Child Drowns in Shelby Reservoir

Vera Robinson, 8 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. White Robinson of Shelby, was drowned in the Tube works reservoir at Shelby yesterday afternoon, having stepped over the bank into the water while she and her five-year-old brother were fishing. The little brother ran to the family home, several blocks distant and told his parents of the accident.

When the father and mother reached the reservoir, which is east of the Tube works, they could find no trace of the body. People flocked to the reservoir as the word of the drowning spread through the town.

The accident occurred about 1 o'clock and all afternoon men were trying to find the body. The water in the reservoir is 15 or 20 feet deep and the bottom is muddy.

At 4 o'clock the body had not been located. A foreman, who came along, claimed that if bread was cast upon the water it would float to the vicinity of the body stop. This was tried at first by the crowd but the foreman persisted that he could prove it.

Two loaves of bread were secured and tossed into the reservoir. They remained at the spot where they were tossed and the crowd began to jeer at the man. He asked the people to wait until the bread was soaked through.

After the loaves had become saturated with water, one of them was seen to move and propelled by some mysterious force. The loaf continued on its course until it reached a certain place in the reservoir where it stopped and began to bob about like a floating buoy.

A man dived where the loaf of bread disappeared. The crowd, which gathered until the diver rose to the surface, bearing the dead body of the little girl in his arms.

Pettit Reunion.

The first reunion of the Pettit family will be held at the Pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Payne, Plymouth, Ohio, Saturday June 7. At noon a picnic dinner was served to eighty-seven guests.

In the afternoon there was a short business meeting, and the following officers were elected for the coming year:

- President—W. Pettit.
  - Vice President—Foster Pettit.
  - Sec'y-Treas.—Mrs. Foster Pettit.
- Those present from out of town were: Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Payne, Auburn Center, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Caton, Mansfield, Mr. and Mrs. H. Clapp, Toledo, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Ferguson, Hillsdale, and Mrs. J. P. Brookhart, Willshire, Ind.

All present having a jolly good time, and noted a thanks to our host and hostess for their kind hospitality.

Secretary.

The Fate-Root-Heath Co.

There's activity in and about the plants of the Fate-Root-Heath Co.

Last month was the biggest in the history of the locomotive department. On the books now are orders for 17 three-ton locomotives and 11 six-ton, ordered against this booking, the shipments have averaged more than a locomotive a day since June 1. Clay machinery is also booked, and it would require fully three months to fill the orders now of record.

The roof over the Fate foundry is being raised and in another thirty days this section of the plant will be converted into a machine shop and assembly room. As we have previously stated the foundry has been closed and will not be re-opened, but the space devoted to new, all foundry work will be confined hereafter to the new addition now under construction as a part of the Root-Heath plant.

On Tuesday Chas. Heath, P. H. Root, and H. F. Root, left for Cleveland to purchase new equipment and machinery that production may be hastened. They will purchase also a 3-ton White truck, to facilitate transportation incident to the business and construction.

Ultimately this will be one of the really big producing plants and will give Plymouth a new place in the industrial affairs of the state. (Already she has outstripped all other towns of her size, and increased growth and increased commerce is assured.)

The assignment made by Lester Opykoff last week has been taken out of court. The estate will now be solvent and Opykoff and his creditors the court closed the proceedings. Unprofitable real estate deals are cited as the cause of embroilment.

Four hours for The Muck

"Come with us to the muck," said a message from T. A. Connolly, delivered by bookkeeper Sam Heffick, Friday noon.

Whereupon we put the office in charge of Miss Fleming, and taking Mr. Mizener out of the job department we climbed in to the Universal and started for the five thousand acre tract known as The Farmers Farm, and over which Mr. Connolly has presided as manager and superintendent for a decade.

In this paragraph we want to say that this five thousand acre tract is the finest and most productive muck expanse in the United States. This is not a statement written out of "our fancy," but based upon the assertion of a federal expert on muck lands, who has visited all muck areas in the United States. He has said officially that the Farmers Farm Company's acreage is not only the richest but is capable of producing a greater variety of crops than any other tract of record and under cultivation.

No matter what you plant here you grow, matures, and produces amazingly in both quantity and quality. Rye, wheat, corn, oats, hay, onions, potatoes, celery, peas, rape, spearmint, peppermint, and any old thing you want to plant. All the above grow strong, with small labor, and produce astounding yields.

Growing now is 650 acres of rye, as fine a crop as ever responded to sun and moisture. If nothing intervenes to prevent a successful harvest there is anticipated close to twenty thousand bushels.

The wheat expanse is 125 acres, and is as fine a prospect as any acreage in Ohio, and should yield much over two thousand bushels. The hay crop is amazingly big—big enough to cut fully a thousand tons, which is Mr. Connolly's conservative estimate. This crop at the market quotations now would contribute over $25,000 to the treasury of the company.

The oat crop covers over 150 acres and went into the ground in good season and is now rank and thrifty. Eight thousand bushels is not an unreasonable anticipation.

But the real big crop is onions and a finer prospect and acreage was never seen on this fertile tract. They seem everywhere, and the long straight rows, clean of weed is enough to make tear duct active. Granting a favorable season the acreage will produce fifty thousand bushels, and worth in the average market $100,000. On the farm is all the machinery for sultivating, harvesting, topping,

Sorrow Messages, Come Double.

On Friday last Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Artz received a message from Upper Sandusky, announcing the serious illness of Mrs. Artz's father. While preparing their departure for the bedside, another message came announcing the dangerous illness of Harold Hissom, the brother of Mrs. Artz's son, at Camp Sherman, who was suffering from an attack of diphtheria. Mr. Hissom, being a nephew of Mrs. Artz.

