Helping the Meat and Milk Supply

(Special Information Service, United States Department of Agriculture)

GOOD FOR YOUNG AND OLD

Dairy Products Essential for Growth of Children and Health of Adults.

DAIRY PRODUCTS VERY ESSENTIAL

America Depended Upon to Meet the Needs of All Allied and Neutral Countries.

COW IS EFFICIENT PRODUCER

Great Lack of Food Conservation is to Turn Inedible Feeds Into Edible Feeds in Cheapest Manner Possible—Cleanliness Urged.

Dairying—one of the largest of the agricultural enterprises of this country—has a big war job. Dairy products are essential to the well-being of the nation, and it has been urged by the United States department of agriculture that every effort be made to maintain the supply in this country, and so far as possible, to meet the increasing demands of the allies.

Before the war the United States received dairy products from 24 foreign countries. Now these supplies have been largely stopped and it has become necessary not only to replace them at home but to export large quantities.

Turns Feed Into Food.
Two facts stand out prominently as reasons for the increased production and use of milk. The first is that milk as purchased on the market usually supplies food material together with the growth-producing elements, more economically than either meat or eggs. The second reason is that the dairy cow is the most economical producer of animal food. One great object of food conservation is to turn inedible feeds into edible foods in the cheapest possible manner. The dairy cow will utilize coarse materials, inedible by humans, such as grass, cornstalks, hay, etc., and will turn them into milk, which is suitable for human food. Other farm animals also are converted into nutritious products, but are not so efficient as the dairy cow.

So much for the war duty of the producer. To get the full benefit of the milk, care and attention on the part of the consumer is necessary.

Consumer Must Be Careful.
If the milk producer and the milk dealer have done their duty there is left duty on the consumer's door. A bottle of clean, cold, unadulterated milk. By improper treatment in the home the milk may become unfit for food, especially for babies. This bad treatment may consist of placing it in unclean vessels, exposing it unnecessarily to the air; falling to keep it cool up to the time of using it; or exposing it to flies.

Milk absorbs impurities—collects bacteria—whenever it is exposed to the air or placed in unclean vessels. Some of these may be the bacteria of certain contagious diseases; others may cause digestive troubles which in the case of infants may prove fatal. Cleanliness and cold are imperative for good milk.

Here are some suggestions from specialists of the United States department of agriculture:

Avoid milk kept in a can, open much of the time and possibly without refrigeration, at the bakery or grocery store.

contaminate a refrigerator in a few days.

All utensils with which milk comes in contact should be rinsed, washed and scalded every time they are used. When a baby is bottle-fed, every time the feeding bottle and nipple are used they should be rinsed in lukewarm water, washed in hot water to which a small amount of washing soda has been added, and then scalded. Never use a rubber tube between bottle and nipple, or a bottle with corners.

If a case of typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria or other contagious disease breaks out on the family, do not return any bottles to the milkman except with the knowledge of the attending physician and under conditions prescribed by him.

While efficient pasteurization destroys germs and affords a safeguard against certain dangers, it should not be regarded as an insurance against future contamination of milk, and the foregoing suggestions should be observed in the case of pasteurized milk as well as with ordinary milk. Do not keep milk over 24 hours, even if it seems to be sweet, as milk may become unfit for human food before it sours.

MILK GOOD FOR ALL

Drink milk. Drink more milk. Pure, fresh rich milk is a food fit for the gods. Babies cannot live without milk; and growing children grow the faster for it. It gives vitality to youth, power to middle life, and to old age it brings a goodly portion of the health and strength of former years. It should be used more largely by people of all ages, classes and conditions. Milk steadies the nerves, adds to the health, physical strength and mental energy of those who use it. It excels coffee, and with it tea is not to be compared. We may drink it at meals and between meals. It is delicious, refreshing, invigorating. It is one of nature's best gifts to men. Come, let us have another glass of milk.

Bread and Milk.

What unburdened child, tired hours of play have made him thin and hungry, does not delight in a bowl of bread and milk? What student, whose brain is weary from long hours of constant study, does not desire a lunch of bread and milk? The overburdened man, who has spent his day in a shop, can quickly regain her strength by eating bread and milk. The man who labors with his hands, who works his strength and vitality by a single meal, can quickly regain her strength by eating bread and milk. All who are weary and overburdened with work or worry may find life and strength and pleasure in a good old-fashioned bowl of bread and milk.

Slilage Valuable for Sheep.

A good quality of silage is extremely palatable and can be fed to all classes of sheep with good results. It must be remembered, however, that silage which is either very sour, moldy or frozen should not be fed.

Use of this succulent feed for sheep has attracted the attention of most farmers only during the past few years. Much has been said of its bad effects upon sheep, but these have been due either to an inferior quality of silage or carelessness of the feeder and improper feeding.

Late summer and early fall is trying on sows and late-farrowed pigs. Unless there is green food it is likely to cause a feeder considerable trouble.

WORLD'S HIGHEST CAPITAL

Scene in La Paz.

LA PAZ, the city of peace, and the metropolis of Bolivia, stands amid great and majestic mountains in a region of the earth over which some of the earliest people trod. Only 50 miles from the country's capital of today lie the ruins of Tahuamanu, universally conceded to be among man's most ancient habitations. The whole region surrounding Bolivia's unique capital is so hazy with age that a man's imaginative brain is puzzled in attempting to conjecture the era of prehistoric construction, says William A. Reid in the Bulletin of the Pan American Union.

Scientists further tell us that once upon a time the Andean plateau was scarcely more than half as elevated as today, and that in lands where Bolivia's present gold and silver lie secluded the prehistoric inhabitant filled his fields of grain. Gradually rising higher and higher with the passing of geological ages, we find the Bolivian plateau at too great an elevation today for the majority of agricultural crops, but a region of the earth lavishly endowed by nature with almost every variety of mining. It is what might be termed the heart of this mineral plateau, an area of 85,000 square miles, that Bolivia's modern capital has grown to be a flourishing city of 82,000 people.

