Teuton "Heroism."

The German sailors at Scapa Flow were "on honor." They were left on the German warships bound only by their promise to behave themselves. From Weimar, from Berlin, from Versailles, we have lately heard much of "German honor." The Scapa Flow "German honor" was illustrated by the action of the sailors who violated the confidence of their too trustful British enemies and destroyed the ships they were pledged to guard.

It was a useless and silly performance. Great Britain does not need the German dreadnoughts. Without them she is amply able to handle any naval question. In fact the disposition of the German ships was a point of uncertainty. Many members of the peace conference advocated sending the ships to the bottom of the sea, and at one time it was announced that this decision had actually been reached.

The German sailors acted theatrically and dishonorably, but they in no degree advantaged Germany. They did nothing heroic. The sole result of their foolishness is the renewed impression that Germans cannot be trusted. The affair at Scapa Flow will be remembered. No one is very angry about it, and no one is at all impressed by the display of German dullness and twisted reasoning. It will be remembered as a German flag attempt to do something terrific and unexpected, and as the futile anticlimax of Germany's determination to astound and stun the world.

The Terms of Peace.

All the critics of the treaty in the associated countries know that if it had been drafted in the mildest possible form the treaty of peace would have been terribly severe. If "peace without victory" gave way to the fourteen points, and the fourteen points cannot possibly be applied to central Europe without effects of drastic severity. Liberal critics of the actual treaty have been disposed to forget this fact, but it is worth remembering that Alsace-Lorraine on the one side and an independent Poland on the other side cannot be cut out of the former German empire without convulsions on the part of the victim. The Germans admit that they should pay at least $25,000,000,000 in reparations, yet how can such a colossal sum be collected without the imposition by the victors of at least some measure of economic servitude upon the conquered people? No man is economically free who owes another man a debt so large that he cannot pay it on demand. If he becomes a bankrupt he is stripped of his property under the action of the law.

The truth is that this war bites very vastness has overwhelmed all precedents. One might even argue that it is futile under the circumstances to attempt to do justice, for the task is probably beyond the wit or the power of man. Better would it be perhaps, to seek some sort of cooperative salvation from universal ruin and make the future solvent by trying to insure the world against similar catastrophe.

The realistic Germans, however, could not have reckoned seriously on so idealistic a peace making as that. Even the fourteen points to which they subscribed tear apart their empire and condemn them to indemnities that any people would stagger under for years to come. All their historical experience must lead them to make the best of their position, to take their punishment and begin over again.—Springfield Republican.

Miami University.

Miami university rests primarily upon an agreement made between the United States government and John Cleves Symmes by which Symmes and his associates came into possession by purchase of territory lying between the Great and Little Miami rivers in Ohio, in which one complete township was to be set aside, as near the center of the purchase as possible—the exact location to be made with the approval of the governor of the territory—for the support of an academy.

It does not appear that Governor St. Clair ever considered any location for the academy township—certainly he did not make the selection. Even before the conclusion of negotiations for the purchase, Symmes, who was in need of funds, had prospectuses out indicating the location of the academy, but selections were made here and there throughout his purchase rapidly, until the fact was that there was not a single entire township left in the purchase.

This was the situation that presented itself in 1802 when the question of admitting Ohio to the Union as a state came up. Thomas Jefferson, then president, desirous of securing Ohio's electoral vote for his party, took a hand and smoothed things out in a way that proved quite satisfactory, though not entirely in accordance with the original agreement in the purchase.

It was proposed that a change be made in the condition that rested on both congress and Symmes, and that instead of a township within the purchase, another one in the Cincinnati district be taken, and what was or came to be known as Oxford township in that district was substituted.

That is how Oxford, Butler county, came to be the seat of Miami university, which is the lineal descendant of the "Academy" that was provided for in the Symmes purchase. Its friends have fondly claimed that this provision clearly meant that the institution was to be perpetual, but the greater portion of the revenues of Miami now come from the state which was not originally a party to the agreement at all.

An initiative petition is to be circulated repealing the prohibition constitutional amendment adopted last November, under which the state became dry last month, according to L. R. Gibson of the Ohio Home Rule Association.

As the petitions must be filed with the secretary of state 90 days in advance of election, or August 6, dry Wednesday anticipated that the wet petitions would soon make their appearance.