Mr. and Mrs. Artz proceeded to Upper Sandusky, where they found the aged Mr. Artz very low. They remained until Sunday, and on returning to Plymouth they were summoned by long distance from Loudenville, only to hear that young Hissom had died Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Artz left Monday for Loudenville to comfort her sister, the mother of Harold Hissom, at Camp Sherman, who was suffering from an attack of diphtheria. Mr. Hissom, being a nephew of Mrs. Artz.

Mr. and Mrs. David Hissom, of Loudenville, and Hissom, of Loudenville, and Hissom, of Loudenville, were with her at the time of her death. They were with her at the time of her death. They were with her at the time of her death.

Leg Broken.

George Landis, met with an accident Saturday at the Lorenzo Pettit farm, suffering a fracture of the right leg at the ankle. He was engaged in hauling baled hay from the Pettit farm to Plymouth. Mr. Landis was backing the wagon into the barn and was engaged in loading. The horses were standing in such a position that the large heavy doors would strike them if blown shut. Mr. Landis neglected to prop the doors open and a strong gust of wind blew the large heavy doors away from their hinges and struck the leg.

A short distance outside of the village, where it is being thrown off the hay and the driver, Mr. Landis went over with the load and was caught underneath, breaking his ribs so badly that the bone protruded through the flesh and stuck into the ground. His cries for help brought assistance and he was taken to the office of Dr. Seale where he is receiving medical attention. The fracture was found to be compound and Mr. Landis will be unable to work for many weeks. His many friends sincerely regret to hear of his accident.

Huron County Road Building.

One mile of the pavement west of Monroville completed has been laid by the modern construction Co. Chris Stotze will finish the half mile of brick on Main Market Road, No. 1 near Bellevue.

Bricklaying on the Medina road began last Tuesday and it will probably be completed in another week. About a mile was left over from last year.

There are six road jobs under construction in the county now. Three are being paved and the others are being graded as follows: the Johnston road in Peru, A. J. Baltes, contractor, who will start on the concrete next week, Plymouth-Norwalk road, Hill & Hill, will begin concreting in about 10 days. The No. 6 road in Ripley, Pardo & Richmond will begin concrete in about 10 days.

County Now Has Coroner.

Since January Huron county has not had a coroner. Dr. W. C. Martin, the only Democratic candidate for the office, was given no position, refused the office.

Wednesday afternoon Dr. Clement L. Bell, of Pitsville, was appointed to that office, by the county commissioners.

Emptied 500 Barrels of Beer.

At Fremont the other day, 500 barrels of beer, valued at $800, were emptied into the Sandusky river. The order was given by the revenue department.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Weaver and grandchildren, Miss Freda Weaver and Mr. Earl Weaver returned Tuesday from a trip to Garrettsville, Ohio, where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Smith.

Price of Fish Climbing.

Inasmuch as the Smith fish bill, designed to give the state power to break up the monopoly of the alleged Lake Erie fish trust, has been disposed of safely, fish are back at old prices. When the measure was pending it threatened to put the state into the fish business as a means of breaking the price to a point where fish would be within reach of the poorer citizens of the community.

The Second Big Summer Night

The stage is all set for the second big summer night. The corn is in and the ground. Much of it has been covered over. The weather man has behaved himself becomingly, and farm work is again approaching the normal.

On Saturday evening will begin the gathering of the hosts. About seven o'clock, everything about the farm home will be astir. Supper will be served just a shade earlier. The children will be ready. The house wife will give the back hair one twist. The head of the house will smooth up a bit. The eggs, and the butter, and the cream will be stored away in the auto or the buggy. Then all are settled in the conveyance the trek to Plymouth will begin. It will be a delightful evening. The drive will be refreshing and the kiddies will be glad. Finally they will all merge in the big square and the hum of converse, will begin.

The band will play, the merchant will be busy, and after the concert will come the gathering.

about the band stand. Then about eleven o'clock, the concert will begin. The shades drawn, and the dispersion into the quiet will follow.

Come over and mingle for a night— you who have not accustomed yourself to Plymouth crowds and Plymouth hospitality. There is no night hereabout like a Saturday night in Plymouth.

Tahahogi Camp.

The Tahahogi Camp Fire Girls are planning a two night entertainment for Thursday and Friday evenings June 19 and 20. The play is The Call of Wheloh, and will be presented at the Deisher theater. The girls are approaching the camping season and under the law of the camp they must earn the money with which to defray expenses. There can be no contributions from the members. It is a case earning or stay at home. Therefore we must all go and see The Call of Wheloh. The admission will be barely enough to supply the needs.

We Can Spare One Night.

We can spare a corner Saturday evening for the Tahahogi Camp girls. They will establish a refreshment stand somewhere in the square and will serve ice cream sandwiches,— something new. There will be pop, corn balls or cakes, and also Wheel lemonade. When you come in Saturday evening cast an eye about and drop a few nickels into their money basket.

Illinois First.

The Illinois state legislature is the first to ratify the constitutional amendment granting woman suffrage. It is believed that the Ohio legislature will ratify when it convenes June 16.

We'd like to say that our good friend Bob Nimmons sowed the grass seed on the point, but we don't know how the darned stuff is going to come up. It may look like a vinegar-faced old woman had sowed it, in which case we'd hate to tell the world that Bob did it. Here's hoping it will come up as thick as the comments on the league of nations pact and grow as fast as a village scandal travels.