La Paz de Aracocha, to use the full name adopted after the country attained its independence (proclaimed Aug. 6, 1825), is not only unique in its ancient surroundings, but the city lies so completely hidden in an enormous canyon or vent in the plateau that in journeying thither one may very readily be lulled by the soft and warm air into the belief that in past ages it was the outlet of Lake Titicaca, when possibly that body of water was connected with the upper Amazon river. Approaching La Paz by any of the three railways leading thither the sides of the canyon appear to be almost perpendicular; yet engineering skill has marvellously and two railroads down these precipitous sides, presenting at every turn a gorgeous panorama. The clear, crisp air, the mineral colorings of the mountain sides, the red tile roofs and the bright shades of the houses in the distance, the green patches of trees here and there, the flowing rivulets and larger streams, the snow-covered peaks together with the gay colors always worn by the humble natives, combine to form a pleasing and lasting picture.

El Alca, a term rather than a name of the little railroad station near the edge of the canyon, stands as already noted about 1,500 feet above the city, while the latter is 12,700 feet higher than the sea level. From only 300 miles from the Pacific, we can form an idea of the steep climb made by the railways in order to reach this inland country.

Supplanted Sucra as Capital.
We speak of La Paz as being the capital of Bolivia and thereby confuse the minds of those not fully acquainted with the La Sucra, formerly called Charcas, is the legal capital of the republic, but largely on account of accessibility and growing commercial importance La Paz became the actual seat of government less than 20 years ago. In the latter city the president and his official advisers reside, the nation's congress meets there, and it is the residence of the foreign diplomatic accredited to Bolivia; but the supreme court of the country still holds its sessions at Sucra. The distance between the two cities is about 200 miles; but the more rapid growth of La Paz especially since the completion of the three rail routes to the Pacific, seems to accentuate the desirability of La Paz over Sucra as the capital of the nation.

It is also extremely rugged and interspersed with many small tablelands and mountain peaks, the whole dominated by majestic Illimani, rearing its snow-covered crest to 21,850 feet. In consequence of this unevenness the streets of the city running parallel with the larger stream and thirty level (Avenida Arce; for illustration), while cross streets are necessarily short and in many cases elevated at the ends as they approach the sides of the canyon. Some of these streets are extremely steep, while others have been constructed in conformity with the configuration of the hills and are therefore more or less winding.

One of the city's widest and most popular residential streets lies in the southern section and is known as the Alameda, extending half a mile along a level course and adorned with willow, eucalyptus, and other handsome trees. Shrubs and flowers are also to be seen; but the extremely high altitude appears to have a somewhat blighting effect upon such growth. The Alameda, always more or less animated, is especially alive in late afternoons and on Sundays and holidays, when the elite of social and official life are to be seen walking, driving, or motoring along its course. On passing through a picturesque gateway its popular avenue is prolonged through Plaza Concordia and the Twelfth of December Street to Obrapia. The latter is in three miles distant, and the ride over a very great canyon or vent of the city is through an extremely picturesque canyon abounding in novel views for the stranger. The more important streets are well lighted by electricity, the use of which has been expanding considerably in recent years as the motive power for numerous industries.

Where Murillo Is Honored.
La Paz is not unlike other Latin-American cities in providing numerous and attractive plazas. The most notable of these is that known as Murillo, so named in honor of the hero of independence, Pedro Domingo Murillo, who gave up his life on this sacred spot in 1825. The torch of liberty was first lighted, however, spread over the continent, and finally resulted in the independence of Bolivia as well as the sister nations by which she is surrounded. Today the center of the plaza stands a beautiful monument to Murillo, the patriot honored in the past as at present as one who surrendered his life rather than to the cause of the people. Once or twice a week military band, grouped near the monument, discourses solo-singing if somewhat plaintive airs that please stragglers and citizens alike, as they stroll or sit comfortably on the seats provided for the public. A few large trees and many varieties of flowers suited to high altitudes are found in this park.

The buildings of La Paz usually strike the stranger with interest. Although many have been constructed of Spanish or Spanish and Moorish architecture, the extremely rugged topography of the place has been responsible for local modifications and reached considerable heights, and these will be surmounted by towers and a central cupola, the former rising to a height of 800 feet above the Plaza Murillo, upon which the building stands.

Personal Reports of Real Cases

A NEW YORK CASE.
Mrs. Chas. Nichols, 119 Park St., Forest Hill, N. Y., says: "I owe my life to Doan's Kidney Pills for scarlet fever had left me in such a weak state that I had kidney disease. I became so weak and helpless that I couldn't move a muscle and my hands and limbs became swollen twice their normal size. Everything that touched me seemed to burn like a hot iron. I was treated by the best of physicians who declared I couldn't live longer than a month. Finally I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and got some. The first box brought me relief and three boxes entirely cured me. The cure has proven permanent for ten years."

AN OHIO CASE.
N. R. Hill, carpenter, Defiance and Church Sts., Defiance, Ohio says: "About twelve years ago I was in bad shape with kidney trouble. At such times I was helpless and doctors said I had to die, but gave me only temporary relief. I had to get up several times at night and the kidney secretions were scanty. I went from bed to worse. The doctor said I couldn't be cured without an operation. I had to finally give up and take to my bed. I couldn't move because the least touch of my feet hurt me. I was insane. The first box of Doan's Kidney Pills gave me great relief. The pains became less severe and finally went away and my kidneys became regular. I picked up in strength and soon led the usual life."

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN IN A GIRL

Miss Kelly Tells How Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Newark, N. J.—"For about three years I suffered from nervous breakdown and got so weak I could hardly stand, and had headaches every day. I tried everything I could think of and was under a physician's care for two years. A girl friend told me about it. From the first day I took it I began to feel better and now I am well and able to do most any kind of work. It has been recommended the Compound ever since and gives you my permission to publish this letter."—Miss FLO KELLY, 476 So. 14th St., Newark, N. J.