The news indicate that the wets still feel that they will prevent nationwide prohibition.

It now appears that if least three, and perhaps four separate prohibition proposals will be before the electors in the fall: 1. Referendum on the legislative action in ratifying the fed-

Tomorrow.
By Edgar A. Guest.

Tomorrow the day when the loser will work,
Tomorrow the day when nobody will shirk;
Tomorrow the day that we'll sit down and write
The letters of friendship we think of tonight.
The day we'll be kind and the day we'll be good,
Tomorrow the day when we'll live as we should.

Tomorrow the day when our debts will be paid,
When by none upon earth shall an error be made,
Tomorrow the day when the bad will repent
And the merciless tyrant in pity relent,
Tomorrow the miracle day of the year
When no one will hunger for comfort or cheer.

Tomorrow the day when the miser will lend
And the self-centered man becomes somebody's friend;
The day when the busy man now will have time
To help up somebody who's struggling to climb.
Tomorrow the day when the thoughtless will think,
And the world will give up his craving for drink.

Tomorrow the day when the fool will be wise,

The Goodrich Class.

The next class in the three-week's course of the tire repair school in the Goodrich Akron factories opens June 23. The class is open to tire dealers, garage men and their employees and to those who expect to enter the tire repairing business.

The course includes practical training in actual tire repair work in up-to-date methods under the guidance of experts. Lectures in advertising, salesmanship, business correspondence, and book-keeping are given the students by officials in the Goodrich organization.

After completing the training in tire repair work at the Goodrich school the graduates are capable of handling a tire repair business of their own. A fee of $40 is charged each student but at the end of the course the money is credited to the student's account on the purchase of repair materials. Therefore, the cost of the course to the student is practically nothing outside of traveling and living expenses.

For further information about the next class in the tire repair, communicate with The B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, attention Service Department or any Goodrich Branch.

United States Tire News.

Few articles of commerce offer so many opportunities for covering up poor quality and faulty construction as automobile tires. A good-looking outside covering may be only a shell within which are hidden shoddy materials and bungling workmanship.

The United States Tire Company cites this fact as reason why motorists who want good service from their tires are buying in enormously increasing quantities the "good tires" made by the company whose steady devotion to quality has made it the largest company in the world.

United States tires are made from the best materials and by the best tire makers. Such a combination ought to produce tires of the finest quality, and most manufacturers would be content to go no further. But in this company's factories every step in the process of manufacture is watched by trained inspectors whose duty it is to find and number of flaws discovered in excesses.

One out of every twelve employees is an inspector, and on the more important operations, one out of eight employees spends all his time looking for imperfections.

The company believes that it owes this carefulness as a duty to the great army of motorists who have placed their faith in United States tires.

Jacob W. Rupp a farmer near Archibald, who keeps about 40 stands of bees saw one of the hives swarming. He followed them for about 100 rods and was delighted on finding them. They headed and faced until the weight of the bees bore down the rim of his hat.

The bees covered one of his eyes, but by brushing the bees away with his hand he managed to see enough out of one eye to find his way back home, carrying the swarm back with him. He safely housed the swarm without getting stung.

No Binder Twine

It's a bad go to have harvest right up to ripe, and no binder twine. Worse yet if there's none in the market.

It Don't Pay

It don't pay to grow a crop and make no preparation for harvest. Binder twine is as essential as a self binder. Useless each without the other.

Get It Now

Get it now, as old Widow Bedot used to say, while the gittin's good. Whose got binder twine at 'eh low price?

The Plymouth Equity

The Plymouth Equity has binder twine with a margin of profit so close that it is practically wholesale in price. Of course the Equity will sell as long as it has buyers and the supply lasts.

After Supply Is Gone

After supply is gone then the fret begins. Better buy than fret. Get in line now. Better have twine ready than chase from town to town while the binder stands still and the grain is over ripe. Besides low supply means higher price.

Interested in Film Productions to Be Made at Methodist Celebration at Columbus, O.

DR. JAMES E. CROWTHER AND D. W. GRIFFITH.

The support of the motion picture world as represented by D. W. Griffith, well known film producer, was assured the Methodist Centenary Celebration at a conference in Columbus, the celebration being represented by Dr. S. Earl Taylor of New York, Dr. J. E. Crowther of Seattle, Dr. Fred Fisher of New York and Dr. C. F. Reisner of New York.

