Motor Men Happy.

In and around Philadelphia, Baltimore and other points can be seen a series of United States Army motor trucks. The war is over, the trucks are at a standstill. What to do with them was a question. The makers of motor trucks feared that Uncle Sam would throw these thousands of trucks on the market at a reduced cost. This policy would hurt the market and hard hit motor truck makers. Uncle Sam has solved the problem. He has placed this idle army of motor trucks in the hands of the farmer. More than 100 grain elevators in Ohio are now owned and operated by farmers cooperative companies as found by a survey made by E. E. Erdman, of the Ohio State University. Only four were in operation in 1910, the oldest of these being at Rocky Ridge, Ottawa County; it was started in 1904. While the principal line of farmer's elevator companies is that of buying and handling grain, the selling activities have been rapidly developed with farm supplies such as seeds, coal, flour, timber, cement, lime and fertilizer. A bill for "The Farmer's Elevator Movement in Ohio" will be mailed free to any resident in the state on request.

New Stamps.—Watch Your Step.
The director of the Ohio War Savings Committee has been called to Washington for a conference with federal reserve bank representatives to outline plans for the 1919 War Savings campaign. This will be conducted quite as vigorously as has been the 1918 campaign. Ohio's quota for next year will be the same as that for 1918. Congress has authorized the new issue of $2,000,000,000, of which Ohio's share will be practically $108,000,000.

Definite announcement of the 1919 campaign program in this state will be forthcoming soon. From Washington has come details concerning the mechanical features of the new series of stamps.

The War Savings Stamps are about two-thirds the size of the 1918 issue; are blue, instead of green, and bear the portrait of Benjamin Franklin, the apostle of thrift.

The 25-cent Thrift Stamp will be the same as those now in use. Incomplete Thrift Cards can be finished after the first of the year by purchase and addition of the required number of Thrift Stamps. The exchangeable features in reference to War Savings Stamps remain the same. A change has been made in the 1919 War Savings certificate folder. Instead of being double, like the 1918 folder, it is a single folder, and smaller in size. Caution should be exercised in not pasting the War Savings Stamps of the 1918 series on the 1919 certificate.

War Savings Stamps of 1919 series mature January 1, 1924. Those of the 1918 issue will be redeemed by the government on January 1, 1923.

Dear Folks: Well, now are you all. I am fine and dandy and sitting here on my bunk listening to the folks around about the different states at home, as to which is best, every one sticking up for the one he came from, and just have to talk at some of the stuff they pull off. Well this is Sunday and it has been a fine day. I was at home all day. In my washing and had a big one. I generally wear everything I have and when I get to the end I do a regular wash, then I get for another month. I don't think I will do more than one more here and I hope to be on my way home in 60 days, but can't tell. There is no reason why we should not be here.

There are a lot of mechanical Units who have been here just a month or two, who can take care of the work here, and allow the older Units, who have had the blint of the work come home. I have helped to construct, arrange and get to running four different places, only to move and leave them to other men from the States, and I consider I have fully done my bit.

Well, I am going to send a Dutchman's helmet to Des to-morrow. He can wear it when it sleets or hails. I also have a gas mask that I got from a woods where there had been a German camp, right on the border between France and Lorraine. I was over to Metz two weeks today. I was almost at the Belgium border north of Verdun. I will send the gas mask to Lucius one of these days, he can use it when he goes skunk hunting. I also have a little cap some luckless German wore. Have a German officers knapsack, leather, tanned with the hair on, but am afraid it is too big to send by mail and cannot send my rifle either. I could have gotten a thousand shells and they make nice souvenirs when painted or some design had been on it but I have not bothered with them all in all it is just a pile of junk.

Well I guess this is all for this time, so good night, hoping this finds you all well.
Howard B. Simmons.

Obituary.

