautifully decorated with oink and white peonies and roses. The announcement was made when Master John Root trought in a large bouquet of roses in the center of which was a dove bowl containing the ring.

After an excellent four-course diner and felicitations for the happy young people the entire company became devotees of Terpsichoic for the remainder of the evening.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. John Root, Miss Bess Root and Miss Wanda Trego of Plwmouth. Mr. and Mrs. Wygel, Mr. Sheet, Miss Kruer, Mr. and Mrs. Murgon. Miss Strock and Mrs. Murphy of Cicveland, Mr. and Mrs. Murgon. Miss Simmons, and Mrs. Kline Heath of Medina, and Mr. Earl Krueger of Sandusky.

He was born in reland, was 25 years old, and leaves two brothers, one a Catholic priest and the others a prominent newspaper editor. His father also met a violent death, being killed in a mine accident some years ago.

His body was removed Saturday and taken to Princeton, N. J., for burial. The unfortunate young man was a good workman and popular among his friends.

Methodist Notes.

The regular services will be held morning and evening next Sunday.
Children's Day was a beautiful day in every way. One child was baptized in the morning. Splendul Children's Day programs were given in the afternoon at McKendree church and in the evening at Plymouth.

The offering for the Student Loan Fund and for Education was as follows: Plymouth Sunday School, $12 00; evening offering, $3.50. McKendree Sunday School, $6.00; total $21.50.

$12.00; evening offering, $3.50. Mc-Kendree Sunday School, $6.00; total $21.50.

The Sunday School has planned for a general picnic for all Methodists and friends to be held this Friday at Carpenter's, one mile north of town. Every family is asked to bring a basket for the general picnic dinner. Baskets are to be brought by ten o'clock to the church and will be taken in a wagon. A general invitation is given to old and young to come and spend a pleasant day with the children.

A Restful Lake Ride.

Travel to be enjoyable must be restful, and at this season of the year whether your trip takes you east or west break its monotony, either at Cleveland or Buffalo, by a refreshing night's trip across Lake Erie on a veritable floating hotel. C. &. B. Line Steamers leave either city every evening and arrive early the next morning.

The fame of the Great Ship "SEE-ANDBEE" is attracting to the route a vast number of travelers to enjoy the delightful lake ride and, at the same time, inspect her magnificent interior decorations, wonderful illuminating system, and other interesting features. The "SEEANDBEE" is the largest and most costly passenger steamer on inland waters of the world; length 500 feet, breadth 98 feet 6 inches, 510 stateroons and parlors accommodating 1500 passengers, equalling in sleeping capacity the largest hotels of the country.

The fares for this lake trio are less than by rail, and also railroad cickets reading between Cleveland and Buffalo are accepted for transportation on all C. & B. Line Steamers.

Claims Surgeon Has Violated Injunction.

junction.

Harry E. Higgins of Shelby, and Isaac A. Raby of Plymouth, have filed a complaint in common pleas court asking that Ross Winbigler be compelled to appear before the court and show why he is practicing as a veterinary surgeon in Crawford and Richland counties after being ordered not to do so by the court.

Higgins and Roby state that in 1911 the common pleas court granted a permanent injunction restraining Winbigler from practicing veterinary medicine and surgery in Richland, Crawford and Huron counties. They state that in violation of this injunction Winbigler has been calling on and prescribing medicine for persons having sick animals in both Crawford and Richland counties.

It is claimed this injunction is still in force and the court is asked to have Winbigler appear and explain why it is being violated.

"No! A thousand times no!" she cried. "I love him. If he were to sak me to be his wife tonight I would rejecte! Someone is coming. Let me say this to you, Mr. Brood: You have brought Frederic up as a butcher fattens the calves and swine he prepares for slaughter. You are waiting for the hour to come when you can kill his very soul with the weapon you have held over him for so long, whiting, waiting, waiting! Bin God's name, what has he done that you should want to strike him down effer all those years? It is in my heart to curse you, but somehow I feel that you are a curse to yourself. I will not say that I cannot understand how you feel about everything. You have suffered. I know you have, and I—I am searry for you. And knowing how bitcher Hife has been for you, I implore you to be merciful to him who is innocent."

The man listened without the slightest change of expression. The lines seemed deeper about his eyes, that was all. But the eyes were bright and as hard as the steel they resembled.

"You would marry him?"