R. H. Nimmons was in Mansfield and Shelby Tuesday and Wednesday on important business.

Miss Gertrude Waite is spending a few days at the country home of Miss Mildred Sutherland of New London.

Miss Gertrude Beelman is spending a few days of her summer vacation in Galion, visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Bodley.

American Red Cross Service.

During the last three months, 3,725 disabled soldiers in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky applied for some form of vocational training to fit them for future usefulness, according to the latest monthly report to Congress made by the Federal Board for Vocational Education.

American Red Cross Home Service workers report that soldier boys in almost every city and town in the three states are studying some new profession or trade which will make it possible for them to earn, in most cases more money than they were able to make before the war. In training the disabled men the federal board makes use of schools nearest the soldier's home by studying the kind of occupation he desires. Everything from barbering to law is included in the category of studies Lake Division boys are taking.

Mrs. Burt Gaffmiller of Shelby, spent Saturday and Sunday with her sister Mrs. A. T. Morrow.

The folks who complain of the high rate of fire insurance commonly include a lot who keep their ashes in wooden barrels.

Is your wife forever losing her pocket book?

Of course she is. Don't tell us that she hasn't cried out a million times with a tone of despair, "Where's my purse?"

In the days of full skirts, with that hidden pocket which no man could locate, in the days of the small purse all bound round with a woollen string, there was security. History and police records of the full skirt days are silent on woman's lost purses.

But in this day of the capacious bag, with the purse inside, and another purse inside the purse, what married man has not heard with a mingle of fright and disgust that frantic scream, "Where is my purse?"

What married man has not blamed for the loss. The careless rogue should know where it is. He mopes around with a careless indifference with no thought of the rummage bag until it is lost, but he is suddenly reminded of the fact that he's a poor stick of a husband all because he didn't keep a weather eye on the wife's vanity bag.

Then the hunt begins, and the poor silly husband asks "Where did you lose it?" and the first question to throw at an excited wife, and she lands on him with a look that would sour a can of sweet cream.

If the scene is laid in a department store there's a chase that looks like the entire secret service sleuths had been suddenly mobilized.

The red-headed saleslady clad in the regulation pocketless one-piece joins in the pursuit, and the floor walker tries to pacify the wife. The husband says something but he never says the right thing and the woman he swore to protect and support comes back with a look and a talk that makes him feel like a squad corporal at a meeting of a board of strategists.

Gowns are lifted from tables and chairs. Tops of show cases are explored. The elevator is searched, and a trip is made to the bargain tables in the basement. The whole store is in a state of feverish excitement, and bystanders look on with a smile that is strongly impregnated with a sneer.

Then the husband suddenly has a sane inning. He ventures the suspicion that it might have been left in the auto. The wife, red-faced and perspiring from the excitement, asks her lord if he thinks she's lost all the sense she ever had. She tells him she had the bag in her hand when she entered the store. She wouldn't be turning the store upside down if she had left the bag in the auto.

She also tells him if he'd help her instead of standing around like a totem pole, they'd soon find the missing bag. She also reminds him that she's got more sense than to leave her purse in the auto. How did he expect her to buy and pay for anything if she left her purse down in the street.

Then the floor walker suggests that it might be well to look in the auto, for if it was there someone might come along and steal it.

The floor-walker doesn't happen to be her husband, therefore she treats him with respect. Then the poor fish of a husband is asked why he doesn't go down and look and not stand there like a lobster.

Anxious to get away from the excitement, he goes down the elevator, out into the street, and there in the corner of the back seat is the bag. In the bag is the purse. In the purse is the other purse. In the other purse is 34 cents, a quarter, a nickel and four pennies.

He returns to the second floor where everyone is at parade rest awaiting the result of his search.

He passes the bag, penitent like the worried wife. She doesn't take it, she snatches it, and at the same time tells the saleslady that if he had any sense he would keep a watch on the bag. The idea that he couldn't see that she had left the bag on the seat. All the time and trouble and embarrassment could have been spared if he would pay attention to his wife instead of gawking around like a rube.

The red-headed saleslady resumes her composure, the wife becomes all smiles to everyone but the poor fish she married, and on the way home she sat mute in the back seat and he looked straight away over the hood.

The next morning she remarked how foolish to leave her bag in the auto, and hoped she hadn't said or done anything that made her seem foolish or turbulent.

He only remarked that she should be careful—and they lived happily until he heard again, "Where is my purse?"

Ukulele Band.

When your feet begin a-tchbin' And your shoulders start a-twitchin' And across the ball-room floor you glide a feelin' gay and grand, You begin to weave and totter Like a boat upon the water, If you're dancin' to the music of a ukulele band.

All your being seems to quiver Like the ripples on a river And the perspiration oozes from the hollow of your hand. You can love most any girl As you glide and dip and whirl, If you're dancin' to the music of a ukulele band.

Discovering Poets.

It wouldn't be news to tell how James Whitcomb Riley was "discovered" and brought into prominence. It was never so much Riley himself as it was the homely and commonplace topics that were made into verse. Riley never seemed to go outside of his experiences for themes and inspiration.

Writing from Prospect, Ohio, is Fred Keller Dix, and his verse is attracting more or less attention. His most frequent appearance is in the Columbus Dispatch, just as Riley first appeared in the old Indiana State Journal, now out of name and time. The other day a Mr. Gilmore, of Columbus wrote me complimentary about "Fred Keller Dix." It is so accurately descriptive of the style of Dix that we produce it as below:

From the Valley of Scioto not so very far away Comes a voice of homely rhymin' singin' of the bygone day; And expressions of a longin' for his dear old Prospect town, As he sings his heart's emotions to a tune that will not down.