One May Tubbs was born in Plymouth, Ohio, May 11, 1882, and was married to Jesse Waite, Sept. 17, 1890. Up to that time she made her home in Plymouth when she also became a member of the M. E. church and took an active part in the music of the church. Soon after her marriage they moved to Cleveland, Ohio, where she united with the Wade Park E. church. Two children were born, Ralph D. born June 19, 1881, who is still living and Ruth born May 6, 1900, and died Sept. 14, 1901. She is the fifth of a family of nine children who has passed away and leaves to mourn her loss her husband, son, daughter-in-law and little grand-daughter, besides two brothers and two sisters and many other relatives. Services conducted by Rev. Hollett, at the home of Mrs. Parker, February 4, 1919.

A Talk On Boys

By Rev. G. C. Smith.

REV. G. C. SMITH.

Every boy with any brains at all understands a few things, at least. The first is, that if he lives long enough, which he hopes to do, he will be a man; the second is, that with the arrival of that time he will have to take his place among men, and make his way, and do his part as a man; the third thing is, that men occupy very different stations in the field of manhood. Some move right on in a splendid way from one degree of advancement or prosperity to another and are quite happy and honored. Others have a struggle and seem not to advance so easily or rapidly as the former, but they get on and achieve good and honorable places for themselves, and are useful, being a real addition to the personal assets of the community. Then there are others who do not get on. They appear on the outside as though they ought to do so, but, there is something in the way. Friends who are interested in them say, luck does not seem to favor them; they do not have a stand-in. Others will say, they do not have any get-up; they do not have the right stuff in them; no pep; they have not been properly brought up. There seems to be great demand for young men, plenty of work, but these are left out for some cause.

Now, there is no boy with sense enough to know that two plus two equals four, who, down in his heart, wants to belong to this last bunch. He can see, when half asleep, that it is not the place for a real man. It is not the state to which he can look with any satisfaction or any hope of a pleasant and desirable future; and, he says to himself, I want something better; something with more money in it, and more honor. I would like to be a credit at least to myself, if not to any one else.

How do many young men and boys meet this situation when they are bright enough to see and understand it? They do it in this way. They have caught the gambling spirit of the time and say, with some gusto, I'll go on in this course I have entered. While it may not be the most desirable, after awhile I will make a change. Something will turn up. Others have done the same and gotten on good, and I'll chance it. This is the gambling way of talking about the greatest thing in a young man's life. He is willing to stake all that his future may hold for him on the chance. Besides, if he is a thoughtful gambler, even he must admit, that the chance is against him. He might not chance it in a matter of dollars, but in the matter of his own life he is willing to do it. It seems to me that this kind of thinking is just as false and treacherous as it can possibly be, and no boy with a thimble full of judgment ought to be fooled by it.

There is no better way of judging what a person really is than by observing what he does when at leisure. When he is done with work and is perfectly free to spend an hour or more according to his simple inclinations. What then does he do, or where does he go? What associations does he seek? Remember, he is following his real inclination, which are the expression of his true self and character. Does he turn to his music and favorite instrument to refresh himself with the delightful experiences which the masters of music offer? Does he take down a book of good literature and live in the mental atmosphere of some great mind? Does he turn some work of art and think for a time in the world of the artist, thus enhancing his treasures of the true and the beautiful? Does he lean away from his home, his father and mother, toward the street and its associations? Does he hasten away to the pool room, preferring his associates to those of a good man, wholesome home? Does he prefer the vulgar and profane speech, which is moral carbon, to the refined and polished language of those of a good man, wholesome home? Does he prefer the vulgar and profane speech, which is moral carbon, to the refined and polished language of those of a good man, wholesome home?

Does he find himself drawn to the saloon? I pause to think whether you, a man in his free leisure moments, prefer such associates and shame to the society of home and good things. Or, again, does he seek the companionship of good reputable young men and ladies whose pleasure, companionship and converse are most delightful and refining, adding to himself, the charm and graces that make his own company a pleasure and delight to others? Or, does he turn to the highways, and fields, and woods to commune with our great mother nature and nature's God? So, I might go on suggesting things to which you may revert at your leisure. If you will stop to consider carefully when you are at leisure, what you desire to do, where to go, whom to associate with, you will be able to form a correct invoice of your true character.