Mr. Griffith, in addition to promising to make a film of all important features of the Centenary Celebration, strongly urged the use of motion pictures in the advancement of religious work. He spoke strongly of the possibilities of the motion pictures under proper supervision being made to carry a religious message further than any known form of communication.

Dr. S. Earl Taylor, director general of the Centenary Celebration, made the statement that "we want pictures that talk the universal language. I believe the message of peace and good will should be preached to the world through pictures."

"I am glad to know they are going to give motion pictures a practical demonstration at the Centenary Celebration," said Mr. Griffith. "The celebration will give the people in towns and villages a wonderful opportunity to visit the entire world by going no further than Columbus. There will be an extraordinary impression produced by seeing these villages of China, Japan and India, not peopled by amateurish actors, but inhabited by real natives from foreign lands."

"I have been astounded beyond measure at the breadth, extent and scope of the entire scheme as it has been revealed to me by Dr. Taylor, Dr. Crowther, Dr. Reisner and others. I understand the Methodist Church has $10,000,000 and is going to celebrate its success with something more nearly resembling a world fair than anything else to which it can be compared. One would think that a great nation at least is behind the movement. Doubtless, something greater than the greatest nation is behind it—a reawakened ideal and faith inspired to bind up the wounds of a torn and outcast world."

Columbus Can Well Accommodate All Who Attend Methodist Celebration, Officials Say

NO CROWD which has been proposed for the Methodist Centenary Celebration will swamp Columbus, according to Mayor George J. Karb, who has received some inquiries from distant points regarding the ability of the Capital City to take care of the hundreds of thousands of Methodists coming from all over the United States for the Centenary Celebration, June 29 to July 12.

Mayor Karb says: "Columbus has always been equal to any situation. We are not going to fail the exposition crowds, no matter how many thousand there are. Tell them to come to Columbus town. We are ready with open hearts and open doors. Columbus can do it."

James T. Daniels, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, says: "We can easily and satisfactorily accommodate three hundred thousand visitors." Organizing Secretary H. Dickson says: "Three hundred thousand my minimum estimate of attendance. Confident Columbus can take care of twice that number."

Collection of Indian Curios at the Methodist Centenary Celebration

WHAT has been pronounced the greatest private collection of Indian curios in America has been loaned to the Methodist Centenary Celebration at Columbus, O., by H.

W. Palm, an Indian trader of Ortonville, Minnesota. Mr. Palm is here shown with some of his interesting relics.

Indian exhibitions will have a considerable place in the Celebration. Pueblo Indians will unconcernedly mold pottery before throngs of curious spectators. Just as their grandfathers did before the white man invaded their lands. Navajos will weave rugs and St. Regis make baskets—all actually living in their primitive homes, be they pueblos or wigwags.

NO SEATS RESERVED

First Come, First Served, at Coliseum at Methodist Centenary.

At a conference of Director General S. Earl Taylor, Dr. Fred B. Fisher, H. B. Dickson and other members of the Centenary Exposition staff, it was decided that there will be no seats reserved in the Coliseum for "The Wayfarer" pageant presentations at the Methodist Centenary Celebration, Columbus, O., June 29-July 12.

All seats will be available to spectators as soon as the doors of the Coliseum are opened each evening. "It will be a case of first come, first served," says Mr. Dickson. Season tickets to the exposition grounds admit the bearer once to the pageant in the Coliseum. Single admission fees at the gate require an additional fifty cents for the Coliseum evening feature.

Wife Eats Too Much.

In his motion filed in probate court in relation to the alimony asked for by his wife, Amos B. Norris says he denies that he has cut off his wife Ada F. Norris from getting groceries. He tells the probate court that since the divorce petition was filed, she has used a bushel of potatoes a week, for herself and daughter and for two weeks her sister and child were her guests.

Norris says that since filing his divorce petition, he has bought for his wife three sacks of flour. He claims she has used at least 50 pounds of lard. Norris relates further that he butchered three hogs, dressing 225 pounds each and that his wife used eight shoulders and hams, since the divorce suit was filed, besides other portions of the meat.

In addition to the pork, Norris says his wife has killed and eaten 25 or 30 chickens and has sold several more. Norris says he boards himself and has used none of the items enumerated. The husband further relates that Mrs. Norris has used several cans of fruit and maple syrup. Besides eating all these home provisions Norris says he allows his wife to buy on his account, what groceries she needs.

