

Died Following Serious Operation

The Fremont Daily News of Jan. 15, says: "Mrs. Walter Davlin, a well-known and highly esteemed Fremont woman, died Friday night at the Western Road hospital, Cleveland, following a serious operation performed on Thursday and which promised to restore her to health. C. S. Beelman went to Cleveland Saturday morning and will accompany the remains to Fremont Saturday night. The body will be taken to the Beelman residence on Hayes avenue, where the funeral services will be held on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. H. S. Bartz pastor of the First Presbyterian church. The remains will be interred in Oakwood cemetery.

Mrs. Davlin, formerly Miss Maude Hull, was born in Plymouth, O., in 1860, and when but a young girl came to Fremont to make her home with her sister, the late Mrs. C. S. Beelman. During her long residence in Fremont she was ever active and prominent in the church and social affairs of the city. Mrs. Davlin was a woman of broad knowledge and at one time a teacher in the higher branches of learning. She was firm believer and always stood for the cause of righteousness. She is survived by one brother, W. C. X Hull of New York City, who is the father of a large family. The late Mrs. Davlin was a woman with many friends."

Prayers of Butler Woman are Answered.

A prayer at the midnight hour is said to have resulted in the cure of Mrs. Daniel Beemiller, whose life was almost gone and who had been as helpless as a child.

It is stated that physicians who had attended the woman had pronounced her case hopeless, and had given her up to die. She requested her pastor, the Rev. J. H. Barnes, of the M. E. church, to arrange for prayers for her recovery. The minister agreed and requested various members of the church to pray for Mrs. Beemiller, as he would do at 12 upon a certain night.

The morning following these petitions the minister visited the Beemiller home and was met at the door by Mrs. Beemiller, who for the first time in a long period was up and dressed. She says that she no longer suffered an ache or pain since, and is constantly praising the Lord for his goodness and mercy.

Walls of an Editor.

One of those sad-eyed editors sends forth this wail: "What a despoiled thing it would be if one could run a newspaper and never ask some of its subscribers to pay up. As long as the paper goes on week after week and no statement is sent for arrears, everything goes like the clock work and you are one of the best and most accommodating editors on earth, your paper is the best, in the corner your items are highly appreciated, your sayings gladden the hearts of the household and happiness reigns supreme. But, oh! What brute you are after sending a paper two or three years for nothing, if you politely send in your bill and ask what is due, or a portion of it. Your ratty old paper is not any account. I just took it to accommodate you; no one in the family reads it, we can get all the free reading out of the steamer" and a hundred other things are hurled at the editor and his paper. If we were rich we would not ask any one to pay for his paper, we would not print one.

For Sale—Piano, only slightly used, and a solid oak library table. The above will sell cheap if taken at once. For further particulars call or phone his office.

Real Estate.

For Sale—E. LaDow to Foster Ervin, 27 acres, Plymouth township, $3,100.

"BLUE BLOOD AND YELLOW"

7th in a Series of Twelve Separate Dramas on the Recurrent Theme "Who Pays."

The Theme: Being the tale of a girl who, in her history, and wed it, and how she found her golden idol to have clay feet. Also of a young man whose blue blood was tinged with ochre, and of another who studied the stars and learned of hell.

The Story: Anita Logan, wealthy heiress, has an ingrown superstition with regard to the worth of "blue blood." Alfred Scott, aristocratic idler, has an inherited conviction of the worth of gold dollars, and is prouder of his ancestors than they ever could be of him. A young man, a student, loves her, but his "blue blood" is a negligible quantity, his mind is clean and his love has no gold alloy in it. She chooses the "blue blood" and marries him—for she has faith in his lineage. He marries her for her faith in the buying power of her money. A palmy of fear overtakes him when he learns that her wealth is forfeited should she marry before she reaches the age of twenty-five. He persuades her, "for her own sake," to keep it dark and to be touched by his consideration. Under cover of his apparent freedom, Scott makes overtures to Anita's sister. He is apprehended and Anita, in order to be divorced from the aristocratic philanderer has to deplete her marriage and forfeit her fortune. But the "blue blood" has one move left. He threatens to compromise Anita's sister's name, should the suit for divorce be pushed. Anita to save her sister's name must live out her life with the blooded aristocrat and her sister's part of the contract is to support them. Paul, the scientist, can never know the fulfillment of his love. The "Family Tree" has borne its fruit.

