

Hypnotised By Militarism.

A writer in Collier's Weekly shows how easy it was to overthrow the reigning dynasty in Bavaria once the spell of military leaders had been broken. A frail and aged newspaper man, who wrote poetry, inspired a great gathering at Munich to proceed toward the royal palace. When King Ludwig heard that the people were moving toward his home he entered his automobile and drove hastily away. Throne and power were surrendered at the first sign of an awakened public consciousness.

The man who led this quick and bloodless revolution was Kurt Eisner, a Jew, who had never been popular, who was later signally defeated in the Bavarian elections, and who was killed by a representative of the royalty he had helped to unseat. Eisner before his assassination admitted on many occasions that Germany was solely and alone responsible for the great war. He said that the people did not want war, but that they were under a hypnotic spell woven by the military leaders. Through all the ruthlessness and savagery of the war they acted under the same hypnosis.

The facility with which the military caste was thrown aside would at least show the power of psychological suggestion. The same people always had the same power, but they submitted to, yes, even seemed to be proud of endless suffering and hardships to do the bidding of men whom they could have overthrown with one determined gesture of authority.

It is to be hoped that the bulk of the German people will not be so impressionable to the wiles of the agitators now so busy in the country, who are as much a menace as was the discredited and fugitive kaiser. If they fall under the hypnosis of anarchy it will probably require more than mere snapping of fingers by the allies to bring them back to consciousness.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Bleeding The Public.

Governor Loudon, of Illinois, has made a hit in his state by opposing road building at such high cost that the profiteers a few miles will make a few men rich enough to retire and live at ease the rest of their lives. These road profiteers do not love Loudon. The people do. He does not permit officers, appointed by him, to promote and force the sale of high cost road material. He says that the burden of war tax is heavy, and now is the time to hit big profits and give taxpayer chance to make a living. This Governor wants roads built for the users of roads and not for the purpose of making political pets wealthy.

Public opinion is already rebuking those who use a public trust to milk the public.

Muddy Roads.
(Walt Mason)

The highway running east and west is but a sad and sorry pest. In droughty seasons it will do; then motor cars along it choo, and loaded teams climb up its hills, and dislocate no poles or more. And this is why I sometimes say the government should do away with rain and moisture of that stamp, so that the road may not get damp. For when the water drips and pelts, that doggone highway simply melts, like sugar in a cup of tea, and there's no thoroughfare to see. Some drowning mules we may behold, and autos from the culverts rolled, and swearing men who ply the law and say there ought to be a law. We've blown in millions more or less to make the road a big success. We've graded and we've plowed and dragged, we've engineered and conserved and braggued we've founded horses by the herd, to make the highway less absurd. And when the weather's good and dry it pleases the aesthetic eye; it's cleaned and matured so nice we think it's surely worth the price; we bow along its dusty miles, our faces wreathed in beaming smiles. Then Pluvius uncorks his trough, it rains, and off the stuff is off. I wonder if we'll ever rise, unwavering purpose in our eyes, and build the kind of roads that might rough vernal rain and wintry blast?

Krupp Works Busy.

A great number of Dutch workmen who were discharged by Krupp are reported to have been re-engaged and to have returned to Krupp. It is stated they are now busy constructing railway material, especially trucks, and in preparing for an extensive commercial campaign to be initiated after peace is signed.

The thought keeps cropping up every once in a while that eventually Villa will weary of his raids and retire to private life.—Detroit News.

Already it is apparent that whoever has charge of seating members of the new Congress would do well to place Representative Mann and Longworth in juxtaposition.—Indianapolis News.

"THE STORE THAT NEVER DISAPPOINTS"

Clothes With A Message

The young man of today is freshened in spirit and doubly ready for the great adventures of living.

He knows how much his ability is measured by his regard for appearance. He shows his fellow workers that he is up to the minute in thought and action—that he is ready for bigger and better things.

The Kennedy Mammoth Clothing House has prepared for the young men renewed by the event of war a virile, buoyant style of clothes, reflecting the vigor of the present-day man who looks the world fairly in the face.

The Style You Want Is Here.

Fabrics that are individual, and with the same standard of sound value—that never varies, season in, season out.

