

Plymouth At The Peace Table.

Let it be known that a former Plymouth citizen is taking a part in the great world peace conference.

Not many years ago, Joe Dewitt came into Plymouth and accepted his first job as telegrapher.

After serving here for a time Dewitt was transferred finally landing on the Big Four near Tiffin.

The other day President Wilson sought a telegrapher to sit in the Prince Murat palace, Paris, to transmit and receive his messages.

Died On Western Front.

Many will remember Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Boardman, former residents of Plymouth, and now living at Hughson, California.

Local Maccabees will install officers on Monday evening January 20. This means that every member should bear this notice in mind.

GHENT, which was regained by the Belgians after being held by the Germans for more than four years, has been called the most Flemish of all the cities of Flanders, both in its appearance and its people. It is the capital of East Flanders, located at the confluence of the Lys and the Scheide, 31 miles northwest of Brussels. It has been called by travelers the Flemish Venice, being intersected by a number of streams and canals with more than 250 bridges.

The town should have close to 200,000 people, but the German occupation checked its growth and scattered its people.

The city is interesting as an architectural study, its leading buildings representing many periods and schools.

Among the churches the cathedral of St. Bavo ranks first. It is the richest in objects of art in all Belgium, its principal decoration being the altarpiece by Jan Van Eyck, "The Adoration of the Lamb." Only the central panel is there now, the side panels having been removed to Brussels and Berlin. Perhaps the eternal law of compensation may bring back the panel now held by the Prussians.

BRITONS FEEL LACK OF DOGS

Plague of Rats Has Followed the Reduction of the Canine Population of the Country.

An inquiry has been received from an American firm as to the possibility of exporting to the British market for the introduction and sale of poison for the destruction of rats. Just at present considerable interest is being manifested in this country in the question of rat destruction and attention is being called to the enormous amount of damage done by these pests. The industry of food has just issued an order giving power to local authorities to take such measures as may appear to them to be necessary to secure the destruction of rats.

Rats are increasing enormously all over England, both in the cities and rural districts and an organized campaign of extermination has become necessary. The difficulty is to obtain a suitable poison. Local authorities will probably find that if any good is to be done they will have to set up a rat destruction instruction office and supply the dose for the average household possessor. Little knowledge of rat killing is in the market.

Perhaps one cause of the increase and the growing audacity of the rodent is the scarcity of dogs. The dog has almost disappeared in some cities and rural districts. The breeding of dogs has been severely curtailed owing to the fact that biscuits are expensive and of bad quality and bones cannot be bought.

This is an instructive item for those who preach the usefulness of the dog and advocate the destruction of our canine friends.—London Mail.

Early Burgers Were Fighters.

The early burgers were a peppy lot, quick to anger and tenacious of their rights. They gained with the dukes of Burgundy, they dared dispute the supremacy of Charles V. This city was captured a number of times and each time contrived to free itself.

In the fourteenth century the towers were so rich and populous that it was able to place an army of 30,000 men in the field.

In the fifteenth century the city became one of the chief markets of the textile industries of Europe. In that century it reached the apex of its prosperity. It still has lined streets and cozy little cafes and restaurants, but its early glory has departed.

The city has been called the Flower City of Europe, the cultivation of flowers being one of its chief industries.

When the booted Huns have done to those gardens and greenhouses can only be imagined.

Ghent stands out in American history as the place where a great American hero, General Zouave, the United States was captured and the city was destroyed in 1814. The treaty which ended the war of 1812, The American flag was raised at Ghent, and it was there that John Quincy

Eight-year-old Jimmie is very patriotic. He has taught his three younger brothers to sing "America," "The Star-Spangled Banner," and "Over There" with great gusto. He has also taught them to say good night, to reverence war mothers and to respect all service flags.

Recently a new baby came to Jimmie's home. The four boys had longed for a little sister, but the new arrival was a brother instead. Gloom reigned through the entire household except over Jimmie, who still smiled.

"You needn't be so sad," he scolded his brothers. "You're going to be glad some day 'cause at the next war he'll be just one more star in our service flag."

THE HAT TOGUE

Headgear Classified as Newest and Most Up-to-Date... After all it is the headgear and most of the things which make up the final cost of a woman's appearance.

Nothing is more unexpected at this time as it is a fashion correspondent than the vogue of the tulle hat, for instance. Just when most of us are reaching out after fur toques and bonnets to match our heavy winter togs...

