

Memorial Day.

Once more has Memorial Day come and gone. Once more the fast thinning ranks of the boys in blue have assembled to scatter flowers on the graves of their fallen comrades and to receive the homage of a grateful people. And once more our young people have received a forceful lesson of patriotism while they passed beside the graves of the nation's dead.

The services began with the annual memorial sermon which was delivered by the Rev. C. F. Mott at the Methodist church Sunday morning. Mr. Mott took as his text, Ex. 12-14, "This day shall be unto you for a memorial." His sermon was replete with patriotic sentiment well given.

On Monday promptly at 1:30 p. m. in line of March, consisting of the veterans in autos preceded by the School Band and followed by the school children carrying flowers, marched to the cemetery where an interesting program was given and the children strewed their flowers in honor of the men who died that they might enjoy a free and united nation.

The procession then returned to the church where the program as published last week was completed closing with an excellent address by the Rev. G. H. Crafts, the speaker of the day.

Special mention should be made of the excellent music furnished by the Public School Band.

Plymouth vs. Galion.

It took ten innings to decide the ball game played Memorial Day on the local diamond between Galion high school, with some additions, and Plymouth high school. The game was characterized by considerable loose playing and some "bonehead" work in both teams. Our boys were handicapped by the absence of two or three of the regular team but that should easily have taken the game but for some costly errors. The game was scoreless up to the third inning when Galion gathered in two scores and our boys were again popular until the fatal seventh when Galion gathered in three scores presented them by our kindhearted boys but failed to be equally generous in return until the ninth inning when Plymouth made a Becker pitched great ball and should easily have won the game. Batteries, Plymouth, Becker and Brumbach; Galion, Edler and Huffman. Strikeouts; Becker 18, Edler 13. Bases of balls, Becker 2, Edler 0. Hit by wild pitcher, Edler 2, Becker 0. Umpires, Brown, Brown, Brown. Time, two hours and ten minutes.

Suddenly Called by Death.

Mrs. Hattie Matthews, relict of William Matthews, who for nearly fourteen years past, has been practically an invalid, passed suddenly and quietly away at the home of her niece, Mrs. Michael Dick, on Broadway, Thursday evening, May 28, death being due to a paralytic stroke. It however, having come as a welcome release from her long years of pain and suffering.

Hattie Myers was born in New York state Aug. 10, 1841, and died at the home of her niece, Mrs. Michael Dick, at the age of 74 years, 9 months and 17 days.

At the age of 25 years she was united in marriage to Mr. William Matthews, and thereafter lived happily together until the sudden death of Mr. Matthews on Sept. 1st, 1908.

Mrs. Matthews leaves to mourn her death, three brothers, Edward of Lebanon, Ore., Frank of Fremont, and George of Corrothers, and four sisters, Eliza Tinker of Detroit, Mich., Augusta Ringle and Mrs. Ida Sourwine of Plymouth, and Minnie Feggies of Tiffin, and a large circle of other relatives and friends.

Each in life she identified herself with the Baptist church of Attes, Ohio, and with christian fidelity gave to it her service of love.

Grammar School Commencement

The annual commencement exercises of the grammar school were held in the Methodist church Wednesday afternoon. A large crowd was present and fully enjoyed the excellent program which was rendered by the class assisted by the High School orchestra and the pupils of the seventh grade. The numbers were all well given and a veral were especially good. The class history and prophecy brought forth several laughs at the expense of the various members of the class. The church was tastefully decorated in the class colors, green and white. The entire program certainly reflects great credit on the teacher, Miss Kenebec.

The close of the programs the diplomas were presented to the class by Supt. Kern and seventeen Freshmen were ushered into high school. It is to be hoped that each member will persist until he has received a better diploma four years hence.

Class Sermon.

The baccalaureate services of the class of Fifteen of the Plymouth High School were held Sunday evening in the Methodist church, the class sermon being preached by the Rev. C. F. Mott. Mr. Mott took as his subject, "The Horizons of Life," and used the life of Joseph as a background for his discourse.

The horizons of youth are wide. They are the realm of dreams which should not be taken lightly. The world's great achievements have been the result of dreams. Great structures must first exist as the dream of the builder. Youth has played no small part in the world's making.

After all, the horizons of life are narrow. Hopes and dreams are limited by circumstances. Many people by the time they reach the age forty count life a failure and give up in despair. Stand by the young people and help them realize their dreams.

The narrow horizons of life serve a useful purpose and may be God's plan, since narrow vision brings concentration. Narrow horizons also help a man to make his own. There are no narrow horizons to the life with a purpose.

Narrow horizons may be indefinitely expanded. Heredity and environment should be subordinated to will. Beat down the barriers by the development of the God-given faculties, physical, mental, moral, and spiritual. Aim at the highest self-realization. Finally, hold sacred the inspirations of youth.

In a brief exhortation to the class the speaker emphasized the necessity of thorough preparation for life and the value of a college education. He also reminded them of the debt they owed the community, the board of education, their parents, and their teachers.

The address was scholarly and logical and thoroughly pleased the large audience who had gathered to do honor to the class of Fifteen.

OBERLIN BUSINESS COLLEGE

Making Fine Offer to Teachers and High School Graduates.

Summer Term Begins June 7, '15

Next Monday, June 7, is the date announced for the opening of a new term at the Oberlin Business College and many new students will enter then. The Special Offer of $100 for the year's course to teachers and high school graduates will expire June 30, 1915. That it surpasses other business schools in equipment, courses, class of students and grade of teachers is evidenced by the fact that it has been recognized by the State Department of Public Instruction of Ohio for training teachers of commercial branches.

Fine positions await those who complete their training at the Oberlin Business College both in teaching and business positions. With another new building and with state recognition this school is in stronger position than ever before.

Superintendent Found Guilty.

After deliberating for nearly two hours on the case of the state against Solomon Beard, the New London school superintendent charged with assault and battery, the jury returned a verdict of guilty of assault.

The controversy arose over punishment administered to the 15-year-old daughter of Mrs. Emma Aten. It developed from the testimony that Mrs. Aten went to the office of Superintendent Beard to remonstrate against the manner of punishment he had inflicted. Beard, she charged took her to hold of her arm and shoved her causing her to strike chair nearby, inflicting black and blue marks upon her arm and limb.

The case will be appealed by the defendant.

Richland Is Placed in New 13th District.

Richland county is placed in the new thirteenth bio congressional district as a result of the passage of the rerrymander by the general assembly in its closing session at Columbus Saturday. Seneca, Huron, Wyandot, Crawford, Ashland, Wayne and Holmes are the other counties in the district, and to all intents and purposes it is about as thoroughly a Democratic district as could have been organized.

Hon. William A. Ashbrook, present representative from this district will have a new fight on his hands as the result of the re-districting. He is placed in the new 13th district, which includes Marion, Morrow, Knox, Licking and Coshocton counties. He will have as his rival John A. Key, of Marion.

The former rerrymander gave the Democrats 12 and the Republicans 19 districts based on the vote for president in 1908. At the election in 1914 there were 13 Republicans and 9 Democrats chosen. The latest re-districting is calculated to give the Republicans 16 and the Democrats 6 districts and to make one doubtful.

OLDER BUT STRONGER

To be healthy at seventy, prepare at forty, in woman's attire, because in the strength of middle life we too often forget that neglected colds, or careless treatment of slight aches and pains, simply undermine strength and bring chronic weakness for later years. To be stronger when older, keep your blood pure and rich and active with the strength-building, and blood-nourishing properties of Scott's Emulsion which is food, a tonic and a medicine to keep your blood rich, alleviate rheumatism and eradic sickness. No alcohol in Scott's. (Scott & Brown, Bloomfield, N. J.)

SYNOPSIS.

In the New York home of James Brood Dawes and Eliza, his two old pensioners and, comrades, await the coming of Eliza's son Frederic to learn the contents of a wireless from Brood, but Frederic, after reading, throws it into the fire and leaves the room without a word. Frederic tells Eliza and Lydia, his fiancée, that the wireless contains orders for an immediate departure from the house prepared for an immediate departure. Mrs. Dawes, the housekeeper and Lydia's mother, tries to cool Frederic's temper at the impending departure of Brood and his bride. She wins Frederic's liking at first meeting. Brood shows dislike and violent hostility to his son Lydia and Mrs. Brood meet in the study room, where Lydia writes as Brood's secretary. The room, dominated by a great gold Buddha, Brood's father's collection, is furnished in a tasteless, effeminate style. Mrs. Brood, after a talk with Lydia, which leaves the latter puzzled, is distressed by the attitude of Ranjab, the Hindu servant of Brood. Mrs. Brood makes changes in the household, and gains her husband's consent to send Mrs. Dawes and Lydia away. She tries to soothe the mystery of Brood's separation from his first wife, and his dislike of his son, but fails. Frederic visits Lydia and her mother in their new home, and she tries to induce him to feel Ranjab in his unbecoming appearance and disappearance and Frederic, remembering his mother's tales of magic and firm belief in magic, fears unthinkingly evil. Ranjab performs feats of magic for Dawes and Riggs.

CHAPTER VII—Continued.

Then, before they started, horror-struck eyes, the Hindu coolly placed the glittering blade into his breast, driving it in to the hilt!

"Good Lord!" shouted the two old men.

Ranjab serenely replaced the sword in its scabbard.

"It is not always the knife that finds the heart," said he, so slowly, so full of meaning, that even the old men grasped the significance of the cryptic remark.

"A feller can be fooled, no matter how closely he watches," said Mr. Dawes, and he was not referring to the amazing work trick.

"No, sir," said Mr. Riggs, with gloomy intolerance. "I don't like that woman."

The old spell of the Orient had fallen upon the ancients. They were looking at the watching, said the voices that came from nowhere, as they had heard them years ago in the mystic silences of the East.

"Sh! One comes," said Ranjab, softly. "It will be the master's son."

An instant later his closet door closed noiselessly behind him and the old men were alone working speedily, his chest heaving with the volcanic emotions he was trying so hard to subdue. Then he whirled about, to glare into the hall.

"In God's name, Freddy, boy, what's happened?" cried old Mr. Riggs, all astounded.

Some minutes passed before he could trust himself to speak. Ugly tears stood out on his pale temples, as he paced the floor in front of them. Eventually Mr. Dawes ventured the vital question, in a somewhat hushed voice.

"Have you quarreled with your father, Freddy?"

"No, you mean I threw up my arms in a gesture of despair. There was a wall of misery in his voice as he grated out:

"In the name of God, why should he hate me as he does? What have I done? Am I not a good son to him?"

"Hush!" implored Mr. Dawes, nervously. "He'll hear you."