It's not what clothes cost, but the service they give that counts. Good clothes are the only real economy.

We have them.

Yes, They Reached Paris

A Yank smiles over a few of the German helmets on the steps of the Treasury Building at Washington.

AT CURRENT market prices the helmets shown in the above pictures must be worth some small fraction of a mill.

If you wish to figure it out for yourself here are the statistics: Eighty-five thousand of the patent leather covered headgears sold recently for one dollar. The Treasury Department bought them from the War Department.

The helmets were found by the Yanks who occupied Coblenz after the signing of the armistice. They will be awarded as prizes for the best Victory Loan salesmen and saleswomen in the drive which is to begin April 21, and to school children over the country who write the best Victory Loan essays.

Dressy they are in the extreme. The Hun had been saying these to wear on that often-postponed grand entry into Paris. The helmets had their grand entry if the Hun didn't. It wasn't as grand as might be, at that—they came into Paris in American box cars and went right through to the seaboard without ever getting so much as a passing glance from the Parisians.

Expensive Gold Fish.
The rarest and most expensive gold fish in the world is the Chinese brush-tail, a pair of which sell for $1,500. Probably there is no other living thing of its size and weight that is worth so much money.

Educating the Filipinos.
Under the rule of the United States more than 8,000,000 natives of the Philippines have had some instruction in the English language and more of them speak and write it than any other tongue.

A Unique Decision.

A decision said to be unique in legal circles, was handed down in New York this week when an accident insurance company was required by the court to pay a death claim on the life of an insured man who met his death at the hands of an outraged husband, with whose wife the deceased is said to have been unduly familiar. The insurance company contended that the deceased had increased the insurance hazard by his act but the court held differently.

The humor of the case was developed when the attorney for the insurance company sought to establish the claim that paying attention to another man's wife was rated as "extra hazardous," and so it proved in this case, but the judgment for $5000 was rendered none the less.

His First Shell Shock.

"It is all old stuff," protests Charles Compton, the musical comedy leading man. "We are reading about shell shock and seeking to cure it. It is as old as the hills. I suffered from it myself when I was a kid. I got it at a county fair in Mount Vernon from a fellow who had one pea and two shells."

Letter From George Raish.

Editor Plymouth Advertiser.

My Dear Sir:

Months ago, I used to travel over your winding streets. That was back in 1876. No, I mean 1876, or thereabouts, and Paris or Plymouth was then a village of about 1300. But by great push and a mighty effort, you have grown to the great city of I think to about 1000, and you are still on the map. Let the good work go on.

Well, Plymouth is all right. I still hold sweet memories of long ago and the good old times. I had when a barefoot boy with cheeks of tan, not knowing then what fate was holding in store for me. But such is life. As we let our thoughts go back, we have more near and dear friends on the other side, than on this. Soon will the call come for us and we pass on and the good old times. I had time and people are ever changing, in Plymouth as elsewhere, and when I walk your streets now I meet many new and strange faces on every side.

I still remember that farmer, Barber Mittenbuhler. His face still looks good to me. My sister took him to board years ago. And there is that ex-restaurant and ice cream man, Seaholtz. He stole a march on my Dad and took another sister. There is Ted and Bob and Mike and Sam, and a lot of the other boys are still with you.

I like to wander back to the dear old home and meet them now and then and to still keep in touch.

You will please accept this check and get me a haul for what ever time is due me and if you have any doubt about its being any good, just have your Hon. Mayor, Bob Shadle, endorse it. I have read the good old Advertiser for 50 or more years and if I did not get it regularly, I'd miss it.

Well, sometime, if I am in town, I may call Success to your Chamber of Commerce and may you ever grow.

Respectfully,

Geo. Raish.

In The Grass.