The reason this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound, was so successful in Miss Kelly's case was because it went to the root of her trouble, restored her to a normal healthy condition and as a result her nervousness disappeared.

SWEATER IS FAWN COLORED

Latest Style Home-Knitted Garment for Fall Is Both Sensible and Inexpensive.

Each season develops its exclusive sweater style, and the smart summer sweater this year is a fawn-colored one with fair with graceful lines and a crossed belt instead of a sash. The belt, which is very wide, matches the sweater in color and is knitted on small needles so that its weave is firm and strong. The end of the belt passes through a slit in the other end, and both ends fasten back neatly against the belt with loops over pearl buttons. The band trimming down the front and around the neck, also made on the small needles, turns back against the sweater to form a narrow collar and revers.

The tops of the pockets turn down in the same way and are caught with loops over pearl buttons. The body of the fawn-colored sweater is of fine shawl wool in a rather loose stitch, the closely-knit trimmings giving an effective touch of contrast. Such a sweater must be made slightly wider than usual in the fronts, to allow for the turning back of the edges in reverse fashion.

The woman who feels she owes one really good sweater to herself, after all she has made for the soldiers, is putting her extra time into a really good knitted coat which will be worn enough for autumn and winter. She will study the stunning sweaters sold for men's wear by the sporting goods houses and pattern her autumn jacket accordingly. Knitting one way and putting back produces a very dense, compact stitch which is exceedingly durable. It takes longer to knit a sweater this way but the result pays. The sleeves should be made separately and sewed in. The collar may be rolled over silk like the collar on a man's sweater, or the plain edge band that gives a V-neck opening may be used.

NEW RAFFIA KNITTING BAGS

Once Popular Material Is Given Life In Very Attractive and Popular Designs.

"Have you made a raffia knitting bag? You remember, we all used to do raffia work? Then, after the novelty of making our own pretty baskets—and some of them were very attractive—had worn off, we forgot all about raffia work, according to a correspondent.

Somebody, however, did not forget, and now some of the smart shops along uptown are selling raffia in very good colors and designs. The bags are first of all commodious and shapely. They are fitted with a fairly wide handle to hang over the arm. They are made of raffia in different harmonizing colors, worked into a foundation of white; that is to say, of light straw color, the usual uncolored raffia color. One of the bags is of a dull yellowish green and a soft glowing orange worked in with the straw color. Another is of blue and black and bright yellow, plentifully intermixed, of course, with the white or natural color. The bags can be made with all linings, or without any linings at all.

TREAT YOUR VEIL THIS WAY

Attractive Use of Wool Embroidery Is Detailed by a Well-Known Fashion Correspondent.

Now that veils are "in" again so strong, the individually inclined persons will be racking their clever little heads for "different" veil treatments—the main thing in embroidery, of course, is to be one of that class, here are some ideas that may interest you:

Some time somewhere very recently was noted a veil that had for a border an interesting use of wool, yes, wool embroidery. Large woolly French knots were that grouped themselves in threes, diamond shape, all about the lower edge of the veil. This would be every bit as good as any other on the black veil, and so are white ones. But be sure that the mesh is fine enough to permit of successful French knots. One girl adopted the idea and was so pleased with the results that she straightaway set to work making an allover knotted veil. It was stunning.

FROM FASHION'S NOTE BOOK

Unusual and striking is this afternoon suit model of black and white satin charmeuse.

Italian Bead Chains.

Something that gives a charming dash of color to a dark frock of serge or silk is one of the new Italian bead necklaces. They are called necklaces, but they are no more or less than long strands of beads, not strung in a circle, but left flat with unconnected ends. They cost as much as ten dollars, some of them, but they are well worth the price, for their pattern is as effective, their coloring is bright but harmonious, and their workmanship renders them flexible and graceful.

New Ideas.

Wearing bright colors is a war time duty. Dyes, remember, are a by-product of coal tar, which is used in the manufacture of munitions. Now do not underestimate the psychological effect of cheerful colors.

Letter From Elden Nimmons.

Somewhere in France.

July 31, 1918.

Dear Mother and Brother:
I did not get your written Sunday so will answer today. There isn't much to tell you as things are about the same with me. I am kept quite busy here in the office and like the fellows here very agreeable associates. One of the boys here from Bucyrus so it seems like knowing some one from home.

I am well as usual and get my three good meals a day as we have good food here. For breakfast but four corners a week we get bacon, hot cakes with syrup and butter, and coffee, and you know what I can do to such a lay out. And from the papers I guess we get steak as often as you do.

Your letters reach me all right, about four at a time but an mighty glad to get them and to hear what is going on at home. This week I had letters from the Willett's, Roeliff, cousin Mayme Mc, and you, so I am pretty well fed up on news. By the way the Advertiser reached me last week, I think I read every word. I think you have a real live Editor. From the sound of the papers I will be glad to get them as often as you can send them.

So you didn't have a big cherry crop. Gee I had counted on a cherry pie when we come. Now you will have a can of old ones left.

Mahlon I wish you could see them harvest over here. They cut the grain and hay with a scythe of some sort and haul it in carts or tied up in a blanket and slung on a mule's back. They also drive dogs here and every morning about four milk carts go out of this town to the city, drawn by dogs. The dogs look very much like a wolf. Ours are used to pull the heavy loads which consist chiefly of logs, as this is a great timber country.

The trees are of a pine species and grow very straight tall, and there are millions of them all over the mountains are all forest yet. I have seen mountain sides where these trees had been literally mowed down by artillery fire and have seen (with my own eyes) shells cut trees down as though they were sticks.

Yes this is a great country and I am taking all in I can, as I have been across France and then some, but none of it looks as good as our U. S. and me, and I can assure you I will lose no time in coming when we once get this job over and from the way they are giving it to Fritz, I think it will end before long although we cannot tell just how soon.