Another lot of the same sort, also of brown tulle, has the same wide and flaring trim of several thicknesses of the tulle, and at intervals narrow bands of feathers appear.

A variation of the tulle-draped toque of the summer has appeared in a smart model of mohair and tulle-colored silk net. The fur and the net are cunningly draped together to form the close-fitting hat.

IF YOU WISH TO LOOK YOUNG

Careful Attention to the Hair Is Definitely Important in an Activity. If you expect your hair to be fair to you then you must give your hair the best of care.

On the other hand, American women are more fastidious about washing their hair than in any other country. They should remember that colored silk and fur hats are not beneficial to a woman's hair.

LITTLE DAN CUPID

Mr. B.—I sent into one of the comfortable chairs, she heaved a sigh of relief. "Ugh! But it's great to be out here away from that dusty city."

Mr. B.—I was a pretty, but tired-looking woman, and had a way that pleased everyone. "My! Won't Dan be pleased?" as Mrs. M.—passed her the delicacy.

"Oh, Miss T.—" she cried. "I've come to ask a favor. I know you've done some nursing, and I'd like you to come over and assist Doctor B.—. He's going to perform an operation."

"Not after the remark I made a short while ago," the girl replied. "But, Frank, please don't judge me too harshly. I have learned to see things differently."

One month later Doctor B.— and his wife Sue, were announced in their own home, with Mrs. B.— as housekeeper and Dan as Sue's own special charge.

THE THREE HORSES

In a barn there were three horses and their names were Danny and Fanny and Prince. Prince had been a horse for many years, Fanny had been there for many years, and Danny had been there for quite a few years.

But the one who would best of all was the youngest child of the farmer. His name was Bobbie. Day after day Bobbie would go into the barn and would climb up on the wooden stalls right on the backs of the horses.

"Hello, Bobbie," she said. "Hello, Danny and Fanny and Prince," said Bobbie. "We've come to tell you something."

"You've always wanted to know why we put our ears straight up when you'd come around," said Prince. "Oh yes," said Bobbie. "I've always wanted to know if there was any special reason for it."

Why Meat Prices Vary in Different Stores

Table with 2 columns: Price classes and prices per cwt. Includes items like Common beef steers, Choice beef steers, etc.

These newspaper quotations represent live cattle prices in Chicago on December 30th, 1918. The list shows price ranges on nine general classified groups with a spread of $13.85 per cwt.

These facts explain: 1—Why retail prices vary in different stores. 2—Why it would be difficult to regulate prices of cattle or beef. 3—Why it requires experts to judge cattle and to sell meat.

Obituary.

Ether W. Blake (nee Bevier) daughter of Arthur and Caroline Bevier, was born in Cass township, Richland county, Ohio, July 8, 1875, and died at the home of her brother in New Haven, January 1, 1919, aged 39 years, 5 months and 23 days.

She united with the Lutheran church in Plymouth during the pastorate of A. C. Miller and continued to hold her membership there until the time of her death. She was the mother of three children, two of whom died in infancy. She is survived by one son, Raymond Steeles, and two brothers, Warren J. of Plymouth, and Orlan E., of New Haven.

Funeral services were held on Friday at 1 o'clock and interment made in Greenlawn cemetery at Plymouth.

Letter From Charles Murphy.
Cattaro, Austria.
Dec. 8, 1918.

Dear Mother and Dad:

Six months & 30 days since I left the U. S. and have been in five countries: England, France, Italy, Montenegro and Austria. You will find our present location on the map, or the boundary line between Austria and Montenegro, on the Adriatic coast. I do not know how soon this letter will go out, as we have been unable to send any mail for some time, which explains why you have not heard from me before.

You have no doubt read in the papers the part we took in the big drive from the "Plains" to the Austrian border, so there is little left for me to tell, except my own personal experiences, which I hope to tell you personally in the near future. I may over heat this letter back to the U. S. I hope so any way. Although the climate here is fine, I could stand a little wild weather in preference to this country. I am sending you in this letter a leaf from an orange tree, which I picked yesterday, from a tree that was full of ripe and green oranges and some small trees near by were in bud. There are wild roses on the mountain side, and some kind of a flower that looks like a daisy also.

We are in a kind of a pocket in the mountain, with an arm of the sea running up into the town, and we can only see the sun about five hours a day. The mountains are not very high, but we were on the other day, where the snow was six inches deep, and it was raining and snowing almost continuously, and we were glad to get back in the valley.

