

The mosquito is in that in Plymouth.

He has no friend or admirer to make defense for his blood-sucking tendencies.

When he thrusts his bill thru the silken hee, or alights on the bared arm the poor victim kicks or strikes like a bolsherk.

Even when Miss or Mrs. Mosquito comes into your bed chamber and starts a solo in A sharp, her young life is passed, and perhaps is crushed by one big nervous slap.

It is a war of extermination socially and physically. The pest isn't even wanted at porch parties, and the lawn swings for two have been all but deserted.

Scientists have recorded more than 40,000 varieties of the mosquito. It would seem that one variety would be sufficient.

Not all are blood-sucking. There are some very well behaved mosquitoes. They have seemed to break away from the savage breeds, and by slow processes become civilized and purely vegetarian in habit and appetite.

This civilization doesn't always stick. All is not safe for humanity to democracy. This well-behaved class will get a taste of blood, and the whole generation reverts back to blood-sucking.

There are but few parts of the earth exempt from mosquito invasion and habitat. He even dwells in the Arctic region, and during the short summers is particularly voracious.

He does not live long, so says some of the mosquito specialists. Certainly he doesn't live long if we can get a good whack at him.

One scientist says that a mosquito is very old at the end of 48 hours from his birth. We conclude from this that at 48 hours old he is grandfather, and sits with cane and spectacles in the shade of some leaf while the grand children play about him.

Only a few of the males go out on a blood hunt. He hasn't the long long labial for sub-cutaneous explorations. The female is especially well equipped. She is the soloist. Just why she sings we know not. If she would sing without the song she'd get more blood, and get it without so much opposition.

The mosquito has been charged and convicted of scattering disease, especially malaria and yellow fever. To have one come singing over your ears just about the time you have coaxed Morpheus to embrace, is one of life's most exasperating peevess.

You assume a listening attitude and finally strike out in the dark, or perhaps you come singing over your ears just about the time you have coaxed Morpheus to embrace, is one of life's most exasperating peevess.

It is hot weather that sends them out day and night in search of exposed ankles, bare arms and exposures a la decollette.

These seem to be choice sections of anatomy, but we are not sure that they would decline other exposures.

It is the night prowling mosquito that gets our goat the easiest. To have one come singing over your ears just about the time you have coaxed Morpheus to embrace, is one of life's most exasperating peevess.

You assume a listening attitude and finally strike out in the dark, or perhaps you come singing over your ears just about the time you have coaxed Morpheus to embrace, is one of life's most exasperating peevess.

We are not able to say that the average Plymouth mosquito is less considerate than the mosquito of Tiro, Willard or Shiloh. They are all low bred in stagnant pools. Even the water that accumulates in old cans and bottles during a rain fall make fine incubators.

Since they stay close to the family hatchery, we need not think that they come from rural ponds to the municipal and social centers. Plymouth probably

From Federal Club Comes a Guest

A letter from Forrest F. Smith, assistant United States Attorney, of Columbus, addressed to the Advertiser says that he will be glad to talk before the Chamber of Commerce at its session Friday evening September 5. Since Mr. Smith is a Plymouth product, the chamber membership will turn out with a full attendance. It is one thing to go away and make good. It is also another to return and find the old home town 100 per cent good. One thing about Mr. Smith, which is also truthfully said of other boys who have gone hither and thither, and that is he still has hankering to come back, though it is but occasionally. Another thing common to Mr. Smith and other sons of adventure, he never speaks of Plymouth except to praise. He knows where the salt of the earth dwelleth, and with him it is no secret. He is in the court, in the club, on the train and wherever conversation is flavored with the reminiscence. Some on, and sit in on the evening of Friday which is September 5. Come in and loosen. The place belongs to you. Eat a little, drink a little, and incline your ear to speech and music. The evenings are growing gray. The outdoors is not so beckoning as in the fragrant midsummer. It will be the wish of the chamber membership to provide for something to divert and amuse when nature goes into cold storage. While Mr. Smith is wondering just how best to start his grand trial, we'll talk over a few matters of local import. The hour will be at 8:30 evening. Come in good spirits—the kind that makes you shrike and talk.

Shade

The kindest thing God ever made, his hand of very healing laid upon a fevered world, is shade.

His glorious company of trees, throw out their mantles, and under these, the dust-stained wanderer finds his case.

Green temples, closed against the beat of noontime's blinding glare and heat, open to any pilgrim's feet.

The white road blister in the sun; now, half the weary journey done, enter and rest, O weary one!

And feel the dew of dawn still wet beneath thy feet, and so forget the burning highway's ache and fret.

This is God's hospitality, and whose rests beneath a tree hath cause to thank Him gratefully.

Out of a page we took these lines, and print to show God has designs for all his creatures in earth's chorines.

Wellington Mills came in Wednesday morning, big, husky, and full of life, but did you know that according to the family bible, Mr. Mills started on the 90th lap on the 12th of August? In just eleven years from now, Wellington will have passed the century mark. But members of the Mills family have lived to be 105.

It is your duty, Mr. Gas user, to learn the true situation regarding the depletion of natural gas. Read articles appearing in this paper on that subject. Investigate and satisfy yourself as to facts and offer a suggestion to aid in conservation.