We were paid off the other day and given new clothes as well as a delousing, if you know what that is. Well it is a process of getting rid of lice, flees and other bugs that happen to be on you, but I now feel as good as new for we can take a plunge in the river once in a while to keep clean, but back in the trenches it was different. I went a whole month without a bath or even taking my clothes off and every night I did I take my shoes off, but I can take my clothes off and get a good sleep.

The next time you write you will have to give me a new address. I have had a little raise in rank as well as pay which I appreciate and which I shall try to hold. I am now working in the Regimental Headquarters office. I suppose a lot of them around there think it funny that with my fourteen years' experience at the bank that I should be in the front line trenches but I stood it as well as a lot more and one thing sure we cannot all have office jobs, but the Infantry is certainly hard on a fellow as short as I am.

I will just say we are located in a new place. I think I will like it here, the country is very pretty and things in France certainly look prosperous.

A little incident occurred while we were moving which I might mention. We stopped to cook our dinner at a nice shady place, and in a few minutes a shell burst near us and seriously wounded a French soldier who was near there but no one else was hurt and things have been quiet since. It is very tiresome moving in this country when you carry all your household goods on your backs. Think when I get home I will advertise as a moving van.
Don't worry about me as I am getting along fine and write and give me all the news about boys. I will keep well and don't work too hard.

Yours with love,
Cory A. E. Nimmons

Futility of Wet Arguments.

Jesse E. Ladow, Mansfield, Ohio. The man does not being advanced as an argument, by the Home Rule Association and the Liberty League since the war began as before. The substance of the principle advocated, namely Prohibition is, that a regulation of habit by law is a confession of a general weakness of character which each individual is strong enough to regulate for himself, and to accept regulation by law constitutes a personal reflection and humiliation. They make it an esoteric consideration. It is not. This logic is weak, sentimental and not in accord with the experience of generations.

Such argument may equally be applied to any restraining or prohibitive law. The peoples of free nations have had laws to restrain and control within restricted bounds, human conduct, from time immemorial. A people that does not need the restraining and guiding force of law would form a perfect nation the like of which history does not reveal. Human life should be brought to its best uses and highest enjoyments. Our law is based upon the Magna Charta and the Charter of English liberties, over six centuries old.

The penal laws enacted by the state of Ohio including definitions and forms practices, which seek to guide us in paths whereby we do not infringe the rights of others, number 1,396 separate statutory sections of law. The penalties range from light fines to imprisonment and death. Besides these states criminal restraining and prohibitive laws, there are laws in every municipality called ordinances. Then we are under the surveillance also of many interstate or federal laws covering interstate infractions with penalties. We do not hear of the Home Rule Association or the Liberty League complaining about these numerous penal laws interfering with the liberty of the people, yet they are a primary curtailment of liberty, though for the general good of the body politic.

Amongst the penal prohibitive laws is one against the free use of cocaine; another against the use of morphine, etc. These are known as habit-forming drugs. It is not an equal reflection against the habitual users of these drugs that laws were enacted prohibiting their unrestrained use? Is it not the same kind of reasoning in principle that a large part of the body politic are now seeking to be enacted to prohibit the unrestrained general use of habit-forming liquors? Would not their users addicted to such self-deceiving drugs have the same arguments that their liberty is being taken away from them, by such a prohibitive law enacted as the habitual users of liquor—see now urging? They pretend the public is not interested.

If the foregoing "argument" had any force before the war, it certainly has none now, since the war began. Conservation of food-stuffs and efficiency is now the rule. Great sacrifices by all loyal people who are not directly or indirectly with the Kaiser must be and are being made. The beer we drink takes a ton of coal for every 250 gallons brewed. There were over 162 million gallons brewed in Ohio in 1917, which consumed 605,000 tons of coal. This consumption of coal was for a non-essential—beer is a non-essential. It destroyed part of the efficiency of the coal miners who drank it. It took the time and labor to ship it in that should have been used for necessities.

Beer is an instrument of the Kaiser against America. It was a means through which the German-American Alliance fought Prohibition and thereby sought to maintain and defend "German ideals," one of the main objects of this (unholy) Alliance, while at the same time the Germans are murdering and crucifying our own soldiers at the front.

The brewing of this German beverage in 1917 spoiled and wasted 68 million bushels of food grain. The German U-boats sunk ruthlessly eight million bushels. The German brewers were eight and one-half times a greater enemy to our grain last year than the German U-boats were. We pause, breathless, when we think of the eight million bushels so ruthlessly sunk to the bottom of the sea, but we do not stop to think of the 68 millions of bushels and savely destroyed on land by the German brewers. The food grain sunk by the U-boats at sea is gone forever. The grain used up by the brewers in beer is not so well disposed of; it is offered as a beverage to our people to be drunk up and destroy the efficiency of our man power, and thus pleasantly aid the Kaiser to kill our boys at the front, as well as to shake and destroy the thinking of our vast amount of grain being sunk at sea, yet these 68 millions wasted in beer in 1917 would have done far more damage to America, and proportionately less to the Kaiser; if it had all been sunk at sea.

The opportunity will be up to the voters of Ohio next November to say whether they will stop this waste of coal fuel, man-power and add to the Kaiser, by voting to close the brewing of beer, at least for and during the period of the war.

Forgive the Boy Stop the Booze

Dispatch to Pittsburgh Gazette-Times, from Clarion, Pa.

Selective men who left Clarion for Camp Lee were provided with liquor from a hotel bar room, and some of them trained. One incident stirred indignation:

- One of the young soldiers staggered from the bar room, shouting and hoisterous. His father and mother stood on the sidewalk waiting for him. As the mother caught sight of her boy, reeling and mauling, she broke into tears and cried; "Oh, son, do not leave me in this terrible condition. The father, too, wept.
- The young soldier candidate, too overcome by liquor to relate what a brutal thing he was doing, shocked spectators by suddenly slapping his weeping mother across the face, and exclaiming; "Go to Hell, Mother!"