To be seen at the Deisher Theatre Sunday evening, Jan. 30.

PLYMOUTH IS NO EXCEPTION.

Plymouth People Come Out as Frankly Here as Elsewhere.

Plymouth people publicly recommend Dean's Kidney Pills. This paper is publishing Plymouth essays from week to week. It is the same essays that are published in home papers. Dean's are praised in thirty thousand signed statements, published in 3000 communities. Plymouth people are not shy and well. Here's the Plymouth statement.

H. C. Lofland, retired farmer, Sandusky St., Plymouth, says: "I have used Dean's Kidney Pills occasionally since, when my back has been lame and my kidneys haven't been acting regularly. I have always had prompt relief."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Dean's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Lofland had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

What Do You Think?

When you meet a fellow on the street and his face is warped and twisted by an unholty snarl? When one of your women tells you that another woman "is the biggest gossip in town" when you know that her closet is jammed full of skeletons? When a man coughs up a stiff prayer in church on Sunday and then skins you in a sharp deal on Monday? When you hear a fellow bragging of the great deeds he has done and you know he is lying faster than an automobile can speed? When you hear a young braggart making suggestive remarks about every young girl in town except his own sister? When you see one man trying to undermine the legitimate business of another by making veiled allusions to possible disaster? When a man accuses you a dollar and crosses the street to avoid meeting you? When a girl leads a man on to declaring himself and then deliberately tosses him over without compunction? When a duffer borrows a five spot from you and promises to return it tomorrow and tomorrow never comes? And if you happen to do any of these, what do you think other people think?

WOMAN ALL RUN DOWN

Made Strong and Well by Vinol

Waynesboro, Pa.—"I was all run down after a hard spell of bronchitis so it was hard for me to keep about. I had pains in my chest and took Vinol. A friend asked me to try Vinol. I did and it took me up to my old strength and I am able to do my housework which I had not done for three months before taking Vinol."—Mrs. R. H. Bowen, Waynesboro, Pa.

Vinol creates an appetite, aids digestion, makes nerves strong and creates strength. Your money back if it fails.

In this age of hustle and jump the man who gets to the front is the one who does all there is to do today, so that he will be ready to tackle what comes tomorrow. But there is one fellow in this city, who often postpones his midday meal until two or three o'clock in the afternoon, on the theory that, "the more that can be done before dinner, the less there will be to do after dinner."

An agent coming to your door whom you do not know, and he may be as honest as the day is long, but you don't know and it is your duty to be prudent, and not nibble at every bait. You don't want to be caught, yet many are by signing "orders," "agreements," "receipts," or other innocent looking papers. These harmless and simple looking documents have turned out later to be bonafide notes.

There seems to be an impression out that the Board of Agriculture is not going to run the Domestic Science Contests on the Washington this year, as has been done in the past. This is a very false impression. The Domestic Science Contests for the year 1916 will continue to be held along with the corn contests. In addition to this, the Board of Agriculture of Ohio will pay $10 towards a trip to Washington for the domestic Science girl in each county.

The building of county roads is becoming a serious problem to taxpayers and county officials in general. With the heavy traffic now done on the average stone road, the fact has been demonstrated time and time again that the roads are not being built substantial enough these days. The time is not far distant when the construction of macadam roads will cease, for with the daily increasing traffic on every thoroughfare, they are becoming inadequate. The coming improved road made of built of brick or cement. Taxpayers can not afford to build a new road every three or four years, and it is a waste of money to construct just a common stone road.

D. P. Hull, a general merchant of Corrothers, a small town in Seneca county, went into involuntary bankruptcy last week. His liabilities are said to be in the neighborhood of $3,000, with assets approximating half that amount. Some of the creditors, it is said, are willing to settle for 25 cents on the dollar. Hull, when asked the cause of his financial embarrassment, said the mail order business, free delivery, parcel post, good roads, and automobiles were responsible for the financial downfall. Probably the country merchant didn't keep up with the times. There is such a possibility, you know, of a recession of progression go around you.