Supt. Kaylor Resigns.

The Board of Education received notice early this week of the resignation of Supt. Kaylor. This comes so late that the board may find difficulty in locating a suitable man for the place. It seems unfair to delay notice of resignation until time to begin schools. It would seem that more regard should be paid to obligation.

If the board had displaced Mr. Kaylor, by disregarding its covenant with him, he could have entered the service of his contractor. But it seems that superintendents may resign early or late and re-estimate a trouble that may disorganize the school for a year, and yet may not be held to account.

M. E. Conference.

Rev. W. E. Hollett will attend the northeast Ohio conference which will begin its session in the Youngstown, September 16. A. R. Morse has been chosen as lay delegate, with Guy Brokaw as alternate. The lay delegates will select representation to the General Conference which will be held in Des Moines.

Death of Col. Weybrecht.

The death of Col. Weybrecht at Canton Monday was most regrettable. He had been in the service since the war, and was a member of the Youngstown Club. Col. Weybrecht was the guest of Other victims were Mrs. Wm. Charis, of Sebring, Ohio, John C. Shaver, a jeweler of Alliance, and John J. Wainwright, a waiter at the Country Club. Col. Weybrecht was at one time Adjutant General of Ohio National Guard and commander of the 14th Infantry overseas. He was prominent politically and socially in the state and was a frequent visitor as a gubernatorial possibility.

Princess Stock Co.

The Princess Stock Co. is replying to packed tents. Its repertoire embraces wholesome plays of comedy is clean. The tent is pitched on the Feltner lot, corner of North and Sandusky streets, and if weather is agreeable the company expects the week to go strong and finish with record breaking attendance. Friday and Saturday evenings.

New London's Balloon.

New London is fortunate in securing very well behaved balloons many observation balloons for a Labor Day attraction.

This is the 31st Balloon Company from Camp Knox, Kentucky, consisting of four officers and ninety enlisted men.

The balloon is the Casquet type known as the Casquet, one of the French army and the inventor. It was in actual use in the war, and this type performed over 70 per cent of the observations.

The balloon will be inflated Friday with hydrogen gas requiring two hundred cylinders. The gas is a high explosive and great precaution is required.

It is 100 feet long and 27 feet in diameter and contains 37,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas.

A parachute drop will be made by Sergeant Abell. The ascension will be made at 5 p. m. and will carry six people. One of the men will be Lieut. E. R. Liggins who served in actual observations over seas for 18 months. He was shot down three times, the balloon being completely destroyed each time.

It is the first small town demonstration the government has made.

Hon. Minor K. Johnston Married.

The marriages of Hon. Minor K. Johnston of Shelby, to Mrs. Harriet L. Kuhn, Tuesday morning at Mansfield, was news to his friends in Plymouth, as none of them were aware that Mr. Johnston was contemplating matrimony. The Advertiser extends congratulations and quotes from the Mansfield News as follows:

Very quietly and without notice to any of their many friends in Shelby or Mansfield Mrs. Harriet L. Kuhn, of Shelby, Ohio, and the Hon. Minor K. Johnston, of Shelby, Richland county representative to the state legislature, came to Mansfield to be united in marriage before the altar of St. Mark's Lutheran church, the Rev. J. E. Zimmerman officiating. The bride's attendants were Mrs. J. C. Lewis, and nephew and wife, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Lewis all of Cleveland. Following the ceremony they left for Columbus for a short visit. In their return they will make their home at the bridegroom's country residence near Shelby.

Sisinger Reunion.

The Sisinger reunion will be held this Thursday at the home of A. D. Sisinger, on Plymouth street. This is about the fifteenth annual gathering of this family, and we would have made our mention last week, but A. D. was a little late in communicating the information.

Nature gave them just two single wings, and made these so that they may not be fully folded. They are what you would call binnacle models, with flight slow and laborious.

You can raise enough mosquitoes in a pile of tomato cans on the back lot to keep a half dozen men from getting any more spotsches throughout the biting season.

The remedies are as numerous as the varieties. Some use salt, vinegar, alcohol, (externally), mentha salina, Sloan's Lintiment, talcum powder, camphor, chloroform, mentholatum, coal oil, turpentine, gasoline, or sorghum.

The best is Listerine applied and rubbed hard and briskly over the bite.

With the approach of cool weather the mosquito will lose his thirst for blood and the average citizen will lose his thirst for the mosquito. He, and living again becomes composed.

The Hopkins Family Reunion.

The Hopkins family reunion was held at the home of S. P. Dickerson near Greenwich, on Saturday August 23, 1919, with 35 of the oldest present was C. W. Hopkins, the head of the family and now in his 87th year, but able to appreciate the event as thoroughly as any one present.

From a distance came Mrs. J. W. Houseman, and her daughter, Miss Christine, of Indianapolis. There were six sisters present, all of the girls of the Hopkins family, and they were, Mrs. S. P. Dickerson, Mrs. J. S. Miller, Mrs. Jennie Bell, Mrs. D. C. Warren, all of Greenwich, and Mrs. J. W. Houseman of Indianapolis, and Mrs. J. C. Woodworth, of Plymouth.

This was the first time in three years that all of the sisters have been together.