"Hear me!" cried Frederic, and laughed aloud in his recklessness. "Why shouldn't he hear me? By God, I'll not stand it a day longer. He wouldn't think of treating a dog as he treats me. God, I—I, why, he is actually forcing me to hate him. I do hate him! I want to hear him, it was in my heart to kill him down there just now. I—I. He could not go on. He choked up and the tears rushed to his eyes. Abruptly turning away, he threw himself upon the couch and buried his face on his arms, sobbing like a little child.

The old men, distressed beyond the power of speech, mumbled incoherent words of comfort as they slowly edged toward the door. They tiptoed into the bedroom door was closed behind them. Mr. Dawes even tried it to see that it was safely latched.

The curians parted and Yvonne looked in upon the wretched Frederic. There was a look of mingled pain and commiseration in her wide open eyes. For a moment she stood there regarding him in silence. Then she swiftly crossed his room to the couch in the corner where he sat huddled up, his shoulders with a shudder, the misery that racked him. Her hand went out to touch the tumbled hair, but stopped before contact. Slowly she drew back, with a glance of apprehension toward the door of the Hindu's closet. An odd expression of alarm crept into her eyes.

"Frederic," she said, softly, almost timidly.

He lifted his head quickly, and then sprang to his feet. His eyes were wet and his lips were drawn. Shame possessed him. He tried to smile, but it was a pitiful failure.

"Oh, I'm so ashamed of—or—" he began, in a choked voice.

"He named because you have cried?" she said quickly. "But no! It is good to cry—it is good for women to cry. But when a strong man breaks down and sheds tears, I am—oh, I am heart-broken. But come! You must go to your room and bathe your face. Go at once. Your father must not know that you have cried. He won't consider him a brute. Is that it?"

"D—n him!" came from between Frederic's clenched teeth.

"Hush!" she cried, with another glance at Ranjab's door. She would have given much to know whether the Hindu was there or still below stairs. "You must not say such—"

"I suppose you're trying to smooth things, but that they won't consider him a brute. Is that it?"

"Hush! Please, please! You know that my heart aches for you, my son. It was cruel of him, it was cowardly, yes, cowardly! Now I have said it! She drew herself up and turned deliberately toward the little door across the room.

His eyes brightened. The crooked sneer turned into an imploring smile.

"Forgive me, Yvonne! You must see that I'm beside myself. I—I—"

"But you must be sensible. Remember he is your father. He is a strange man. There has been a great deal of bitterness in his life. He—"

"But I can't go on the way things are now. He's getting to be worse than ever. I never have had a kind word from him, seldom a word of any description. Never a kind look. Can't you understand how it goes me to—"

"I am your friend," she said slowly. "Is this the way to reward me?"

"I dropped to his knees and covered her hands with kisses, mumbling his plea for forgiveness.

"I am so terribly unhappy," he said over and over again. "I'd leave this house tonight if it were not that I can't bear the thought of leaving you, Yvonne. I adore you. You are everything in the world to me. I—"

"Get up," she cried out sharply. He lifted his eyes in dumb wonder and adoration, but not in time to catch the look of triumph that swept across her face.

"You will forgive me?" he cried, coming to his feet. "I—I couldn't help saying it. It was wrong—wrong! But you will forgive me, Yvonne?"

She turned away, walking slowly toward the door. He remained rooted to the spot, blushing with shame and dismay.

"Where are you going? To tell him?"

"He waited an instant, and then came toward him. He never could have explained the unaccountable impulse that forced him to fall back a few steps as she approached. Her eyes were gazing steadily into his, and her red lips were parted.

"That is as it should be," she was saying, but he was never sure that he heard the words. His knees grew weak. He was in the toils! "Now, you must pull yourself together," she went on in such a matter-of-fact tone that he straightened up involuntarily. "Come! Wipe the tear stains from your cheeks."

He obeyed, but his lips still quivered with the rage that had been checked by the ascendancy of another and even more devastating emotion. She was standing quite close to him now, her slender figure swaying slightly as if moved by some strange, rhythmic melody to which the heart beat time. Her eyes were soft, and velvet again; her smile tender and appealing. The vivid white of her arms and shoulders seemed to shed a soft light about her, so radiant was the sheen of the satin skin.

"She moved closer to him, and with her hand brushed his cheek and his forehead, laughing audibly as she did so; a low gurgle of infinite sweetness and concern.

He stood like a statue, scarcely breathing, the veins in his throat throbbing violently.

"There," she said, and deliberately touched the nape of his neck with her smiling lips, before replacing it in her bodice, next to the warm, soft skin. "I have been thinking, Frederic," she said, suddenly serious. "Perhaps it would be better if we were not alone when the others came up. Go at once and fetch the two old men. Tell them I expect them here to witness the magic. It appears to be a family party, so why exclude them? Be quick!"

He dashed off to obey her command. She lit a cigarette at the table, her unambling eyes fixed on the door of the Hindu's closet. Then, with a little sigh, she sank down on the broad couch and stretched her supple limbs in the ecstasy of complete relaxation.

The scene at the dinner table had been most distressing. Up to the instant of the outbreak her husband had been in singularly gay spirits, a circumstance so unusual that the whole family wondered at it. If the others were vaguely puzzled by his high words and stretch her supple limbs in the ecstasy of complete relaxation.

with Miss Followell. He took in the situation at a glance. Was it really the best of her eyes as he saw the two old men?

Frederic came down from the window, somewhat too swiftly for one who is moved by shame and contrition, and faced the group with a well-assumed look of mortification in his pale, twitching face. He spoke in low, repressed tones, but not once did he permit his gaze to encounter that of his father.

"I'm awfully sorry to have made a nuisance of myself. It does go to my head and I—I dare say the heat of the room helped to do the work. I'm all right now, however. The fresh air did me a lot of good. Hope you'll forgive my foolish attempt to be a devil of a fellow." He hesitated a moment and then went on, more clearly. "I'm all right now, father. It shall not happen again, I can promise you that."

A close observer might have seen the muscles of his jaw harden as he uttered the final sentence. He intended that his father should take it as a threat, not as an apology.

Brood was watching him closely, a puzzled expression in his eyes; gradually it developed into something like admiration. In the clamor of voices that ensued the older man detected the presence of an underlying note of censure for his own behavior. For the first time in many years he experienced a feeling of shame.

Someone was speaking at his elbow. Janey Followell, in her young, enthusiastic voice, thrilled something at her in utter amazement. It was no longer a matter of belief that he could not believe he heard right. He mumbled in a questioning tone, "I beg your pardon?" and she repeated her remark.

"How wonderfully like you Frederic is, Mr. Brood!" she said added: "Do you know, I've never noticed it until tonight. It's really remarkable."

"It is a most gratifying discovery," said he, and turned to speak to Mrs. Desmond. He did not take his gaze from Frederic's white, set face, however; and, despite the fact that he knew the girl had uttered an idle commonplace, he was annoyed to find himself studying the features of Matilda's boy with an interest that seemed almost laughable as he considered it later on.

His guests found much to talk about in the room. He was soon being dragged from one object to another and ordered to reveal the history, the use and the nature of countless things that obviously were intended to be just what they seemed; such as rugs, shields, lamps, and so forth. He was ably assisted by Messrs. Riggs and Dawes, who lied prodigiously in a frenzy of rivalry.

"What a perfectly delightful Buddha," cried Miss Janey, stopping in front of the idol. "How perfectly lovely he is—or is it a she, Mr. Brood?"

Frederic joined Lydia at the table. "A delicious scene, wasn't it?" he asked, bitterly, in lowered tones. "I'm awfully sorry, but I must go. I'll see you later."

"Don't take it so seriously, Lyddy," he said, squeezing her hand gently. Both of them realized that it was the nearest thing to a caress that had passed between them in a fortnight.

"Dear old girl, my dear old girl," he whispered brokenly. Her eyes radiated joy, her lips parted in a wan, tremulous smile of surprise, and a soft sigh escaped them.

"My dear, dear boy," she murmured, and was happier than she had been in a long time.

"See there, old chap," said one of the middle-aged gentlemen, again consulting his watch as he loudly addressed his host. "Can't you hurry this performance of yours along a bit? It is after ten, you know."

"I'll summon the magician," said Brood. "Be prepared, ladies and gentlemen, to meet the devil. Ranjab is the prince of darkness."

He lifted his hand to strike the table that stood near the edge of the table.

Involuntarily four pairs of eyes fastened their gaze upon the door of the Hindu's closet. Three mellow, softy reverberating "booms" filled the room. Almost instantly the voice of the Hindu was heard.

"Aha, sahib!"

He came swiftly into the room from the hall, and not from the closet. The look of relief in Yvonne's eyes was more than she had ever before seen in the faces of the two old men—and knew!

"After we have had the feast of magic," Brood was saying. "Miss Desmond will read to you, ladies and gentlemen, that chapter of our journal—"

"The 'Gard'?" groaned both of the middle-aged gentlemen, looking at their watches.

"—relating to—"

"You'll have to excuse me, Brood, really, you know. Important engagement uptown—"

"Sit down, Cruger," exclaimed Hodder. "The lady won't miss you."

"—relating to our first encounter with the great and only Ranjab," pursued Brood, oracularly. "We found him in a little village far up in the mountains. He was under sentence of death for murder. By the way, Yvonne, the kris you have in your hand is the very weapon the good fellow used in the commission of his crime. He was in prison, and was to die within a fortnight after our arrival in the town. I heard of his unhappy plight and all that had led up to it. His case interested me tremendously. One night, a week before the proposed execution, my friends and I stormed the little prison and rescued him. We were not getting over the chlosters and needed excitement. That was fifteen years ago. He has been my trusted body servant ever since. I am sure you will be interested in what I have written about that thrilling adventure."

Yvonne had dropped the ugly knife upon the table, but it was a thing that scorched her fingers.

"Did he—really kill a man?" whispered Miss Janey, with horror in her eyes.

"He killed a woman. His wife, Miss Janey. She had been faithless, you see. He cut her heart out. And now, Ranjab, are you ready?"

The Hindu saluted. "Ranjab is always ready, sahib," said he.

CHAPTER IX. The Sorceress.

The next day, after a sleepless night, Frederic announced to his stepmother that he could no longer remain under his father's roof. He would find something to do in order to support his self. It was not impossible to be pretending that he loved or respected his father, and the sooner the farce was ended the better it would be for both of them.

She, too, had passed a restless night, a night filled with waking dreams, as well as those which came in sleep. She was not getting over the ugly kris in those dreams of hers, and her brown hand that was forever fascinating her with its uncanny deftness. Twice in the night she had clutched her husband's shoulder in the terror of a dream, and he had soothed her with the comfort of his strong arms. She was like a little child "afraid of the dark."