The Local Draft Board had asked the saloonkeepers to keep closed while the men were in town. Can anyone tell why civilized people permit such places in their midst at any time? Is it any wonder that prohibition is coming so fast as the people and legislature can act upon it?

Ambassador James W. Gerard's "My Four Years in Germany."

The greatest picture of the times showing how the Kaiser and his henchmen had planned to divide up America. The blood-stirring facts, not fiction, depicted in this picture show you why America must fight.

You see the Kaiser tell Gerard, "America better look out after the war, I will stand no nonsense from her." You see the overrunning of Belgium, the German prison camps, the U-Boat warfare, and the underground pages of German diplomacy, Germany never intended Americans to find out.

This picture is one of the most remarkable pages in the world's history. When you see it you will know why the American troops are over there in the trenches and why they will stay there until German autocracy is broken.

John Chinaman.

He is now to be found in every country of the globe. As an immigrant he comes ignorant of language and customs, often despised and maltreated and subject to oppressive laws, but he always makes his own way. Drop him down on any spot on the earth's surface and he will make a living for himself and ask odds of no one. The Chinese beggar in a foreign land is unknown.

He is miserly and lives cheaply only when circumstances compel. When prosperity smiles there is no more generous people.

As a trader and a merchant he has no equal. In the Philippines there are only 50,000 Chinese, less than one per cent of the total population. But this handful of Chinese controls 90 per cent of the retail trade of the islands.

In trade, in scholarship, in bodily strength and endurance, in industry, John Chinaman individually is able to hold his own against all comers. He can live and prosper in adverse conditions where all other races fail.

Yet his country is weak and of smaller countries and its future is a subject of apprehension and doubt. Official corruption, superstitious provincial spirit instead of national patriotism, bind the country to old forms, and make its progress slow and uncertain.

Western ideals and learning, carried to China largely by the American missionary, are helping now to show more clearly the ways to advancement and are loosening some of the old bonds.

A great opportunity will only make you ridiculous unless you are prepared for it.

Crowd Forced School Janitor to Kiss the Flag

INDIANAPOLIS—Employees of the Nordyke & Marmon company's plant said to have been 350 strong, and headed by a group of soldiers on duty at the plant, placed an American flag on a pole occupied by Charles E. Heckman, 1404 Silver avenue, after Heckman had been forced to salute and kiss the flag, according to the employees.

Heckman, the workers say, was reported to have made the assertion that he "would not have the flag on his house and would shoot the first man who tried to arrest him or put a flag on his house."

Before the flag was hoisted on his home Heckman declared his loyalty to the United States, said some of the men in the crowd who went to the school building, where he was found, were a number of women and girls. There were threats of violence, it was said, but the soldiers took charge of the situation and released Heckman after he had kissed the flag.

Herbert Foltz, president of the board of school commissioners, said the board would make an investigation of the reported action of Heckman and, if the reports are found to be true, "quick action will be taken by the board."

"Such a thing as that will not be tolerated for a minute," Mr. Foltz said. "If the janitor has done and said the things he is charged with he will be dismissed at once."

Tire Salesman Had a Perfectly Corking Good Time

KANSAS CITY—"Stick" is no common crook, he says. He's a salesman. Every Sunday he takes his little notebook and circulates among chauffeurs and motorcar owners, taking orders for tires. In his little book he marks the size of the tire required and identifies the purchaser by some system of his own. Later in the week he delivers the tires. During the week he strolls them, he admitted before Judge Charles H. Clark in the North side court.

"Stick" Stanley knows practically every policeman on the force, in a personal, intimate way. His record, stated in an affidavit, embraced some 150 to 200 separate arrests for petty thefts.

When he appeared in court several months ago on a similar charge, "Stick" pleaded that he be allowed to join the navy, his police permission granted. The navy refused to take him, with his police record. Today he made a similar plea, asking he be allowed to join the army. Judge Clark fined "Stick" $100 and gave him to July 15 to leave town or get into some useful work. Since a sentence of 200 days on the municipal farm awaits the tire "salesman."

Stanley said he had a job in Kansas that he could take and that he'd leave at once. He said he thought he'd wait for the draft to come around to him. "Stick" is twenty-seven years old and has spent some of that time on the municipal farm and in the county jail.

He was arrested with his little notebook at Eighth street and Grand avenue by Patrick Thornton, patrolman.

Seemed Like Large Sum, but It Was Phony

CHICAGO—Judge John J. Gregory held $5,000 in his hands for five minutes the other day. It belonged to William Filman, whose wife, Jeannette, seeks a divorce and alimony. They live at 1722 Kincaid-kinnie avenue, in a home owned by the defendant. He testified he and his wife did not agree, and all the money he had was about $900 in the bank and $15 a week he drew from a machine shop he owns.

"He had $7,000 in cash only the other day. I helped him to count," exclaimed Mrs. Filman. The judge looked serious and asked: "Is that so, Filman?"

Filman replied: "We sure did count the money. It was $6,800. She counted $1,800 and I counted the other $5,000, and may it please your honor I will make you a present of it."

And, stuffing the action to his words, William pulled a role of $50 bills from his back pocket and handed them to the judge.

Lawyers on both sides gasped. Judge Gregory said he had never had so much money before and then he started to count it.

William explained he had to do things like that to appease his wife, who always wanted money.

The two have been married 18 years and Judge Gregory told them to come back in a day or two and meet him in chambers. "You two folks ought to make up and be happy," he said.

Captain's Head Is Bald, but Not From Gas Attack

KANSAS CITY—"I haven't a blade of hair on my head," wrote Capt. K. Hughes Keith, son of W. W. Keith, chairman of the draft board for the division. It was a letter telling of his complete recovery in a hospital after a gas attack. "I'm well and strong except for this disagreement," he continued.

He and Mrs. Keith were disturbed over this announcement. "I wonder if it will be for life," worried Mrs. Keith.