"Yes, yes!"
"Knowing that he is a scoundrel?"
"How dare you say that, Mr.

"Because," said he levelly, "he chinkink he is my son." Voices were sears on the stairs, Frederic's and Twonne's. "He is coming now, my dear," he went on and then, after a passe fraught with significance, "and may wife is with him."

Lydia closed her eyes as if in dire gain. Adry sob was in her throat.

A strange thing happened to Brood, the man of iron. Tears suddenly rushed to his eyes.

A Tempest Rages.

Ranjab was holding the curtains aside

Prederic bomed up behind her, his dark face glowing in the warm light that came from the room. She had changed her dress for an exquisite

Brood interrupted, his tone sharp and inclaive. "The end is in sight. We're a bit feverish over it, I suppose. You see, my dear, we have just escaped captivity in Lhasa. It was a bit thrilling, I fancy. But we've stopped for the night."
"So I perceive," said Yvonne, a touch of insolence in her voice. "You stopped, I dare say, when you heard the vulgar world approaching the inner temple. That is whaf you broke into and desecrated, wasn't it?"
"The inner temple at Lhasa," he said, coldly.

Lydia. "We are working so hard, you make, it would be the propose. You see, my dear, we have just the thilling. I fancy, but we've stopped for the night." So I prevere, and wole. She laid her hand on his arm, an appealing little caress that conquered him in a flash. He clasped her fingers in his and mumbled incoherently as he leaned forward, drawn resintlessly nearer by a strange magic that was hers.

"I am frightened," shuddered Yvonne, wide-eyed with fear. "Do you think."

There came another deafening crash. The giare filled the room with a brilliant greenish hue. Ranjab was standing at the window, holding the curtains apart while he peered upward across the space that separated them from the apartment building beyond the court.

"Take me home, Frederic!" cried Lydia, frantically. She ran toward the door.

Listen to me! Mrs. Desmond is as

"Oh, Freddy," she walled, breaking under a strain that he was not by way of comprehending, "Oh, Freddy, dear!" Her nerves gave way.
She was sobbing convulsively when they came to the lower hall.

arms, mambing inconcreat words of love, encouragement—even ridicule for the fear she betrayed. Far from his mind was the real cause of her unhappy plight.

He held her close to his breast and there she sobbed and trembled as with a mighty, racking chill. Her fingers clutched his arm with the grip of one who clings to the edge of a precipice with death below. Her face was burled against his shoulder.

"You will come with me, Freddyr" she was whispering, clinging to him as one in panic.

"Yes, yes, Don't be frightened, Lyddy. I—I know everything is all right now. I'm sure of ti."

"Oh, I'm sure too, dear. I have always been sure." she cried, and he understood, as she had understood. Despite the protests of Jones, they dashed out into the blighting thunderstoom. The rain beat down in torrents, the din was infernal. As the door closed behind them Lydia, in the cost and the could not grasp, babbled from her lips as they descended the steps. One sentence fell vaguely clear from the others, and it puzzled him. He was sure that she said: "Oh, I am so glad, so happy we are out of that house—you and I together."

Close together, holding tightly to each other, they breasted the whirting sheets of rain. The big umbrella was of little protection to them, although held manfully to break the force of the cold flood of waters. They bent their strong young bodies against the wind, and a sort of wild, impish hilarity took passession of them. It was freedom, after all. They were fighting a force in nature that they understood and the sharp, staccato cries that came from their lips were born of an exultant glee which neither of them could have suppressed nor controlled. Their hearts were as wild as the tempest about them.

Mrs. Desmond threw open the door as their wet, soggy feet came sloshing down the hall. Frederic's arm was about Lydia as they approached,

Mrs. Desmond threw open the door as their wet, soggy feet came sloshing down the hall. Frederic's arm was about Lydia as they approached, and both of their drenched faces were wreathed in smiles—gay, exalted smiles. The mother, white-faced and fearful, stared for a second at the anmaing pair, and then held out her arms to them.

She was drenched in their embrace. No one thought of the havoc that was being created in that swift, impulsive contact.

being created in that swift, impulsive contact.

"I must run back home," exclaimed Frederic. Lydia placed herself between him and the door.

"No! I want you to stay," she cried. He stared. "What a funny idea!" "Walf until the rain is over," added Mrs. Desmond.

"No, no," cried Lydia. "I mean for him to stay here the rest of the night. We can put you up. Freddy. I—I don't want you to go back there until—until tomorrow."