A bountiful dinner served on tables arranged on the lawn of the Dickey home was a feature of the day. The next reunion will be held at the home of J. S. Miller, near Greenwich, but the date was not announced.

Norwalk Girl Collapses in Bathing Suit.

The enjoyment of the Ernaberger family reunion which was held Saturday at Casino park, near Norwalk, was marred by an act of heart trouble suffered by Miss Frances Pratt of Norwalk, who collapsed while in bathing suit swimming pool.

Miss Pratt went in bathing soon after partaking of a hearty meal which is supposed to have caused the trouble. She had not been in the water long before she collapsed. Miss Ruth Forry who was in the pool at the same time, tried to rescue Miss Pratt but she too was pulled under by Miss Pratt. Miss Forry called for help and John Gorman came to the rescue. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Houseman of Indianapolis, and Mrs. J. C. Woodworth, of Plymouth, were also present.

Band Concert at North Fairfield.

The business men of North Fairfield have provided a band concert to be given this Thursday evening. A recent concert given at North Fairfield drew a great crowd, and merchants were so well pleased that another has been arranged as above.

The Monroeville Band.

That the Saturday evening crowd of last week might have its usual entertainment, the Monroeville Band, with eighteen pieces was secured for a concert on September 5. The boys arrived on time and gave an excellent program covering nearly two hours. Everyone enjoyed the concert very highly and the crowd one of the largest of the summer.

Should we have occasion to invite this company of entertainers, again, they will come among us with a reputation for quality and quantity rarely established.

Another band concert will be given Saturday evening in which a dozen or more musicians will play a high grade and well rendered, all are experienced and proficient.

Plymouth is looking for an unusual large crowd this coming Saturday evening, and the advertiser is glad that so many have interested themselves in providing suitable entertainment for our guests and patrons.

There is a fine spirit evident among those who are taking their place in the musical program. It is their purpose to give the big crowd an entertainment that will reflect both experience and ability to interpret.

This organization will probably close the season, as a month or so will find the evenings too cool for our amusement of this character.

The Traugers in Pennsylvania Are Notable and Numerous.

On our desk is a copy of the Doylestown, Pa., Intelligencer, of August 27, 1919, which contains an account of the tenth annual reunion of the Traugers, where 500 gathered at Tolickon Park.

One of the family, that is the Traugers of this community here, long, and the historian, Webster Trauger, stated that there are Traugers in every state of the Union and in Canada. He told of how two brothers, Christian and Henry Trauger, landed at Philadelphia in 1747, and then to Skipkapp, Montmorency county, and in 1767 took an adjoining tract of land in Nockamixon township, occupying there, until their death in 1800.

Skippack, Montmorency county, and in 1767 took an adjoining tract of land in Nockamixon township, occupying there, until their death in 1800. The Traugers, in his address, he made a strong exhortation for the members of the family to maintain their traditional intelligent interest in public questions. The world is in a state of flux and public opinion is now more powerful than ever before. Such a strong influence in the Traugers, can wield a mighty influence in the important work of world reconstruction.

One of the features of the occasion was the address of Rev. Jordan C. Trauger, who had just returned from a trip covering 13,000 miles in the United States, and which embraced the Pacific coast states. On this trip he visited here and there, descendants of the family.

Teachers Must Take Oath.

After September 4, so we are told, no one applying for a position will be qualified to teach in the public schools of the state until he or she takes the oath of allegiance to the state. This oath must be subscribed to before an officer authorized to administer oaths, and having an official seal. Copies must be filed with the board of education.

The penalty against school officers who permit teachers to teach without taking the oath is $100 in any sum not exceeding $100.

Elmer Ervin, who is directing the grading of a road ready for road preparatory to receiving the crushed stone, says that the work is now completed, and an early fall will see the road ready for traffic. The engineer who accepted the work from Mr. Ervin found everything exactly to grade except the two or three inches high, and this was remedied.

Glick Damage Case Settled.

The $20,000 damage case of Mrs. Catherine Noonan against William Glick of Willard was settled in common pleas court Friday, the defendant agreeing to pay $2,200. After the settlement was reached, Judge Williams instructed the jury to return a verdict in that amount. The case went to the jury on Friday of last week and a number of witnesses were examined.

When the case was tried before a jury, it given a $4,000 verdict. A new trial was granted on an irregularity that occurred during the first trial. Mrs. Noonan went to the jury on Friday of last week and a number of witnesses were examined.

Bouquet With Southern Fragrance

Miss Marlie DeVoe, in writing to a friend in Plymouth, expressed her disapproval from the usual text long enough to say:

The Advertiser is getting to be "just fine" (a southern expression) even though I don't know him. He certainly is a "booster" and does not mean any harm out of Plymouth than I ever imagined existed there.

We thank this faraway and sweet friend for his expressions of appreciation, and we quote not for ourselves, but for the Advertiser, which is our pride and appreciate any word of approval, just as any manufacturer appreciates a compliment for that which he makes and sells.

Married.

On Wednesday August 27, 1919, occurred the marriage of E. E. Earnest to Miss Lola Hatch, the ceremony taking place at the Lutheran church, Mansfield, Rev. A. C. Miller officiating.