With the days lengthening at both ends, there comes the realization that spring will soon be here, even in the most northern part of the land. Therefore, now is the time to get all plans ready to make this place look more attractive this year than ever before. The "City Beautiful" is still in order and it is wonderful how much can be done in a few days that idea when the spirit of cooperation is about and some judgment and taste are exercised. The amount of money in your pocket is not necessarily great, for a little money and some labor, judiciously used can do a great deal. The main thing is to make a beginning, on a job that has already been done, to be done intelligently and with definite aim.

Twentieth Century Circle.

School Notes.

(CONDUCTED BY SUPERINTENDENT) County Supt. E. W. Bell of Mansfield visited our schools Wednesday afternoon.

The high school boys' basketball team played Chicago Junction's reserve team last Friday night at Chicago Junction. Also we were defeated, yet our team made a good showing against our adversaries. The score was 19 to 15 in favor of Chicago Junction. We feel encouraged with our outlook for a good team.

It would be an excellent thing for the Plymouth school children if our gymnasium could be made into a finished room which could be used for winter games, drills, entertainments, etc., regardless of the weather. It would be an excellent place for young people to exercise and spend their extra time developing their physical condition. An education that does not train young people to have their figures and forms normally developed is not a perfect system. Improper positions and bodily deformities contract of daily study hours are often corrected in this way, that is, by proper physical training and play in a gymnasium.

The high school girls' basketball team played an interesting game of basket ball with the Ripley high school girls last night. The score was 3 to 8 in favor of Plymouth.

The Mansfield boys' high school reserve basketball team will play our boys' team here this Friday night at 7:30 if the weather is not too cold. Chicago Junction's girls' second team will play a basket ball game with our girls here this Friday afternoon at the bank. The admission will be 25c for adults, and 15c for children. If you want a good woman's entertainment, come and see our new revue. The admission is free, but you are not to be too late for the show. The second half of the show is the work has just begun. Let each one look after his or her own best interests. It is up to you. The high school report the loss of Miss Ruth Finrock's services as high school principal. She has our best wishes for her success in her new field of work in Mansfield.

Members of the Go-To-Church Band who have been present every Sunday for the second year are requested to bring their badges next Sunday for which they will receive in exchange badge number two. The third term will begin the first Sunday in February.

The Epworth League announces a social (for a sleigh ride) on the evening of February 16. The men of the church are invited to a six o'clock banquet, given under the auspices of the Brotherhood of the Methodist Episcopal church at Norfolk, on Thursday evening, February 10. The banquet is in honor of Fashion Edwin Cook Hughes, who is to lecture that evening on the Brotherhood Lecture Course. Tickets for banquet and lecture fifty-five cents, or either alone thirty-five cents.

Banquet.

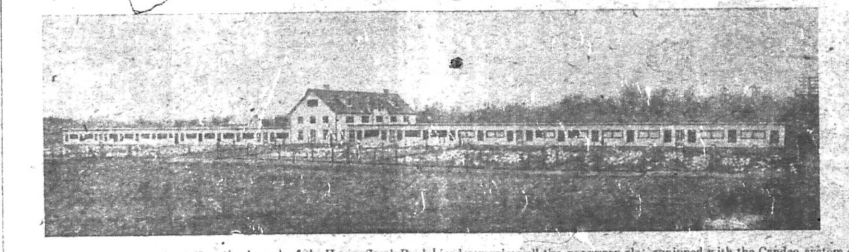

As a result of the recent automobile contest, the Alpha class of the Lutheran church entertained the Friendship class of the Methodist church at a banquet, Friday evening, Jan. 21st. There were twenty-three members of the Friendship class present out of an enrollment of thirty-nine. Mrs. Weatherly, teacher of the Alpha class, in a few well chosen words, outlined the Friendship class. This was responded to by Mrs. Jordan. Several interesting performances and songs were given by the Alpha class, together with readings, vocal and instrumental music. The banquet room was decorated in red and white, the floral colors, and favors of red carnations were presented to each. Daily refreshments were served in two courses and a social evening was enjoyed by all.

The Attica Branch of the Honey Creek Poultry Farm Company.