Mr. Keith met Dr. W. F. Morrow on the street. "My boy hasn't a hair on his head," he said. "Do you know whether it will grow again or what the effect of gas is in this way?" Doctor Morrow gave him the answer. "Don't you give us any more gas," he said. "I have never heard of this condition," replied Doctor Hall.

Still disturbed, Mrs. Keith mentioned the fact to a neighbor who has sons in the trenches. "Don't worry," she said. "They shove their heads in the hospitals to get rid of gas."

An subsequent letter has verified the fact that this is the extent of the injuries to Captain Keith.

Between enemy bullets and persistent and irritating coughs, it can hardly be said with truth that the soldier's life is one continuous record of happiness.

Home-Made Iceless Refrigerators

Food Can Be Kept Cool in This Inexpensive and Easily Constructed Convenience

Where ice is not obtainable an iceless refrigerator, homemade, will be a useful food keeper and food saver. Maintaining a low temperature through the evaporation of water from its canvas cover, according to the United States department of agriculture, the iceless refrigerator will keep meats, fruits and vegetables cool and will extend the period for keeping milk and butter. It can also serve as a cooler for drinking water. This is the way to make it:

A wooden frame is made with dimensions 42 by 16 by 14 inches and covered with screen wire, preferably the rustless type, which costs little more than the ordinary kind. The door is made to fit closely, and is mounted on brass hinges and can be fastened with a wooden latch. The bottom is fitted with a solid, but the top should be covered with screen wire. Adjustable shelves can be made of solid wood or strips, or sheets of galvanized metal. Shelves made of poultry netting on light wooden frames, as shown in the illustration, are probably the most desirable. These shelves rest on side braces placed at desired intervals. A bread-baking pan, 14 by 16 inches, is placed on the top and the frame rests in a 17 by 18 inch pan.

All the woodwork, the shelves and the pans should receive two coats of white paint and one or two coats of white enamel. This makes a very attractive surface and one that can be easily kept clean. The screen wire also may receive the coats of enamel, which will prevent it from rusting.

A cover of canvas flannel, burlap, or duck is made to fit the frame. Put the smooth side out if flannel is used. It will require about three yards of material. This cover is buttoned around the top of the frame and down the side on which the door is not hinged, using buggy hooks and eyes or large-headed tacks and eyelets worked in the material. On the front side arrange the hooks on the top of the door instead of on the frame and also fasten the cover down the latch side of the door, allowing a wide hem of the material to envelop the place where the door closes. The door can then be opened without unbuttoning the cover. The bottom of the cover should extend down into the lower pan. Four double strips, which taper to eight or ten inches in width, are sewed to the upper part of the cover. These strips form wicks that dip over into the upper pan.

The dimensions given make a refrigerator of very convenient size for household use and one with efficient evaporating surface, but it is not necessary to follow strictly these dimensions. If a larger capacity is desired, the height of the refrigerator can be increased.

In homes where large quantities of milk and butter are to be kept it may be well to have one refrigerator for milk and butter and another for other foods, as milk and butter easily absorb odors from other foods. It costs very little to build the refrigerator and nothing to operate. The operation is as simple as the construction. The upper pan should be kept filled with water. The water is drawn by capillary attraction through the wicks and saturates the cover. As evaporation takes place, heat is taken from the inside of the refrigerator, thereby lowering the temperature of the inside and the contents. Capillary action starts more readily if the cover is first dampened by dipping it in water or throwing water upon it. The greater the rate of evaporation the lower the temperature which can be assured; therefore the refrigerator works best when rapid evaporation takes place.

When the refrigerator is placed in a shady place in a strong breeze and the air is warm and dry, evaporation takes place continuously and rapidly and the temperature inside the refrigerator is reduced. Under ideal conditions the temperature has been known to be reduced to 50 degrees Fahr. When it is damp and the air is full of moisture, the refrigerator will not work as well, since there is not enough evaporation. More water will find its way to the lower pan, but it will be drawn up into the covering by capillary attraction when the air again becomes drier.

The refrigerator should be regularly cleaned and sanded. If the framework, shelves and pans are white enameled they can be more easily kept in a sanitary condition. It is well to have two covers, so that a fresh one can be used each week and the soiled one washed and sanded.

WITH THE POULTRY GROWERS

The poultry department of the New Jersey agricultural experiment station advises that careful attention be given to preparing the laying houses for the pullets. Before placing them in their permanent quarters, the house should be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected, as a precaution against disease.

As crowding lowers the vitality, each bird should be allowed at least four square feet of floor space, so that all drinking fountains, feed hoppers and other fixtures are raised off the floor.

Ventilation should be secured by means of adjustable windows in the front of the house. Keep this open at all times, except in very stormy weather and during severe cold spells. Provisions should be made for the least amount of sunlight possible in the house, as this is one of the best means of preventing disease. Windows should be so constructed that the sun can touch every part of the floor some time during the day.

It is essential that the house be kept dry. See that there are no places in the roof or sides where rain can beat in. Also, it is desirable to have a concrete-floor, laid on a bed of 10 to 12 inches of cinders. A dust box, 3 by 4 feet and 1½ feet deep, containing fine dust, should be placed in each house. In short, for the best results everything should be done to give the birds the best housing conditions possible.

"Doughboys" Are American Soldiers, Despite Position They May Hold in the Army

"A doughboy," says Stars and Stripes, official paper of the A. E. F., "is an American soldier, any American soldier, infantryman, artilleryman, medical department, signal corps sharpshooter and men alike, all are called 'doughboys.' Our cartoonist is one, so is General Pershing."

The term "doughboys" dates back to the Civil war when army men were aroused by large globular brass buttons on infantry uniforms. Somebody (he must have been a sailor) dubbed the buttons "doughboys" because they reminded him of the bodied dumplings of raised dough served in ships' messes and known to all sailors as doughboys. Originally it referred only to an enlisted man, but now it applies to all grades of the service.