Her influence alone prevented the young man from carrying out his threat. At first he was as firm as a rock in his determination. He was getting his few possessions together in his room when she tapped on his door. After a while he abandoned his task and followed her rather dazedly to the boudoir, promising to listen to reason. For an hour she argued and pleaded with him, and in the end he agreed to give up what she was pleased to call his preposterous plan.

"Now, that being settled," she said, with a sigh of relief, "let us go and talk it all over with Lydia."

He started guiltily. "I'd—I'd rather not, Yvonne," he said. "There's no use worrying her with the thing now. As a matter of fact, I'd prefer that she—well, somehow I don't like the idea of explaining matters to her."

She was watching him narrowly. "It has seemed to me of late," Frederic, that you and Lydia are not quite so—what shall I say?—so enamored of each other. What has happened?" she inquired so innocently, so naively, that he looked at her in astonishment. "I am sure you fairly live at her house. You are there nearly every day, and yet—well, I can feel rather than see the change in both of you. I hope—"

"I've been behaving like an infernal sneak, Yvonne," cried he, conscience-stricken. "She's the finest, noblest girl in all this world, and I've been treating her shamefully."

"Dear me! In what way, may I inquire?"

"I've used to—oh, but why go into all that? It would only sting you. You'd laugh at us for silly fools. But I can't help saying this much—she doesn't deserve to be treated as I'm treating her now, Yvonne. It's hurting her dreadfully and—"

She laughed softly. "I'm afraid you are sending too much of your poor stepmother's," she said.

His eyes narrowed. "You've made me over, that's true. You've made all of us over—the house as well. I am not happy unless I am with you. It used to make me happy to be with Lydia—and we were always together. But I—I don't care now. At least, I am not unhappy when you are apart. You've done it, Yvonne. You've made life worth living. You've made me see everything differently. You—"

She stood up, facing him. She appeared to be frightened.

"Are you trying to tell me that you are in love with me?" she demanded, and there was no longer mockery, gallantry in her voice.

His eyes swept her from head to foot. He was deadly white.

"If you were not my father's wife I would say yes," said he, honestly.

She laughed. "I shall pay attention to such nonsense. You are a honest fool and I won't thank you, thank you more than you have fallen in love with me, so why not? I like you, Freddy. I like you very, very much. I—"

"You like me because I am his son," he cried hotly.

"If you were not his son I should despise you," she said deliberately, cruelly. "I despise you. There, now; we've said enough. You must be sensible. You will discover that I am very, very sensible. It is Lydia whom you love, not I."

"Before heaven, Yvonne, I do love her. That's what I cannot understand about myself." He was pacing the floor.

"But I understand," she said, quietly. "Now go away, please. And don't let me hear another word about leaving your father's house. You are not to take that step until I command you to go. Do you understand?"

He stared at her in utter bewilderment for a moment, and slowly nodded his head. Then he turned toward the door, ashamed and humiliated beyond words.

As he went swiftly down the stairs his father came out upon the landing above and leaned over the railing to watch his descent. A moment later Brood was knocking at Yvonne's door. He did not wait for an invitation to enter, but strode into the room without ceremony.

She was standing at the window that opened out upon the little stone balcony, and had turned swiftly at the sound of the rapping. Surprised gave way to an expression of displeasure.

"What has Frederic been saying to you?" demanded her husband curtly, after he had closed the door.

A faint sneer came to her lips. "Nothing, my dear James, that you would care to know," she said, smoldering anger in her eyes.

"You mean something that I shouldn't know," he grated.

"Are you forgetting yourself, James?" coldly.

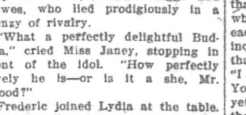

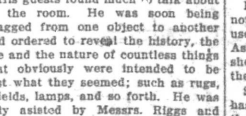

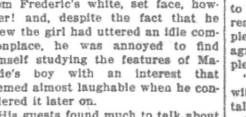

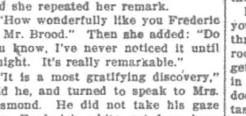

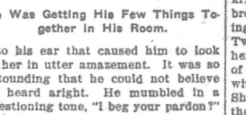

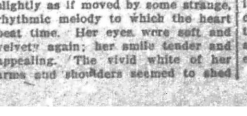

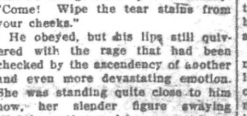

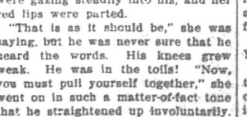

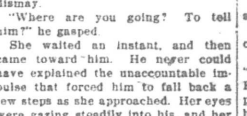

He stared at her incredulously. "Good Lord! Are you trying to tell me what I shall do or say—"

She came up to him slowly. "James, we must both be careful. We must not quarrel." Her hands grasped the lapels of his long lounging robe. There was an appealing look in her eyes that checked the harsh words even as they rose to his lips. He found himself looking into those dark eyes with the same curious wonder in his own that had become so common of late. Time and again he had been puzzled by something he saw in their liquid depths, something he could not fathom, no matter how deeply he probed.

"What is there about you, Yvonne, that hurts me—yes, actually hurts me—when you look at me as you're looking now?" he cried, almost roughly.

"There is something in your eyes—there are times when you seem to be looking at me through eyes that are not your own. It's—it's quite uncanny. If you—"

"I assure you my eyes are all my own," she cried, flippantly, and yet there was a slight trace of nervousness in her manner. "Do you intend

Columbus, June 1.—The number of registered autos in Ohio Tuesday was 144,300 as compared with 122,504 at the close of 1914. It is estimated that there will be 170,000 in Ohio at the close of 1915.

Thus far two free Washington trip offers have been certified to the bureau of junior contests of the state agricultural commission at Columbus from Richland county. Prof. J. F. Bemiller offers a trip for Monroe and Washington townships, while the First National bank of Shelby offers a trip for the best grower in Sharon, Plymouth, Cass and Jackson townships.

There is talk of unifying all the various synods of the Lutheran church in this country. If the program is carried out it will mean that about 2,500,000 Lutherans will be united under one head. The delegates to bring about the consolidation of the Methodist and United Brethren churches have also made some progress and it is probable that a consolidation will be effected within a few years.

The tax returns for Plymouth township, exclusive of Plymouth village, give a grand total of $203,830. The returns for 1914 showed $197,880, making a gain of $6,000. Last year but ten automobiles were owned in Plymouth township. This year there are 21. The mule population just doubled itself, nine being listed in 1914 and 18 in 1915, showing that this humble beast is keeping pace with the automobile in popularity. The township lost in dogs, having 85 this year, compared with 91 last year.

The senate surrendered to the house on the Sprague congressional gerrymander, the measure giving the state a new political map. It passed the house 65 to 26. In the closing hours of the legislature the senate won out over the house and restored a number of salaries that had been cut by the house finance committee. The conference committee reached a compromise on the appropriation bills, striking out the appropriation of $15,000 for a power plant at the Bowling Green normal school.

July 1st will see the U. S. rural delivery of mail extended to more than a million farms not at present receiving the service. This, it is claimed, will be done without additional cost to the public, by the re-adjustment of routes so as to avoid duplications and unnecessary service and by the installation of motor service upon many routes. As the good roads movement bears fruit in the shape of passable highways the year around, more and more routes will be added until practically every farm in the United States will be on a rural free delivery route. This, with parcel post facilities for the market of farm produce, will mean millions of dollars to the American farmer.

If the traveler values his possessions at more than $100 a charge of ten cents for each $100 or fraction thereof will be made.

Methodist Notes.

Last Sunday was a special day enjoyed by all. With the aged members of the G. A. R. present in the morning, a backward glance of praise and thanksgiving was taken in the annual Memorial sermon, and in the evening with the youthful graduates present, in the annual Baccalaureate sermon a hopeful and optimistic glance was taken into the future.

Next Sunday will be Missionary Day in the Sunday School. In the morning church service badges will be awarded to the members of the Go-To-Church-Band who have been present once each Sunday for four months. About twenty-five will receive badges.

One from week next Sunday will be Children's Day which will fittingly be observed both morning and evening. In the morning the pastor will be pleased to christen any babies presented by their parents for that purpose. Speak to him about it.

WILLARD WILL SHOW HOW IT WAS DONE.

Will illustrate How He Won The Championship In The Famous "26th."

When Willard comes to Mansfield, Thursday, June 10, with the 101 Ranch Real Wild West, he will box three rounds with his sparring partner, in the main tent, both afternoon and night. People who saw that famous fight in Havana say it will go down the annals of the pugilistic lane as the most important epoch in all the world of fistic accomplishments. There never was a fight like it. No heavy weights ever withstood the terrific blows that were delivered by those two mighty masses of muscle, and no heavy weight battle ever went so many rounds.

Both men were in the pink of condition. When one realizes they fought one hour and forty minutes, harder than two men ever fought before, and no man could begin to fight that length of time, unless he was in the perfection of pugilistic fitness. During the exhibition of Willard and his sparring partner, the twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth rounds will be illustrated—blow for blow—feint for feint—move for move.

Owing to the fact that the house was sold out shortly after the noon Tuesday and many being unable to attend the class play, The Merchant of Venice up-to-date as rendered by the class of 1915, Thursday evening, it has been decided to repeat the play this coming Monday evening. The admission price will be 15c to any part of the house.
Last Friday evening Supt. and Mrs. C. G. Kern entertained in honor of the Senior Class. Those present were the members of the Senior Class, the teachers, and Miss Feigh Arnold. The guests spent the evening with games and music and did full justice to the dainty refreshments. All agreed in voting Mr. and Mrs. Kern excellent hosts.
Possibly the man who makes two spears of grass grow where only one grew before, is deserving of special honor, but just now we are roundly abusing the man who sold us the fertilizer that is making spears of grass grow twice as long over night as they grew before. We no sooner get our lawn mowed than we have to turn around and mow it again.
The Plymouth High School orchestra went to Norwalk Tuesday evening where they participated in a recital given by Prof. Thayer S. Stewart at the Presbyterian church. There were also present the high school orchestra of Port Clinton, Milan and Huron. One of the pleasing features of the evening was the playing of one number by the combined orchestras. It is needless to say the Plymouth orchestra made a great hit.
The Newark Advocate in its issue of May 24 says: "Mrs. Elizabeth McGruder of 54 Channell street, underwent a serious operation at the Newark Sanitarium on Sunday. She rallied nicely from the shock of the operation." Mrs. McGruder will be remembered as a former Plymouth resident, her husband a few years ago being engaged as clerk at the B. & O. and a post card from him the first of the week says that she is in a very serious condition and very little chance for recovery.