There is no possible way of evading the truth, which is as old as the world, viz: that as we are trained and taught and fashioned by habit, precept, and influences, so shall we be. If we want a crop of stunk cabbage, we plant stunk cabbage seed in a marsh; if we want a crop of mullen stocks, we plant the seed on the barren hill-side; if we want roses we plant and cultivate roses in the most suitable place possible; we attend them, fighting the bugs, and the lice, and the diseases peculiar to roses. We apply to the soil such nourishment as will not only increase the growth, but enrich the color and abundance of flowers. We do our best to produce the most beautiful flower: Shall we lose in striving to produce the best man? We are told that God considers the flower of the field. Will He not consider man who is so vastly greater than the flower? Shall man be thought about the flower and attentive thereto, and permit himself to glide unhindered down the alpiney incline of a gambler's chance? Yes, more, by choosing wrong associates, cultivating questionable habits, squandering valuable time, using vulgar and unclean speech and doing numerous other things, give himself a good vigorous kick to insure his landing at the bottom.

You will surely agree with me that any line of conduct or business has an outcome of some sort. When a boy spends all his evenings in clubs, and pool rooms, at the gaming table, and at the gambling table, and in still other ways, is it not well for him to ask himself: How will this sort of life affect my health; how will it affect me as a student, and my standing in school; how will it affect me for business; how will it affect my employer's regard and opinion of me; how much will it improve my chances for promotion; how will it add to my standing in the community; how will it teach me to make a wise use of time, and develop the habit of saving money and getting a creditable bank account.

How will it help my standing in the minds of the young ladies? Can they think as well of me on account thereof? Will it prepare me the better for my future home? Will I love my future home more, and be able to provide for it better because of the habits of expending and indulging which I am acquiring? I am finding my pleasures away from home now. In fact, this is now a habit with me. Can I expect some nice young home-loving lady to join me for life, and expect her to live the life of a hermit, watching and sleeplessly waiting my pleasurable return? Can I expect her to do the drudgery of the housework and cooking and the nursing and provide me a place to eat and a decent place to hang out between the day's work on one side and the down town places on the other—a place to recover my wasted forces?

My dear young friend, these are anything in the world but funny matters. They are just as serious as they can possibly be. You should be manly enough right now to face them, your sober sensible heads and not with a sneer and a jest. A fool can sneer and smile and talk smart, but it takes a level headed sensible boy to judge things as they are and profit by the judgment.

I knew a man once who was large and strong in body, but his mind never developed. He always thought like a small child. There were two things whose value he seemed to appreciate. The one was a watch fob—and the other was a nickel and a penny. This he preferred to any other piece of money, metal or paper, that might be offered him; but he had about as the profane, wondrous needful and could swear with vigorous fluency. He could do something, but it was the wrong thing. He was helpless in the things that make up a true human life. He could not manage a man's body with a child's mind.

Let us lift up our eyes unto the things that make for beauty, excellence, usefulness, success, and having passed our childhood, let us put away childish things. Make not of yourselves men upon whom others, who are running sporting schemes, shall depend for their money and their easy worthless news.

Have a vision. Let it be of your future home, an honorable business or profession, a character that will bring you respect from your fellow men. Have a heart,

On such men today rest all good institutions, of church or state; yes, our very government itself. The peace and prosperity of the world now depend upon them. Do you say you are only a boy? Very true, but out of boys grew Marshall Foch, Pershing, Wilson, Roosevelt, Lloyd George and an unnumbered host of great citizens. Harken out of boys, developed the Kaiser and his black host who sought to sink the world in the great gulf of damnation.

Those who remain low in the scale of achievement form the class out of which the disgruntled under every good government spring.