The accompanying photo is of Mr. Herbert Schindler, Supt. of the Attica branch of the Honey Creek Poultry Farm Company.

Mr. Schindler, who took over the reins of this farm from Mr. W. W. Dunn, has had years of experience in the poultry industry, and was formerly foreman of a department of the Marion Steam Shovel Co., Marion, O., where he was employed twelve years. This gentleman, while he has only had charge of the Attica branch for six months has already increased the food production and general vitality of the chickens nearly 40 percent. The Attica plant is composed of 6 acres of land. Of this acre approximately 54,000 sq. ft. or 120 acres is under roof. The main feed house is 30 feet wide and 60 feet long, and is a three-story building with a 30-foot wide stored all the feed, oil, peat, etc. The main house, of which the above is a part, contains six pens, each six feet wide by 20 feet long. Each of these pens will accommodate 100 chickens. These layers are fed systematically each kind of feed at a certain time, so that they get every day. Much depends upon the regular feeding of chickens. Their food comprises all the necessary elements to make the egg of the very best flavor and size. The hens are all treated and a record kept of how many eggs each hen lays in a year. At the end of a year's time these records are gone over and those hens that did not lay 25 eggs are fattened for 14 days and sold as roasters. All hens that laid 200 eggs or over are kept and from this stock are selected the profitable layers for the coming season. During the month of December, 1915, 1,575 dozen of eggs were laid by the hens at the Attica plant. This is 2,800 eggs in 31 days, which averages 600 eggs every day, or a trim over 50 dozen. These eggs are sold in Pittsburgh and New York City, and are guaranteed not to be over 24 hours old when they reach the market, and as a general rule are not over 15 or 20 hours old. The brooder house is 20x100 feet long, and will accommodate 3,000 small chicks at one time. In the incubator plant is a Chamberlain's water and guarantee of $3,000 each. This is a hot water machine with real heaters. The brooder house is also equipped with the Candee system of brooding and has nine scratching pens. These pens are filled with K. litter about 5 inches deep, in which the young chicks get the proper amount of exercise, which is essential for their growth, scratching for their food. Here they are kept for four weeks and then transferred to the brooder house equipped with Standard Hoppers, where they are allowed to remain for two or three weeks longer. After this they are removed to the social fattening pens to be gotten ready for the broiler market. Pullets are raised on free range. This range is laid out in an orchard of sweet cherry and plum trees, which furnish the necessary amount of shade for the growing pullets. While on this free range they are housed in colony houses which will accommodate about 150 birds each. The plant is modernly equipped with electric lights and running water in all pens, and the material used in its construction is the very best that money can buy.

The basketball game played at the high school auditorium Saturday evening between Ripley and Plymouth teams, resulted in the local girls winning by a score of 8 to 3. Alf Knoeker, who several weeks ago disposed of his interests here, going to Michigan in order to be with relatives, is in Plymouth for a few days renewing old acquaintance. A phone message received from the home of M. and Mrs. R. Root Thursday morning, conveyed the information that the stork had just left a nine pound boy at the Root home. A sure sign that the turn of the shoe has come and that the winter is passing, is seen in the appearance of the first seed catalogue for the year. It is as welcome as the first rain in the spring. J. N. Watros of Newwalk, who visits here frequently with the Bells and Weatherbys, and is well known to many of our people, celebrated his 83rd birthday anniversary at his home in the above city Monday. W. H. Wurts, the New Haven blacksmith, has re-opened his shop and is now in shape to care for all work in his line. His policy will be good work at live and let live prices, and kindly asks a share of the public's patronage. Richland county will be entitled to 12 delegates at the Republican state convention to be held at Columbus, June 21, according to the official apportionment that has just been given out by State Chairman W. L. Hamant and Secretary G. H. Hamilton. Janitor Buzard of the public school building, advises us that there was fire in the school building over Saturday and Sunday, but the reason that the rooms could not be heated to a comfortable temperature last week Monday was occasioned by low gas pressure. Glenn R. Sage, residing on what is known as the Sage Weaver farm, will hold a public sale of his live stock and farm implements on Wednesday, Feb. 8, beginning promptly at 10 o'clock a. m. A full description of the articles to be sold will appear in our next issue. Harry Hemminger, who has been employed for the past year at the Hayes barber shop, left Monday for Plymouth, where he and his father have purchased a laundry. Mr. Hemminger's many friends wish him every success in his new undertaking. New London Record. One thousand cases of measles with eleven deaths were reported by health authorities at Toledo. Further spread of the epidemic and other drastic precautions have been taken by the health department. Many deaths resulted from failure to call physicians, the authorities say. Eugene Case, for the past two weeks an inmate of the Huron county infirmary, died at that institution last week Friday afternoon. Death was due to heart trouble. The deceased was from New Haven, and was in his 63rd year. Relatives took the body to Stebbin where interment was made. U. W. Rank has decided to embark in the auctioneering business, and is pleased to offer his services to those who desire same. He has had considerable experience with live stock, farm implements, etc., and feels he can please. Any one desiring his services can reach him by phone or letter at Boughnerville, Ohio. The third number of the lecture course will be given Tuesday evening, Feb. 16, by Henry A. Adrian. The Burbank man, starting promptly at 8 o'clock. This is a Nightless play and one which all should hear. Tickets for the remainder of the course are on sale for 50c. The single admission price will be 25c.