Miss Hatch is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hatch, of Plymouth street, and a favorite among her friends. Mr. Earnest, as he is known by his friends, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Earnest, and one of the best fellows we know. The Advertiser is particularly glad to announce the union of these popular young folks.

The firm of housekeeping at once, and Mr. Earnest who has been employed in the office of the Ferguson Construction Co., will follow to Plymouth. The Advertiser-Root-Heath Co. soon. Good luck to this good couple.

Has Perfect Teeth at 72.

Having read of a man having his first tooth pulled at the age of seventy, W. P. Root, of Medina, rises up to challenge all comers for molar longevity. He is just seventy-two years of age and has all his teeth, but they are in perfect shape, color and bid fair to last another seventy-two years. W. P. Root is the son of C. F. Root, of Plymouth.

Hollenbach-Stroup Reunion.

The Hollenbach-Stroup reunion will be held Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Opdyke, of Plymouth. A big dinner will be served and a good attendance of relatives anticipated.

Aumend Reunion.

The Aumend family reunion will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ross, Saturday August 30. The Ross home is southwest of Plymouth about five miles.

Attends Family Reunion.

C. E. Einsel and his mother attended the Spitzer family reunion held Friday at Meadowbrook Park near Tiffin. More than a hundred guests were present. C. E. Einsel was president of the occasion. Mother Einsel, whose maiden name was Spitzer, was the youngest of a family of 16 children, and is the only survivor.

Value Intensified

THE proper procedure in measuring the merits of the clothes you buy is to contemplate their possibilities in service-giving. And service in clothes includes the elements of style, fabric-quality, workmanship and wearing-ability. If you're sure of these things you can afford the price.

KUPPENHEIMER CLOTHES

are such clothes--and that is why we have them for the men and young men of this town and neighboring territory.

Their style is of a type that wins the quick admiration of men in every walk of life; their fabrics are individual and alive, and the tailoring is Kuppenheimer standard--matchless in the realm of clothes ready-to-put-on. In all, their goodness, without and within, is assurance of genuine and lasting satisfaction --- which, in other words, means value intensified.

Fat Men Who Did Big Things.

The general idea seems to be that fat and fame do not go together. This is probably accounted for by the fact that those of large bulk are inclined to be easy-going and therefore lacking in that push which is said to bring a man to the fore. The only great statesman one can recall who was really a fat man was Charles James Fox, as can be seen even by his effigy in the palace of Westminster, where he would make three of his great rival, Pitt the younger.

Jamie Thompson, the author of "The Seasons," is probably the only really fat poet. He was a comfortable, lazy, slovenly man, of whom it is related that he would eat peaches off the wall, not taking the trouble to take his hands out of his pockets to pluck them. Yet, despite his lazy disposition, he managed to write one of the longest of English poems, as well as "The Castle of Indolence"--a castle in which he habitually dwelt.

G. K. Chesterton, one of the stoutest of living celebrities, has on several occasions made up in the character of the Sage of Fleet street with excellent success. It is a little remarkable, too, that one of his closest friends, Hilaire Belloc, is almost as noted for his bulk as he is for his criticism of military operations; his poetry, his history and his fiction--"The Bits."

A Yankee Engineering Triumph.

"Early in the war we chucked and crowded over our ability to take a big 125-ton freight locomotive and box it into nineteen huge crates," writes Edward Hungerford in Everybody's for August, what was that accomplishment alongside the one which we reached long before the armistice--the fashioning of a specially constructed ship with five great hatched compartments into each of which seven huge set-up locomotives would go, minus only their smoke-stacks and their cabs? It was short work for the big 135-ton crane at St. Nazaire to reach down into the hold of that American locomotive ship and fetch up the thirty-five engines, that she carried, setting them upon French rails for the first time, while a host of workmen quickly and easily attached their stacks and their cabs. In less than two hours after such a Yankee locomotive has been lifted out of the ship-hold she has her steam up and has gone puffing her way into France with a trail of loaded cars behind her."

Aviator Peterson's Story of Capture By Mexicans.

Lieutenant Peterson who, with Lieutenant Davis, has just been ransomed from Mexican outlaws, has given the following account of his capture, after the fall of the airplane in which the two men were scouting:

"We fell about noon Sunday. We thought we were about two miles from Candelaria. We walked all Sunday afternoon and until about 2:30 o'clock Monday morning, when we came to a ranch where we found a Mexican who talked English. He told us Pilares was three miles south. We asked him to take us there but he told us the Mexicans would kill us if we went there. So we got him to take us to a road, down which we walked about an hour. After tiresome travel for three days "on Wednesday," the Lieutenant said, "we began our journey on burros with our Mexican guide. We soon were overtaken by six armed bandits and many cowboys. All but two of the bandits left us, but these two continued following us. After going about forty-five minutes the bandits stopped us and told the Mexican owner of the burros to return to his home. Friday afternoon at 6:30 the bandits stopped the horses and said they wanted to have a little chat with us. The bandits told us to write the message saying ransom must be paid for our release. The bandit leader spoke English very well. He said that he had worked on the railroads in Kansas and had lost an arm and a leg in an accident. We were well treated and we had plenty of food. There were three bandits with us most of the time. We did not learn the names of the bandits, but believe we could identify them. They threatened to kill us if the ransom was not paid."