Lying in the sunshine among the buttercups and dandelions of May, scarcely higher in intelligence than the minute tenants of that mimic wilderness, our earliest recollections are of grass and when the fitful fever is ended and the foolish wrangle of the market and time fortune is closed, grass heals over the scar, which our descent into the bosom of earth has made and the earnest of the infant becomes the blanket of the dead. Grass is the forgiveness of nature her constant benediction. Fields trampled with battle, saturated with blood, torn with the ruts of cannon, grow green again with grass, and carnage is forgotten. Streets abandoned by traffic become grass-grown like rural lanes and are obliterated. Forests decay, barvesta perish, flowers vanish, but grass is immortal. Beleaguered by the sullen hosts of winter, it withdraws into the impenetrable fortress of its subterranean vitality and emerges upon the first solicitation of spring. Sown by the winds, by the wandering birds, protracted by the subtle agriculture of the elements which are its ministers and servants, it softens the rude outline of the world. It bears no bluntness of bloom to charm the senses with fragrance or splendor, but its homely hue is more enchanting than the hly of the rose. It yields no fruit in earth or air, and you should its harvest fail for a single year, famine would depopulate the world.—John J. Ingalls.

Score Two For This Tank

NO ROAD impassable, no stunt impossible," is the slogan of the crews of the sixteen real battle tanks which will test the Fourth Federal Reserve District in the interest of the Victory Loan.

These tanks, of the type known as six-ton whippet, will start out April 14 and keep on crawling until the end of the loan. Tanks just like these helped put the fear of the Tanks into the Hun borders on the western front and the crews are some of the men who were guiding these agile steel terrars.

These whippet tanks just "eat up" nice sticky roads and steep hills, so protracted spring rains, which make other modes of travel difficult, will not hamper the tanks. Each tank will carry a driver and pilot with a machine gun mounted menacingly in the turret, which can be turned to give the guns a sweep in any direction.

To the Huns in the accompanying photograph the machine gun must have looked quite terrible. They appear to be crying "Kamerad," but the pilot looking out of his turret probably could not hear them while the tank was climbing the rather steep hillside below.

An automobile with speakers and manometer will travel with each tank. Meetings will be held almost anywhere a crowd gathers to inspect the tank. Some of the tank drivers will be veterans of the last drive which forced the Teutons to ask an armistice.

The Real Thing.

It makes a fellow step higher when some big man says of him: "He is the smartest man in this town!" But that is nothing by the side of having a little chap scuffle up to your side and whisper softly, "I like you! You're so good to me!"—Farm Life.

Pity Him!

Don't laugh at the pale, emaciated fellow who says "Good morning" to you late in the afternoon, cautions the Moberly Index. The chap may be a worker on a morning newspaper and may have just "got up."—Kansas City Times.

Outside With Price Fixing.

The industrial board has appealed to the president to use his influence to compel Director Hines to pay the government's fixed price of $45 for steel rails, when in fact he has purchased perfectly good rails at $36 per ton.

We hope the president will abandon this price fixing. It is a purely class government as anything we know. A lot of poor fellows are struggling along on a competitive basis, doing the best they can with profits both limited and uncertain, while the bigger business may have a fixed price, with every known expense real or imaginary, charged against production, with a fixed profit above all thoroughly stabilized by government edict. It is time for supply and demand to get back on the job.

The federal industrial board is crying out for renewed industrial activity with prices on materials abnormally high. There is absolutely no need of federal interference in the matter of prices. Let the price of steel, cement, brick and lumber soften. With lowering prices, increased volume of business will sustain the profits.

Take cement the price is $3.25 per barrel, against the pre war price of $1.20. Why? The cement manufacturer is grinding the same stone, from the same old earth. He can't cry increased price in materials. He has enjoyed a tremendous output at a tremendous high price. He can't say that the $2.00 advance went into an increased pay roll. He may pay more for labor but God knows he didn't give the $2.00 advance all to labor. The same applies to brick, made out of the self same old clay, nature's clay, at the same old plant. Wages have increased but in a sickly way compared to the advance of $3 to $10 per thousand.

The fact is that big business that has enjoyed much coddling by federal aid find the game so easy that they do not care to go back to a supply and demand basis. If President Wilson will deny the appeal of price seekers, he will contribute to the advantage of the masses who feel inclined to step into the usual activities, but who desire a competitive market, rather than one that is cut and dried. In other words he'll take a chance with the fellows who also take a chance but he resents going up against a paternalism that protects one side and leaves the other to battle with uncertainties.

Have you your life plans made? If so, have you planned for the final disposition of your own body—this body of yours that was made in God's own image.