There are the I. W. W., the anarchist, the Bolsheviki, and the whole vast bulk of the restless and dissatisfied. Their talents and abilities have left a void in their nature. The truth is, the talent was dwarfed, willed buried. They have lived under great stress and disadvantage. They become envious and jealous of the more prosperous and not having the talent to achieve what they desire lawfully, they strike for it, they fight, they bomb and murder. They say we do not want our rights, we want the world.

Methodist Centenary Program
The Methodist Centenary program, so strongly portrayed at the Columbus convention recently, is to be brought home to the "key man" of the Mansfield district, Northeast Ohio conference, by two district conferences. One at Mt. Vernon all day, February 11, and one at Galion, all day, February 12.

The churches in Knox, Licking, east half of Morrow and Delaware counties, with Butler, Bellevue, and Darling, in Richland county, are to send their delegates to Mt. Vernon.

The churches in Crawford, Ashland, Marion, west half of Morrow, the east half of Wyandot, and Richland (except Butler and Darling), are to send their delegates to Galion.

Speakers at both of these conferences will include:

Dr. J. M. Taylor, who recently returned from an Evangelistic tour of the world to which he was assigned by the 1916 General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, and who electrified the Columbus convention with his address. Rev. Earl R. Hull, for seven years a missionary in the Loo Choo Islands, between Formosa and Japan. H. A. Truesdale, Conneaut, Ohio, area stewardship secretary. Rev. L. B. Bowers, of the National Centenary Committee. Rev. L. R. Akers, area Sunday School chairman. Rev. W. M. Rudley, of the Centenary National Finance Committee, direct from the Central New York conference where the Centenary program has already been achieved, and others.

Each of the ninety three churches is urged by Dr. F. I. Johnson District Superintendent and area Executive Secretary, to send at least ten laymen and as many others as possible, to one of these conventions. If this is done, Dr. Johnson believes these gatherings will bring home to the churches of the Mansfield district the "fire" that is back of this great movement.

Death of Mrs. Martha E. Gribbens.

Mrs. Martha E. Gribbens, wife of Robert Gribbens, died in Shelby by Friday morning at 1:30 o'clock, at the family home on North Gamble street, death being due to heart trouble. She was the daughter of John and Susan Shutt and was born in Holmes county, April 18, 1848. She was aged 70 years, 9 months and 8 days.

She had been a resident of Shelby for the past seven years. She is survived by her husband and the following brothers and sisters: Jacob Shutt, Peabody, Kansas; G.

L. Shutt of Plymouth; Barbara Ward of Oden, Ind.; Salomy Haun of Booneville, Mo., and Manda King of Shelby. She was a member of the McKendree Methodist church.

The funeral was held Sunday from the family home on North Gamble street, conducted by Rev. R. J. Beard, pastor of the Methodist church, and Rev. Johnson. The body was laid to rest in the Greenlawn cemetery at Plymouth.

The Sunken Grave

Nothing can be sadder than a grave that is no longer a mound. The inevitable has come to pass—the weight of the sodden earth has crushed in the last protection. It helps nothing to close the imagination to what happens then! Yet there is not the slightest necessity for this barbarous, unsanitary, old fashioned method of burial. The Norwalk Vault—at little cost—will protect absolutely and forever. Cement and steel, waterproof and airtight, it seals in plain sight and becomes one solid piece of masonry that literally "Lasts through the Ages." The best undertakers insist on its use.

As They Come And Go

Miss Laura Whittier is now listening to the beautiful strains of cabinet Gramola, sold by Dalton Hdw. & Furniture store.

Take Snow Flake Flour, a hot oven, a cheerful housewife, a kitchen melody, mix and bake until a rich brown, and you get a bragging husband that stays home at night.

Miss Grace Hanick joined her sister in Columbus, Saturday. They will attend spring millinery exhibits at the capitol city, prior to their visit to the Cleveland market.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. McFadden are in Cleveland this week.