Our Worst Profiteers.

The charging of excessive profits is reprehensible enough at any time, since it always means the taking of an unfair advantage of one's fellow human beings, but the nature of such practices in times of peace is not to be compared with the utter criminality of wartime profiteering, and the report that there are 7,000 new millionaires and probably at least 77,000 new near-millionaires in the United States as a result of the war, for in other words, as the result of conscienceless profiteering on the needs of the Government and the American people during the war period is one of the most serious indictments that has ever been brought against so considerable a body of the people of this country. Well may we wonder what has become of old-time snit of fairness and patriotism when so many thousands of our people, instead of treating their fellowmen and their country in its hour of peril fairly and squarely, have been so infamous as to take advantage of the great emergency, to enrich themselves, by taking excessive profits instead of contenting themselves with reasonable and legitimate earnings and thus at least avoiding the putting of serious obstacles in the way of their country's success in the war.

While the public is running the profiteers to earth let it not forget the cold storage grafter.--Washington Post.

Shoe Workers Make $120 A Week

The inquiry which is being held in Boston, Massachusetts, by the Suffolk County Grand Jury, regarding the reasons for the abnormally high cost of shoes has revealed some surprising facts. Among these was the earnings of shoe workers; it appearing that some of them earn as much as $120 a week. Only a few make as much as this, but it was testified that many make $30 a week while the average is about $40. Unskilled laborers, formerly making Union from $12 to $15 a week have more than doubled their wages, last-boys getting as much as thirty dollars a week.

As to the matter of profiteering it was declared that a pair of shoes which were sold by the manufacturer for $5.50 was sold in a store four hundred yards away for $12.00.

Hindenburg's Appeal to Marshal Foch Published

The letter which Field Marshal von Hindenburg wrote to Marshal Foch, appealing to him not to demand the extradition and trial of the ex-Kaiser, has been published in full in Berlin. At the time of the announcement that such a letter had been sent considerable interest was created but the text was not given out. Part of the letter reads as follows:

"As the soldier longest in the service and for a time the highest military adviser of my Kaiser and King, I consider it my duty, in the name of the old German army, to direct these lines to you, Herr Generalissimo, as the highest representative of the armies of the allied and associated powers, and to request you to take action in favor of having the demand for the extradition of His Majesty the Kaiser dropped. As the highest leader of an army which for centuries has fostered the tradition of genuine soldierly honour and knightly sentiment as a precious treasure, you will know how to appreciate our ideas.

"In order to keep this shameful humiliation from our people and our army I am ready to make any sacrifice. Consequently I herewith place my person at the entire disposal of the allied and associated powers in the place of my imperial commander."

Benjamin Harrison's Birthday.

August 20, was the birthday of one of the five presidents of the United States who were born in Ohio—Benjamin Harrison. Though he died 28 years ago he would not have been an unusually old man if he had lived to this day. President Harrison was born at North Bend, Ohio, August 20, 1833, so that he died in his 88th year and would have been 86 at this time if living.

The other presidents who were given to the nation by Ohio—that is, were born in Ohio—were Garfield, Grant, McKinley and Taft. The grandfather of this President Harrison—General William Henry Harrison, was elected from Ohio but he was born in Virginia, and while Grant was born in Ohio he was elected from Illinois. The others were both born in and elected from this state.

Benjamin Harrison was educated at Miami University, then the great educational institution of southern Ohio, graduating in 1852, and his first gainful occupation thereafter was bailiff of the U. S. court at Indianapolis. But it was a side-line with him, he being a student of law at the time. Like that other notable Indianan, Charles W. Fairbanks, he served for some time as the reporter for the supreme court of Indiana. It was at the time an elective office and he did not serve out his term. He resigned to enter the military service in the Civil war. He had recruited a company which was accepted and he with it as its second lieutenant.

He soon reached the rank of colonel, commanding the 17th Indiana Volunteers. That was the highest rank in which he actually served, but for gallant services he was made a brigadier general by brevet in 1865. At the close of the war he resumed his law practice, taking an active interest in politics in the two Grant campaigns. In 1881 he was elected a United States senator from Indiana and in 1888 he was elected to the office of president, defeating President Grover Cleveland. Four years later he was defeated by Mr. Cleveland for the same office. He did not again figure prominently in politics. Resuming the practice of law at Indianapolis he died there March 13, 1901.

Anthropology

A little girl wrote the following composition:

"Boys are men that have not got as big as their papas, and girls are young women that will be young ladies by-and-by. Man was made before woman. When God looked at Adam He said to Himself, 'Well, I guess I can do better if I try again,' and then he made Eve. God liked Eve so much better than Adam that there have been more women than men ever since. Boys are a trouble. They are wearing on everything but soap. If I had my way half the boys in the world would be little girls, and the rest would be dolls. My papa is so nice that I guess he must have been a little girl when he was a little boy."

"The Spirit of Co-Operation Should Prevail to Work Out the Problem of Prolonging the Use of Natural Gas."

If consumers of natural gas could be restricted in its use, and in especially designed appliances, and the consumers instructed to properly consume natural gas, the price could be advanced almost three times the average prevailing price at which it is now sold, and at the same time be cheaper than any other substitute that could be used.