If not, consider while there is yet time and secure space in the Plymouth Mausoleum, a building built above ground, the interior gleaming with beneficent light, will permit us to put our loved ones in a little room far apart from the dampness and horrors of the earth. Where the flowers bloom in all seasons of the year. Where, instead of a dismal appearing grave, we see the casket lying on a beautiful rug. Where they will sleep not an arm's length away—at rest. Where even though the storm may be raging on the outside—perhaps on the funeral day—yet we and our loved ones are protected.

The forbidding grave with its vermin and decay will soon be passed along with other discarded of barbarism and uncivilization. For the new movement, the sanitary way of burial, the economical way of burial, the permanent way of burial, the humane way of burial, has come to be known, where it is practiced, as proclaiming the extent of the civilization by the respect paid to the dead.

It is to be hoped that you and I and all who will in time have cause to investigate this manner of burial will do so while the blood of ambition is flowing through our veins, and we will then have prepared for the inevitable.

Sheriff Finds Stolen Whisky.

The following news dispatch under a Norwalk date line appeared in Tuesday's Plain Dealer:

It is estimated that more than $75,000 worth of goods has been stolen from box cars at or near Willard in the last six months. Sheriff Clyde O. Roose and Baltimore & Ohio detectives, it is announced, have found a large part of the stolen plunder including sixty large automobile tires, a fifty-two gallon barrel of whisky, a large quantity of boys' shoes and other goods.

Sheriff Roose uncovered the barrel of whisky in the rear of a vacant house at Havana, where it had been buried. He also found three automobile tires and other goods in the attic of the house. The shoes were found buried at the side of the Baltimore & Ohio right of way near Havana.

Authorities say that W. G. Ramsey, who was arrested recently on the charge of receiving stolen automobiles tires will be given a hearing in federal court.

Suit has been commenced by Oren L. Dick against Laura Myers and Howard Twitchell to gain possession to 4 acres of land in Plymouth township, and recover damages in the sum of $500. The Confetti is on the way for the Big Dance April 11.

Rev. W. E. Hollett, accompanied by Henry Cole and A. A. Ross, attended a Centenary meeting held Tuesday at First M. E. church, Norwalk. The principal address was delivered by a Mr. Ehler, formerly private secretary to the late Mr. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Hissen returned to her home in Loudonville, Saturday, having been a guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Artz.

Watch Ralston's sales window for a snappy line of curtains that is on the way, also can furnish a fine line of furniture for any room in your home.

H. L. Bucey, manager of the local McKellogg store, was in Shelby Wednesday on business.

Ralston received another shipment of Columbia Grafonolas, so he can supply his customers.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Mathews, and children, of Willard, motored over to Plymouth on pleasure and business Monday evening.

See Ralston's rug display in his sales window, yes, and he has the seamless rug at the right price to.

Mrs. Fred Nimmons who has been ill is now much improved.

A Big Confetti Ball is to be given in the Hamilton hall, April 11, this coming Friday night, don't forget the date, as we are going to make this the big dance of the season. Admission 75 cents per couple, includes the war tax. Confetti on sale at the hall.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. McFadden have returned from Cleveland.

Mrs. George Andrews of Shelby, was calling on Plymouth friends Wednesday and Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Root, Mrs. Mary Fate, and Mrs. Anna Fate, attended the funeral of Mrs. Cora Essig, which was held in Crestline Monday. Mrs. Essig was formerly Miss Cora Chambers, daughter of Mr. and Frank Chambers, and well known to many here.

Willard paved her respects to returned soldiers last week by holding a community sing in the Temple theatre, providing a movie show, and then serving an elaborate banquet.

Meeting of Chamber Directors.

The board of directors of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce met in the Chamber quarters Tuesday evening April 8, president C. E. Heath presiding.

Present were C. E. Heath, John A. Root, F. H. Callahan, F. L. Davis, J. W. McIntire, R. H. Nimmons, Chas. McClintchey, and Elmer Ervin. Absent Clarence Ehret.

The president appointed an audit committee consisting of W. W. McIntire, R. H. Nimmons and Chas. McClintchey, whose business it will be to audit all bills, and certify same to the treasurer for payment, if approved.