A glad light broke in his face. "By jove, I—do you know, I'd like to stay.

Jove, I-do you know, I'd like to stay, I-I really would, Mrs. Desmond, Can you find a place for me?" His voice was eager, his eyes sparkling, "Yes," said the mother, quietly, al-

"Thank you," he etammered, and his

"Now get out of those coats, and—oh, dear, how wet you are! A hot drink for both of you."
"Would you mind asking Jones to send over something for me to wear in the morning?" said Frederic, grinning as he stood forth in his evening clothes.

Tem minutes late, as he sat with them before an open fire and sipped the toddy Mrs. Desmond had brewed, he cried. "I say, this is great!"
Lydia was suddenly shy and embarransed.
"Good night," she whispered. Her fingers brushed his cheek lightly. He drew her down to him and kissed her passionately. I have been down to him and kissed her passionately, in the condition of the cried of the cried. The said, soully, his cheek flushing.

Bhe went quickly from the room.

Suddenly he dropped to his knees and burled his hot face in the cool, white sheets, and kissed them over and over again. Here was sanctuary! His eyes were wet with tears when he arose to his feet, and his arms went out to the closed door.

"My Lyddy!" he whispered chokingly.

Back there in the rose-hued light of James Brood's study, Yvonne cringed and shook in the strong arms of her husband all through that savage storm. She was no longer the defiant, self-possessed creature he had come to know so well, but a shrinking, trembling child, stripped of all her bravado, all her arrogance, all her seeming guile. A pathetic whimper croomed from her lips in response to his gentle words of reassurance. She was afraid—desperately afraid—and she crept close to him in her fear.

And he? He was looking backward to another who had nestled close to him and whimpeped as she was doing now—another who had lived in terror when it stormed.

CHAPTER XII.

The Day Between.

Frederic opened his eyes at the sound of a gentle, persistent tapping on the bedroom door. Resting on his elbow, he looked blankly, wonderingly about the room and—remembered. It was broad daylight. The knocking continued. He dreamed on, his blinking eyes still seeking out the dainty, Lydialike treasures in the enchanted room.

Lydialize transpared from the following process of colock. Or will you have your breakfast in bed, sir?" It was Lydia who spoke, assuming a fine Irish brogue in imitation of their little maid of all ork.

"I'll have to, unless my clothes have

"They are bere. Now, do hurry."
"They are bere. Now, do hurry."
He sprang out of bed and bounded cross the room. She passed the gar-nents through the partly opened aross the room. She passed the garments through the partly opened door.

He was artistic, temperamental. Such as he have not the capacity for haste when there is the slightest opportunity to dream and dawdle. He was a full quarter of an hour taking his tub and another was consumed in getting into his clothes. He sallied forth in great haste at nine-thirty-dive and was extremely proud of himself, although unshaved.

His first act, after warmly greeting Mrs. Desmond, was to sid down at the plane. Hurriedly he played a few jerky, broken snatches of the hauning air he had heard the night before. "Two been wondering if I could remember it," he apologized as he followed them into the dining-room. "What's the matter, Lydia? Didn't you sleep well? Poor old girl, I was a beast to deprive you of your bed—"I have a mean headache, that's all," said the girl, quickly. He noticed the dark circles under her eyes, and the queer expression, as of trouble, in their depths. "It will go as soon as I've had my coffee."

Night with its wonderful sensations was behind them. Day revealed the shadow that had failen. They unconsciously shrank from it and drew back into the shelter of their own misglivityings. "As joyous abandon of the night before was dead. Over its grave stood the specter of unext, leering. He came over and stood beside her. His long, allm fingers joined hers on the keyboard, and the sensous strains of the waltz responded to his touch. He smiled patiently as ghe struggled to repeat what he had played. The fever of the thing took hold of him at last, as she had known it would. Leaning over her shoulder, his cheek quite close to hers, he played. Her hands dropped into her lap. Finally she moved over on the bench and he sat down beside her. He was shoorbed in the undertaking. His brow cleared. His smile was a happy, eager one.

"It's a tricky thing, Lyddy," he said, enthusiastically. "but voull get it.