If Satan goes to church he doesn't do any sleeping during the sermon. It may be said that he sets a good example by being well away and ready for business six days and Sundays. According to the Huron county delinquent tax sale, advertised for Feb. 8, there are 475 pieces of property advertised for sale for delinquent taxes for that part of Plymouth lying in Huron county. Dr. Clarence Ruby of Toledo, Ohio, was quietly united in marriage to Miss Grace Hudson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. G. Hudson, of Akron, Ohio, on Wednesday, Jan. 12th, 1916. After Saturday 15th they will be at home to their friends at 31 Nineteenth street, Toledo, Ohio. A delegation of citizens from the north end of Auburn township met at the home of M. and Mrs. R. Root Thursday morning, and talked over the matter of transferring the school pupils from that end of the township to the schools here. The matter was discussed at some length but no definite arrangements were made. Bent Chronister will try his hand at tilling the soil this coming summer having rented the Guthrie farm, containing upwards of 200 acres in the vicinity of Shiloh. Bent will, no doubt, find plenty to do on these wide acres, and expects to give the farmers that locality a little insight to extensive farming. According to the semi-annual appropriation budget passed by the council at their last meeting, and which is being advertised this week, it will cost Plymouth $16,021.55 to take care of matters for the next six months. While the appropriation is for the above amount it doesn't necessarily follow that this amount will be used. In spite of the fact leap year is actually here, we have heard of no arrangements for leap-year parties. Neither have we heard of any of the bashful young men taking to tall timbers to avoid an attack by the fair sex. It seems as if these fellows will stand their ground and fight it out along that line if it takes the whole year. With his throat slashed and blood still spurting from the jagged vein, Daniel Freehiser was murdered by a fifty-three-year-old, a resident of Butler, was found Sunday afternoon in a wooded, rear of the farmhouse. Freehiser was murdered by the suicide's wife. Dependancy over poor health is attributed as the cause for Mr. Freehiser taking his life. A fire got well started in the barn at the Hones Creek poultry farm Monday afternoon and had it not been for the timely discovery and quick action of employees, it is quite likely that the beautiful buildings would mark the spot where the beautiful buildings now stand. The flames were extinguished without assistance from the fire department. A petition is being circulated in Plymouth for the purpose of raising a fund for the benefit of the deaf and dumb in Europe. The paper carrying the names of subscribers is now at the Shields clothing store, where any one desiring to contribute to this worthy appeal can avail themselves of the opportunity. The sum of money subscribed will be given in next week's issue. While assisting in repairing a chimney on the McClinchey barns shop Saturday afternoon of last week, Jake Myers, Jr., slipped from the peak of the roof into a valley of an adjoining building, and when an inventor of the damages were taken it was found he had sustained a very bad sprained back, which has put him out of commission and compels him to hobble around on crutches. Owing to the great fall of "Neat of the Navy," the Deisler Theatre was very much disappointed in not getting the first installment for this week Wednesday evening. However, they have decided to continue over the company that the first serial will be here in ample time for this coming Wednesday evening. Therefore, Wednesday evening thereafter, when the play is completed. In the meantime read up the story so you can follow the action of the play, which is made with great enthusiasm wherever shown.