The question of proposals, initiated at the Chamber session on Friday evening April 4, were taken up and given decisive action.

The proposal concerning the light and walks at the B. & O. station was deferred pending information on the consolidation of the two local stations. This consolidation seems to be about ready for consummation, and in which event the Chamber would reserve its energy and expenditure, if needed, to make the new location acceptable to the traveling public.

The proposal relating to the comfort station received a most determined approval, and plans were discussed. The one most feasible and which had unanimous approval, is reserved that its first announcement may be made to the Mayor and city council at their joint session with the Chamber directorate Friday evening April 11, eight o'clock sharp.

As an expression to be carried to the next regular session of the Chamber, the directors without a dissent, passed the following resolution on motion of Nimmons and second by Callahan:

Resolved, That the board of directors of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce approve with vigor, the proposal that a comfort station be provided without unreasonable delay.

All bills in the hands of the secretary were then examined and approved by the audit committee.

The proposal relating to the beautification of the point on south Plymouth street was fully discussed and had the unanimous approval of the board. A committee was appointed by President Heath, made up of E. L. Davis, Elmer Ervin, and R. H. Nimmons, with instructions to make immediate arrangements for instituting the work, and to report at the joint session with the council Friday evening.

The Plain Dealer
First Newspaper of Cleveland, Sixth City

After Sixty-Seven Years.

During the political campaign last year up in the Thirtieth congressional district, Erie county Republicans based some of their arguments for the support of James T. Beggs, their candidate for congress, on the fact that he was an Erie county man and Erie county, important as it was and containing one of the principal secondary cities of the state, had not been given the honor of sending a citizen to congress for over half a century.

This, it turns out, hardly fully expressed the situation. It was exactly 67 years since an Erie county man was sent to Washington. It was so long ago that few of the old residents could remember who that last Erie congressman was, and the local newspapers had to resort to the venerable Hewson L. Peeke, long prominent in prohibition politics in northern Ohio, and who has just written a history of his county, for information.

He knew, of course—it was General W. D. Lindsley, a Mexican war veteran, who evidently ran on his war record, for he was elected to the thirty-third congress in 1852, and served but one term. General Lindsley was a native of Connecticut, as so many people in the Western reserve were in the early days. Colonel W. A. Taylor, in his book on Ohio in Congress, gives him but a short paragraph, saying that he was a highly respected citizen but had few political ambitions.

So that it is just 67 years since Erie county sent its last congressman to Washington. The district was then composed of the counties of Erie, Richland, Morrow and Huron—only two of them being in the district now. But it was called the Thirtieth district then as now. The Ohio delegation contained some big men in his time. Maybe they overshadowed him. There were among them Lewis R. Campbell, Alfred P. Edgerton, Moses B. Corwin, Edson R. Olds, Willard Shannon, Joshua R. Giddings and John Scott Harrison—the father of another Benjamin Harrison. John Sherman was elected as Lindsley's successor to the thirty-fourth congress.

Painters and Artists.

The master painters who are to charge $8 a day for painting a house should bear in mind that there is many a struggling artist who will paint a whole landscape, with a lot of sheep and cows thrown in, for $8.—Boston Transcript.

They Fly Away.

In some cases the $30,000 and $70,000 mile roads are dictated and put over the farmers by the fellow whom the taxpayers never see after the road contract is made and the high priced material is sold. Wool must be pulled over somebody's eyes when a sixty to seventy thousand dollar mile road contract is put over.

Death of Adam Forepaugh

The death of Adam Forepaugh, in Philadelphia, one time famous circus man, recalled to a Norwalk lady the incident of his marriage in this city. An examination of the records in the office of the probate court reveals the fact that Adam Forepaugh, Jr., and Lillie Deacon were granted a license and married on June 28, 1882, by Rev. F. Clatworthy, then pastor of the Baptist church.

According to reports they lived together but six or seven years, although Mrs. Forepaugh survives him. The marriage took place at the St. Charles hotel, now the Avalon.—Huron County News.

Demented Man Arrested.