Mrs. J. D. McArdle, Mrs. C. D. Taylor and little daughter of Butler, V. H. Traver and wife of Mansfield, Otto Shoup, wife and children, of Shelby, were week end guests of their sister, Mrs. E. W. Phillips, Trux street.

It's a shame not to give a man good bread, when he has to earn it by the sweat of his countenance. Use Snow Flake and buy it of Clark, Chappell, or Plymouth Produce Co.

A letter from George L. Smith, now in Camp Knox, says that he has been advanced to the paymasters department, with the title of First Sergeant. He also says that Arthur Brumbaek will arrive in Plymouth soon, as he had the honor of attaching his signature to Arthur's discharge credentials.

She baked him a plate of biscuits out of Snow Flake flour and they lived happily ever after. Get it at Clark's, Chappell's, or the Plymouth Produce Co.

For Rent—Desirable house, on Broadway. Inquire of G. Hanick.

Chas. E. Smith returned Tuesday to the College of Arts, Ohio State University, in which he has been a student for the past two years.

Mr. and Mrs. Mart Bell of Cleveland, have been guests of Mrs. Parke Miller for the past few days.

E. W. Smith sold seven head of good beef cattle Tuesday to Buck & Merritt, of Shelby. They were prime from the Smith farm east of town. Mr. Smith is feeding 175 good sheep that will be a source of much profit at shearing time.

Have you tried that Snow Flake Flour? You can get it at Clark, Chappell's or the Plymouth Produce Co.

Mrs. Freed, of Wooster, has been a guest the past week of Miss Lena Shutt.

It was the Plymouth Equity Exchange Co. that brought Snow Flake Flour into Plymouth. Now the housewives are having the luck that cheers with their baking.

Letters from Dr. Holtz announce his arrival in the states at Philadelphia, and may be assigned to Camp Mills, or may be assigned to another transport for another over-sea trip.

Private Armin Clark came up from Camp Sherman to spend Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Tillie Clark. Armin has been promoted to the Quartermasters Department, which fact will delay his release, notwithstanding the fact that he is much needed in the Quality Grocery.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Phillips and two daughters, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wink, of near Shelby.

Roeliff Wilson and George Harris, of the Plymouth Equity Exchange Co. were in Mansfield Saturday on business.

Lutheran Church
Subject for the sermon Lord's Day morning will be, The Power of a Wise Confession. There will be a congregational meeting following the service for the election of church officers. Every member of the church should be present if possible. Time, eleven o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Carter, Trux street, were called to Fredericktown on account of the serious illness of Mr. Carter's mother.

Miss Chloedelle Hicks is the guest of her cousin, Miss Stella Hicks, Fostoria, Ohio, to remain a week or ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Cain, of Columbus, are guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Atyeo.

Rev. J. C. Trauger and wife, of Anconia, New York, enroute to Chicago and Denver, stopped off for a few hour's visit with friends in this place.

Two Shelby girls and two Chicago Junction boys returning from Mansfield in an automobile ran into a ditch and upset. Nobody was hurt but one of the girls had her winter coat torn and is now wearing her spring coat. A passing auto brought one of the girls back home and after the machine was pulled out of the ditch and straightened up the others arrived home later.

O. S. Earnest, Chas McClinchey, C. B. Rowalt, and W. H. Ramsey will attend the Jackson Banquet to be held in Willard tonight. The editor of the Advertiser may go along, not as a disciple of Jackson, but that we know just how they say it in democratic circles.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Judson were guests over Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Stotts, Boughtonville.

Mr. and Mrs. John West, and Miss Margie Wise, of Steuben, Master Harold Wise, of North Fairfield, and Mrs. E. Rogers, were Thursday guests of Mrs. Irwin and W. Trimmer and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cline, of Steuben, were guests Wednesday of Mr. and Mrs. W. Trimmer.

Mrs. Frank Seaholtz is in Cleveland, a guest in the home of her son, Mr. Chas. J. Seaholtz.