"It may as well be now as later on.
We've got to come to an understanding."
Her heart was cold. She wis afraid of what would come out of that "understanding." All night long she had lain with wide-staring eyes, thinking of the horrid thing James Brood had said to her. Far in the night she aroused her mother from a sound sleep to put the question that had been torturing her for hours. Mrs. Desmond confessed that her husbane had told her that Brood had never considered Frederic to be his son, susthen the two lay side by side for the remainder of the night without uttering a word and yet keenly awake, They were thinking of the hour when Brood would serve notice on the intruder!

Lydia now realized that the hour was near. "Have it out with father," he had said in his ignorance. He was preparing to rush headlong to his doom. The Proudest Moment.

"Oh, no! A fellow's proudest moment was not the time he came out on top in his first scrap with "the kin next door." Nor was it the first time he "saw" Mary Jane home from the party. Nor, again, was it when she "named the day." It wasn't when he made his biggest business deal; got his largest raise; became a partner in the concern and was paying an income tax.
And while this, too, was a proud moment, the proudest of all was not when the first-born came, nor was it when the youngster first lisped "dada." VALUE OF THE "SCRAP HEAP" ndary Metals" Have Added Mu to the Wealth of the United States.

In 1914 the value of the "secondary metals," exclusive of gold, silver, platinum, iron and steel, recovered in the United States was $45,039.706, according to J. P. Duning of the United State geological survey. This is a decrease from 1913 of $15,746,331, the secondary metals recovered in that year being valued at $47,288,027.

The term "secondary" does not imply that these metals, which are reported to the secondary metals, we see place, adminings, or see the secondary does not imply that these metals, which are required to the secondary metals, which are required from ore. While the survey figures relative to lead, zinc, coperaluminum, the nad antimony given in this statement cover a large field and form an essential addition to the reports on primary metals, the scope of the inquiry probably reveals less than one-half the extent of the waste-metal trade. The value of the old iron and steel reused amounts to millions of dollars.

Needed the Hammer.

A guner of the Garrison artillery, who had successfully passed an armorer's course, was at home on furlough, wearing the usual decoration of the hammer and pineers on his right sleeve, when he was accosted by a civilian, who asked what the decoration signified. "Oh," replied Tommy, humorously, "I'm a qualified army dentist." "I see," said the civilian. "Of course, the pincers are for extracting teeth; but what is the idea of a hammer?" "Well, you see," rejoined the soldier, "some of the chaps are a bit nervous, and are afraid to take chloroform, so as a substitute we use the hammer to knock them unconsclous with."

What interested Him. Uncle Ben Barnstraw's city nephew took him into a fire station one night just in time to see the fire laddies shinning like squirrels down a pole from their quarters overhead. ### WORK WITH THE FLOWERS

By JOSEPHINE DE MARR.

Do not neglect the winter garden, even though the plants are at their best. Turn the plants once a week: stir the surface soil; wash the pots with strong soapsuds; give plenty of fresh air daily; shower the plants once a week; watch for poets; see that the warm sunshine does not scorch your plants on warm afternoons.

He could not help being a boy that all the ladies wanted to pe the period of the period when he would have a say so in the matter of being kissed. One day a famous woman came to call upon his mother. Jimmy chanced to enter the parlor and was directed by his mother to come up and see the noted Mrs. So and So. Jimmy knew what was coming, but he could not prevent the occurrence. The visitor took him by the hand and gently gathered him up into her lap, and as she let him down to the floor again she graciously bestowed a kissupon his pouting lips. Jimmy jumped away from her and began to rub his lips in a vicious manner.

"What, you are not rubbing my kiss off, my little man?" questioned the woman. Jimmy was puzzled for a few moments, then replied.

"No, ma'am, I'm just rubbing it in, and then vanished through the door.

going to try to put New York City 'on the water wagon."

He officially declared war on. "demon rum" when he sent to the advisory council of the department of health a mandatory letter calling for the immediate organization of a special committee to put into force a campaign against the use of spirituous liquors in New York City.

Biggest Job Ever Undertaken.

Dr. Goldwater said ridding New York of the curse of liquor was the biggest job ever undertaken by a health department and that his campaign would be the first fight on liquor ever waged by health officials. He thought an anti-liquor campaign under the direction of health officials was just where it belongs, for the greatest harm done by liquor, he said, was to the physical well being of the victims and their families.

"This is a big job," said Dr. Goldwater. "It is the biggest job the health department could undertake, it is not to be a listless sort of fight; I mean business. The time has come when something must be done. "It is admitted that most of the crime and poverty of the city can be traced to the use of alcoholic liquors. It is no use for us to go on fighting disease and crime if we don't do something to abolish the chief factor in causation."