'Twas quite recently his tellin' somethin' of his sister Nell, When she set about to ringin' of that "Old Farm Dinner Bell;" That he never swears to swillin' and to longin', don't you know? For the days when I was farmin' now some forty years ago.

And when noontime near was drawin' and the suppertime as well,

There were other ears a listenin' for the ringin' of that bell; For the horses we were workin' and especially the mules, Were as equal well posted on 'farmin' and its rules.

When my mother or my sister rang that old farm dinner bell,

The horses stonned, the mules would brav 'til they made the walkin' swell,

They knew 'twas time for feedin', would those mules go further, no—

Nothin' else could then be doin' but unitch at once and go.

So there is a tender feelin' in the readin' of the rhymes,

Of the modern "Whitcomb Riley" as he sounds the Valley Chimes; Keep it up, keep on your singin', for I love the pleasant fix.

That my sister was ever findin' when I read "Fred Keller Dix."

Not Many Words Needed.

There are more than three hundred thousand words in the English language, but no one person uses half of them. Perhaps there is not a man today who uses a tenth of the words of the language, and it is certain that the average person doesn't use a twentieth of them. But they are in the dictionary, if any one desires to use them.

President Wilson is a highly educated gentleman. He has a habit of making himself understood, and certainly never seems to lack for a word. But the fact is, according to a man who has made a study of seventy-five speeches delivered by the president, Mr. Wilson has employed but 6221 different words since he has been in office. He has not used as many words as Shakespeare, despite the fact we now have three times as many words in the language as we had when Shakespeare wrote. The latter used about fifteen thousand different words in his writings, or nearly three times as many as President Wilson.

It has been stated time and time again that the average man uses only about two thousand words, and that the uneducated person doesn't use more than a thousand. There are several thousand who have a vocabulary of less than a hundred words, and at one time the fact that it doesn't require a great many words to enable a fellow to make his wants known—if that is the only use he has for the language.

No Binder Twine

It's a bad go to have harvest right up to ripe, and no binder twine. Worse yet if there's none in the market.

It Don't Pay

It don't pay to grow a crop and make no preparation for harvest. Binder twine is as essential as a self binder. Unless each without the other.

Get It Now

Get it now, as old Widow Bedot used to say, while the grain's good. Who got binder twine at teh low price?

The Plymouth Equity

The Plymouth Equity has binder twine with a margin of profit so close that it is practically wholesale in price. Of course the Equity will sell as long as it has buyers and the supply lasts.

After Supply Is Gone

After supply is gone then the fret begins. Better buy than fret. Get in line now. Better have twine ready than chase from town to town while the binder stands still and the grain is over ripe. Besides low supply means higher price.

Sunday School Convention.

Sunday School workers of Richland county are being urged to hasten the selection of delegates to the 60th Annual Convention of the State Association being held this year at Akron June 17, 18, and 19. This county will be allowed 22 delegates. In addition, all counties having cities of the first or second class are entitled to 15 additional delegates from such cities, and the counties immediately adjacent to Summit are given an additional quota of 25. On this basis the convention will have 1560 delegates.

The city of Akron is preparing to care for the delegates on the Harvard plan, that is, accredited delegates will get room and breakfast without charge.

Akron is probably the most densely populated city of the state, and the need of early registration is to assure accommodations for all who are coming Sunday Schools which have not received their registration cards are advised to write at once to the county Sunday School secretary. They should be filled out at once and sent to the Akron 718 Second National Bank Building, committee, of which F. G. Behner, is secretary.

Commemorating the diamond jubilee, this year's program of the Sunday School convention will probably be the most elaborate of any provided by the Association.

The First M. E. Conference.

An old volume published in 1813, and giving the minutes of the conferences of the M. E. church in America, has lately fallen into the hands of the writer and in it he has found a number of things that are of interest in connection with the celebration of the centennial of the beginning of the missionary work of the organization.

The first conference was held in Philadelphia in the year 1773, and two pages at the beginning of this book set forth what was done there. There were only ten preachers of the denomination in America at that time and they were all present. They were these: Thomas Rankin of New York, and George Shadfield of Philadelphia, and a note stated that they were to change places in four months; John King and William Walter of New Jersey; Francis Asbury (the first bishop of the church in America); Robert Strawbridge, Abraham Whitworth and Joseph Yearby of Baltimore; Richard Wright of Norfolk, and Robert Williams of Petersburg.

They reported a total membership of the church in America at that time of but 1190, distributed as follows: New York, 180; Philadelphia, 180; New Jersey, 200; Maryland, 50, and Virginia, 100. The section of the book containing this account is entitled "Between the Preachers in the United States, in Connection With the Rev. John Wesley."

It was decided there that preachers of the connection in the United States should be held under the authority of Rev. John Wesley just the same as those in Great Britain and Ireland; that preachers in America should not attempt to administer the rites of baptism and the sacrament; that no person should be admitted to love feasts without becoming members, and that none of the books of Wesley should be published without his consent, though Robert Williams might sell the books he had already printed, but should print no more.

A Columbus Slave Case.

Columbus once had a fugitive slave case. Jerry Finney, a colored man who had been employed about Columbus and Franklinton for several years and was well thought of, was eluded by a Kentucky woman as her run-away slave. Steps were secretly taken to secure him and he was arrested by officers and taken before a justice of the peace in Franklinton, who awarded him to the claimant and he was rushed to Cincinnati and to the claimant in Kentucky before the case was generally known at the state capital that he was in custody.

