is to the change of the name or the town from Paris to Plymouth. It am able to throw some light on this question.

It appears that for many years the town was known as Paris. A Hollander by the name of Jacob Vanhouton starter a postoffice of Plymouth which he named "Plymouth". When this office was moved into Paris it still went by the name of Plymouth.

It appears there was another town named Paris, in Ohio, and for that reason mail frequently went wrong, and to avoid this trouble a charter was procured changing the name of the town for the town of the suggested centennial celebration there are many facts relative to the early history of Plymouth that may interest the people now living in the town.

BUILD WITH EYE TO BEAUTY

Duty of All Who Plan Home to Con sider Well How Structure Will Appear to Beholder.

The beauty that tany be had out of the common things of the earth is well illustrated by the homes that one sometimes sees; a beauty that is all the more emphasized by the contrast in the hideous result of the use of the same common things by others. You will see in the country places, as you go about, how one man will take the things that are to his hand and build from them a beautiful house. He took the rock and stone, the wood, the sand and the earth that were under his feet. Out of these he framed a rooftree that is a kindness to the eye.

Another man with the same mate

Another man with the same materials threw them together crudely, making a thing that had to go by the name of a house, but white offends the eye that beholds it. The one house cost me more in either labor or money than the other, yet the results are as different as day and night. The most striking, as well as the most historic instance of what can be dope with the common things of the earth, is furnished by the old Francheam missions of California. They are architectural geam. Yet all that the padres had for material was what they found at hand and under their feet. They had only Indian labor to call on. il on. While we are at it we might as well put a touch of beauty to what we do, whether it be that we are building a house or a chicken coop.

Plans for Better Rural Schools

Modern Buildings Provide Adequate Sanitation and Environmental Conditions

Johnny Jones and Mary Brown, who live in the country, will assimilate the lore of the three R's under more favorable conditions, if the suggestions of the division of prarie engineering of the United States bureau of public roads are followed in the construction of one and two-room prural school-noises. Not only do modern, serviceable school-houses provide better saintation and a more desirable environment in which the country children can be developed, but they add distinctly to the assets of rural communities.

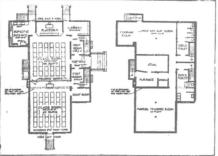

For the service of those country communities which demand a larger enclosibones than one room, the government engineering experts recommend a two-room school to accommodate 49 popils. In this building a folding parallel one room from the other. This house is also provided with special domestic science and ilbrary rooms which open from the teacher's platform and have private entrainces through fire-with doors from the custode. Pleater and have private entrainces through fire-with doors from the custode. Pleater of controoms also are previded.

TO MAKE ECONOMICAL APRON Worn-Out Shirts Can Pe Turned to Good Service In These Days of High-Priced Cotton.

Migh-Priced Cotton.

Every woman knows that when a man's abirt has wormout cuffs and holes below the collarhand, making the shirt unwarable, there is still a quantity of good material left. When there are children in the family there is generally a way to use it; when not, it usually goes into the rag bag.

An apron can be made of the material and in these days of high priced cotton goods it this way. Cut off the neckband and yoke; cut out sleeves; lay body of shirt out fint and cut out apron, making it as large as the goods will permit. The openings on the side are sewed up. ETAOIN-SHRDLU. By Coloned Riggs.

We talked with a gentleman of mature years Thursday evening and he had something of interest

He's not a man of the alarmist sort, but, nevertheless, he can see much that is a menace to the peace the world is striving to es-tablish.

In his conversation he stated that the world had lost its re-spect for constituted authority and the point is well taken.

The old world is agog, and the new one is not what it ought to be. There is no sanity of action where authority is not respected.

Germany five years ago was obedient plus. The Kaiser was lord, and even his whims were obeyed. Then came the crash, no authority to respect, no government to enforce obedience and the result is blood, and anarchy, and hardly a semblance of co-

Russia is worse, Austria is no better, Turkey was never obeyed, Spain is in constant fear of an uprising, China is at almost a constant unrest and even Japan is volcanic.

The only real conservatism to be found in the great powers of the earth is in England, France and the United States, and of these, France is probably the closest cemented.

Our own government has not the authority, nor is she as thor-oughly obeyed as she should be. As a nation we are inclined to be inexcusably discourteous, not to lay resentful.