Asked if the regulation of the liquor and was aduly of the health depart.

in causation."

Asked if the regulation of the liquor traffic was a duty of the health department, Dr. Goldwater replied:

"Anything that affects the health of the people of the city is a subject of concern to the health department. Opposition Won't Stop Him.

Or concern to the leafy is a subject of concern to the health department.

Opposition Work Stop Him.

There is too much liquor consumed in New York City; there are too many people sick from it. That's enough for me. I don't care at this time to go into a technical discussion of whether a small amount of alcohol is or is not a poison. There is enough used by many people to poison them. "We expect opposition, but that won't stop us. We know that physiologically the case against alcohol is strong. A substance which is protoplasmic poison, it lessess the vital resistance, hinders the progress of the community. Tosters poverty and all the diseases which spring from powerly and is something the use of which calls for vigorous handling by the decade allow the community. German forces operating in Galicia have captured the town of Mosciska, a great strategic point.

Mosciska is situated on the River Wysznia and is an important town on the railway running between Przemysi and Lemberg. It is 37 miles west of the Galician capital. The struggle for this position has been particularly desperate since June 8, when the Austro-German forces opened the attack on the place with an extremely active artillery fire.

Recent Russian official statements announced that the Teutonic aillies were employing, saphyxiating shells and were sending masses of infantry to assault the town.

The 2,500,000 patrons of the surface and elevated lines, who found their usual means of transportation at a complete standstill, made a holiday of the occasion. They swarmed into the loop and to places of business outside in all manner of conveyances until the streets were congested almost to the point of impassibility. Thousands were late for work, but no one seemed to mind it in the least.

All day long the streets of the loop were crowded as never before and at, the home-going rush hour the scenes downtown were unparalleded. By eight o'clock, however, the rush and hurly-bund were on their way.

Milwaukee, Wis, June 15.—Eighteen persons are known to be dead, and reports of sixty injured filtered in here over partially restored means of communication, as the result of the violent tornade storm which swept Wisconsin Saturday night-from the Mississippi river to Lake Michigan. The storm struck most violently in the neighborhood of Ferryville, Wis. where sevap persons were killed and eighteen injured, some of whom may die. At Lansing, In., just across the Mississippi from Ferryville, five were killed and thirteen injured.

Two persons were killed at Racine, Wis., and three at Reedsburg, two were reported to be dying today. One person was killed and livree hurf at Baraboo, Wis. Other citles where the storm caused the injury of residents were Oshkosh, Maßison, Tunnel City. Sparts and Eau Claire.

In addition to this damage, the river steamer Frontenac, bound down the Mississippi, was dashed by the gale into the bridge at Winosa and sunk. The steamer was carrying an excursion party, and after the collision the collision the collision the collision the collision the

The storm at Ferryville was the most serious. This village, between Prairie du Chien and La Crosse, was swept by the storm and practically wiped out of existence. The property loss there alone was $50,000, representing nearly the entire village valuation, and about $50,000 damage was done at La Crosse.

Most of the dead and injured at Ferryville were in two houses, those of J. C. Finley and Francis McKanus being destroyed. The dead are:

William Sheely, Chicago: Mrs. J. C. Finley, Erroy Finley, John Leppert, Genevieve Leppert, nine years old daughter of John Leppert; unidentified stranger, Mrs. J. C. ### OF INTEREST TO SHIPPERS eration of Great Northern Pacific Steamship Company.

Portland, Ore., June 12.—Unusuat: public interest is centered in the interstate commerce commission hearing to be held in San Francisco June 22, to determine whether or not the operation of the Great Northern Pricific—Steamship—company—between Portland, Flavel-Astoria and San Francisco is in violation of the interstate commerce law which prohibits railroad corporations from owning and controlling stock in competitive steamship lines. Shippers of the Northwest are interested in the outcome for the reason that the service afforded by the Great Northern Pacific Steamship company between these points is finden and the service afforded by the Great Northern Pacific railway, which hereafore has had a virual monopoly of the freight carrying business between Portland and San Francisco.

The contention of the Pacific coast-shippers is that the law under which investigation is being made was created for the express purpose of preventing railway companies from buying competitive steamships for the purpose of eliminating competition, and that an adverse ruling in the case of the Great Northern Pacific Steamship company would result in depriving the shippers and travelers of Portland, Seattle, Spokane and other Washington, Montana. Minnesota, North Dakota and California points of the additional service which the two pissesger-express boats of the line have furnished them.