On Sunday Sheriff Reese received word from Fitchville that a man was running amuck with an axe. The Sheriff and Deputy Gregory started in that direction and soon met James Dignan near his home acting in a menacing way with the axe. While arrangements were being made to capture the man with a rope, Mr. Gregory saw a chance and rushed in and downed Mr. Dignan. He was brought to the jail, as it was deemed best to confine him. His relatives thought his mind was at least temporarily unbalanced and thought it might be necessary to take him to a sanitarium, without action by the Probate Court.—Experiment News.

Slackers To Be Arrested and Tried

It is announced from Toledo that the draft slackers of northern Ohio will soon be arrested and tried, and eight are from Huron county. Officer Evesch says these men may expect the same treatment as those who fail of duty in the army. Wood county is credited with nearly 100.

Plow Hitch Demonstration.

The Huron County Farm Bureau is planning an automobile demonstration to be held on the farm of W. J. Butler, four miles south of Sandusky, on Saturday, April 12. The party is being arranged by H. E. Laird, county agricultural agent, Norwalk. Any person interested is cordially invited to go.

At this demonstration new wrinkles in multiple hitches will be shown which increase the efficiency of horses 25 per cent. A three-horse-hitch for a three-bottom plow; four-, five-, and six-horse hitches for two-bottom plows; and an eight-horse hitch for a three-bottom plow will be arranged tandem fashion.

These hitches are made more feasible by a new pulley equalizer recently developed at the Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station. By means of this device, side draft, as well as the crowding of the horses, is greatly eliminated. A weight on the doubletree back of the lead team provides for a proper line of draft.

It is pointed out that since many of the farms of this section of the county are irregular in shape and the fields frequently small, an increase of 25 per cent in efficiency of horse power may not after all be used to provide the motive for farming in the future.

Such importance is attached to the demonstration that specialists of the College of Agriculture, Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Percheron Society of America, as well as prominent horse men and farmers from all over this section of the state are planning to be present. Motion pictures will be taken by the Agricultural College Extension Service.

Annual Business of Probate Court

Judge A. E. Rowley has forwarded to the Secretary of State the annual report of his office for the year ending March 31, 1919. The following items are gleaned therefrom.

Number of marriage licenses issued 204, number married by bans 6, number of colored people, 7. Letters of guardianship, 58, being 28 for children, 24, by letters 2 insane 4 imbecile. Number sent to hospitals 17; to Columbus 3, 17, males 6, females 11. Number sent to Boys' Industrial School 12.

Statement of the Ownership, Management, Circulation, etc., Required by the Act of Congress of August 24, 1912, of The Weekly at Plymouth, Ohio, for April 1, 1919. State of Ohio, County of Richland.

Before me, a Notary Public in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared O. A. White, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the Publisher of the Plymouth Advertiser, and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, etc., of the aforesaid publication for the period shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managers are: Publisher O. A. White, Plymouth, Ohio.

2. That the owners are: The Plymouth Publishing Co., R. H. Nimmens, John I. Beelman, C. E. Heath, John A. Root, P. H. Root, C. E. Root, H. F. Root, C. R. Eisel, Dr. S. S. Holtz, O. A. White.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgages and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: The Linograph Co., Davenport, Iowa. Barnhart Bros. & Spindler, Chicago.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear on the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner, and that affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

Put On The Left Shoe First

They all said it—Dough-Boy, Fella, and Tommy—and clinging to that bit of trench superstition, they believed it brought good luck for the day—and longer life in the shell-ed tracked stretch about there.

But in these fairer, happier days, when peace whirls the wheels of motordom again, we say,

"Put on the right shoe first."

And, of course, the right shoe, is the Goodrich Shoe, because it means good luck day and night, and longer life in your tires.

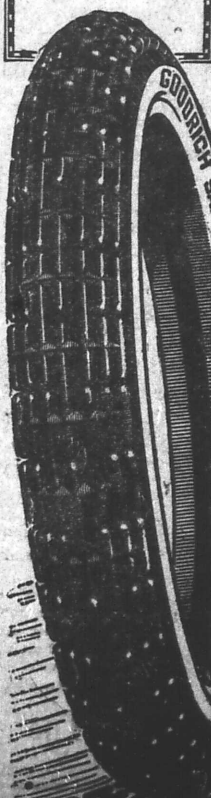

But there's no superstition about it; only the big, husky body, and the wide, thick BLACK SAFETY TREAD, Goodrich builds into tires that—

Benefits Of Walking.