Four men who had been active here in denouncing the negro to the Kentucky officers were arrested on the charge of kidnaping. There was a hard-fought trial of the accused. Aaron F. Perry, afterward a congressman from this district, elected the next year, and William Dennison, afterward governor of the state, prosecuted the accused, and James H. Swayne, afterward justice of the supreme court of the United States, was counsel for the defense.

The trial lasted several days and one of the jurors became sick. It was agreed by both sides to proceed with a jury of eleven. One of the four men was found guilty, but the case was carried to the supreme court on the question as to whether, when consented to, it was lawful to take a verdict from a jury composed of less than twelve men. The court held that the accused could not waive his right to a jury of twelve.

Meantime efforts were made to secure the release of Finney, and there being no other way, a sufficient fund was raised among his friends here to purchase his freedom, which was done, but within a short time after he was set free he contracted consumption and died.

This happened in March, 1847.

Moses and Advertising.

The Bible is the greatest encyclopedia of human nature in the world. Any man who wants to know how a crowd will act can learn all about it by studying the gang that Moses led around in the wilderness. Tremendously grateful to him for getting them out of slavery—grateful, yes, for about five minutes. No sooner were their feet a little wet in the wilderness, and their backs bitten a little by mosquitoes, than they began to criticize Moses and wish they hadn't come. People haven't changed one single bit since those days. Moses found he couldn't keep them sold for twenty-four hours at a time; all the sales we had to be done over and over again, constantly. We've discovered the same thing; that's why our advertising runs all the year round in season and out—the American Magazine.

The merchants who don't dare spend a dollar on advertising will spend a number of dollars in stock held over after the tumble from war prices comes.

Heavy Business At Rail Crossing.

If you think a crossing watchman's life is all snags, watch this: Isaac W. Chambers, watchman at Isaac Bucyrus T. & O. C. crossing on Lincoln Way, kept count of the automobiles which passed over the crossing Sunday during his trick and found the total to be $12.

Besides these, there were scores of motorcycles and other vehicles. The crossing watchman has to make sure that the way is clear for every one of these.

Forty Acres of Timber Brings $7,600.

Changing hands at a price of nearly $8,000, the last bit of the old Christopher Auck farm, held by him and his descendants for nearly 80 years, passed out of possession of the Auck family this week.

The piece consists of 40 acres of timber, oak, hickory, elm and ash, a little east of Wagners crossroad on the Leesville road east of Bucyrus.

It was brought by L. R. McMichael from Mrs. Caroline Auck and the Auck heirs for $7,600. Sealed bids were received for the property, McMichael's being the highest.

Troy Township First At Goal.

Columbus, May 28.—Troy township, Morrow county, is the first township in Ohio to exceed its quota in its 1919 War Saving Stamp sale. Troy township started last January toward a goal of $13,015 which it has just reached. Flavius J. Parks, chairman of the first successful township wired the War Savings headquarters that he would not stop but would seek to double if not triple his quota. Several other townships in the state are near their quota and are likely to exceed it within the next few days. Since the successful end of the Victory loan, war savings stamp sales have greatly increased throughout the state.

Legal Notice of Bond Sale.

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Clerk of the Village of Plymouth, Ohio, until 12:00 o'clock noon on the 21st day of June, 1919, for the purchase of bonds of said Village in the aggregate sum of $200,000. Said bonds are for the purpose of purchasing real estate with buildings thereon and erecting toilet and comfort station and equipping and furnishing the same in accordance with an Ordinance passed April 17th, 1919.

All of said bonds are dated July 1st, 1919 and bear interest at the rate of six per cent per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of January and July of each year. Said bonds are numbered from one (1) to (4) inclusive and each bond is in the sum of $500.00 and are due and payable at the following times: Bond No. 1, July 1st, 1930; Bond No. 2, July 1st, 1931; Bond No. 3, July 1st, 1932; Bond No. 4, July 1st, 1933.

Said bonds shall be sold to the highest bidder or bidders for not less than par and accrued interest. All bids must state the number of bonds bid for and the gross amount of the bid and accrued interest to date of delivery. All bids shall be accompanied with cash or certified check, (on some bank other than one bidding), payable to the Treasurer of the Village for not less than 5 per cent of the amount bid for, upon condition that if the bid is accepted, said deposits so made and pay for such bonds as may be issued, as above set forth, within ten days from the time of an award, said deposits so made and retained by the Village, if said condition is not fulfilled. The Village reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Bids shall be sealed and endorsed. "Bids for bonds for purchasing real estate with buildings thereon and erecting toilet and comfort station and equipping and furnishing same".

E. K. TRAUGER, Clerk of the Village of Plymouth, Ohio.

Ruth Law Says She'll Try To Cross Atlantic.

What were men do—that a woman will do.

Ruth Law, aviatrix, is going to climb into a new Curtiss plane next month and show them how to hop across the pond. She said so when she stepped from a train at a station in Chicago.

"How about the rumor that you're going to try to fly across the Atlantic, Miss Law?" she was asked.

"Don't give me away," she laughed.

"Yes, I'm going to show these men a few things. Oh, say in about a month, Glenn Curtiss is building a peach of a machine for me now, I'm going to New York this evening to talk over the plans with him."

The machine which Miss Law will use is to be equipped with two Curtiss-Kirkham motors of 400-horse power each. Miss Law will take with her James Lamont, her mechanic.