An Ohlo suffrage convention, it was announced at Congressional Union headquarters, will be held the last of the present month. The exact time for it will be set by Miss Vernon after she reaches Columbus. At this convention a state organization will be formed, consisting of a chairman, vice chairman, secretary and treasurer, and state headquarters will be opened at Columbus. The organization will then be continued into each of the 22 congressional districts by the election of a district chairman, vice chairman, secretary and treasurer. The departations that will call on the members of Congress will be recruited from among their respective constituents. An Ohio suffrage convention, it was mounced at Congressional Union

Game Preserves Are Lost to State

Hopes of establishing state forest, bird and game preserves despite the vectoring by Gov. Willis of the Klous bill. Intended to permit that, have been given up temporarily, it was announced at headquarters of the agricultural commission. No legal means of considerations of the contractions of the contraction nounced at headquarters of the agri-cultural commission. No legal means of spending state money for that pur-pose could be found except by enact-ing new legislation. Ggw. Willis gave as his reason. Or disagororing the bill that it might promote a ensurement of the ture years of spending too much mon-ey on lands and too little on the hard kame propagation. General John C. Speaks, state fish and game warden, and Benjamin F. Gayman, secretary of the agricultural commission, during the last year, had lend a movement to secure legislation by which a certain proportion of the money from hunt-ers' licenses could be used in buying lands, preferrably cheep hilly and for-set covered territory in southern Ohlo for state preserves.

Referendum Wanted.
Prospects, for a referendum on the McDermott Hignor license "decentraltzing" bill have been increasing according to agents who are authority for the statement that while no definite decision has been formulated to get up referendum petitions there is strong likelihood that the bill will be submitted to a decision of the voters.
Within a few days a general canvass of the sentiment upon the bill has been made and generally the liberais are said to favor the plan of suspending the operation of the "decentralizer" and giving the voters an opportunity to pass upon it.

State Highway Inspectors Wanted.

State Highway inspectors Wanted.

The June number of the state civil service commissioner's buildin issued-calls for a number of examinations, with probably the most important that for inspectors in the state highway department. Tests for these positions, many of which will be open in various counties, will be held June 22 to June 25. The pay ranges from 31 to $4 aday. Full information can be obtained from the commission.

Must Secure License.

Residents of houseboats along the Ohlo river, or any other navigable stream in the state, must secure a license for their boats, Attorney General Turner declared in an opinion given to the Bureau of Accounting. Cincinnati police are said to have made a number of arrests of river dwellers recently because they falled to show a license from the Probate Court.

Clean bills of health are given to the Clean bills of health are given to the state tax commission and the state printer's office in reports filed with the auditor of state. There are no findings and no criticisms. The printing bills of the state for the years 1913 and 1914 are found to be very heavy, $197. $37.86 for 1918 and $170.331.72 for 1914.

Articles of incorporation, not for profit, have been filed with the secretary of state by the Ohio Sunday-school association, which, with the secretary of state) by the Chio Sunday-school associestish, which, after 56 years of informal existence, will put itself in position to own and control property. This move is made in anticipation of favorable action at the state Sunday-school convention at Zanesville, June 23, 23 and 24, when a plas will be submitted for raising a fund of $100,000, part to be employed in the purchase of permanent head-quarters for the state association work and the remainder to go to an endowment fund, the proceeds from which will be used to support new work not possible with the revenues now available.

Letters of inquiry, directed to every county in the state, have produced hearty commendation of the plan from a large number of leaders in Sunday-school work. It is estimated that there are 1,000,000 Sunday-school attendants in Ohio, so that a contribution of 10 cents each will raise the desired fund. A conference of all courty and township executive officers and Sunday-school superintendents has been called to meet in Zanesville, June 23, during the state convention, to advise on this subject.

Vigorous Campaign.

Vigorous Campaign.

The first batch of petitions to initiate state-wide prohibition in Ohio reached the Anti-Saloon League head-quarters here from Fairfield county, it is announced, and show that 500 persons who voted againat prohibition last year signed the petitions to submit the question again this year. The number of signers this year was 3,520 against 1,600 hast year. On these figures the "dry" forces are predicting that the prohibition amendment will carry this fail. Wayne B. Wheeler denied that the prohibition amendment will be abandoned if no referendum on the McDermott bill is attempted by the liberal forces. It is announced the anti-prohibition forces are preparing to wage a vigorous campaign.