I wrote "Bob" from Treviso, Italy, just before the "big push," but was unable to mail it, until afterward and was not allowed to add anything to it. You can tell him to keep it as a souvenir, as it went through a battle in his Dad's shirt pocket.

Well Mother I have been thru a great many hardships and dangers and have come through them all without a scratch, for which I am truly thankful, and although we have not had any war news for a month, as near as we can tell, it must be about over, and this "doughboy" is sure glad, for he is anxious to see his "Mother and Dad," and all his old friends, and to take his place in business and society, and settle down to an enjoyable life and work. There may be some few who like this sort of thing, but they are mighty few, and I am not one of them.

Give my love to "Bobby" and tell him I am thinking of him every day and hope to see him soon; also give my love to Ralph and Mabel. Write me often and tell me the home news.

Please do not expect me to write much, as I find it hard to write when there is so little to say, and when it comes to love letters I've always been rather unemotional as you know, but I came across a little poem the other day which is rather more expressive of my feelings toward you, than anything I could think of.

"Little you'd care what I laid at your feet,
Ribbon or Crest or Shawl—
What if I bring you nothing sweet
Nor maybe, come home at all!
Oh! but you'll know Brave Heart,
You'll know
Two things I'll have left to send:
Mine Honor for which you bade
Me go,
And my love—my love to the end."

Letter From Lawrence Buzard.
Woinchy, France.
Nov. 24, 1918.

Dear Father:

Another Sunday in France. We have all been requested to call it Father's day and write him a letter so here goes. I think I am lucky to have a father to write to and he is lucky to have a son in France to write to him.

Dad, I have seen some country since I left Camp Upton. From Upton we went by train to Montreal, Canada, on the 26th of June. Left Montreal by boat at 11:00 a. m. the 27th. From there we went down the St. Lawrence river thru the gulf and into Halifax, Nova Scotia, on the 2nd of July. Left Halifax the 4th, and landed in Liverpool, England, on the morning of the 15th of July. After a rest of one day in a camp there, went through England by rail to Winchester, where we rested a few hours, then we went to South Hampton and boarded a channel boat for France. Went across the channel at night and landed at Le Havre, France, on the morning of the 18th of July. Stayed there in a rest camp a day and took the box cars for Grandizian, a little town near Bordeaux.

My section was billeted in an old chateau where we stayed a week. Then we went to Camp de Louge about 25 miles from Grandizian. This was the big hike I told you about. We got our material here and trained for 7 weeks from the 1st of August to the 26th of September.

On the 26th we left for the front. Went to a little town by the name of Buse. It was about 20 miles from the front. Stayed here a week and went up into position in the Lorraine sector near Vouilly here and trained for 30 days and went up in the St. Mihiel sector near Vieville. Stayed here a week then went up near Thiancourt.

The end of the war found us here giving the Dutch hell. We fired as fast as we could for 36 hours. Fired right up to 11:00 o'clock on the 11th. It sure seemed funny when everything was quiet. Went to bed that night rolled up in our blankets and slept on the ground. Had just laid down and the dutch started to shell the woods with their little whiz-bangs (77mm). It was the first time any of us had heard a whiz-bang our way and naturally we were scared. But one moved and soon they stopped. This was the only position they ever chased us out of. They gave us hell here. Started in to shell us with 10 inch shells about midnight and kept it up until 6 a. m.

I burnt my hand on a shell fragment that dropped in dig out. I was in. When we came back after they had stopped you could hardly find the place. The guns were covered with debris so that you could hardly see them.

There are lots of things I could write about but they will be better to tell when I get home.

Dad is there anything you would like to have me send you from France? Am going to try to bring home some souvenirs.

Well, Dad, I must close for this time. Hope it won't be long until I can sit by the fire and tell you and Mother all about how we got Bill's goat.

All my love and kisses. A merry Christmas and happy New Year to all.

Lawrence Buzard.

"Dear Mr. West—I wish to take this opportunity to express to you my appreciation for the assistance the Boy Scouts of America have been to the committee in its work."

"Public opinion stands recognized as a vital part of national defense, a mighty force in national attack. The strength of our firing line is not in trench warfare alone, but has its source in the morale of the civilian population from which the fighting force is drawn."

"As a dispatch bearer the boy scout has carried the message of our president to more than five million homes, and as a result of the postcards enclosed, the committee has filed nearly two million requests for pamphlets on the vital questions of the war."