As for money, Norris claims his wife sold cattle belonging to him and received $300 cash. He claims further that he has missed $75 of his money since filing his divorce suit and he avers that Mrs. Norris got this sum. Further, the husband charges that Mrs. Norris sells the eggs and appropriates the money to her own use.

At the hearing on this motion Thursday afternoon in probate court Judge Rissman allowed Mrs. Norris' attorney fees and money to bring her witnesses into court at the divorce hearing which is set for Monday, June 30. The husband is further ordered, to provide provisions for his wife.

Amos Norris is a well-to-do farmer, owning about two hundred acres in Worthington township. There are two houses on the farm. Norris lives in one and his wife in the other. He has been divorced in the other. He is much older than his present spouse.

The arrival of week end guests by airplane is a fact now. Captain Coyle and Lieut. Goddard arrived in Van Wert Saturday evening to spend Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Hughes, returning Sunday evening. Next thing will be a public hangar in which to house the planes.

Adjustment That Squares with Goodrich Performance

In practical usage on road and pavement, Goodrich Tires are to-day consistently delivering remarkable mileage, showing a strength and endurance which proves them the best tires the rubber industry has developed.

Knowing by actual performance what splendid service Goodrich tires are giving, the E. F. Goodrich Rubber Company has taken a step frankly intended to induce every motorist to share the more mileage of its tires.

It has established this new adjustment mileage worthy of the proven durability of its tires—

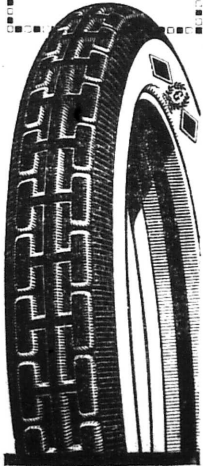

5,000 miles for Safety Treads - 8,000 miles for Silvertown Cords, in the old adjustment of 3,500 for Safety Treads, and 5,000 for Silvertowns.

The new adjustment holds good for all Goodrich Tires, including tires already purchased in the hands of user or dealer. Go to a Goodrich dealer, and buy Goodrich Tires, sure that they will fulfill their mileage.

Former Plymouth Man In Hold-up

The following clipping from a Montpelier, Idaho, publication is of interest to our readers, inasmuch as Ford McCready mentioned therein is a former Plymouth boy, and a nephew of Chalmers Loudon west of town. The incident happened June 6 and is detailed as below:

Conductor Harry Shaver and brakeman Ford McCready were shot and painfully wounded last Saturday night at 11:30 at Border siding by three bootleggers who were stealing a ride into Montpelier. Shaver was shot through the thick part of the right leg and McCready through the fleshy part of the left leg. Both men are in the Montpelier hospital but will be able to be out in a few days.

Extra 257, loaded with coal, pulled by Engineer Arthur Burke, left Keunemer Saturday evening for Montpelier. Before leaving the yards brakeman McCready saw three men hanging around the train, but they were not located until pulling into Border. There brakeman Irving Edwards, recently returned from service overseas with a machine gun battalion, caught them and told them to vamoose.

One of the three pulled an automatic revolver, stuck it in Edwards' face, and after saying "You die" snapped the trigger twice, but the cartridge would not explode. Edwards' thought at first the bootleggers were joking, but when the other two men drew automatics he raised both hands giving a signal with the lantern.

McCready and Shaver surmised that the caboose and started for the head end. While he was a half car length away, and Shaver a car length distance all three men opened up on them. McCready was shot first, but fired his own shell, and as one of the men let loose of the coal car and fell on the right-away, McCready thinks he got one of them. When Shaver was shot he fell from the train, and when picked up later by the crew was unconscious from the loss of blood.

After shooting both trainmen, the bootleggers jumped off the train, firing another round of bullets as they did so, and firing still a third volley as the caboose went by.

Only two of the men were seen going back along the track towards Cokeville. Brakeman McCready called the Montpelier dispatcher on the phone, getting right of way over No. 4 and the two trainmen were rushed to the local hospital.

Poses searched for the men from Border and Cokeville, and Sheriff Athay, Chief of Police Hillier and Night Officer Busch led posses out from here without result.