GERMAN REPLY TO WILSON'S NOTE

Withheld's Final Decision On Demands Advanced by U. S. Government.

BLAMES GREAT BRITAIN FOR LIVES LOST ON OCEAN LINER LUSTANIA

Says It Is Not Tusten's Intention to Submit Neutral Ships in War Zone. Which Are Guilty of No Hostile Acts, to Attacks by Submarine or Aeroplane.

Berlin.—Germany withholds its final decision on the demands advanced by the United States government in connection with the sinking of the Lusitania, until the receipt of an answer from the United States to the note which Herr Von Jagow, the foreign minister, has delivered to Ambassador Gerard, in reply to the American note received by the German government on May 15.

In its reply the German government declares that it is not its intention to submit neutral ships in the war zone, which are guilty of no hostile acts, to attacks by submarine or aeroplane; that it is investigating the circumstances in connection with the attacks on the American steamers Cushing and Guilflight, and that in all cases where neutral vessels, through no fault of their own, have been damaged, Germany will pay damages.

The reply urges that in the case of the Lusitania, which Germany alleged was armed and carried large stores of war munitions, it was "acting in justified self-defense in seeking with all the means of warfare at its disposition to protect the lives of its soldiers by destroying ammunition intended for the enemy."

The German government recalls the proposals submitted by the United States government to Berlin and London, designed to end the submarine warfare and the shutting out of food supplies from Germany, which, it declares, failed in its purpose because of the refusal of the British government to agree to them.

The following is the text of the note:

"The undersigned has the honor to submit to Ambassador Gerard the following answer to the communication of May 15 regarding the injury to American interests through German submarine warfare.

"The imperial government has subjected the communication of the American government to a thorough investigation. It certifies also a keen wish to cooperate in a friendly and friendly way in clearing up a possible misunderstanding which may have arisen in the relations between the two governments through the events mentioned by the American government.

"Regarding, firstly, the cases of the American steamers Cushing and Guilflight. The American embassy has already been informed that the German government has no intention of submitting neutral ships in the war zone, which are guilty of no hostile acts, to attacks by a submarine or submarine or aviators. On the contrary, the German forces have repeatedly been instructed most specifically to avoid attacks on such ships.

"If neutral ships in recent months have suffered through the German submarine warfare, owing to mistakes in identification, it is a question of quite isolated and exceptional cases which can be attributed to the British government's abuse of flags, together with the suspicious or culpable behavior of the masters of the ships.

Has Offered Indemnification.

"The German government in all cases in which it has been shown by its investigations that a neutral ship, not itself at fault, was damaged or lost on a fortunate accident, and, if justified by conditions, has offered indemnification.

"The cases of the Cushing and the Guilflight will be treated on the same principles. An investigation of both cases is in progress, the result of which will presently be communicated to the embassy. The investigation, if necessary, will be supplemented by an international call on the international commission of inquiry, as provided by Article III of The Hague agreement of Oct. 18, 1907.

"When sinking the British steamer Falaba, the commander of the German submarine had the intention of allowing the passengers and crew a full opportunity for a safe escape. Only when the master did not obey the order to heave to, but fled and summoned help by rocket signals, did the German commander, and the crew, passengers and crew, by means of a megaphone to leave the ship within 10 minutes. He actually allowed them 23 minutes' time and fired the torpedo only when suspicious craft were hastening to the assistance of the Falaba.

"Regarding the loss of life by the sinking of the British passenger steamer Lusitania, the German government has already expressed its keen regret that citizens of their states lost their lives.

"On this occasion the imperial government, however, cannot escape the impression that certain important facts having a direct bearing on the sinking of the Lusitania may have escaped the attention of the American government.

"In the interest of a clear and complete understanding, which is the aim of both governments, the imperial government considers it first necessary to convince itself that the information accessible to both governments about the facts of the case is complete and in accord.

"The government of the United States proceeds on the assumption that the Lusitania could be regarded as an ordinary unarmed merchantman. The imperial government allows itself in this connection to point out that the Lusitania was one of the largest and fastest British merchant ships, built with government funds as an auxiliary cruiser and carried expressly as such the 'heavy list' carried by the British admiralty.

Alleges Liner Carried Cannon.

"It is further known to the imperial government from trustworthy reports from its agents and neutral passengers that for a considerable time practically all the more valuable British merchantmen have been equipped with cannon and ammunition and with persons who have been specially trained in serving guns. The Lusitania, too, according to information received here, had cannon aboard, which were mounted and concealed below decks.

To direct the particular attention of the American government to the fact that as a special incident in a confidential instruction issued in February, 1915, recommend its mercantile shipping not only to seek protection under neutral flags and distinguishing marks, but also while thus disguised to attack German submarines by ramming. As a special incident, the British government also offered high prizes and has already paid such rewards.

"The imperial government, in view of these facts indubitably known to it, is unable to regard British merchantmen as the one of naval operations specified by the admiralty staff of the German navy as 'undefended.' German commanders consequently are no longer able to observe the customary regulations of the prize law, which they before always followed.

"Finally, the imperial government has to point out that on several occasions, carried Canadian troops and war material, including no less than 5,400 cases of ammunition, intended for the destruction of brave German soldiers who are fulfilling their duty with courage and devotion in the fatherland's service. The British government also offered high prizes and has already paid such rewards.

"The German government believes that it was acting in justified self-defense in seeking with all the means of warfare at its disposition to protect the lives of its soldiers by destroying ammunition for the enemy.

Blames British for Deaths.

"The British shipping company must have been aware of the danger to which the passengers aboard the Lusitania were exposed under these conditions. The company in embarking them, notwithstanding this, attempted deliberately to use the lives of American citizens as protection for ammunition aboard and acted against the clear provisions of the American law, which expressly prohibits the forwarding of passengers on ships carrying ammunition and provides a penalty therefor. The company, therefore, is wantonly guilty of the death of so many passengers.

"There can be no doubt, according to the definite reports of the submarine commander, which is further confirmed by all information, that the quick sinking of the Lusitania is primarily attributable to the explosion of the ammunition shipment caused by a torpedo. The Lusitania's passengers would otherwise in all human probability have been saved.

"The imperial government considers the above mentioned facts important enough to recommend them to the attentive examination of the American government.

"The imperial government, while withholding its final decision on the demands advanced in connection with the sinking of the Lusitania until the receipt of an answer from the American government, feels impelled in conclusion to recall here and now that it took cognizance with satisfaction of the speedy progress of the negotiations between the United States government to Berlin and London as a basis for modus vivendi for conducting the maritime warfare between Germany and Great Britain. The imperial government, by its readiness to enter upon a discussion with the belligerent powers, has demonstrated its good intentions in ample fashion.

The realization of these proposals was defeated, as is well known, by the declinatory attitude of the British government.

"The undersigned takes occasion, etc. JAGOW."

Sea Cliffe and other adjoining towns played the Victrola and ate ham sandwiches. Servants discovered the blaze and saved a quantity of furniture and silverware. Calls for help were sent to the fire department, but no water arrived they found there.

Among the articles taken from the house was a huge Victrola. The firemen stumbled across it and got it going. Some of the women servants fixed up a light lunch, and there in the light of flickering flames was staged a London cabaret which lasted for several hours.

Attempt to Ruin U. S. Guhs. Port, Townsend, Wash.—The discovery that a deliberate attempt had been made to ruin four of the guns at Fort Flagler has so aroused military authorities that orders have been issued denying visitors the privilege of entering any of the forts guarding the entrance of Puget Sound. Extra guards are stationed at all important points.

ITALIANS ARE SIXTY MILES FROM TRENT

Press City On Three Sides and Have Occupied Thirty-seven Villages.

FRENCH CAPTURE MORE GERMAN WORKS

Bavarians Capture Forts on Northern Front of Przemysl—English Mobs Loot Trenches in Revenge for Air Raid.

Rome, via Paris.—Italian troops have occupied thirty-seven villages surrounding Cortina, in the Ampezzo valley. These troops constitute the Italian army, which is invading the province of Trent from the east, simultaneously with invasions from the south and west. Cortina, occupation of which by the Italians has just been announced, lies 60 miles northeast of the city of Trent. The rivers along the front are swollen by the rains and are consequently difficult to cross. This condition has delayed the movements of troops. Mofalcone, to the northwest of Triest, is being closely pressed from the land side by the troops who are advancing from the direction of Corvignano, while from the east it is being menaced by torpedo boat destroyers which have moved up into the Gulf of Panzano. The town itself is only two miles from the sea.

Long range cannon are being transported by the Italians towards the front to be occupied, one of which is within seven miles of Rovereto; 13 miles south of Trent. The whole of the plain of Lavarone is in the hands of the French troops.

French Capture Sugar Factory. London, Eng.—The French have captured the Souchez sugar factory in their drive between Arras and La Bassée, have carried, one by one, several more of the German works in the neighborhood of Neuville, and have repelled the German counter attacks against captured trenches in the woods near the Aix Nouettes-Souchez road. This news was conveyed in the official report from Paris. The German report concerning fighting in the same region states that the French tried to break through the German lines on a front a mile and one-half wide, but the attacks broke down under the German gun fire, the French suffering heavy losses, while those of the Germans were nil.

Bavarians Take Three Forts. London, Eng.—According to official Berlin report three forts just west of Donkowitz on the northern front of Przemysl have been taken by Bavarian troops. This would indicate that the first lines of defense of that city are beginning to crumble. The Berlin report says 1,400 men, practically all of the forts' garrisons remaining alive, were captured, besides 2 armored guns, 15 heavy and 5 light guns.

London, Eng.—The Zeppelin raid on the Metropolitan area has brought a recrudescence of anti-German demonstrations. The feeling against Germans is acute. Mobs have attacked German shops and special constables have had to be called out to deal with the people. The rioters have pulled down the barricades from shops which had been boarded up since the previous disorders, and what furniture and goods remained have been looted. Ninety bombs were dropped by the dirigibles in the raid. Four persons were killed and many injured, but no public building was damaged. This information was given out officially.

Hobo's Paradise Is Gone. Canton, O.—"Hobo's paradise" in Stark county is gone. A cruel sheriff wiped it off the map and his denials are being made by the four winds. There is an old brickyard two miles north of the city and this has been the rendezvous for large numbers of unemployed. Each had some task to perform, such as visiting certain farm houses each day and provisioning the hobo, and the war was fought and refought and the destiny of the nation sealed. Finally the neighbors complained to the county officials.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER WAS DISGRACED

Man in Rockefeller's Employ Makes Charge Against Prober Walsh.