Ancient Sugar Mill

What is said to be the oldest and most interesting relic on the American continent has come unscathed through the long revolutionary period in Mexico, according to Martin Sergus. He says he recently visited Cuernavaca and went out to an ancient sugar mill constructed in 1535 by Hernando Cortez, the Spanish conqueror of Mexico, who personally superintended the mill and the adjacent sugar plantation. This was the beginning of the sugar industry on this continent.

"That this sugar mill was built and run by Cortez there is not the slightest doubt," Mr. Sergus said, "its history is set forth in the early records of Spanish occupation of Mexico, and the traditions of the natives confirm it. The mill is in good condition, and had recently finished a run of several weeks on last season's crop of sugar cane."

In the pre-revolutionary days many tourists visited the little pueblo of Atlacomulco, where the mill is located. The village is primitive and full of interest. The mill building is of stone and sun-dried bricks. When one thinks that it was built nearly a century before the Pilgrim Fathers landed at Plymouth Rock the antiquity of the structure may be comprehended.

At one end of the low building is an altar where Cortez, on occasions, is said to have paid his religious devotions. It is still a sacred spot in the minds of the natives, who live in huts around the mill.

"It was at Cuernavaca that the ill-fated Emperor Maximilian made his summer home. Upon his table, according to tradition was served sugar from the old Cortez mill."

Price is Climbing

You who are waiting for building material to cheapen are inviting disappointment. Lumber is not as cheap now as in early spring.

Decay is Going on

Decay is going on in your buildings needing repair. Better get at it now rather than suffer further loss in both price of material and depreciation of buildings.

Stocks Hard to Get

There is great scarcity in materials, especially lumber. Our sales are greatly curtailed because of inability to secure.

Come in and let us figure. We'll make suggestion as to material and sell at the bottom figure.

Ideal Hog Feeders

Keep those hogs a-growing. Save your time by putting an Ideal Feeder in the hog lot. Save the feed by inviting the hogs to help themselves. The Ideal Feeder enforces economy and hog manners.

Garden and Lawn Hose

By your lawn and garden hose now. Pretty soon you will want to sprinkle the garden and lawn and your neighbor doesn't like to loan. A little outlay will give you a hose of your own.

Garden Plows and Tools

A garden plow will save you from that awful back ache. Besides you can cultivate the whole garden in a single evening. We have the hoe and rake, and all the little garden accessories. Come and select your needs.

Oil Stoves

Oil stoves have been selling like the lemonade at a circus. Don't sweeter over a hot coal or wood range. Start your flame with a match, cook your meal, and turn out your fire as you would douse a glim. Will set in any cool place. Hurry in and get this household comfort.

Rileys Ready Pen.

James Whitcomb Riley, unlike Mr. Nye, was a steady, rapid writer and composer. It was raining when our correspondent asked him to write a stanza as a souvenir of the occasion, and he quickly wrote the following on the back of an envelope:

In this excitement, my pen wet—
Will overtake the best of men—
Some little skiff o' clouds 'll sheet
The sun off now and then;
And mobby while you're wonderin' who
You've fool-like lent your umbrella to
And want it—out'll pop the sun,
And you'll be glad you hain't got none!

Shunk Plow Works Sell For $13,500.

The Shunk Plow company plant in Bucyrus was sold at partition sale Saturday and was bid in by J. Q. Shunk, at approximately $13,400.

The plant was appraised at $20,000, but there was only one bid offered.

The partition was asked for by Ada Clark, who owned a small interest.

Revision in Game-Fish Laws.

The new and important revisions and facts in the game and fish laws has been announced as given in the following article:

Trappers and hunters license combined will cost $1.25. The name "game warden" has been changed to "game protector."

A fine of $100 to $500 for resisting or interfering with a protector.

State laws have been made to conform to federal regulation by use of ferrets forbidden, except by orchard owners, when rabbits are doing actual damage. It is unlawful to have a ferret in possession while hunting, going hunting, or returning from hunting or in any of the fields or forests of Ohio.

Spearing of fish is forbidden. Persons killing fish with explosives are subject to a fine of from $100 to $500.

The following are the seasons allowed by law:

- Raccoon—Nov. 1 to Feb. 1.
- Squirrel—August 20 to Sept. 20.
- Muskrat—Nov. 1 to March 1.
- Opossum—Nov. 1 to Feb. 1.
- Fox—October 2 to January 1.
- Rabbit—Nov. 1 to January 1.
- Skunk—Nov. 1 to February 1.
- Mink—Nov. 1 to Feb. 1.
- Deer—protected.
- Quail—protected.
- Pheasants—Cockbirds only 3 in one day; November 15 to 25th.
- Bass—12 in one day; not under 11 inches in length. Season closed May 1 to June 15.
- Cappies; limit, 6 inches in length.

Fertilizers may be applied to corn even after the seed is planted or when the corn is several inches high, according to agronomists at the Ohio Experiment Station, who recommend the use of from 200 to 300 pounds of acid phosphate per acre for corn. This may be put on the ground by using a lime or fertilizer spreader.

Acid phosphate not only aids the corn by causing it to make up for lack of growth during wet and cold weather but also hastens the maturity, making the corn solid before the fall frosts appear. Instances are recorded where Ohio farmers have put on fertilizer late in June with profitable increases in the corn crop.

Sheep Claims Allowed.