On Monday morning two men were picked up in the Montpelier yards suspected of the crime, but brakeman Edward was unable to identify them as the bad men.

The men were supposed to have had two cases and two gunny sacks of bootleg whiskey. The two sacks were found on the train, when it reached Montpelier and taken to the county seat by Sheriff Athay.

Rat Plague in England.
Brown rats are increasing so rapidly in rural England that they have become a plague and the board of agriculture is preparing for a campaign against the rapacious rodent. Immense loss of wheat has been caused by the rats. In some districts unthreshed stacks have been riddled with rat runs and are almost falling in. It is estimated that a grown rat can eat two ounces of wheat a day and spoil much more.

Saturday

You are all coming to town Saturday, and the Quality grocery will welcome you.

We want your butter and eggs and will pay the top price, and you will find our stock of infinite variety.

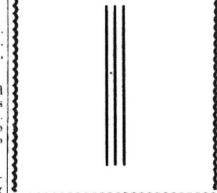

We are always buying the best at the lowest price that we may pass same to you at a small profit margin.

We are again up to normal in the matter of help, and will care for your trade promptly.

Make the Quality grocery your grocery, and your place to sell and buy.

We can't avoid the suspicion that Foch doesn't care whether the Germans sign or not. He would like to take another smash at the Huns before getting back into his civies.

It wasn't a change of heart that prevented the Knox resolution from passing. It was the realization that back home there is no disposition to hurrah the Lodge-Borah bunch who are rocking the boat. The United States senate never could keep its finger on the pulse of the common people.

They flew across the deep and then all the sport dropped out of the game. It is the continuous performance that wins in this strenuous day.

The Ohio legislature has recessed again, this time till the first of December, then it comes again as a sort of Santa Claus. Like Tennyson's brook, it seems to go on and on.

The American Federation of Labor, in convention at Atlantic City, voted almost unanimously in favor of ratification of the peace treaty and league of nations pact. The senate seems to harbor about all the opposition to the two-fold document.

Now Senator Lodge says that the Knox resolution has been dropped, that the senate may give attention to much needed legislation. That's a sudden acquisition of common sense and sounds like the senate would sign along with the Germans.

What is the Mansfield News going to do about the decision of the senate to ratify the treaty and league of nations pact. With prohibition a fact, the woman suffrage approaching a realism, and the world for the league of nations, poor Mr. Heistand will have nothing with which to certify his daily press. It is too bad that such a good news paper must be burdened with an editorial writer so out of harmony with progress.

We are for ratification of both the peace treaty and the League of nations' pact. This is no time to monkey-fiddle around. If the Germans sign, instant ratification is our platform, then right down to business by both senate and house. We have domestic matters demanding constructive attention, and those senators who are standing around watching a chance to throw a wrench into the machinery when production is imperative are not the stuff out of which good statesmen are made. The country is getting ready to sweat the man who tries to draw a senatorial salary while playing politics like a ward healer.

Our perils come in colors. Once it was yellow, now it is red.

If Germany wants a peace treaty to suit her she must make it herself. No victor ever made a peace that suited the vanquished.

Thirteen discharged soldiers arrived in New Castle, Pa., on train No. 313, and on Friday June 13. They should have all kinds of good luck.

Just as we were figuring on buying a new shirt we note that a New York speculator paid $25,000 for a seat on the Cotton Exchange. Just for that we won't buy.

There were more than fourteen points in Clemenceau's address to the Germans. In about thirty years from now French children will be reciting it as an example of impressive rhetoric.

We are betting eight to five that the Willard-Dempsey fight will have a larger attendance than the Methodist Centenary. Toledo is always trying to out do Columbus.

Sheriff Roose has taken on an other superlatie. For a long time he has been the best sheriff in the state. Now it develops that he is the youngest. Guess we'll enter him as the hand-some-est, then we'll have all the ribbons.

The forces that voted the prohibition amendment to the national constitution should now be content. To begin a senseless quibble over soft drinks will be sufficiently ridiculous to invite the undoing of the essential work already accomplished. The history of reforms is that they gather an impetus that carries the reformation beyond the objective. A little pressure on the brake and a contentment that will keep the tension where it is will avoid criticism, and the ridicule that blights.

Speaking of the Germans, they haven't scratched yet, as the Bon Ami ads would say.

TO AMEND TREATY IS TO REJECT IT

Business Interests Urged to Use Their Influence.