The depletion of the gas supply in all the known fields, and from this experience the knowledge that rapid depletion will also prevail in all other fields that may hereafter be found, present to not only those engaged in the industry, but to the country at large—states and nation—the question of conservation; how best to protect the fields; how most economically to burn the gas, involving in this last question for what purposes natural gas is the most efficient fuel. In this last interrogation are involved the further subjects of comfort, convenience, etc.

The price for natural gas in the United States has advanced in the last four years only 11%, whereas the advance in oil has been 180%, pipe 300%, drilling, labor and other commodities from 100% to 250%, and coal, the price of which very largely influences the amount of gas used, 300%.

Perhaps the most effective incentive to conservation is, as experience has taught, a high price. Where the gas rate is sufficiently high, consumers will put in the necessary appliances to reduce the amount of consumption, and thereby obtain an equal amount of heat with a consumption of less gas, at no greater cost.

A good illustration of this is shown by the following experience of one large natural gas company, in two towns of as nearly equal size as it is possible to find, one having 1012 meters and the other having 1018 meters. The town having 1012 meters paid an average price of 45 cents for gas, while the town having 1018 meters paid an average of about 30 cents for gas in January, 1918. In the month of December of the same year, the town paying the higher price had the greater number of consumers, having increased 27 during the 12 months. The average amount of gas used by this town was 5,475 feet per month per consumer, while the town having the lower price averaged 7,731 feet. The average monthly income from the lower priced town was $2.36 per consumer, and the average monthly income from the higher priced town was $2.41 per consumer, or an increase of revenue of 60 cents per year, and a saving of 27,072 feet per consumer per year. In other words, it would have required 41% more gas to have supplied the community if the price had remained at thirty cents.

This saving was brought about principally by economical and careful uses, and if as much care was exercised in the use of natural gas as we frequently see in endeavors to save coal consumption by screening ashes and picking out unconsumed coal, a much greater saving would be secured with much less energy and discomfort.

It is to be hoped that the past profligacy and waste of natural gas has taught the lesson for extended conservation and economical use, so that this most valuable of Nature's gifts may be preserved to supply the demands of future generations. If the lesson has not been learned and the waste and profligacy is continued, there are those now within the sound of my voice who will live to see the time when the natural gas industry will be only a recollection, and its loss a poignant regret.

With such a condition confronting the industry, and those dependent upon the supply, a spirit of co-operation should prevail to work out the problem of prolonging the use of natural gas by making it more profitable to conserve the supply for smaller consumers.

NOTE.—The management of the gas company, desiring a full and free discussion of this question, invites its patrons to indicate by letter to the company their opinions on the question of falling supply and what must be done to conserve it. Incidentally for their enlightenment in considering this problem we have prepared a booklet containing information data and recommendations from the most eminent authorities on the subject, which will be pleased to send to any patron who will fill out and mail us this coupon with his name and address.

Put a
Cole's Hot Blast
Pipeless Furnace

Under Your House

Cole's Hot Blast System of Combustion, the same system as found in Cole's Hot Blast Heaters and Ranges, and which has made them famous as fuel savers, is to be found in this furnace. This means that your fuel bills will be from one-fourth to one-third lighter than with any bottom draft furnace, and that you are equipped to burn any available fuel. In this furnace the gas portion of your fuel that would be wasted up the chimney were you using any bottom draft furnace, is burned and turned into heat. This also means a clean, steady fire and freedom from the smoke nuisance in your house. The lady of the house is fully aware of what this will mean to her.

With Cole's Hot Blast Pipeless Furnace the heated air rises from the center portion of the register, strikes the ceiling and circulates throughout the entire house.

With this furnace you do not waste your coal heating up the basement. The heat from the fuel is directly used in heating the house. Cole's Hot Blast Pipeless Furnace gives you perfect circulation of air and heat, the two most essential items contributing toward the health and happiness of your family.

Hill, of Buffalo, as a backfender for the Toronto-New York race which started Monday, August 25. The time established was for a flight of this kind, but unfortunately, it was not officially recorded as such.

Obituary.

We reproduce below from the Warsaw, Ind., Union, the obituary of Mrs. Frank L. Bevier, and who before marriage was Miss Frances Gerlach:

At 10 o'clock Thursday morning was held the funeral services for Frances Gerlach Bevier. Many friends were present and expressed their sympathy through the beautiful flowers and comforting words. Frances was born in Petersburg, Michigan, on August 17, 1889, and lived a beautiful Christian life. She spent many years of her life in Ohio and Iowa before coming to Winona Lake, Indiana. In 1915 she graduated from Winona College after having taught for a few years. September 1917, she married Frank L. Bevier, of Plymouth, Ohio, who is a pharmacist in the navy. She died August 4, 1919, leaving a little girl, Frances Elizabeth, to comfort the broken hearts. Besides the daughter she leaves her husband, mother and two sisters.

Is Safety First Obsolete?

An auto going out of Toledo Sunday for Youngstown was wrecked by heavy interurban car when the auto skidded into its path.

The father and six year old daughter were killed, while the rest of the family and one guest are in the hospital.