On Tuesday the Board of County Commissioners passed on the two dozen claims for damages to sheep by dogs and allowed the following:

- Thomas Cummings, Wakeman, 2 sheep, $20; Clifford Fox, Clarksville, 1 sheep, $15; Joseph Dignan, Fitchville, $18; W. A. Robinson, Fitchville, 7 sheep, $70; J. L. Mead Fitchville 3 sheep killed, 15 injured, $30; J. A. Pencher, Greenwich, 2 sheep killed, $12; W. P. Crawshaw, 2 sheep, $25; John Linder, Peru, 8 sheep killed, 2 injured, $36; Charles Stang, 6 sheep killed, 3 injured, $39; Peter J. Houck, Sherman township, 1 sheep, $16; Urban Ruffing, 1 sheep, $16; Henry Brown, Sherman township, 1 killed, 1 injured, $19; Anthony Leis, Sherman township, 1 killed, 1 injured, $16; D. W. Saves. No man is worthwhile until he has learned to save. No community is worthwhile until it has established a commendable standard of thrift.

The man in overalls pushing his money under the wicket is just as important as the manufacturer making his deposit. The manufacturer must economize or the receiver avails him. The laborer must economize or his credit is impaired.

Don't forget that a saving of fifty cents a day for ten years means a two thousand dollar home. What's fifty cents? What's ten years? But a two thousand dollar home is a shelter, a source of credit, and a sense of security. Stick to your job, practice economy, and you win. We court the privilege of helping you.

THE BOY SCOUTS

THE BOY SCOUTS' APPEAL

What to do with a boy? Mankind has no older problem, and one that is by and large that an often looker profoundly baffling to the worried individual who try to solve it.

That organization has celebrated its ninth anniversary. Not many young organizations have given so convincing an account of themselves.

It wants particularly more volunteer leaders—especially men who have had military experience abroad. That want should be promptly, copiously, gladly met. There could hardly again be a conjuncture so favorable for impressing upon the very thistles of boys' consciousness a vital message in American history and in the history of democracy and of the world.

Every normal boy has a right to march, range and camp. It satisfies a deep, old instinct in him. The great business of education is to build upon the boy's instincts and the girl's.

The order of the war department in intent, as it should be an effect, is exactly as though the words "returning from overseas" had never been in it.

The spirit and purpose of that order are clear. The war department and the national council of the Boy Scouts of America direct the attention of every army officer and enlisted man who have the necessary qualifications to the opportunity which the boy scouts affords for them to serve their country as scoutmasters after discharge.

The same message is intended for every officer and enlisted man in the navy and every branch of the service.

SERVICE MEN AS SCOUTMASTERS

The king of Spain is a full believer in the value of the boy scouts. Alfonso is the only reigning monarch who wears at times the scout uniform, and he has fully grasped the spirit and the inner meaning of the scout slogan.

He especially prizes their splendid public services in times of difficulty when they give valuable help in running the postal and telegraph wires, in doing fire brigade duty, in attending the sick, and even in some cases burying the dead.

In the woods which form the royal demesne a couple of miles outside the city the king has given them a permanent camping ground, which contains a small but well equipped hospital and a prepared supply of drinking water.

DANIELS THANKS THE SCOUTS.

The officials of the government are testifying to the real aid given by the Boy Scouts of America in the line of their definite war tasks.

The secretary of the navy has sent this message to the chief scout executive at the national headquarters in New York city:

"James E. West, Boy Scouts of America, Fifth Avenue Building, New York, N. Y.

"Will you be good enough to give my greetings to the boy scouts. These chivalric young crusaders who have rendered such patriotic service in this war convince us that the America of the future will be worthy of the America of the fathers."

"JOSEPHUS DANIELS."

DOINGS OF THE BOY SCOUTS.

During the disastrous autumn fires in the woods of northern Minnesota and Wisconsin the boy scouts did much valuable service in fighting fires, assisting refugees and the injured, and in locating the missing.

Boy scouts in West Hartford, Conn., dammed a brook and made a swimming pond 650 feet long.

Scout Phillip Faucette from Troop No. 40, of Memphis, was asked by a frantic father to rescue his baby who was in a burning house. At great personal risk the scout entered the building and succeeded in saving the child.

SCOUTING IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

It will interest the entire scouting field to know that the movement is established in 71 per cent of the public schools of Hartford, Conn.

This is particularly interesting because the nature of the school organization in Hartford greatly increased the problem of articulating scouting with the schools.

Of course scouting would not be in Hartford schools today but for its merit as a supplementary form of education.

Telling Too Much.
I have visiting me a childhood friend whom I had in a sense outgrown, but yet for whom I had a kindly feeling because of past relations. The first night after she had arrived she was, as usual, talkative, and the next morning my sister responded to my morning greeting with: "Whatever were you and Habel talking about last night the night? I am tired out, you kept me awake so long."
"You tired out?" I exclaimed. "Then how do you think I feel?"
"Imagine my horror when, turning to leave the room, I saw my friend standing back of me, knowing that she must have heard all.—Exchange.

BLIND MAN POULTRY FANCIER

Blind Edward Jones of Jefferson City, Mo., has made a record in keeping poultry which many who have eyes have not equaled. Moving among his birds, which seem to understand how he is handicapped, and guided only by his sense of touch, he performs his daily work. He has built his own poultry house and beyond coops, and has hatched and raised all his chicks. Blindness does not prevent him from culling his flock. The birds not intended to be kept are marketed as broilers, and the others are kept for the production of winter eggs.

The Pleasures of Travel.