Only a few weeks ago a man was tried for a crime in which murder was the charge. Our judiciay gave trial, the case was passed up to the highest tribunals and guilt established without question.

He was sentenced to be executed, but organized labor threatened a universal strike if the decree of the highest judiciaries was carried out. In this threat was embodied a most disrespectful attitude toward law and order. This threat said there is no law that we will respect; and no court that we will not over throw. No government can live for the protection of the life and property of citizgnship and be curbed and humiliated by threat of the citizenry.

The origin of this disrespect is not found in organized labor. It is found in an extreme partianship that takes license in assuming that opposing parties are ignorant, insincere, looters, and have no trait but organized dishonesty.

It dates back to our civil war when hatred was rampant. We can recall that the stump speaker who could utter the most withering curse against his political opponent was applauded the loudest. The political speaker was not expected to discuss measures for the enlightenment of the electorate. He was expected to villify, to distort, to deceive, and to harangue. The most bitter philipic that could be delivered against a chief executive was accepted with shouts of approval.

We called Cleveland a bullneck. The democrats maligned McKinley. Everyone took liberty of tongue with Roosevelt, and Taft was humiliated beyond compare. We know no restraint, and the tendency is just as marked in the congress and senate as jit is among the hod carriers.

Right now senators and congressmen go out in the cloak rooms and curs Wilson. Republicans are planning a campaign of obstruction in the hope that sufficient discontent may be aroused to out the party from power. Big measures and based for government are not accomment. If Democracy cas he may not that we will be a sufficient discontent are not accomment.

tion. That is coming from former president Taft, and he's cantioning his party that such as the form his party that such as the first make a farce of government, bread disaspect for chief executives, and a diaregard of law. He says further that Republican ascendancy to power in 1920 is being endangered by the indiscretion of those who have already been chosen as the party's representatives.

Cite Roosevelt. He has said more against President Wilson and his part in the conference of the world than did Eugene Debs, yet we put Debs in jail.

If Cleveland was a rough-neck, if McKinley the tool of interests, and Wilson comes in for his share of abuse, how many more decades will be required to breed a privilege that will bring Democracy into disreputes, our judiciary under constant criticism, respect for law wholly disregarded, and supplant government by consent for government by threat.

What our Democracy needs is more respect for those in power, the abandonment of partianism for a gentility that will help the party in power work out its greatest mission for good of the masses, a strict obedience for law, and a profound allegiance the judiciary that interprets

If men leave the presidency with maligannt tongues for their successors. If men big enough to stand in the senate will openly carp and ridicule, if leaders of parties plan campaigns that humiliate, and assume a license to villify, then it is impossible for the common people to retain their respect for government and those who administer it.

Let us exercise the discretion of the beasts of the field. They select their leader and accord unstinted obedience and loyalty. Even in savagry there is no pushing and erowding for first better the second of the control of the cont

It is the scramble for preference in position that puts a nation prematurely in a state of decadence. No nation ever fell so long as respect and obedience for law and position marked the demeanor of the governed.

Ohio Doctors in Service.

A total of 1573 Ohio doctors, or nearly one-fifth the total number in the state, entered active military service during the war, and nearly 200 others had applications for commissions pending, when the armistice was signed, according to a report compiled by the secretary of the Ohio Medical association.

The casualties thus far tabulated, show that 18 Ohio physicians died in active service and that many were injured. Three were captured by the Germans.

Cattle Buying for Swift & Company

Swift & Company buys more than 9000 head of cattle, on an average, every market day.

Each one of them is "sized up" by experts.

Both the packer's buyer and the commission salesman must judge what amount of meat each animal will yield and how fine it will be, the grading of the hide, and the quantity and quality of the fat.

Both must know market conditions for live stock and meat throughout the country. The buyer must know where the different qualities, weights, and kinds of cattle can be best marketed

If the buyer pays more than the animal is worth the packer loses money on it. If he offers less, another packer, or a shipper or feeder, gets it away from him.

If the seller accepts too little, the live-stock raiser gets less than he is entitled to. If he holds out for more than it is worth, he fails to make a sale.

A variation of a few cents in the price per hundred pounds is a matter of vital importance to the packer, because it means the difference between profit