Returns Show Gains

Returns Show Gains.

Complete returns from 14 taxing districts in various sections of the state to the state tax commission show an average net locrease in the value of personal property listed of 5 per cent over last year's valuation. These same taxing districts show an average net decrease of $5 in the cost of listing property. In only three instances did assessors draw more pay this year than last. Only one district showed a decrease in the value of property listed. This decrease amounted to 5.8 per cent. Though the reports do not include returns of banks, incorporated companies and utilities. Chairman Boyle, of the tax commission, says indications are that these returns will show satisfactory increases also.

Three Reasons Given.

Three Reasons Given.

Wayne B. Wheeler, superintendent of the Ohlo Anti-Saloon league, after hearing from $8 county chairmen, makes the prediction that "Ohlo will go dry in November." In reviewing forces under his command he pointed out these things: "There are three reasons why Ohlo will go dry. First, we have a better organization than last year on the day before election, and we have over five months in which to build up our present foundation. Second, our workers are more alert, are on the qui vive. Over-confidence was one of the things which contributed to our defeat last year. Third, we will have over $250,000 to spend in education, as against $150,000 last year."

New Feature Added.

One of the many new features for the state fair this year will be an automobile show, at which dealers and manufacturers will make their first display of 1916 models. One entire building will be used for the automobile exhibit and 40,000 square feet of space will be occupied. Practically every automobile dealer in Columbus has been assigned space. Band concerts will be given in the auto building both day and night.

Ohioan Passes Test.
Lester S. Ivins, of Lebanon, state supervisor of agricultural education in the Southwestern Ohio district, received word from the agricultural department at Washington to the effect that he made the highest grade in the civil service examination for the position as expert in the school and home gardening department of the United States bureau of education. The position pays $3,000 a year.

Not a Dead Letter.

Not a Dead Letter.

State Budget Commissioner Pullington dug up an ancient law, subjecting to $1,000 fine a state officer who spends more than the legislature appropriated for his department, and intimated strongly this law would be found not to be a dead letter if the practice of creating deficiencies were not stopped.

Suit is Brought.

suit is Brought. The state civil service commission brought sait in the supreme court to compel the board of administration to appoint J. Frank Lumb, a blind man, superninement of the school for the blind, in place of Horace C. Maurer, who was named by the board last fall to succeed E. M. Van Cleve, resisted. Maurer and Lumb took the civil service examination for promotion and Lumb made the higher trade. He was certified by the civil service commission for appointment, but the heard refused.

Infantry Brigades WIII Go Camp at Yellow Springs in July and August.

Western Newspaper Union News Service. Columbus, O.—In preparation for the summer encampment of two infanthe summer encampment of two infantry brigades of the Ohio, National Guard at Yellow Springs, the quartermaster's department of the adjutant general's office will within a short time let contracts for upward of $12,000 of provisions. The brigades will encamp separately, the First from July 25 to August 2 and the Second from August 9 to 16. In the First brigade there will be approximately 2,800 officers and men, and in the Second 2,500 men. Compulsion of the expense of keeping the men shows that the item of food alone will average 90 cents a day for each man, leaving out of consideration the equipment and other supplies. National Guard officers say that the figures for the encampment turnish a faint semblance of an idea of what it would cost to maintain an army in the field.

Under stress the claim is made that the Buckeys state alone could put in the field half a million men available for military duty. But the cost of food for this army would dispel all thoughts of economy in state government. Using encampment figures as a basis the food alone, were present prices levels to be maintained, would cost for a year upward of $55.000,000. This is three times the annual expenditure of the state government in all departments, including the maintenance of 22,000 wards of the state and an ambitious highway program. brigades of the Ohio National "Hearts—crush them! Love—tear it up by the roots! Charity—sliminate it! I hate all the world! I am going to device my time, my money, my life to adding all the evil I can to humanity.

Thus Peter Martin, pacing up and down his office in a wild frensy.

His closest business friend, John Jarvis, had induced him some time previous to invest nearly half his fortune in an extensive mining proposition. Suddenly the shares had gone down. It was predicted that they would go lower. Peter, not wishing to lose all of his investment, sold out at a tremendous loss. Now he learned that the very man who had bought his stock through a broker was John Jarvis, who had left the city and the stock had immediately gone up twenty points.