Roeliff Wilson was in Toledo Friday on business for the Plymouth Equity Exchange Co.

The meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the home of Mrs. Judson, Wednesday, February 12. The County president, Miss Lettler will attend this meeting. It is requested all members be present and become acquainted with the new president.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. church will meet with Mrs. J. L. Price, Tuesday afternoon, February 11.

Miss May Lerch returned from Cleveland markets last week with all the newest designs the season endorses. The showing will embrace all the new colors, shapes and trimmings for ladies, misses and children. The public is especially invited to call and look the line over, and make selections early while the line is complete.

Threshermen Organize to Fight Legislation.

The Ohio Brotherhood of Threshermen held its ninth annual convention in Columbus Jan. 14, 15 and 16. It was the most successful convention yet held and many matters of vital importance to the operator of threshing machinery were discussed. In this meeting it was brought out that two bills are being prepared and will be presented to the legislature.

One bill is the Ohio road and bridge law, which if passed will compel the threshing machine operator to take clats off of his engine wheels. The other is a license bill for threshermen which will cost each operator $10 a year and a fine if he does not comply with the law.

SUITS-OVERCOATS for MEN and BOYS

THE WAR is over for which we are all very thankful, but the prices of our wool clothing has not yet reached the high mark.

It seems strange that with all the money in this country that people do not buy their clothing for the coming year.

All the clothing we are offering for sale was bought before the high priced wool went into the making of it.

Clothing for next Spring will be much higher.

Most of our Suits and Overcoats range in price from $10 to $20. A few a little more money. But we have some beautiful garments at $15 and $18.

In small sizes in Men's Suits and Overcoats we have some rare bargains, $10, $12 and $15.

We have sold a large amount of Clothing since we opened our store in Plymouth but at the prices we have been selling it at we ought to have sold twice as much.

Think it over and come in and let us show you some of our 1919 bargains in Suits and Overcoats. Good quality and dependable merchandise.

PLANTERS AND CO-OPERATIVE PLAN ADOPTED

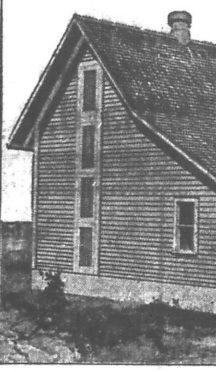

Ice Can Be Kept All Summer In Inexpensive Houses if Proper Care Is Taken When It Is Packed in Winter.

By W. A. RADFORD... Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF CHARGE on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building.

In some sections of the country farmers are building co-operative cold-storage plants for the proper storage of perishable farm products.

The accompanying illustrations show the perspective and floor plan of a moderate-sized, well-built cold-storage building.

Next to the packing room is a pre-cooling room, 12 by 14 feet in size. This is for the purpose of taking the heat out of newly arrived fruit and vegetables.

Answers as an anti-room to prepare the candidate for further icing. The cold-storage room is 21 by 14 feet in size, with a high ceiling to hold produce in considerable quantity.

Good Construction Required. To be satisfactory a cold-storage building requires good construction.

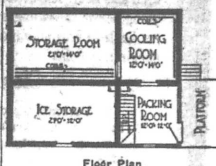

Waterproofing Insulating Board is used all around the cold-storage room and the ice room, as shown in the cross sections.

Such buildings are useful in communities where small fruits and vegetables are grown to be shipped some distance to large market centers.

It is easy to keep ice all summer if you know how. When ice is stored away for summer use and leaks away before it is wanted there is a reason for it.

It is easy to keep ice all summer if you know how. When ice is stored away for summer use and leaks away before it is wanted there is a reason for it.

die of summer, sometimes even before the month of June, the ice would all be gone. Years ago it was considered necessary to make very expensive ways to keep the ice from melting and a great many experiments have been conducted for the purpose of finding out the best way to build ice houses.

Into a refrigerator it has a mission to perform. It is required to take the heat out of other material to preserve food products and it must dissipate itself in the process, while ice is placed in the ice house to stay, to be preserved until wanted for use.