QUOTES OFFICIAL STENOGRAPHIC REPORT

Director of Investigation Into Industrial Relations for the Rockefeller Foundation Answers U. S. Official's Statement.

New York City.—The charge that Chairman Frank P. Walsh of the United States Industrial Relations commission distorted testimony when he issued a statement at Kansas City seeking to make it appear that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was personally responsible for labor conditions in the Colorado coal fields, was made here by W. L. Mackenzie King, former minister of labor for Canada, now director of an investigation into industrial relations for the Rockefeller foundation. His rejoinder follows in part:

King Quotes Paragraph. "No better example could be afforded of the methods adopted by Mr. Frank D. Walsh and of the kind of thing against which I protested so strongly while testifying in Washington than the following paragraph from a statement issued by Mr. Walsh at Kansas City, and which is given to the public in the name of the commission as a whole:

"But, above all, the commission has proved the absolute responsibility of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., himself for everything that happened in Colorado. W. L. Mackenzie King boasted while giving his testimony that the will and conscience of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., were more potent in Colorado than all of the public opinion of all of the people of the United States, and that the American people must look to that one man for an improvement of conditions, by all to be un-American and intolerable."

Extract From Official Report. "That this is a complete perversion of my testimony is shown from the following extract from the official stenographic report:

"Chairman Walsh: 'Is there any force to control the Rockefeller interests in Colorado to do the right thing, if they are not doing the right thing, that the ordinary people in America?'"

"Mr. King: 'If you are speaking of the immediate force and immediate influence, I think that the conscience of young Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is more powerful on that and will affect social conditions in Colorado more than any other single force that you could bring to bear. I think he realizes there is a great work to do there and he intends to have it done.'"

"Chairman Walsh: 'You think that the will and conscience of Mr. Rockefeller, bringing proper conditions and enduring conditions in Colorado is more powerful than the will and conscience of all the balance of the people of the United States, directed in that field?'"

"Mr. King: 'No, Mr. Chairman, I don't put it that way at all.'"

WILL CARRY BECKER CASE TO HIGH COURT

Wife of Condemned Man Says That Her Husband Had Twice Been Offered Immunity if He Would 'Squell.'

New York City.—The fight to save the life of Charles Becker will be carried to the United States supreme court. This was announced Tuesday by Mrs. Becker after a conference with Martin L. Manton, senior counsel in the case. She also asserted that her husband had twice been offered immunity by the district attorney's office if he would "squell," but stated that he has no revelations to make and that none will be made.

For the first time since the conviction of the ex-police lieutenant Mrs. Becker consented to talk in the office of Lawyer Manton. She stated that she will leave no stone unturned to see that her husband gets justice. At present she has no intention of appealing personally to Gov. Whitman.

It will be claimed that Becker's constitutional rights have been violated by stories circulated before his trial concerning both him and John Becker, his brother. One of these was a charge by the district attorney's office that John Becker was encouraging perjury. The other was a story given out by Katherine Davis, commissioner of charities and correction, to the effect that Becker headed a conspiracy in the Tombs that had as its object the displacing of the prison management.

MAINE IS DEDICATED TO THE MAINE DEAD

Memorial Erected in Arlington National Cemetery Is Unveiled.

PRESIDENT WILSON AND GOV. WILLIS THERE

Ohio's Executive, in Speech, Eulogizes 254 Americans Who Lost Lives When U. S. Ship Was Blown Up in Havana Harbor.

Washington, D. C.—Unveiling and dedication of the Maine memorial monument, erected by the government to the dead of the battleship destroyed 17 years ago in Havana harbor, was the principal feature of Memorial day ceremonies in Arlington national cemetery.

President Wilson, Secretary Bryan, Secretary Daniels, and Gov. Frank B. Willis of Ohio were on the program. The monument dedicated to the Maine dead is the mainmast and fighting top of the battleship, which long lay imbedded with other wreckage in the bottom of Havana harbor. Restored and rigged as it was on the deck of the Maine, it now arises from a granite and marble base chiseled in the form of a gun turret with the names of the Maine's 254 victims carved on its curved exterior.

In his address Gov. Willis said: "In these epochs of silence sleep a race of heroes. Here are those whose names are known round the world—great captains of the grand armies whose titanic conflict shook a planet. The fame of these great chieftains is secure, their place in history is assured. As these great leaders of a generation gone march at their heads on fame's eternal camping ground, let us keep green the memory of the common soldier in the ranks, who won battles and by his valor gave place in history to the officers who commanded while he executed. These soldier boys, sleep you on a hillside and in vale. And besides these there is a vast unnumbered host of unknown dead."

"Over yonder rest the remains of the boys who went down with the Maine. Reverence Dead, Honor Living. "We are not to reverence the dead and honor the living; as we drop a tear and ponder on the grave of every American soldier, let us pin a flower on the breast of every soldier living."

"Blue and gray sleep here side by side—there are tears and love for the gray, love and tears for the blue. Their conduct, inspired by a common patriotism, for the truth and for their valorous deeds, fully realize that ours is a nation of peace, not a nation of war."

"This nation must remember that there is a heroism of peace as well as a heroism of war. He who calms, patiently, considers and unceasingly does his best to perform his duty to his family, to society and the state, though he may be to fortune and fame unknown, is nevertheless rendering a high public service."

"The president of the United States is making a successful effort to keep our minds from the trials of Europe. Now is the time to keep cool, think carefully and stand by the president. He and his cabinet know vastly more of our delicate relations with European belligerents than the rest of us can possibly know; let us hold up his hands in the patriotic effort he is making in this crisis."

"Our flag must mean the same to all the world that it means to us—it must stand for calm courage, steadfast devotion and lofty purpose in all our dealings with foreign nations. Rightness is the strength of our cause. "America is for the preservation of the rights of America, for equity and justice and peace with honor. These that flag symbolizes."

LYDIA'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Have All Gone Since Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Terre Hill, Pa.—"Kindly permit me to give you my testimonial in favor of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When I first began taking it, I was suffering from female troubles for some time and had almost all kinds of aches—pains in lower part of back and in sides, and pressing down pains. I could not sleep and had no appetite. Since I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the aches and pains are all gone and I feel like a new woman. I cannot praise your medicine too highly."—Mrs. AUGUSTUS LYON, Terre Hill, Pa.

It is true, that nature and a woman's work has produced the grandest remedy for women's ills that the world has ever known. From the roots and herbs of the field, Lydia E. Pinkham, forty years ago, gave to womankind a remedy for their peculiar ills which has proved more efficacious than any other combination of drugs ever compounded, and today Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is recognized from coast to coast as the standard remedy for women's ills.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health—many of them openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; and in some cases that it has saved them from surgical operations.

Before starting on the right track, be sure you are headed the right way.

YOUR OWN DRUGGIST WILL TELL YOU Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Write for Book of the Day to Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham Co., Lowell, Mass.

We and the British Have Sweet Teeth. Britons have the sweet tooth, and Americans come next, if the statistics for consumption of sugar mean anything. An Englishman eats annually 92.4 pounds, an American consumes 79.2 pounds. In Denmark the average consumption is 72.6 pounds per capita. Switzerland it is 65 pounds; in Germany, Holland, Sweden and Norway it is from 39 to 44 pounds; in France, 35 pounds; in Belgium, 23; in Austria, 24.2; in Spain, 15.8; in Portugal, 15.4; in Russia, Romania and Serbia, from 8 to 7 pounds.

The principal reason for these variations is found in the relative richness or lowness of the customs duties on sugar and on the things with which it is commonly associated—coffee, tea, etc.

CLEAR-HEADED.

Head Bookkeeper Must Be Reliable.

The chief bookkeeper in a large business house in one of our great Western cities speaks of the harm coffee and tea did for him:

"My wife and I drank our first cup of Postum a little over two years ago, and we have used it ever since, to the entire exclusion of tea and coffee. It happened in this way: "I had an attack of neuritis, which left me with dyspepsia, or neuralgia of the stomach. My 'cup of cheer' had always been coffee or tea, but I became convinced, after a time, that they aggravated my stomach trouble. I happened to mention the matter to my proper one day, and he suggested that I give Postum a trial. "Next day it came, and we liked it so much that we will never change back; for I am a well man today and have no medicine."

"He was as chief bookkeeper in our Co's bank. I have here is of a very confining nature. During my coffee drinking days I was subject to nervousness and the 'blues' in addition to my sick spells. These have left me since I began using Postum and I can conscientiously recommend it to those whose work confines them to long hours of severe mental exertion."

Are Your Kidneys Weak?

Do you know that death from kidney troubles are 100,000 a year in the U. S. alone? That death has increased 75% in 20 years? If you are run down, feel weary, nervous, "blue" and "dreadful," if you have backache, dizzy spells and urinary disorders, act quickly. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. No other medicine is so widely used, none so highly recommended.

An Ohio Case

C. O. Moorhead, 302 N. Washington St., Greenfield, Ohio, writes: "I wasn't able to work on account of kidney troubles, rheumatic pains and a bad headache. The kidney pills were necessary. Doan's Kidney Pills improved my back and made my kidneys act normal. I gained in flesh and felt better in every way. Now when I catch cold on my kidneys, Doan's Kidney Pills give me quick relief."

DRIVER WAS BUSINESS MAN

Saw More Profit in Hauling Stranded Automobile than in Selling Him Gasoline.

Mack Bennett was going to the San Diego fair in his car. About three o'clock in the morning, and twenty miles from nowhere, Mack found that his supply of gasoline had given out.

There was nothing to do but sit by the side of the road and wait for something to come along, which Mack proceeded to do. He had waited but a few minutes when he heard the sound of wheels on the road and soon a wagon was distinguishable in the dark.

"There's a ten spot in it if you haul me to town," hailed Mack. The driver readily consented and Mack settled down for a three-hour ride. They were drawing into a little burg when Mack remarked that it was rather early for the driver to be on the road.

"Yes," he replied, "but I have to start early to get around to all my customers." And as Mack handed him the ten spot for his work, the man continued: "You see, I peddle gasoline to the stores in the small towns around here."—Photoplay Magazine.

How it Happened. "I can't do a fool thing with that darn camel," growled Noah, as he came into his cabin for supper.

"What is the matter with him?" asked Mrs. Noah. "Why, he didn't like the quarters I gave him, and he got his back up about it, and he can't get it down again," replied Noah.

Strictly Up to Date. "How old is your baby brother, little girl?" "He's a this year's model."

More Words Followed. "I'm a woman of my word," said Mrs. Preboscumb, with an air of finality. "Indeed you are, my dear," said Mr. Preboscumb.