"Walk, walk, walk, every day, and while walking give the arms full play. By so doing the bones, blood, muscles, nerves and brain will be kept in healthy activity. Moreover, never mind the weather. Take your exercises, be the day wet or fine, hot or cold. Above all, avoid sitting over a fire." This is the prescription of Sir Herman Weber, the eminent European physician, who has just died at the age of 95 years. Certainly there could be no better recommendation of the virtue of walking than the life of Sir Herman.

Walking is something that cannot be overdone, and at the same time it is something that seems to be very much out of fashion at the present time. In this day of automobiles the man who walks is the exception, and while the man in the motor car derives a vast amount of benefit from his trips into the country and through getting his lungs pumped full of fresh air, he does not obtain the great variety of health giving features that come with walking.—Portland Express.

Lenine has one quality all premiers may well envy; he is an expert dodger of assassins' bullets.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Neither of the old political parties will espouse the cause of the distillers and brewers in next year's campaign. To the contrary it is reasonably certain that each party, in its national platform, will indorse the federal prohibition amendment to the constitution and pledge itself to favor legislation, national and state, for the enforcement of the amendment. Recently representatives of the wet interests have been making guarded inquiries as to the probable attitude of the political parties. It did not take them long to learn that they need not long for one word of encouragement from either of the national convention.

Congress at its coming session will provide for the enforcement of the prohibition amendment. This is one of the first items on the Republican legislative program. In all probability there also will be legislation designed to settle the question as to where the line between near beer and beer is to be drawn. This would be done by fixing the per cent of alcohol which near beer may contain. It is pointed out that if congress will take definite action on this subject the courts will find it much easier to dispose of the efforts of some of the brewers to continue to make beer with just a little too much alcohol in it.

What She Wanted.

An old woman boarded a train and after surveying everything in the compartment turned to a richly haired boy, and pointing to the communication cord, asked: "What's that?"
"That's that."
"What's that?"
"That's the bell for the waiter in the dining car."
She thereupon hooked the end of her parasol over the cord and gave it a vigorous jerk. Within a few moments the train came to a stop.
The conductor rushed in and asked: "Who pulled that bell cord?"
"I did," calmly replied the old lady.
"Well, what do you want?" said the guard.
"A cup of coffee and a ham sandwich,"—Philadelphia Star.

When prohibition comes, and the "corner cafe" closes, a woman will no longer suspect that there is another woman in the case, whenever her husband stays out late evenings—she'll know it!

P. H. S. Notes.

Winifred Whittier, Editor.

We guess it's Spring Fever. Anyhow we haven't been able to remember much that went on in the past few weeks.

One of the Eighth grade pupils handed Miss Verring a startling fact one day. It was this: "That in a certain battle the American army consisted of seventeen ships and fifty-four guns." Some army and Miss Shaw (in French class)—"If you want to talk in here, speak French."

Helen Poisel—"I don't know how to say in French, what I have to talk about."

Miss Shaw "Well, that's all right. You can't talk as much then."

Mr. Kaylor (in Science). "Yes, men have bald spots on their heads, but so do many women, and we don't know anything about it."

A Junior girl (in English). "Yes, Tam O'Shanter was drunk. He'd been drinking intoxicated liquors."

The "Square Deceiver" given at the Deisler Theatre last Friday evening for the benefit of the grades was well attended. The amount cleared was approximately twenty-nine dollars.

On Friday evening, April 11, at 7:30 o'clock the first and second grades will play the "Tom Thumb Wedding". The admission will be 10 and 20 cents and we feel it will be well worth it. Come and help buy the much needed piano for the grades.

Supplication.
Give me the hills and a stout ash stick.
And the turf beneath my feet,
And a leaf tree to rest beneath
In the height of the noontide heat.

Give me the road, the long gray road,
As it wanders o'er the hill,
Past the ivied church and the larchwood copse
And the mumbling stone-tooth'd mill.