An open shed will preserve ice, or it may be piled up in a field and kept all summer by simply putting a cover over it to keep off the rain and an inner cover of sawdust to keep out the air.

It is quite possible to put a cube of ice, twelve feet thick in a cheaply constructed building and so pack it with sawdust as to keep it in a very satisfactory way until wanted during the summer months.

The ice hasn't a head or a foot. "It has one end and another end," said the river "so I speak of it as the head and the foot."

"I thought you had such nice and cozy ways," said the river. "Usually folks like creatures and things who have nice and affectionate, friendly ways, but I like a good, cold covering of ice for a change."

"It's a cold winter," said the ice. "It's going to keep on being cold, I'm told. Take yesterday, for example: it was as cold as a day could be, and now today it's just as cold."

THE RIVER'S CHANGE

"They don't think," said the river to the ice which had formed over it, "that a river can do things differently at different times. And then if a river has done the same thing for years and years and years they get the idea it can't change its ways."

"I do," said the river. "I feel so nice and warm under here," it added. "I like this for a change."

"Well, if people fell through me and reached you they wouldn't think you were so nice and warm. And the ice laughed. It made very queer sounds, and if it hadn't been so very thick and strong, people would have said the ice was "dangerous" at that part.

"I go on and on, through valleys and meadows and under bridges and past towns, and at last I pass through a city—and I right in the center of the city, but by one side of the city—and then I go a little farther; yes, a little farther, until I reach the great ocean."

"What a wonderful thing it must be to be here," said the ice. "You start in a lake and you end off in the ocean. You know what it is to have a beautiful and quiet lake for a friend, and you also know what it is to have the big ocean for a friend. The ocean is so tremendous."

"Yes," said the river. "It's a good idea, all right enough, and the other side of it can't be seen. Not even with the big glasses which people look through. Now the lake can be seen so well, all around it and from the head to the foot."

"The lake hasn't a head or a foot," said the ice. "It has one end and another end," said the river "so I speak of it as the head and the foot."

"I thought you had such nice and cozy ways," said the river. "Usually folks like creatures and things who have nice and affectionate, friendly ways, but I like a good, cold covering of ice for a change."

Ferrell-Judd.

A wedding of beauty and charm was that of Miss Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert T. Ferrell, and Raynor Sears Judd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence S. Judd, which took place on Wednesday evening, January twenty-second, at the Ferrell home, 929 North Michigan avenue, Saginaw, Mich. Rev. Emil Montanus, Rector of St. John's Episcopal church read the marriage service in the presence of one hundred and fifty relatives and friends.

Southern smilax and lilies and many lighted candles were used in the hall and living room, and all baskets of lilies stood on either side of the mantel-place in the den, which was draped in smilax before which the marriage vows were said. At eight o'clock the orchestra began the wedding march from Lohengrin and the ribbon bearers, six young men, took their places.

First came the matron and maid of honor, Mrs. H. A. Marting, of Portsmouth, O., and Miss Ruth Judd, sister of the groom. The four bridesmaids followed, Little Bobby Rutherford, preceded the bride and her father, scattering rose petals from a golden basket.

The bride was gowned in white satin with all over lace drapes and long square train. Her tulle veil was held by a small French beaded cap and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and freesia.

Her attendants were gowned in satin in the pastel shades of the rainbow, simply made with small square trains, and carried spring flowers. Mr. Robert Montague attended the groom as best man. After the ceremony, refreshments were served and later many of the guests enjoyed dancing.

Mrs. Judd is a popular and accomplished young woman. She attended Miss Madera's school at Washington, and Miss Finch's school, New York, and Mr. Judd, who is a member of the Insurance Firm of Brady & Savage, has always lived in Saginaw, and highly regarded in social and business circles.

Upon their return from New York, Mr. and Mrs. Judd will reside at 415 Saginaw street and will be at home to their friends after April 1.