"When I go out I don't come home and tell an improbable yarn about where I've been." "No, you don't, my dear," replied Mr. Preboscumb mildly, "but that may be due to the fact that I have never had sufficient courage to ask you where you have been."

Boston's Advantages. Mrs. Gotham—"But your streets in Boston are so crooked." Mrs. Hubb—"And yours in New York are so straight."

"But aren't straight streets an advantage?" "Why, no. Now in Boston one can walk and talk and get some place, but in New York you can walk and talk and get nowhere."

High-Browed Help. "I see where there is a plan on foot to make every servant girl an 'educated household scientist'."

"Do you think that is practicable?" "It's hard to say. My experience and observation is that a 'scientist' in the kitchen means a dyspeptic in the dining room."

Incidental Advertising. "I suppose you think that if you abandon your old party you will deal it the finishing blow?"

"Not necessarily," answered Senator Sorghum. "My leaving it may help it a little by calling attention to the fact that it still exists."

OHIO LEGISLATURE IS ADJOURNED

SESSION COVERED PERIOD OF FIVE MONTHS—CONGRESSIONAL RIPPER MADE A LAW.

SOLONS GET SALARY OF 1916

Next Legislature Will Have Eight Added. Members—Process is Fixed by Constitution.

Western Newspaper Union News Service. Columbus.—With final action upon the budget bills of the state administration and the enactment amid stormy times of the congressional ripper, the Eighty-first general assembly adjourned sine die, having been in session 144 days, or nearly five months. Extraordinary work on the part of the joint committee of conference upon the budget was responsible in a large measure for the conclusion of the session to harmonize the differences between the house and senate, created by the large increases made by the last-named body and objected to by the first named. In high part among the transactions of the day was the defeat of the last two measures upon the labor program, one to provide one day's rest in seven for all industrial workers and the other to compel railway companies to equip their locomotives with automatic fire doors to protect firemen.

Demands Monument. That steps will be taken immediately to frustrate an attempt on the part of officials of the University of Michigan to have the proposed monument to Henry Miller (Mueller), a famous Ohio dentist and scientist, unveiled at Ann Arbor instead of Ohio State University, was announced by Senator Erastus G. Lloyd and other alumni of Ohio state. Miller was born in Johnstown, Licking county, Ohio, and after receiving his medical education in Ohio, went to Berlin to take his post graduate and research work in dental and medical courses. Here he attracted much attention from the German scientists by his unusual ability and success in research and he was persuaded to accept a professorship at Berlin university.

Death Rate Lower. The Columbus District Nursing Association is proud of the figures issued by the board of health showing that the Columbus death rate for children under two years of age, from diarrhea and enteritis, is the lowest of any large city in the state, for the association has been working with that end in view for a number of years. The association is now making visits to about 1,300 homes in which there are babies under two years of age. It doesn't make any difference, any more, whether people be rich or poor, educated or ignorant, if there is a baby in the house, a district nurse is very likely to drop in to see how it is getting along; to see if mother needs any advice; to give her every assistance possible in keeping her baby well.

Five Year Fight Ends. The Safe Cabinet Company of Marietta won in the supreme court a five-year fight against the Globe-Wernicke Company of Cincinnati. The Marietta company sued to prevent the Cincinnati concern from infringing on its patents rights on a cabinet safe. W. O'Hara, master commissioner named to the appellate court, will drop the amount due the Safe-Cabinet Company from the Globe-Wernicke Company.

For Prohibition. Three hundred teams of four men each have been formed among the students of Ohio universities and colleges under the name of the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association of Ohio, according to an announcement here at the headquarters of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League. The teams, the announcement says, will work for the adoption of the proposed prohibition amendment to the state constitution.

Tribute For Ohio Soldiers. Governor Willis, in his Memorial day proclamation, urges that, in addition to the usual exercises held on Memorial day, bells be tolled for five minutes at noon. The proclamation says: "While we drop a tear and place a wreath on the grave of every soldier dead, let us pin a flower on the breast of every soldier living. Reverence for the dead, honor and respect for the living."

Chaplain Sues Court. Citizens desire for economy brought about prayers at reduced rates. The compensation of Chaplain W. A. Ferrine, of Columbus, was reduced from $500 to $400 by the Senate Finance Committee.

Ohio State Meet. College and high school athletes from all parts of the state gathered here for the preliminary events of the Ohio "Big Six" conference track and field meet, which was held on Ohio field.

New Districts Formed.

In the passing of the gerrymander bill the house won a big victory. Practically all of the districts in which the house was most interested were left unchanged. The districts which are permitted under the new bill to be Democratic are the Third, Fourth, Ninth, Twelfth and Twenty-first. Here are the new districts:

First—Eastern part of Hamilton. Second—Western part of Hamilton. Third—Montgomery, Preble and Butler.

Fourth—Allen, Putnam, Mercer, Auglaize, Shelby and Darke. Fifth—Williams, Fulton, Henry Deane, Wood, Paulding and Van Wert.

Sixth—Ross, Fayette, Highland, Clinton, Warren, Clermont and Brown. Seventh—Clarke, Miami, Greene, Madison and Pickaway.

Eighth—Hancock, Hardin, Logan, Union, Delaware and Champlain. Ninth—Lucas, Ottawa, Sandusky and Erie.

Tenth—Scioto, Adams, Pike, Vinton, Jackson, Gallia and Lawrence. Eleventh—Fairfield, Hocking, Perry, Athens and Holmes.

Twelfth—Franklin. Thirteenth—Seneca, Huron, Wyandot, Crawford, Richland, Ashland, Adams and Hamilton.

Fourteenth—Licking, Coshocton, Knox, Morrow and Marion. Fifteenth—Muskingum, Guernsey, Morgan, Noble, Monroe and Washington.

Sixteenth—Columbiana, Jefferson, Harrison and Belmont. Seventeenth—Summit, Portage, Medina and Licking.

Eighteenth—Stark, Carroll and Tuscarawas. Nineteenth—Mahoning, Ashtabula and Trumbull.

Twentieth—Western part of Cleveland. Twenty-first—Eastern part of Cleveland.

Twenty-second—Balance of Cuyahoga, Geauga and Lake.

Many Citizens Were Active. Not a dissenting voice was cast in either branch of the general assembly against the Harding bill designed to allow the city council of Cincinnati to establish a municipal planning commission. Hamilton county delegation members worked hard for the bill and were gratified at the assistance they received from their colleagues. In the house no word of debate preceded the passage, while Senators Louis B. Pink and W. R. Collier explained the measure briefly to the senate.

The bill was passed by both houses in less than half an hour. Senator Pink was instrumental in getting the bill on the preferential or "litney" calendar when other house members were struggling for preference for favored bills. The governor is expected to sign the measure, although he earlier doubted the wisdom of rushing it through at the final hour. The delegation received the thanks of the women who were actively interested in pushing the bill.

Four-Year Term. Through the reappointment of Clinton Cowen to be State Highway Commissioner for the four-year term beginning June 16, 1916, an unusual legal question is raised. Cowen's term expires June 16, when the Senate will not be in session. In order to confirm him in his position for the full four years it is proposed to confirm him now, although his term has not expired. Lawyers to whom the matter was submitted doubted the legality of the action proposed to be taken. It will not be questioned, however, unless Gov. Frank B. Willis should not succeed himself and the next governor should desire that Cowen be ousted.

Conference Report. Adopted by both House and Senate was the Conference Committee report on a bill creating the Ohio Building Commission, which is to have charge of the construction of a new office building to house state offices that can not be accommodated now in the Statehouse. As adopted the measure provides for a commission of seven, four of whom are to be members of the General Assembly, two from the House and one from the Senate, and to be of opposite politics; and two members of opposite politics of the Board of Administration.

Searchlights Will Be Installed. Powerful searchlights are to be installed upon the towers used by wall guards at the penitentiary. This plan has been resorted to by Warden Thomas with a view to preventing escapes from the big state prison and to putting an end to the numerous, mysterious, nightly hold-ups, assaults and robberies which have taken place recently in the vicinity of the prison walls.

Application Refused. Refusal to grant the application of the newly created Ohio Gas and Electric Company for permission to issue stock and bonds announced by the state public utilities commission, has apparently ended a pretentious plan of some promoters. This company, which was recently incorporated, had five separate stocks and bonds applications filed with the commission.

Object to Big Profits. Charges that a syndicate organized by J. F. Morgan, of New York, may make $4,000,000 for marketing $10,000,000 in bonds, Attorney H. B. McGraw, of Cleveland, asked the State Utilities Commission to rescind its order allowing the New York Central lines to issue $10,000,000 in bonds for the purpose of increasing its capital from $300,000,000 to $400,000,000. McGraw, representing stockholders of the New York Central, said that the commission's order, allowing sale at 95 of the securities, paved the way.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS TO MEET

STATE CONVENTION WILL BE HELD AT ZANESVILLE, OHIO, JUNE 22 TO 24.

PROGRAM IS BEING ARRANGED

Zanesville Preparing to Care for Five Thousand Visitors—Souvenirs Made of Art Pottery.

Western Newspaper Union News Service. Zanesville, O.—Sunday-school superintendents and leaders have been advised that the prospect for the state convention at Zanesville, June 22, 23 and 24, is that the meeting will be the most largely attended of any in the history of the Ohio association. Zanesville is preparing to care for 5,000 visitors, all of whom will be entertained on the Chautauqua plan, that is, lodging and breakfast free. Of these 5,000, there will be 500 boys and 500 girls in attendance upon the boy and girl congresses which immediately precede the state convention. Zanesville, which is ambitious to be known as the "Clay City," has provided for all the delegates badges made of art pottery. These are described as very unusual and beautiful and a souvenir which all Sunday-school workers will desire to give.

Sunday-school students recall that it was at Zanesville that Marion Lawrence, general secretary of the International Sunday-school association, held his first state convention after he became the general secretary of Ohio, and that it was at this convention that Dr. Joseph Clark for many years general secretary of Ohio and now general secretary of the state of New York, was heard.

Ohio Printers to Meet. Will Hold Their Fifth Annual Convention in Dayton, June 10-12.

Dayton, O.—The fifth annual convention of the Ohio Printers' Federation will be held here, June 10, 11 and 12, and many printers from all parts of the state are planning to attend the event. The convention will be held under the auspices of the Ben Franklin club of Dayton. A number of interesting features have been placed on the program for this year. Among them are the following: Address, "Trade Education," by Harry L. Gage; illustrated lecture, "The Story of a Foundry," by J. A. Friedrich; discussions on two important subjects. One of the lectures will be "The Making of Paper in a Big Paper Mill." There will be visits to the National Cash Register plant and the National Military home, and auto rides about the city. A visit to a mammoth envelope factory has also been arranged by the committee in charge.