The Plain Dealer would not seem itself if it did not carry on Monday morning a black scare line across the first page announcing an auto crash of some sort that wipes out a family or at least divides it up between the undertaker and the hospital. How easy it is to be careful, and what a toll indifference exacts.

Crawford County May Become Oil Field.

The Crawford Oil and Gas Co., have arrangements completed to start to drill next week, says the New Washington Herald. Prof. Brunacker, geologist of Ohio State university, was in town and located three wells for the company. Some of these wells are located southwest and north.

The outlook for oil in this territory seems to be very promising as the lay of the rock seems favorable. The company is well financed and has plenty of holdings to protect themselves.

Just which one of the three places the first well will be put down is not yet definitely decided until the driller arrives.

If people who are bilious are treated according to their symptoms they seldom get better. The reason is usually temporary. Treat biliousness to the source and the cure will be permanent. The source is the stomach. The stomach is the factory where the food is broken up and the nutrients are absorbed. If the stomach is out of order, the food is not properly broken up and the nutrients are not properly absorbed. This causes biliousness. The symptoms of biliousness are: a heavy, full, bloated, and gassy stomach; a sour, flatulent, and gassy eructation; a bitter, acrid, and watery taste in the mouth; a yellowish, greenish, or brownish discoloration of the face; a general debility and weakness; a loss of appetite; a loss of sleep; a loss of energy; a loss of vitality; a loss of health; a loss of life.

SUMMER SILAGE IS PROPER INSURANCE AGAINST LOSSES DURING DRY WEATHER

Well-Constructed Silos Being Filled for Winter and Summer.

PAINTING SILOS FOR FUTURE USEFULNESS

Materials are high. It may be a question as to the individual farmer whether he can afford to build a silo this year.

Realizing that possibility, the United States department of agriculture believes that many men may be inclined to give too much weight to construction cost and not enough to silage value, and that therefore the advantages of the silo ought at least to be restated.

Advantages of Silos.
 Here are some of the outstanding points in what the department's dairy specialists think of silos:

In general, more cow feed can be grown on an acre of ground in corn than in any other crop.

When put in a silo it is more easily harvested and cared for than any other crop.

Silage operations are absolutely independent of weather conditions. Corn for silage can be harvested in the rain.

The silo makes possible full utilization of the crop that otherwise would be destroyed or damaged by frost.

The silo makes it possible to keep more animals on a given acreage, which means more manure and consequently increased soil fertility.

Harvesting corn as silage clears the ground early so it can be prepared for other crops.

With silage it is not necessary to put so much extra hay on a considerable portion of the feeding value is lost.

Corn cured as fodder loses about 40 per cent of its feeding value.

Corn preserved as silage loses only about 10 per cent of its feeding value.

About 35 per cent of corn fodder is wasted in feeding.

Only about 5 per cent of corn silage is wasted in feeding.

In other silage crops, weedy growth that would be likely to be three or four years of life left in a silo that without it would have been worthless.

RABBITS CHEAPEST TO RAISE

Compared With Chickens Points Are In Favor of Rabbits—Inexpensive Feed Given.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
 It costs less than 25 cents to raise a rabbit to the age of seven months, and that time it may be marketed at the rate of 35 to 40 cents a pound and the savings is done, and then it lives its life in a silo that without it would have been worthless.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Pigs are as clean as other animals if conditions are right they should be.

After weaning the colt will need some feeds to supply ingredients furnished by the mother's milk.

If the driver lets the horse's shoulders get sore, even if strong and sound, the horse is useless.

Rudan grass is a good hay for sheep, approximately equal in value to ordinary wild hay or timothy hay.

Alfalfa, sweet clover, red clover, bluegrass, bromegrass, barley, oats or rape all make satisfactory hog pastures.

The sow should be given good, milk-producing feeds and she should be fed all she will eat. If her pigs are to flourish.

The brood mare previous to foaling will require a little extra care in her handling; she should not be overworked.

McLean, Neb.—"I want to recommend Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound to all women who suffer from any functional disturbance, as it has done me more good than all the doctor's medicine. "The young man chuckled and pitched her over as they browsed over to the next case. So it must have been all right. But think of having to live with a mental trouble like that after the girl swears off her youth and good looks!"

SURE THAT CUPID IS BLIND

Little Incident Witnessed by Washington Newspaper Man Has Convinced Him of Fact.

Concerning that dear millennium: Over at the museum there are bronze plaques with fables to them.

The label that goes with the exhibit explains that bronze belongs to the prehistoric age. A young man read about it to his obvious bride, and then added, with the humor of scientific revelation:

"I know why you dear things make upon love has plus. It isn't a fashion that will change but tribal instinct that makes you cling to it as the weapon used by your oldest grandmothers."

"The obvious bride believed: 'Well, I must say it isn't very nice of you to mention grandma's age like that, when you know how perfectly dear she has always been to me—and besides, it isn't so. Grandma never used a bit pin in her life. All her bonnets the under the chin.'"

PROVIDES FOR BIRD FRIENDS

Feathered Creatures to Be Welcomed to Home Which Pennsylvania Man Is Having Erected.

Dr. B. Harry Warren, for years state veterinarian and the dean of all bird lovers in this part of the state, is having erected upon his lawn an imitation tree made of concrete and wire designed as a refuge for his bird friends, reports a West Chester correspondent of the New York World.