Give me the moors that stretch around
Like a gray and purple wreath,
And the topping clouds, and the setting sun,
And the wind across the heath.

Give me the dew on the meadow grass,
As it glints in the light of morn;
And the glassy tarn, and the gemmy pools
At the hour when the night is born.

Give me but these—and the winking stars—
When the long glad day is done,
Then give me a friend to share it all,
—A friend—and only one!

—T. W. N. Forster, in the Poetry Review.

A. G. Lederer's Will.

The will of A. G. Lederer, prominent Cranberry township citizen, was offered for probate Tuesday. It divides the proceeds of a life insurance policy in the New York Life, equally between his two daughters; Ora D. Saucerman, of Warren, and Estella Assenheimer of Woodville. To his wife, Emma, is given all household goods. All of the personal and real estate is to be sold, the wife to get one-half the proceeds outright; the daughter, Estella, one-fourth and the daughter, Ora, one-fourth for life, to be invested in real estate which is to go to her children at her death. If she leaves no heirs, the other daughter, Estella, is to get the property.

The will was executed June 19, 1915, and witnessed by W. J. Schwenck and S. L. French. The wife and the son-in-law, C. F. Assenheimer, are made executors and have power to sell real estate without order of court.

While we were writing about Bevier Bros' ice cream, we just wondered if you know when we first began to eat ice cream, who invented it, and how long ago.

Well, ice cream is about one hundred and ten years old. Some you have eaten may have tasted older, but not so.

Ice cream did not originate in America. It is one of the really good things that isn't distinctly American.

It was first made by an English caterer, and first eaten at a royal function in London.

It all happened in the administration of James Madison, and Dolly Madison, whom every one knows was the first lady of the land in Madison's regime, and queen of the White House.

Dolly happened to be over in England and at a function in her honor ice cream was served. This wasn't the first time the delicacy had been served, but it was the first for Dolly, and so recent in fact that it was rare to all the company.

Dolly was a sprightly Miss, as every one knows, and her fondness for the ice cream immediately led her to ask for the formula.

Being a distinguished guest the matter was referred to the Caterer, who immediately granted her wish.

Dolly had another distinguishing characteristic. She was fond of putting things over, creating surprises, and this everyone knows who have read of her social reign.

So immediately she planned the introduction of ice cream in America, and on her return home placed the formula in the hands of the White House caterer, with instructions to make and test. This was done and very satisfactorily, to the delight of Doly.

Then she announced a White House dinner, but kept the ice cream off the menu, for this was to be her surprise.

The dinner progressed as dinners usually do, and finally the last course, and what everyone assumed was the completion.

Then it was that Dolly told them that she had a surprise for the guests, and begged their indulgence until the waiters could place a new dish before them.

Needless to say that all were delighted, and Dolly took great pleasure in explaining its origin in England and its first introduction in America.

Now it is a very common, but no less popular than when Dolly first served it as a surprise.

Its manufacture is now reduced to a science,—no not a science, for if so all could make ice cream. It is rather reduced to an art with its best expression in the kind that Bevier Bros. make.

The Sugar Habit.

Any physician will tell you that a certain amount of sugar is necessary to the well-being of the human race. Some of the physicians, however, lay too much stress upon the matter; that is, they overrate sugar as a means of promoting health and happiness, or at least urge the consumption of more of it than is necessary. Probably all of us in this country use more sugar than is necessary or desirable, having formed the sugar habit.

Sugar, be it understood, is a comparatively modern invention. Our ancestors of the middle ages did not know what it was—in the form we now know it. They used sweets, it is true, but they did not have sugar. Honey and the sweet sap of trees and plants was that "sweetening" which they knew, and the sugar of dried fruits also was a great benefit to them. But, the point is, sugar is a modern invention, and the human race got along very well—without it for thousands and thousands of years.

There are today many tribes of people who have no sugar—and they are not suffering from the lack of it. There are tribes that do not use salt, and they also get along very well. Nature put sugar and salt into everything she intended for consumption by an animal, including man, and it is debatable whether she did not put a proper amount into it—whether we are not exceeding the demands of nature when we add either sugar or salt to our foodstuffs.