PEACE LEAGUE NOT A NEW IDEA

W. A. Julian, Chairman Ohio Branch, League to Enforce Peace, in Masterly Address at Cincinnati, Points Out What Would Happen if United States Senate Should Amend Peace Plans Formulated at Paris.

Cincinnati, O.—(Special)—Stressing the fact that amendment of the League of Nations covenant means rejection, and branding as false the assertion that the document is "Wilson-made," W. A. Julian, chairman of the Ohio branch, League to Enforce Peace, in a masterly address here urged the business interests of the country to use their influence to have the covenant ratified by the United States senate.

"We hear a great deal from Washington to the effect that the League of Nations plan adopted by the great powers at Paris is a 'Wilson-made' document," said Mr. Julian. The senators who use this argument to defeat the nearest thing we've ever had to a Federation of Mankind do so

W. A. JULIAN,
Chairman Ohio Branch, League to Enforce Peace.

either through unparadonable ignorance or unpardonable partisanship. The League of Nations plan was formulated long before Woodrow Wilson was first nominated for president. During the Taft administration treaties were drawn up, one with France and another with Great Britain, in which the parties agreed to arbitrate all justiciable questions and abide by the arbitration, "with machinery for determining what was a justiciable question—a question which would be settled by a court on principles of law or equity.

"When those treaties were sent to the United States senate for ratification that august body of lawmakers did to them just what they would like to do to the Paris covenant. They blithely amended them as they would amend the Lord's Prayer if that sacred work were submitted to them for consideration.

"Although those treaties were never put into operation, they were the seed from which grew the League of Nations—adopted by the great powers after months of consideration at Paris. The people of the country became interested in the idea and when the great war swooped down upon the world four or five hundred of these people met in Philadelphia and organized the League to Enforce Peace. This organization laid down a platform, recommending that the United States enter a League of Nations under stipulations, and embracing many points included in the present treaty.

"The propaganda of the League to Enforce Peace spread to the other side of the water. An association with a similar program was organized in England. Then France embraced the idea. The French and English governments appointed commissions to consider the question of the League of Nations and its practicable character, and to recommend plans. Mr. Ribot, of France, asked our own government to do the same thing, but we refused.

"The President Wilson went to France he found a tremendous welcome there for the League of Nations, or rather a League of Nations. The League of Nations plan which Mr. Wilson submitted to the representatives of the various foreign powers was revised, clarified and made into a much better document than it was when first presented. And in its present form it is different from any particular plan. Investigation of it will show that it was taken from very many different sources and hammered out, in such a document must be hammered out, where there are 14 different members to be satisfied by the result.

"So much so that the League of Nations covenant is not a 'Wilson-made' document.

"Now, what will happen if the senate is permitted to amend the covenant? To amend the covenant is one single particular amounts to rejection of the whole, and the United States will continue to be in a state of war with Germany. There is a clause in the treaty which declares that if any three nations sign that treaty with Germany as it now stands they may enter into international relations with Germany. The signatory nations may open up trade and business and start to do business with Germany just as if all the other nations had signed the treaty. Suppose Japan, France, Great Britain and Italy sign the pact, as we are told they are more than willing to do, what would happen? They would be at peace with Germany and we would be at war with Germany. We will be at war with Germany, we will stand alone, and we will be isolated, standing alone, while the other great nations are reaping the harvest of trade.

"Already the National Chamber of Commerce of England has opened a branch office at Coblenz, Germany. They are there ready to do business the moment Great Britain and two other powers sign the peace treaty.

"Furthermore, if the United States does not sign the peace treaty with the League of Nations in it as it is now, we will be plunged into interminable litigation over the $700,000,000 worth of ships which has been awarded us to replace the bottoms destroyed by the Germans during the war. If we accept the peace treaty as it now stands we get this tonnage without further parley. If we do not accept it neutral powers will determine just what tonnage, if any, Germany shall be compelled to give us.

"Another situation with which we will be confronted in case the League of Nations covenant is amended and thus rejected is the possibility of having to return to their former owners the $1,000,000,000 worth of alien property sold at auction by this government under the alien property custodian act.

"As you can readily see, how much more easily we can deal with the Germans now that we have them on their backs, and all our allies assisting us, than if it allowed them to get up, having made peace with all the world, and having only us to deal with. One who runs may read the news."