Ohio Militia Cavalry. Will Be Invited to Participate in Camp of Instruction.

Columbus, O.—Ohio militia cavalry will be invited to participate in the summer in a camp of instruction, in which there will be afforded the benefit of association with one of the crack cavalry units of the regular army. Where the camp will be held or the dates have not been determined.

The war department has sent a communication to Col. D. A. Friedrich, commanding the central department, authorizing him to select the place and fix the time for a joint cavalry camp in that department. The war department is doing what it can to interest the Ohio militia in the organization of machine gun companies. Under the standard which the department has set, it will be seen enforced there would be one machine gun company for every regiment of infantry, which would give Ohio seven machine gun companies.

Baby Daughter Discovered. Bellefontaine, O.—Twenty-five years ago Mrs. J. O. Cherry, of Lewistown, this county, was compelled through force of circumstances to send her baby daughter to the county children's home. The child was adopted. Not till recently did Mrs. Cherry learn the whereabouts of her "baby." The daughter now is married, resides in a Michigan town and has a daughter of her own.

Village to Have Waterworks. Germantown, O.—The electors of Farmersville, thriving village five miles north of here, have voted favorably on an issue of bonds for the purpose of constructing a waterworks system.

CADETS ARE AT CAMP PERRY. Germantown, O.—The cadets and faculty of Miami Military institute are at Camp Perry, on Lake Erie. A special train has been chartered to bring the school on this, its 16th annual encampment. While in camp the 200, 300, 500 and 600-yard rifle ranges will be used and some excellent scores are expected. This phase of the encampment will be in charge of Capt. H. F. Feeley, the army officer stationed at M. M. I.

ENTER JUDGING CONTEST

Two Thousand Five Hundred Ohio Boys Have Entered Contest.

Cincinnati, O.—Ohio's future as a live stock state looks bright. Today the Buckeye state ranks high among other states in the number and quality of farm animals produced. What then is the cause of this burst of enthusiasm for the future? Simply because farm boys in Ohio are becoming interested in stock raising. This is shown by the fact that more than 2,500 boys have already entered the Boys' Live Stock Judging contests which will be held at the local fair and several other county fairs this fall. If this is not one of the liveliest and most interesting contests ever held at the fair, it will not be the fault of the boys. They are coming out in full force.

Boys in this county who have not already sent their names to Clark S. Wheeler, supervisor of extension schools, Ohio State university, Columbus, should do so at once. Each boy who receives a badge and an instructive literature on live stock judging which will help him prepare for the contest. These bulletins have been especially written for the boys and describe in plain words how to size up a good draft horse, dairy cow, or the boys can be trained to know the good points about farm animals, they will want to stay on the farm and help produce them.

Prizes have been offered the winners in addition to three free trips to Farmers' week offered by the College of Agriculture. Send in your name now.

SOIL SURVEY IN OHIO

Surveyors Will Take Several Months to Complete Work.

Cincinnati, O.—Representatives of the Bureau of Soils of the United States Department of Agriculture, are now working upon complete soil surveys of Geauga, Miami and Hamilton counties. The work in Geauga county was begun last season. The surveying parties, it is expected, will take several months to complete the examination and mapping of the soils of these counties.

The department requests co-operation on the part of farmers and land owners with the Federal Soil Survey. They should be given facilities to make borings and sample the different soils. They are provided with crock-pots, which will be shown upon request. As soon as they have completed their investigations, they will make a large map showing the various kinds of soils and their location by means of colors and shading. This map will also show the location of the principal schools, churches, railroads and water courses.

HONORARY DEGREES CONFERRED

Ads, O.—The following honorary degrees were conferred at Ohio Northern university: Doctor of Laws, Geo. Franklin Johnson, Montreal; Bishop William A. Anderson, Cincinnati; Augustus D. Juillard, New York; Doctor of Divinity, R. C. Matthews, Toledo; J. A. Darling, Columbus; E. E. McCammon, Toledo; Henry A. Stramb, Reno, Pa.; Charles C. Peale, Bellefontaine; O. L. Curt, Middleport; W. E. Potts, Pleasant Ridge; Master of Arts, J. C. Yeager, New York; Doctor of Pedagogy, Charles W. Dumont, New York; Dr. E. Hoyer, Fargo, N. D.

BUCKEYE BREVITIES

Findlay, O.—The annual meeting of the Northwestern Ohio Rural Mail Carriers' association was held in this city.

Newark, O.—Mrs. George R. Taylor, wife of former deputy Sheriff Taylor, and well-known trap-shooter, was struck by an interurban car here and instantly killed.

Cleveland, O.—More Clevelanders by 2,400 are paying taxes on their incomes this year than last, according to figures in the office of Harry H. Weisner, international revenue collector. This year 5,600 persons are paying taxes on incomes totaling $422,000, as compared with 7,200 paying on $288,000 last year.

St. Clairsville, O.—The first fatal mine accident since the strike in the Eastern Ohio coal fields occurred when Frederick Duth was electrocuted in the Pine Run mine of the Thomas Longs Coal Co. The man was operating a mining machine when he fell against exposed connections and death resulted.

Cincinnati, O.—St. Louis was chosen as the convention city for 1918 by the Fraternity of Operative Millers of America, at its annual convention here. The convention adjourned after a three days' session.

Napoleon, O.—A few minutes after she had been photographed with her class at a local station, Miss Lottie Barlow, 18, of Oulton, graduate of the Liberty Center schools, was drowned here when a rowboat upset in the Maumee river.

The Empty Bowl Tells the Story. The highest compliment you can pay a housewife is to eat heartily of the food that she places before you. It proves the merit of her cooking. Thousands every morning receive complete satisfaction, and enjoy to the last flake their bowl of Post Toasties. These daily compliments encouraged the continued bettering of these Superior Corn Flakes. The result was an improved Post Toasties—crisper and better than ever. Only the inner sweet meats of choicest Indian Corn are used in making Post Toasties. These meaty bits of nourishment are cooked, rolled water thin, seasoned "just right" and toasted to an appetizing golden-brown. The flakes come to you in dust-proof, germ-proof wax wrappers ready to serve direct from the package—crisp, fresh and delicious as when they leave the big ovens. Post Toasties—the Superior Corn Flakes. Sold by Grocers everywhere.

One of the lectures will be "The Making of Paper in a Big Paper Mill." There will be visits to the National Cash Register plant and the National Military home, and auto rides about the city. A visit to a mammoth envelope factory has also been arranged by the committee in charge. Ohio Militia Cavalry. Will Be Invited to Participate in Camp of Instruction. Columbus, O.—Ohio militia cavalry will be invited to participate in the summer in a camp of instruction, in which there will be afforded the benefit of association with one of the crack cavalry units of the regular army. Where the camp will be held or the dates have not been determined. The war department has sent a communication to Col. D. A. Friedrich, commanding the central department, authorizing him to select the place and fix the time for a joint cavalry camp in that department. The war department is doing what it can to interest the Ohio militia in the organization of machine gun companies. Under the standard which the department has set, it will be seen enforced there would be one machine gun company for every regiment of infantry, which would give Ohio seven machine gun companies. Baby Daughter Discovered. Bellefontaine, O.—Twenty-five years ago Mrs. J. O. Cherry, of Lewistown, this county, was compelled through force of circumstances to send her baby daughter to the county children's home. The child was adopted. Not till recently did Mrs. Cherry learn the whereabouts of her "baby." The daughter now is married, resides in a Michigan town and has a daughter of her own. Village to Have Waterworks. Germantown, O.—The electors of Farmersville, thriving village five miles north of here, have voted favorably on an issue of bonds for the purpose of constructing a waterworks system. CADETS ARE AT CAMP PERRY. Germantown, O.—The cadets and faculty of Miami Military institute are at Camp Perry, on Lake Erie. A special train has been chartered to bring the school on this, its 16th annual encampment. While in camp the 200, 300, 500 and 600-yard rifle ranges will be used and some excellent scores are expected. This phase of the encampment will be in charge of Capt. H. F. Feeley, the army officer stationed at M. M. I. ENTER JUDGING CONTEST. Two Thousand Five Hundred Ohio Boys Have Entered Contest. Cincinnati, O.—Ohio's future as a live stock state looks bright. Today the Buckeye state ranks high among other states in the number and quality of farm animals produced. What then is the cause of this burst of enthusiasm for the future? Simply because farm boys in Ohio are becoming interested in stock raising. This is shown by the fact that more than 2,500 boys have already entered the Boys' Live Stock Judging contests which will be held at the local fair and several other county fairs this fall. If this is not one of the liveliest and most interesting contests ever held at the fair, it will not be the fault of the boys. They are coming out in full force. Boys in this county who have not already sent their names to Clark S. Wheeler, supervisor of extension schools, Ohio State university, Columbus, should do so at once. Each boy who receives a badge and an instructive literature on live stock judging which will help him prepare for the contest. These bulletins have been especially written for the boys and describe in plain words how to size up a good draft horse, dairy cow, or the boys can be trained to know the good points about farm animals, they will want to stay on the farm and help produce them. Prizes have been offered the winners in addition to three free trips to Farmers' week offered by the College of Agriculture. Send in your name now. SOIL SURVEY IN OHIO. Surveyors Will Take Several Months to Complete Work. Cincinnati, O.—Representatives of the Bureau of Soils of the United States Department of Agriculture, are now working upon complete soil surveys of Geauga, Miami and Hamilton counties. The work in Geauga county was begun last season. The surveying parties, it is expected, will take several months to complete the examination and mapping of the soils of these counties. The department requests co-operation on the part of farmers and land owners with the Federal Soil Survey. They should be given facilities to make borings and sample the different soils. They are provided with crock-pots, which will be shown upon request. As soon as they have completed their investigations, they will make a large map showing the various kinds of soils and their location by means of colors and shading. This map will also show the location of the principal schools, churches, railroads and water courses. HONORARY DEGREES CONFERRED. Ads, O.—The following honorary degrees were conferred at Ohio Northern university: Doctor of Laws, Geo. Franklin Johnson, Montreal; Bishop William A. Anderson, Cincinnati; Augustus D. Juillard, New York; Doctor of Divinity, R. C. Matthews, Toledo; J. A. Darling, Columbus; E. E. McCammon, Toledo; Henry A. Stramb, Reno, Pa.; Charles C. Peale, Bellefontaine; O. L. Curt, Middleport; W. E. Potts, Pleasant Ridge; Master of Arts, J. C. Yeager, New York; Doctor of Pedagogy, Charles W. Dumont, New York; Dr. E. Hoyer, Fargo, N. D. BUCKEYE BREVITIES. Findlay, O.—The annual meeting of the Northwestern Ohio Rural Mail Carriers' association was held in this city. Newark, O.—Mrs. George R. Taylor, wife of former deputy Sheriff Taylor, and well-known trap-shooter, was struck by an interurban car here and instantly killed. Cleveland, O.—More Clevelanders by 2,400 are paying taxes on their incomes this year than last, according to figures in the office of Harry H. Weisner, international revenue collector. This year 5,600 persons are paying taxes on incomes totaling $422,000, as compared with 7,200 paying on $288,000 last year. St. Clairsville, O.—The first fatal mine accident since the strike in the Eastern Ohio coal fields occurred when Frederick Duth was electrocuted in the Pine Run mine of the Thomas Longs Coal Co. The man was operating a mining machine when he fell against exposed connections and death resulted. Cincinnati, O.—St. Louis was chosen as the convention city for 1918 by the Fraternity of Operative Millers of America, at its annual convention here. The convention adjourned after a three days' session. Napoleon, O.—A few minutes after she had been photographed with her class at a local station,

WHEN DAD CAME BACK TO STAY

Estranged Couple Reunited by Their Little Son.