His soul was drifting, seeking solace, and in the winning way of Miss Jarvis he found an indescribable peace from the wild turmoil of his riotous emotions. And because this lonely woman had always respected and admired himand something more—her ways had a new fluttering beauty about them, captivating her visitor more than ever. "A charming woman, truly," reflected Peter, as he left her. "What a life of peace I could live with her, but—No! to crush! to destroy! I have set out on a career of wild wickedness!" Again that evening what Peter was sure was in the pursuance of his heartbreaking scheme, influenced him to visit Miss Jarvis. He was greeted with surprise. "I have had a strange letter from

It is hard to believe that coffee will put a person in such a condition as it did an Ohio woman. She tells her own story:

I did not believe coffee caused my trouble, and frequently said I liked it to well I would not, and could not, quit drinking it, but I was a miserable sufferer from heart trouble and nervous prostration for four years.

'I was scarcely able to be around, had no energy and did not care for knything. Was emaciated and had a constant pain around my heart until I thought I could not endure it.

Prequently I had nervous chills and the least excitement would drive sleep away, and any little noise would upset me terribly. I was gradually getting worse until finally I asked myself what a the use of being sick all the time and buying medicine so that I could induspe myself in coffee?

'So I got some Foastum to help me quit. I made it strictly according to directions and I want to tell you that change was the greatest step in my life. It was easy to quit coffee because I now like Postum better than the coffee.

Politics Not Played For Effect, as Two Years Ago — Appropriation Bill Gives Unfortunates One and a Half Millions and Still Saves Two Mil-lions as Compared With Cox Rec-ommendations.

The outstanding feature of the propriation bill passed by the legisla-ture is that the Willis administration ture is that the Willis administration gives one and a half million dollars toward improving the conditions under which the state's unfortunates must live, as compared with barely $357,000 given by the Cox administration. Because Governor Cox cut out building appropriations, Ohio's unfortunates were crowded into attes and hundreds were refused admission to the institutions intended for their care. The Willis administration has given five times as much, and would have given more if the money lad been available.

It is significant that the most notable expression of commendation of the be leading Democratic members of the bouse.

Democratic papers have a great "havd" about the total of the appropriation. They do not tell the read, the appropriation. They do not tell the read, the appropriation bill only told a part of the story. Their cover of "recel is and balances," thousands of dollars of expense was concealed. Under tease bill, very dollar is apportion a send shown up. When the deductions for the care of the state's unfortunates and the extra time this bill must cover (by reason of a rearrangement of the fiscal year) are considered, it leaved dent to the most cossal examiner that great savings have been used.

The most interesting thing about the appropriation bill, probably, is the fact that, after all, it is almost two million dollars under the Hefferian budget recommendations submitted by Governor Cox, "with his approyal."

The Beitler Bill Defeated.

But for the obstructive tactics of the Democratic minority in the house, the Warnes law would not have been upon the statute books during the assessment this spring. The Beitler bill to give at once the taxation machinery in the various counties into the hands of the county auditors required a two-third's vote to prevent delay by the Initiative and referendum, and would have saved half a million dollars of useless expense, but the Republicans had not the necessary two-thirds vote. State Chairman Finley refused to permit the Democratic members to vote for it, although a number of their wished to.

Attacks On the Willis' Administration by a Combination of Newspapers. Legislators, Grafters and Cox Machine Hands—Beitler Bill Cost 100 Official Heads.

Columbus.— (Special.)—An imperative duty of the general assembly which finished its work on May 27, was to return to the people powers which they had been recently robbed of and to reduce the number and size of salaries.

The record shows that they fulfilled this obligation, aithough a powerful minority in each house was taught tricks of obstruction by Manager Finely, who was asked by telephone for instructions in detail whenever a fight was on, and an expensive campain of abusive misrepresentation was carried on from Cox headquarters, across the street from the statehouse.

The conspiracy to discredit the Vills administration was enthusiastically abetted by the thousands put in effice to perpetuate the power of the autocrat and by the grafters who feared in the same and be accomplaned by a fine centralized tax law, enacted as the so-called Warnes law, which took from the people the right to select tax assessors and placed 2,068 Jobs at the filipposal of the governor. The Parreit: Whittemore bill to carry out the will of the people in this regard is now upon the statute books and assessors will again be elected in November.