Mr. Julian urged his hearers to see to it that the senators at Washington are informed that the people desire the ratification of the League of Nations covenant.

Mr. Julian is known throughout Ohio through his untiring efforts on the health and old age pension commission, of which he is chairman.

Keep Hogs Healthy.

Ohio lost fewer hogs by cholera last year than in 1917 or 1918. The reason, so it is assigned, is because the price per pound was an incentive to keep the hogs in a healthy condition by care and medication.

This reminds us that Webber's drug store is carrying the Saltonic ad again this week, and has already sold many blocks of this splendid medication, and since only a few blocks remain, better buy one and place it where the hog herd can get busy. A small quantity and a healthy bunch of hogs is better than taking a chance.

76-78 W. Main Street

Phone 270

SHELBY, OHIO

You know Chatham street.

It begins at the stair that leads up to where once was the old Advertiser office, #2nd extends north to the corner where is the office of Dr. Samuel Shaffer Holtz.

It is made up of Irish, Germans, Jews, and just plain mixtures, of which Attorney Seiler is example.

You could start in with Louie Derringer, barber, born in Plymouth, and has been barbering for about 35 years, having learned his trade under the direction of Jim Graham.

Learned his trade, also, in the room where he now is, and which has been a barber shop for nearly a half century.

Mr. Hilborn, who in his infancy was christened Isaac, started life near Tiro when very young. He came to Plymouth a third of a century ago, and barbered here and there about the square, until six years ago, when he joined issues with Louie.

They are good barbers, conduct an even tempered shop, take their Thursday afternoons off, and help to make Chatham street a thoroughfare of honest craftsmen.

When you leave the barber shop and travel north, Chatham street becomes suddenly Hebraic. You walk into garlic sausage, hamburger, kosher meat, lamb, veal, pork and porterhouse.

You meet up with Mose and Alex Kappenberg. They, too, were born in Plymouth, and so far as we know without objection.

They know the meat business as the butcher knows the compass. They are industrious plus, and people drive further to buy meat of Kappenberg's than they would to see the King of Siam.

Mose likes to drop into the Advertiser office occasionally and settle the Irish question. Some day he'll be arrested for inciting a riot, then Chatham street will lose one of its real students of current events.

If you will take a taxi and ride to the next door you'll meet up with one of the best fellows this side of McClincey's.

We refer to Doc Caldwell. We don't know where he got his professional title, unless it is because he doctors up your old tires. He knows as much about your inner tube as any physician we know of, and when he gets through with it trouble is over.

Then comes McClincey. He keeps a harness shop and Arthur Meyers does the work. With a man like Arthur, Ted can do as big a day's work as any man we know.

It's a good place to stop on the way to the Jennings well. You can sit down and talk a half hour with McClincey and he won't lose a minute, for Arthur just keeps on sewing and pegging.

Up stairs, over McClincey, is Attorney Seiler, and he's getting business, also he hung out his shingle but a brief two months ago. Charles is an old timer at the business of the law, and when he takes a case he gets right down to brass tacks, joins his legs squarely, and his opponent at the bar has no time for napping.

A disciple of Escalapius is the finish of Chatham street, Dr. Holtz is an old timer and busy always. He's a genial fellow and a most agreeable factor in the sick room. He knows a lot of things besides medicine and that's why we like to meet up with him occasionally for converse.

There's a lot of business done on Chatham, and we like to go around in the evening and fellowship. There isn't a grouch in the line up, and out of its marts you can get anything you want but wearing apparel and an undertaker.

Ramsey Indicted.

It is stated that W. G. Ramsey, of Plymouth, who was arrested some time ago by Sheriff Clyde O. Rose on the charge of being implicated in the Willard automobile tire case, has been indicted by the federal grand jury at Toledo. At the time of the arrest, an automobile truck containing about 45 large automobile tires, was found near the entrance of Ramsey's garage.—Norwalk Receptor.

A Time to Trust

Most men don't men don't like to bother about finding out personally what kind of cloth wears best in the clothes they buy. They would rather put it up to a man who knows this business thoroughly.

If they buy CLOTHCRAFT CLOTHES they don't even have to take any man's word for it; because the makers take all the responsibility by putting a written guarantee of satisfactory wear and service in the pocket of every coat. We guarantee fit and good looks.