The "tree" is about fifteen feet in height and the concrete exterior imitates the bark of an oak tree, and there are openings, some designed for flickers or other large birds, some for martins, and small cozy places for wrens. It is a most outlying place for birds. The concrete tree will be placed on the lawn at the hangout of Dr. Warren and his design will be a large concrete basin designed as a bath for all bird lovers.

Already twenty-two martins have established homes in a box erected for their use and many other species are nesting about the grounds.

Not Knocking of Course.
 A Perth Amboy gentleman says he took his pet cat to Pennsylvania, a distance of 90 miles, and dropped her later the cat arrived home with very sore feet and cried for something to eat.

"I don't expect anybody to believe this," says the gentleman.
 So far as we are concerned, he has his wish. Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Miss Clara Donaldson, a former principal of the Plymouth High school, now a government teacher at Chillicothe, Oklahoma, was taught in the Philippines and has encircled the globe, was also a most interesting guest of the W. P. M. S.

H. H. Sibbett, wife's brother, Thomas H. after eating dinner at the home of their sister after church last Sunday, loaded the writer into his auto and started for Shiloh, where he stopped for a short time to grasp the hands of the descendants of the Andrew Truxell and Mary Bloom family holding their reunion at the commodious home of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Brumbach, after which we started for the home of his youngest brother in the Hogback region east of Shiloh, thence west to the Plymouth-Springmill road to New Haven and home, thus dodging and clearing the hard rain of last Sunday.

One of the most pleasing and interesting events in the annual luncheon and reunion of the old Greenian Literary society on the 3rd Sunday of August each year. The attendance was large and far reaching. The visitors were D. Z. Curtis of Ypsilanti, Mich., others from Cleveland, Norwalk, Berlin Heights, New London, Willard, Plymouth, New Haven, and Boughtonville. The menu was the equivalent of six or seven courses, including cigars for those who used them. Letters were read from absent members living in Florida and from various states of the Union. The organization was depleted by the deaths of Jas. K. Southard, Mrs. Rose Southard, Elmer Cole, Harry Skinner, Roxie Watters and Augusta Lewis during the past year. The well earned program was replete with many good things. Interesting readings were given by Flora Cole Brooks, Nettie Case Carpenter, Lois-Heller Wilson.

The address of welcome by the Pres. Col. A. W. Davis of Norwalk, was impressive and pleasing.

The Thirce Remembered, 40 Years Ago, by Doris Z. Curtis, was historical, locally and spicy. The debate Resolved: That Modern Inventions are not conducive to human happiness, was probably one of the hardest fought battles in the history of the society. The debaters for the past two years have been paired against each other. Last year there was no decision—one vote for each side and one blank. An appeal to the house found a tie. This year the decision was in favor of the negative. Affirmative speakers H. H. Sibbett and Col. A. W. Davis. Negative, D. Z. Curtis and G. S. Catlin. Next years battle will be fierce and may possibly decide the series. The judges this year were G. N. Yenne, J. D. Searls, G. Brooks. Officers for next year—Pres. H. H. Sibbett, vice pres., Flora Cole Brooks, sec'y-treas., Lela Heller Wilson.

An Oil Fish Fry.

We note by the Ashland Times-Gazette, that a few Plymouth boys were over to the city of rubber, pumps and stock food a few nights ago and sat in with a bunch of oil magnates. The Times-Gazette tells the story as follows:

It was the Times-Gazette manager's pleasure Thursday evening to be present at one of the events that make life really worth living. The occasion was a "commencement" (?) put on at H. L. Avery's domicile 233 Banning St. (the Mrs. Avery on a vacation) and plans were formulated for knocking 'em cold with the new gasoline and petroleum products which will be on sale Monday next or very soon thereafter.

As usual Mr. Avery left nothing to chance in making this get-together occasion as successful as we hope his oil venture will be and to start festivities we all were served with some fresh pike shipped in special from Port Huron, Michigan, which looked like whale and tasted well, they reminded us of the first meal our wife cooked. It was so different. The rest of the eats were on the same basis so we can leave that to the gent's imagination.

Among others present at the meeting were R. R. Squires, president; R. C. Hall, vice president; George E. Draws, general manager; L. G. Flatery, traffic mgr.; and J. A. Secunde, district representative of the Lubric Oil Co., all of Cleveland; Clark Bros. Lubric dealers at Plymouth, C. M. Brown, Manager Local telephone, Plymouth, and Dr. C. W. Babcock, Veterinary, also of Plymouth, and W. C. and Clayton Neely (local celebrities) and Dave Johnson of the Avery organization.

We are a little sorry this was a stag affair and our Society Editor was left out as the writer somewhat after such "cats" was in no condition to do justice to the remarks of the Cleveland visitors

We do recall that every speaker had some interesting topic and we learned a lot about business affairs especially on competitive features and we feel sure that if Mr. Avery follows out the suggestions and half of the schemes turned loose he will soon be losing one of our leading business blocks for his general offices.

We are strong for efficiency meetings, also for fish to go with them so we hope there will be a lot more meetings for as the dean would say, "an enjoyable time was had by all."

We don't know whether to send the army or the board of health to Mexico. Sometimes we think that country is a disease.