Elden Nimmons, who was elected to the office of village clerk last fall, and who took the oath of office at the beginning of the year, at a meeting of the council held last week Friday evening, tendered his resignation, to take effect at once, giving as his reason that the clerkship interfered with his duties at the bank. The same was accepted and the council then elected Attorney E. K. Trauger to fill out the unexpired term, and as he had served the city in this capacity previously, he naturally dropped into the work without a hitch. Brooding over his incarceration in the Ohio State reformatory for having shot his sweetheart following a quarrel which they had in Cleveland last fall, Anthony Micolio, a Hungarian inmate of the Mansfield institution, attempted suicide shortly before noon Monday by jumping from the top range of cells in the west cell block a distance of more than sixty feet to the cement floor below. He landed feet foremost with such force that the ankle bones were driven through his feet and through his shoes. There is no chance for his recovery according to the attending physicians at the reformatory hospital. Miss Ruth Finrock, who for two or more years has been principal of Plymouth High School, has tendered her resignation to the board of education to take effect at the beginning of this week, intending going to Mansfield, her home, where she has accepted a position in the schools of that city. At a meeting of the school board held Monday evening her resignation was accepted and the board was advanced to the position made vacant by Miss Finrock, while Miss Fuldria Bryan of Wooster, was elected to the position as assistant principal, and Miss the school will progress without a break. Miss Finrock has made many friends during her school work here, all of whom will wish her well in her new field of labor. Prof. Henry A. Adrian, who is one of the leading educators of the Pacific coast, and who has been lecturing for several seasons on the work of Luther Burbank, the plant wizard, with great success believes that many of the processes which Burbank has worked out with such signal result in plant life, can with equal success be used in the proper training of children. Adrian says As surely as the wasp side seed was moulded into the nest of the wasp, Shasta daisy, so surely may the weak and the wayward among children be made into useful citizens. Prof. Adrian's work with children has, in its way, been almost as remarkable as that of Luther Burbank's with plants, and of each he tells an absorbing story with all the power of a master of thought and expression. His lecture here next week Tuesday should attract all thoughtful people. Plymouth was more firmly placed on the map last week when W. G. Ramsey of this city walked off with the honors at the midwinter trap shooting tournament at Pinehurst. He, being champion of the tournament, having won the trophy and a handsome purse beside. The trophy consisted of a set of gold-backed military brushes, valued at $125. He and a gentleman named Potts of New York, were tie, each having broke 85 at 18 yards, and in the shoot-off Ramsey broke 25 out of 25, and Potts 21 out of 25, giving "Boomer" a handsome margin over his opponent for the honors of the tournament. F. B. Holland, also of this city, was right along with the best of them, but on account of being handicapped he did not fare quite so well as Mr. Ramsey. Both the sportsmen are highly elated over the shoot and their trip and report the tournament being one of the cleanest and nicest ever held.

The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the home of Mrs. Philip Nixon, Wednesday, Feb. 2nd. House to Rent. Nine room house, water, gas, good barn, out buildings and large garden. Will rent to one or two families. Mrs. Wm. Tesson, phone 176.

The Cruise of The Last Hope

A Thanksgiving Day Story.

By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS

Johnny Baxter was born on the Maine coast and was not at home on the water when he was ten years old than on land. At any rate, he liked the water better, for, as he put it, the boat did his walking for him, and that was much better than using his legs. Johnny figured as a boy before the period of motorboats, but he was scarcely into his teens when he had rigged a little three cornered sail on a six foot pole in a punt and seemed to know just how to navigate. It used to frighten his mother by going out in his punt into open water, but he was never frightened himself. We are not usually frightened at that time when we are accustomed. Johnny was several times caught in a storm out in water where the force of the waves was unbroken by any intervening land, but he never lost his head. But one day he dropped a lighted match in a thicket dried after a long storm, and started a fire. He ran to the nearest house so frightened that he was scarcely able to warn the inmates of the danger that threatened him. When the fire was put out he called away from his boat. When asked why he did so he replied that he did not like being ashore; it made him afraid.