"The boy scout has had their part in winning this battle and they can do much to help maintain the unity so essential to victory."

Obituary.

James K. Southard was born at Tuckerton, N. J., on the 4th day of December, 1840, and died at Elyria, Ohio, January 8, 1913, at the age of seventy-eight years. When he was eight years of age, he came west with his parents and settled in Ripley township, where he lived for a number of years.

On February 18, 1864, he was married to Mary Elizabeth Dickinson, at New Haven, and lived in that place for the following eleven years, after which they moved to the present Southard homestead where they resided up until the time of the death of Mrs. Southard in December, 1907. Since that time, he has spent his life with his three children, but mostly with his daughter, Mrs. Blanche Wilford, at Elyria.

In Elyria, father Southard has become a familiar figure in the business part of the town where he has mingled and associated with a great many of the residents and accumulated a host of warm friends. His quiet, sincere nature and lovable character have made the finest kind of impression and exerted the best of influence not only in Elyria in the latter part of his life, but in New Haven and Willard, where the greater part of his life has been lived.

In early manhood, he was converted in and joined the Methodist Episcopal church of New Haven and his whole life, since that date, has been marked by active work in this church and also in the Methodist church of Willard, the latter of which he took a prominent part in establishing and maintaining. For six years, between 1891 and 1897, he made Chicago Junction, now known as Willard, his home.

Father Southard left behind to mourn his loss, three children, James E. Southard, living at the old homestead, Kenton Southard, of Cleveland, and Mrs. Blanche Wilford, at Elyria. He also leaves surviving him, six grand children, one, Leo, having died six years ago, one great grand son, and a host of friends in both Huron county and Lorain county.

To help farmers store water an attachment has been invented by which an automobile can be made to operate an ordinary pump.

An alarm bell that rings if a person tries to turn the knob or key of a door from the outside has been invented by an Englishman.

P. H. S. Notes.

Winifred Whittier, Editor.

The holidays are over now, and everyone is studying hard to make up for the time lost. Miss Bristor is gone and in her place is Miss Shaw, of Cardington. We were sorry to have Miss Bristor leave but so far Miss Shaw has been lovely and we feel certain that P. H. S. will be greatly benefited by having her as an instructor.

Last Friday evening the Sophomores were entertained at the home of Loretta Frome, Loretta and Myrtle Ramsey acting as hostesses. We hear that Miss Verring told Horace's fortune and such a sad end as was predicted for him. Homer and Eleanor forgot to come. They haven't given any reason so you'll have to use your imagination.

Say, did you hear about the Freshman party that they had out at LaVern, Thursday? It would have gone off beautifully if Raymond Pugh hadn't gotten lost. He started from town at about seven thirty, with Miss Verring and Miss Beurbower and they didn't reach their destination until somewhere around the hour of nine. Maybe the old gray mare balked, who knows?

The Basket Ball game which the Plymouth Hi boys played with the Alumni was quite a success. The Alumni team was defeated, the score being 13 to 15.

The sale of W. S. S. will begin the tenth of this month. Up to the present time our school has sold over twice the number sold by any other school in Richland county.

SAVE ONE DOLLAR ON Your Own and Another Subscription to The Plain Dealer

First Newspaper of Cleveland, Sixth City

HERE is a new Plain Dealer plan whereby you may obtain a year's subscription to Ohio's greatest home newspaper at a saving:

Simply get one NEW subscriber to The Daily Plain Dealer, by mail for a year, and send his order to us with your own, or place the two orders with the nearest authorized Plain Dealer subscription agent. We will accept the new order and yours for a total of $11 instead of $12. (By a "new" subscriber we mean any household no member of which has been on our list for six months. Your own order may be either a renewal or a new one)

MONEY SAVING OFFERSON MAGAZINE CLUBS

A well-edited national magazine or two is an excellent supplement to a metropolitan newspaper, and to assist its readers in purchasing first-grade reading material at lowest prices The Plain Dealer has made clubbing arrangements with practically all of the leading publications. Authorized Plain Dealer agents are empowered to accept orders on not only the following offers, but many others as well.

In One New York Cemetery

In one New York cemetery alone have been interred more than sixty Norwalk Vaults. Before admitting this new method of burial, the cemetery made the most rigorous tests. The Norwalk is now the only cement vault authorized and recommended by this leading cemetery of the world. Our local cemeteries were using Norwalk Vaults long before New York and "None but the Norwalk" has long been the motto of the best undertakers in Huron county.