Interesting Facts.

Paper matches are built into a new paper box for cigarettes. By moving a single lever a new automobile body is converted into an open car or a two-seated vehicle. An electric heater has been invented to prevent moisture collecting on an automobile windshield. Church Membership in the United States Shows Large Increase in Ten Years

During the ten-year period ending December 31, 1916, the total church membership in the United States increased from 35,068,058 to 42,044,374, or 19.9 per cent; the number of churches from 212,230 to 228,007, or 7.4 per cent; the number of ministers from 164,830 to 191,722, or 16.3 per cent; the number of Sunday school scholars from 15,837,511 to 20,069,591, or 25.8 per cent; and the number of Sunday school officers and teachers from 1,746,074 to 2,049,268, or 17.4 per cent.

These data, developed by the census bureau's recent inquiry relating to religious bodies, are contained in a statement compiled under the supervision of William C. Hunt, chief statistician for population.

The number of denominations covered was 201, an increase of 13 over the number reported for 1906. This increase is the result of the consolidation or dropping out of 16 small denominations and the addition of 29 small denominations, comprising some in existence in 1906, but not then brought to light, and others resulting from consolidation of formerly independent churches.

Of the 42,044,374 church members reported, 15,722,292, or 37.4 per cent, were Roman Catholics; 250,340, or six-tenths of 1 per cent, were adherents of the eastern orthodox churches (mainly Greek and Russian), 359,988, or nine-tenths of 1 per cent, were members of Jewish congregations.

The remainder, 25,691,774, or 61.1 per cent, comprised the membership of the various Protestant churches, together with that of a few baptist churches as the Latter Day Saints, the Spiritualists and others not usually considered as belonging to any of the groups named.

In comparing the figures given it should be borne in mind that the Roman Catholic and eastern orthodox churches include in their membership all children who have been baptized, whereas the Protestant churches do not, as a rule, receive young children as members, and that in the case of some of the more orthodox Jewish organizations only the male incorporators or those who have bought shares or memberships are treated as members.

The foregoing percentages, therefore, overstate the relative strength of the Roman Catholic and eastern orthodox churches and understate that of the Jews.

Missouri Hoe Cake.
Put through a sieve two cupsful of cornmeal, and a half a teaspoonful of baking powder and salt. Add one egg, and mix of wet and dry and stir in water to make a soft dough. Make into small cakes a half inch thick and bake on a hot greased griddle until well browned on both sides.

Barley Popovers.
Beat two eggs, one cupful of barley flour, one teaspoonful of sugar, half a teaspoonful of salt and one cupful of milk; use a Dover egg beater and beat until smooth. Bake about 40 minutes in a hot, well-greased iron pan. One-fourth of a cupful of raisins may replace half cupful of barley flour, improving the recipe some.

Cheese and Rice Souffle.
Put one and one-half cupfuls of American cheese through the food chopper, stir into it one and one-half cupfuls of white sauce, season highly with paprika, onion and salt, and is melted add one and one-half cupfuls of cooked rice and the beaten yolks of three eggs. Fold in the whites of the eggs and turn into a well-greased baking dish, set in a water and bake half an hour in a moderate oven.

Liberty Ice Cream.
Add one and one-half cupfuls of evaporated milk to one cupful of water and two cupfuls of milk, then add. Add one cupful of honey and one cupful of sugar. Add a few crushed raspberries and a teaspoonful of lemon extract. Freeze as usual.

Can apples, apricots, juice and other fruit juice without sugar. In the refrigerator they may be heated and sweetened, and it will be as good as if sweetened when put up. This takes no sugar now when it is scarce. A far of fruit, perfectly sterile, will keep fully as well sweetened.

Dry corn. This is difficult to keep when canned, but it dries easily and keeps its flavor. Cook five minutes, just long enough to set the milk. Cut and dry as quickly as possible.

Georges Carpentier, the great French heavyweight, has been seeing service as an aviator in the French army, but has now been declared unfit physically for further work in the air. TY COBB SAYS HE WILL QUIT GAME THIS SEASON.

Ty Cobb will quit baseball at the end of this season until after the war. He said so the other day in Washington, when he dropped in at the White House to see some of his friends at the executive offices.

"At the end of this season I'm going to do my duty to my country in the best possible way. I love the game, but the next season will see me out of it for the period of the war."

SHORTSTOP CATON IS CLASSY

Pirate Fans Are Loud in Praise of Diminutive Short Fielder—'One Dangerous Hitter.'

In "Kid" Catton, their diminutive shortstop, the Pirates have an indeliber of no little class, and Pittsburgh fans are loud in their praise of him. Catton, who was obtained from the Birmingham club of the Southern association last summer and who played in a few games toward the latter end of the 1917 National league campaign, is perhaps the smallest player in the major leagues. However, he has a lot of energy stored up in his compact frame, and he covers a wide range of territory in the short field. In addition, he is a dangerous hitter, and seems destined to become a star in time.

IF FISH MAKE BRAINS, HERE'S TO WHALE MEAT.

Peter Maher and Kid Broad, old-time boxers, are walked into a restaurant for dinner, according to a story told by Maher, ordered a mess of fish.

"Why the fish, Peter?" asked Kid Broad. "This isn't Friday, it's Tuesday."

Maher regarded his friend ever heavily that fish was brain food for the mind. "The more fish you eat the more brains you'll have."

Broad gave more careful attention to the bill of fare. "How had they haven't whale today, Peter," he said. "You ought to get a lot of good out of a big slab of whale."

Growder Was Overruled. Provost Marshal General Crowder wanted to permit baseball to continue until the end of this season without molesting players on the work or fight order, but it is said he was overruled by the White House.

LARGE SALARIES TO BE CUT NEXT SEASON

Baseball Stars Won't Get Huge Amounts for Services.

Fat Wartime Contracts Will Be Visible No More and Preference Will Be Given to Players Returning From War.