Bessie Andrews, a couple of years younger than Johnny, was an ambitious girl, and she had been in the school together, but, as to play, their playing was done in Johnny's boat. Bessie's mother objected to her riding out with Johnny till the boat itself was unable to prevent it, then consented on condition that they never sail outside the cove. Conditions with children when they are beyond reach are a dead letter. When Johnny was held off for breaking the agreement he laid it to the tide or the wind, or both. That ended the argument.

Johnny and Bessie grew up together, and when Johnny came to manhood and the problem of making his own living presented itself he naturally chose the sea. There was, however, a great obstacle in the way of his going. He and Bessie had become so used to being together that a separation was terrible to think of. Though Bessie was being a girl she could not stand with Johnny on the same vessel. Bessie proposed dressing as a boy in order to go with him, but Johnny was unwilling. He said the tight fitting sailor tops would give her away at once.

Johnny shipped before the mast—there were few sailors for the time being—for a cruise to the west coast of South America to bring back hides. He was gone two years and would have enjoyed the voyage immensely if he could have had Bessie Andrews with him. As it was, he was mighty glad to get back. When they parted he did not entirely forget the childhood companionship that had existed between them, when John returned. He showed to each other arms as a part of his love.

John found that during his absence another barrier like the sea had come between him and his girl. Her father, Nathan Barrows, when a boy had gone to the city and had prospered as a shipping merchant, but when she had not been with him, he had had no one to whom to refer his accumulations. Bessie's wife was an invalid and needed the attention of a young woman. The same had happened to her and her husband, so that they had provided she would remain with them so long as they could leave her their property.

There was a severe complication for John Baxter who could not claim Bessie as his bride without doing so to her serious disadvantage. As the wife of a sailor she would live without the companionship of her husband the greater part of the time and must live in comparative poverty. As her husband's adopted daughter she would lose all the advantages which would accrue to John was made of such stuff that he would not stand in the way of the girl's marriage, though it would cost him the resolution to give her up. He not only advised his sweetheart to accept the offer, but insisted upon it being done. She consented to act with the hope that if she and John should outlive Mr. and Mrs. Barrows they might be united. Such a result did not enter Johnny's calculations, and he made no mention of her expectations to him.

When John sailed again there was but one comfort for him—Bessie was pledged not to marry during her uncle and aunt's lifetime, and John need not marry if he was not so disposed. Nevertheless he expected Bessie to take that refinement city life is supposed to produce, and if she married it would be with a city bred man. Two years passed during which John Baxter's sterling worth gained him the position of first mate of a vessel in the China trade. Mrs. Barrows died at this time, and her husband found himself dependent on his adopted daughter for whatever comfort remained to him. They got on very well. He retained control of his business, and his only regret concerning Bessie was that she was never married.

he might fit her to manage it when she should own it after his death. Another five years brought a still greater chance. One morning while sitting at his desk in the office Mr. Barrows was stricken with apoplexy and died in a few days. Bessie, while she loved her adopted father, had looked forward to a day, after he had finished his career, to see union with John Baxter. She now had a double chance for winning this union. She had suddenly come into the possession of a shipping business and believed—that which she wished to believe—that John's sailing life would have fitted him to manage it for her. John was at sea at the time and was not expected to return for several months.

Miss Andrews, after coming into possession of the business, appointed the best man in it to manage it under her direction, she going to the office frequently to overlook it. But, being a practical woman with some head for business, she soon perceived that her manager was unequal to the task. She resented for John's return, finally believing that, though he had not been educated for the purpose, his knowledge of sea and sailing would be valuable. Then came a disappointment. News came that the Petrel, which John or sailing had been appointed to command, had been wrecked in a storm on the east coast of Africa and all hands had been lost. The statement that all had perished was given on buoy and authority, and Miss Andrews hoped that some of the crew, including the captain, might have gained the shore in safety. Africa at that time was wild, and persons were not on its coast were liable either to be murdered or made slaves. Miss Andrews tried to get a ship made out of her own, but her most trusted captain master and sent him to look for any members of the lost crew that might have been saved. She would have gone with the expedition, but at this time she was trying to supply her uncle's place in the management of the business.