"What-a-pleasure," said the ancient Athenian writer, "I hadn't never did much of what you'd call traveling. I was 27 years old last grass; born and raised right here in Shagbark township, and hadn't been outside of the county but once. That was when I was about 20 years old. I went over to Torgbiville, and they just nacherly took and started to lynch me the minute I got to town, for something or natter; I never did find out what. One foot was already in the air and the other barely touching the ground when some fellow came running and hollered that they were making a mistake—I wasn't the guilty party at all. As soon as they turned me loose I lit out for home as the crow flies, and I hadn't done no traveling to speak of since. I always figured that on the next occasion the fellow that knowed it was a mistake might not get there in time to do me any good.—Judge.

The Result.

"Ah! a case of arrested development."

Quite Acceptable.

MANY COMMUNITIES FIND NEW METHOD OF SELLING SURPLUS PRODUCTS OF BENEFIT

Community markets have helped to solve the problem of better utilizing locally grown food products in many parts of the country, particularly in the New England States. In almost every community there are usually a number of farmers or small gardeners who produce above their own needs a small surplus of food products, an amount often too small in the individual case to command much, if any, consideration from the wholesale dealers or even retail grocers.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Community markets have helped to solve the problem of better utilizing locally grown food products in many parts of the country, particularly in the New England States. In almost every community there are usually a number of farmers or small gardeners who produce above their own needs a small surplus of food products, an amount often too small in the individual case to command much, if any, consideration from the wholesale dealers or even retail grocers.

Local conditions of supply and demand will determine whether the market should be held daily or less frequently. In most places two or three days a week will be all that is required. It is better to have a flourishing market for short hours on two days a week than an unthrifty one on three or more days.

Open Wednesday and Saturday Evenings

Mr. Farmer, there's something in Webber's drug store window that should interest you.

It is medicated salt block that has not only virtue in its composition, but an interesting story in its manufacture.

If you will pull up your chair we'll tell you about it briefly.

You are familiar with the rock salt—the black lump salt. There are but few stock raisers who have not purchased it because it could be placed in the open to be available as the stock seemed disposed.

But in mining this lump salt, much screening was accumulated. So much screening that its disposal became a problem.

Mine operators piled it up in great piles, simply as a temporary riddance, and this method might have been permanent, except the drainage into near by streams became a menace to vegetation, and a pollution that destroyed all life in the waters.

Complaint won the government's ear, and operators were told that some other disposal must be adapted.

Then they began pouring the screenings back into abandoned mines, but the expense of this operation was an inspiration to turn screenings into profit.

Thereupon hydraulic engineers were solicited for a press that would take the screenings and deliver them into a compact cake that would withstand disintegration under the influence of the elements.

These were constructed and under a thousand tons pressure the screenings were made marketable and profitable.

Then the white salt people took the hint, and purchased presses with which to make the dirty and discolored white salt marketable in compressed form.

Then the idea of medicated salt came into the game, whereby a stock tonic could be fed with the salt, and the culmination of this is seen in Webber's window.

An advertisement in this issue bears Mr. Webber's signature will be your source of further information.

A MODERN EQUIPPED LAUNDRY SUCCESSFULLY MANAGED
PRESENT OWNERS STARTED WITH THE OLD-FASHIONED METHODS BEFORE STEAM AND ELECTRICITY WERE INTRODUCED

About 31 years ago Rudolph and Felix Kugel associated themselves in the business of washing and ironing clothes for the people of Norwalk and right from the start did their work so well that the business grew steadily.

Having no surplus capital, but possessed with good, hard muscles and plenty of pluck and courage, these two young men took up their new occupation with a zeal and earnestness that has ever marked them with the stamp of sincerity.

Naturally the first equipment was of the most primitive character and the work was done in ancient style. They had two washtubs, a washboard, a wringer and an ironing board, and the two young men got right down to hand work, but when nicely laundered goods were returned to customers in place of the soiled garments it was a case of COME AGAIN.

By energy and hard work the firm gradually increased the business so that additional and more modern equipment was installed and skilled employees to assist were secured. Each year has seen the addition of latest inventions in laundry machinery added to this plant, so that the Troy Laundry, as it is now known, has held front rank for expedition and satisfactory laundry work in all its branches.

About seventeen years ago property on Whitesey avenue was purchased for the purpose of erecting a complete up-to-date modern plant, and speedily the construction of a brick, fireproof structure specially adapted for this business became a reality to its industrious promoters.

Laundries have helped to solve one of the big problems of the housewife. And Mr. Kugel, looking into the future, declares it is quite possible that community kitchens for the serving of hot meals and collecting the used dishes may follow. The problem of securing help in the home has become a serious one. With the entrance of women into politics in many states such issues as tariff, financial and foreign policies may have to give way to a platform providing for the substitution of the wash tub, dish and the greasy frying pan in the home.

The laundry now established in the new and fully equipped building which is pictured herewith has been a success.

Machinery has been added whenever needed and the plant has shown a marked improvement in laundry equipment. An auto delivery service was long since established and the business and reputation of the Troy Laundry of Norwalk has extended far and wide. Not only does the work of this laundry go all over Huron county, but to Oberlin, Breder, Berlin Heights, Milan, Birmingham and Lake other counties.

August 10, 1903, Rudolph Kugel withdrew from the business and went to Ballwin. George W. Fifer then joined with Felix Kugel and has since continued as an efficient member of the firm.

Messrs. Kugel and Fifer are conversant with every little detail that enters into perfect laundry work. They have served in every department and know the business from every angle. Their long years of experience qualify them to be masters of their business, which is located at 33 Whitesey Ave., Norwalk.

This story is but the presentation of that success which comes of faithful, honest and intelligent endeavor to supply a public need.

The Troy Laundry is represented in Plymouth by Derringer & Hilborn.