It was five minutes after noon on Saturday. The alimony clerk had left his caps, locked it and was about to leave his office when a man in the garb of a workman entered.

"Moran, Mr. Jones," he said to the clerk.

"Don't mean afternoon, John. Don't you know better than to come here to make a payment after 12 o'clock on Saturdays? The safe is locked and the books closed for the week. You'll have to bring it Monday."

"Oh! be workin' all the time y're open on Monday."

"Can't help it."

"Mebbe if you'd tell me where she's livin' now I might take it round 'necel."

"All right, but don't raise a rumpus. The next morning was bright and beautiful. John shaved and got himself into a clean white shirt (with no buttons) and started to walk half a dozen miles into the country. He stopped before a cabin in the center of an acre planted with garden truck. Through the open door he could see his wife in a clean calico dress buttoning the collar on her boy, five years old, thus completing his Sunday morning costume. The man leaned on the gate and called. The woman went to the door and, seeing her husband, was about to turn away, when she noticed a pitiful expression on his face.

"What brings ye here, John?" she asked not unkindly.

"The alimony. The office was shot up yesterday when O'Kem. The clerk told me O' might bring it mesel."

The woman went to the gate, and the man handed her a ten dollar bill.

"O' write ye a receipt," she said.

"O' will a bit of a receipt do O' want. Ye silver was a woman to take more'n belonged to ye."

"Well, come in and have a glass o' milk. Ye must be tired comin' all the way from the city. Johnny'll be glad to see his dad."

Johnny, who had been admonished in no placid terms to give his father a wide berth, looking upon this as a removal of the embargo, ran down the walk, climbed up on the gate and threw his arms around his father's neck. The mother opened the gate and the boy rode into the house on his father's shoulder.

"Have ye come back to stay, dad?" he asked eagerly.

An embarrassing silence that followed this ill timed remark was broken by the mother, who told the boy to keep quiet and not muss his Sunday clothes. Then she got out a glass of milk and some bread and butter and set it down before her husband.

"Her shirt is wide open, John," she said. "I'm thinkin' O'd better put on some buttons while ye're here."

While John was drinking the milk and eating the bread, or, rather, feeding it to Johnny, Mrs. Hobbs was getting up needle and thread. Then she produced the button bag, and by that time John had finished his refreshment and was ready to have his shirt repaired, but Johnny had settled himself in his father's arms and refused to be dislodged.

"Coom now, Johnny," his mother pleaded, "daddy's wantin' to get mended while he's here. Jump down little a good boy."

"O' won't," said Johnny.

"Lave him alone," said the father. "O'd rather have him than the buttons."

The woman laid aside the button bag and the thread and needle, and Johnny and his father had a romp, at the end of which the father produced a ginger-bread horse and several sticks of candy, with which he bribed his son to let the mother sew on the buttons. The process of sewing on buttons without John's taking off his shirt brought his hand and wife in close proximity. Nevertheless they got no closer than was necessary, and the buttons having been sewed on, John said that since it was a long walk to the city perhaps he'd better be going. But Johnny got hold of the skirt of his coat and clung so tight that neither father nor mother had the heart to shake him off.

"O'm thinkin', John," said Mrs. Hobbs, "that it be an occasionment for ye to lave the alimony at the clerk's office. Ye might bring it every Sunda' yourself."

"And ye could put on the buttons."

An effort was made with this assurance to Johnny to remove him, but it failed.

"What d'ye say, Mary," said John, "to me stayin' on for a while to help ye to play the child? O' might be helpin' ye at times with the garden."

"O' was thinkin' mesel that it would be more convenient for ye to be here."

"It's far from me work, but I can get up early."

"Let go, Johnny. Daddy's goin' to stay with us."

She took Johnny up in her arms affectionately to relieve his father, but really to conceal a fear that came into her eyes, and the father, not wishing to be left out of the embrace, put his arms about them both.

So John Hobbs hung up his hat and stayed with his wife and child. No reference was made by either to the cause of their disagreement. Both knew that the cause of contention must be given a wide berth, and they took care that it should get no renewed froth.

"The Man Behind the Pipe"

He Muses on What Memorial Day Means

WE hear of the nerve and brain of "the man behind the gun," and out of the belching flame and smoke we almost feel the throbbing of the heart which risks all for the cause he espoused. Trustingly we rest upon his valor, leaving the safety of the republic in his hands.

A filmy wreath of blue smoke floats lazily out upon the air. At his ease sits "the man behind the pipe." Nothing in his attitude or face, save the rapt expression of a soldier in "pipe dream," gives us a clue to his thoughts or self communion, but what a vast panorama those filmy wreaths of blue smoke contain for his mind's eye! They bring to "the man behind the pipe" the tented field, the weary march, the lonely picket, the faces of "the boys," the glow of the campfire, what there was of cheer in the voice of war and, above all, the strong, close of comradeship, that sacred comradeship in a mighty brotherhood of man whose password was "Loyalty," stronger than death—"Many folds do not drown it."

As he muses the stormy past drifts up to the peaceful present. The "old boys" are with him; their faults are blotted out, their virtues emphasized. As comrades they "pass in review" through the rings of smoke and nestle close to his heart. The smoke as it dies away takes on the form of Old Glory. The blue smoke and white ashes mingle, and the glow of the passing pipe paints the gleam of the stars. Softly, tenderly, as shadows fall upon the gray old world it shut out its weariness, so fall these dream folds of the old flag upon the soldier, and he sleeps.

A cordon of these men behind the pipe encircles the world; a network of them grids this great republic. Their loyalty to the tie of comradeship is never questioned, and where manhood is loyal to manhood rests the safety of this republic. Once more the toast—"The Man Behind the Pipe!"

Memorial Day.

This is the day
Of the heroes who passed away—
Who fell in their night and their pride
And died.

Side by side
When the guns and the cannon roared
And into the serried ranks there poured
Soothing and hushing blood in a flood
Of carnage and blood.

Mowing them down like blades of grass
In a halcyon mead,
Yet glad to suffer and bleed
And die for their country's need.
For the right as the right they saw,
As the blue of the gray they wore.
To them our grateful praise—
This is their day!

Bring ye flowers
For these gallant heroes of ours,
For northern and southern, both brave,
Who gave
To the grave,
To be buried forevermore,
All sectional rancor and hate,
That, true and elate,
They stepped on in glory and pride,
Brothers, side by side,
Rejoicing one country we know
In our heroic love of it again!
Who drove up their lives for our gain!
To their reverent homage pay—
This is their day!

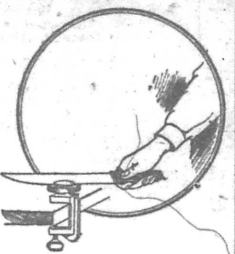

—Henry Wadsworth Francis in New York Times

Stars and Stripes and Stars and Bars.

For a long time there was a rigid rule against erecting any but Federal monuments in Federal battlefields and cemeteries and Confederate monuments in Confederate battlefields. But as the latter monuments were placed here and there denoting that a time enemy slept among the others. When Memorial day came the flowers were placed indiscriminately on the alien's mound. In one of the southern cemeteries where a northern soldier rests there was for a long time a practice of decorating every Confederate monument with a tiny Confederate flag, the stars and bars. As time passed and the southerner's chief assumed they placed flowers on their former's grave also.

HELPS FOR THE BUSY HOUSEWIFE

Simple Device For Sharpening Kitchen Knives.

If you have the necessary "know how" it is a very simple matter to sharpen a knife by grinding. It all rests in the manner of holding the edge of the knife on the surface of the sharpener. But now we are aided by a new device which has been recently patented, consisting of a wheel of abrasive material and a guide mounted on a metal carrier, by means of which the device may be secured to a table or other convenient place for use. When the carrier is placed in the space between the wheel and guide the knife is held just at the right angle with respect to the wheel, so the most effective edge is put on it and the knife is then reversed and the other side treated in a similar manner. A half dozen passes on each side of the knife put it in good condition. It is impossible to go wrong in the matter of putting an edge on a knife with the aid of this device.

Lobster Chowder.

Lay in the bottom of the chowder saucepan on the rack three medium slices of pickled pork, then a one inch slice of fresh eel, then a layer of sliced potato and a grated onion, pepper, salt and a little lard or butter. A layer of pilot crackers, then one of cold boiled potatoes, then a layer of sliced potatoes, then a layer of the eel, and proceed in this way, making the lobster the last layer, with plenty of butter and a dusting of pepper and salt over the top. Pour over a pint of milk, adding just enough water to cover all, and boil for forty minutes slowly, but steadily. Just before serving add a half pint of hot cream. Have ready a tablespoonful of chopped parsley and a finely chopped red pepper. Sprinkle a teaspoonful over each portion as it is served.—New York Times.

Kitchen Wisdom.

To clean white leather bags and belts use oxide of zinc.

To give silk that is being washed the sheen of new silk add just a little methylated spirit to the rinsing water.

The short ends of sponges, mops and mixed with equal parts of turpentine make a fine polish for hardwood floors.

When mending the pleated tunics that are so much in vogue dampen with water in which a small piece of gum arabic has been dissolved and then sew in the usual way.

Add a few crumbs of bread to scrambled eggs. This will improve the dish and make the eggs go further.

A cupful of vinegar added to the water in which colored clothes are washed will often prevent the color from running.