There will be a house cleaning in baseball next spring, if the game comes back then, but it may not be the kind of house cleaning that Ben Johnson prophesied. The present national commission may or may not be put in power again. There may be or may not be a new head to take commission; there may be a new leader of the National league, and there may even be a new leader of the American league. All these things are possible, but what is most probable is a reorganization and a regrading of salaries.

The fat wartime contracts will be visible no more. Valiant athletes who drew from $5,000 to $8,000 while their clubs lost heavy money will be offered from $2,500 to $4,000. If there is any preference in awarding the big money, it will be shown to men returning from the war, as it is felt that they could not help their departure, and give up large incomes cheerfully to serve the nation.

Superfluous agents, extra financial managers, etc., will be left to view. Baseball will simply start in again and will try to rebuild its shattered fortunes along sane and economic lines. This comes unofficially, but none the less correctly, through the office of the national commission.

Agents of the Arizona Copper league, which comprises the six Arizona cities of Bisbee, Prescott, Phoenix, Oakland, Jerome and Tombstone, on their way east to grab big league players, say that some of the men have gone in with these six clubs, but the promoters want major leaguers, too. Their offer is blunt and direct: six dollars a day and $250 a week to copper miners, and the ball players will have to earn the money, working eight honest hours a day; $8 extra to ball players with games Saturday and Sunday.

The jumps are mostly by automobile, and the population has gone wild over the game.

THIS OLD TIMER WOULD PRAY

Mickey Welch, Once Famous Pitcher With Giants, Relied on Religion in Tight Pinches.

Veteran fans will recall that famous, old-time New York Giant pitcher by the name of Michael (Mickey) Welch. The New York roster shows that he is twice over for that noted club from the years 1883 to 1892, inclusive.

Welch was a religious man. We have this on the word of a man who caught him on a club in New York state before Mirkey reached the big brush. Here's the way this catcher, whose name is Wilson, tells of his experience with Welch and his faith: "We'd be in a tight hole," says this former catcher, "and I'd see Mickey's lips move. I'd immediately set myself for the shock, because I knew he was going to send across the swiftest he had in his collection. And when I saw Swift I mean one that would take a fellow off his pins if it wasn't ready. Mickey always said 'prayer when you're in a tight place.'"

O'MARA MAKING GOOD AT FAR CORNER OF DIAMOND.

Ollie O'Mara, the little bond holder of the Robins, is covering his position at the far corner of the diamond as though he had always been a third baseman.

When Chuck Ward was secured from the Pirates last winter Manager Robble caused to worry about a guardian for the sack, but when Ward was called to the colors Egan Robble decided to give O'Mara a trial at that important position.

Although he had never before played third base, Ollie jumped in and has proved to be a star in the field. O'Mara's only weakness is betting, but there is hope he will soon show improvement in that department also.

Melwitz Head-First Slidder.

First Base Man Fred Melwitz of the Pirates is one of the few players in the major leagues who employs a head-first slide to base.

Cuba Wants Belgians.

LIKE BASEBALL NEWS

That major league baseball means a lot to the soldiers over there is vouchsafed for in a letter Clark Griffith received from J. L. Kemp, Washington, the big league expeditionary forces. He wrote, in part: "To most of us, next to receiving letters from home, news of doings in the big leagues is the most welcome. The papers that we purchase here contain only the results of the big league games, but the interesting part, the box scores, are missing."

Kemp inclosed two good luck charms for the Washington pilot, and Griff is going to carry them around with him until the close of the season.

ERRORS LAID TO WRONG MEN

Muffs by Third Base Man Often Blamed on Man Throwing Ball—One Instance Cited.

To a man in the press box it seems there is too much of a disposition to give wild throws to players on almost anything that another player fails to make. A third baseman, for instance, He is supposed to stop hard grounders and if he doesn't he will be charged with an error. Yet very often when a catcher or an outfielder hurts the ball to the third baseman and it goes away from him and the throw is not squarely in his glove, the error is charged to the man throwing the ball when as a matter of fact the third baseman should be penalized with a muff.

It is too often taken for granted that a throw is bad because a baseman muffed it. In the Philadelphia one had the greatest booting third baseman in the world. He was spike shy and afraid to put the ball on the runner. Francis and Paskott would whip hard grounders straight to the third baseman, who would deliberately get out of the way, make a feeble stab, perhaps had the ball down a little, and the error would get an error that he didn't deserve. When this player was sent elsewhere, the fielding average of Gravath and Paskott leaped forward.

TRAGRESSOR IS NOW YEOMAN

Boston Braves' Catcher Enlists in Navy and Stationed at Newport News—Once Rejected.

Walter J. Tragressor, catcher on the Boston Braves, has enlisted in the United States navy as a yeoman. He is stationed at Newport News. Tragressor was formerly first baseman on the Purdue university team and has been engaged in professional baseball six years. After getting an error that would have cost him a job, he was later re-examined and given a deferred classification on the grounds of deafness. Tragressor lives at Lafayette, Ind.

Ball Player Decorated.

Private Hugh S. Miller of the Marine corps, who has been decorated for gallantry in action, is a former well-known ball player.

He was with the Philadelphia Nationals at play in several minor leagues, and when the Federal league was organized he played with the St. Louis club. His home is in St. Louis.

The Souls of Corporations.

There is an old axiom of English law that corporations have no souls. The manner in which thousands of them have given their services and their means to the Liberty loan, to the Red Cross, and to the Y. M. C. A., and to other national efforts during the war seems to disprove the truth of the saying.

The Congress of the United States seems to have adopted the view that a corporation may have a soul, since it has authorized national banks to contribute to the American National Red Cross out of any net profits available under the law for the declaration of dividends. The law further provides that funds so contributed shall be used by the Red Cross in furnishing voluntary aid to the sick and wounded of the combatant armies, the voluntary relief of the Army and Navy of the United States, and the relief of the suffering caused by the war to the people of the United States and their allied nations.