The Last Hope—such was the name Miss Andrews gave the rescue vessel—sailed for the coast of Africa on the 10th of September. The best she could do was to give to her master words to the effect: "I'll give you $500 for every man you bring back, $250 for every one you lose, and $100 for every one you bring back in time for Thanksgiving or I'll add $5000."

"I'll do the best I can, in any event," replied the captain, and, weighing anchor, he sailed. There were no wireless messages in those days, and the Last Hope was not heard from except on being spotted by an incoming ship on the way out. A month passed and she did not return. Her uncle and every one else who had heard of her if it began to look as if the Last Hope had failed. The day before Thanksgiving, Elizabeth Andrews had given up any hope she had cherished of having Captain Baxter with her for the anniversary. She was comforted up her home, in thinking to pass the day without making any effort to observe the usual festivities, but being alone was so tired that she determined to go to her office and rest in her occupation.

She had not been there long when she received a telegram. "The Last Hope is here," it ran, "and has been three hours of suspense. Had the mission been successful? If so was Captain Baxter among those who would return on the incoming vessel? She tried to think that she was as interested in the others' safety as in his, but she knew in her heart that she was not. She was between believing that she would meet her lover again, and that she would not. The latter belief led with despair, the former with a tremor to the tips of her fingers.

It would be some time before the vessel would reach the dock, and part of the time she was occupied in preparing by making her preparations to go to meet the ship and a part she would stand on the pier. Her impatience to see what had been accomplished led her to start to the dock so early that she was obliged to wait there an hour, and this was the longest hour of all and filled with flashes of hope and despair.

When the ship came in and was swung round to the upper dock, the standing beside her master was a figure which Miss Andrews' eager eyes recognized for John Baxter. He saw her and smiling, waved to her.

These two who were eager to confer together were kept separate for awhile by a man who had been on the pier the time not twenty feet wide. The ship was at last docked, and as soon as the gangplank was run out Captain Baxter stepped on shore, and as he descended and was met on the dock by the girl who had been instrumental in bringing him and others of his crew home. Notwithstanding those looking on the couple were locked in an embrace, after which Miss Andrews welcomed the others to their native shore. This evening the captain and crew of the Last Hope, the captain and a dozen of the crew of the Petrel—all that had been rescued from the wreck—sat down to a Thanksgiving dinner. A seat at the head of the table was reserved for Miss Andrews, and when the dinner had been disposed of she entered and listened to an account of the sufferings of the returned sailors given by Captain Baxter. They had been slaves from the time they went aboard the vessel until they were released. Before the gathering broke up Miss Andrews handed each man a sum of money for immediate use and the captain of the Last Hope the promised reward.

Captain Baxter and Miss Andrews were married the day after Thanksgiving, and the groom at once entered upon the work of managing his wife's business affairs. He proved to have a head fitted for the purpose and became a permanent success.

I Am "Granny" Chamberlain

Everybody's friend when they have coughs and colds and their children have croup and whooping cough. Most everyone knows me. I have been going from home to home for nearly fifty years—always welcome, too, for I never fail in their hour of need.

I have helped young mothers whose babies were choking with croup, and been the comfort of parents whose children tramp to school through the wet winter weather. Many a cold and attack of bronchitis I have warded off, and thousands I have helped through the anxious moments of whooping cough. I have come to the aid of mothers and fathers when they had colds and influenza, and have been a relief to old folks suffering from bronchitis and asthma.

I have had a most varied experience; I go everywhere—among the rich and the poor, in cities and the country.

Now don't forget "Granny" Chamberlain! You will see me often now, for I am going to tell you of my experience and what can be done in your home with ### Beautifical Appeals to Boys.

The man of today will tell that any time he has taken his lunch out under the trees or in the woods with the neighboring boys and studied the beauties of nature, such as the trees, the flowers and even the little brooks.

That part of craving for adventure which is a part of every growing boy's life is summed up in the word scoutcraft. That includes wood lore, campcraft, woodcraft and many other interesting things that the actors of old had to know. These things appeal to every boy and many men of today.
