Exemption Feature of Treasury Certificates and War Savings Stamps Creates Demand.

MAY OWN $3,000 WORTH

Treasury Department Advises That $1,000 of Treasury Savings Certificates or War Stamps May Be Owned of Each Issue Since 1918, With Principal and Interest Exempt From All Taxation Now or Hereafter Imposed by Any Local Taxing Authority.

Columbus, O.—(Special).—Postmasters of Ohio who are engaged in an early campaign to dispose of millions of dollars' worth of Treasury Savings Certificates and War Savings Stamps of the issue of 1929 advise that the tax exemption features of these government securities are one of the chief reasons for the large demand which has developed. Investors are already anticipating the local tax collector and are taking advantage of government offerings and various notations of nontaxable stocks.

Postmasters and bankers have been advised by the Treasury Department that owners of $1,000 in Treasury Savings Certificates or War Savings Stamps, the maximum allowed by law, may own this amount of each issue, namely, $1,000 for 1918 and the same amount for 1919 and 1929, making a total of $3,000 allowed to be held by any individual, firm or corporation. The 1918 issue matures in 1932 and the other issues in their order a year later.

"Grown-Up" Stamps. The new Treasury Savings Certificates are issued in denominations of $1,000 and $100 and are really "grown-up" War Savings Stamps, which increase in value each month, cashable without notice to the Treasury Department with interest, and not subject to fluctuation in the open market. They bear all the advantages of War Savings Stamps, but come in larger size, bond sized, and must be registered.

HONOR ROLL OF POSTMASTERS

Will Include Large Majority of the 11,000 Postmasters in Ohio if Early Returns of "Knockout" Campaign Are Indication.

Columbus, O.—(Special).—Within five days after the opening of the postmasters' "knockout" campaign in Ohio a number of postmasters had officially reported their quotas of Treasury Savings Certificates doubled and in some instances quadrupled. The "knockout" campaign is designed to keep Ohio in the lead in the sale of War Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates.

The first offices reporting their quotas exceeded were: Hollansburg, Lebanon, Warsaw, Strasburg, Quincy, Junction City, Racine and East Monroe. Postmaster J. M. Ridmore of Junction City set 75 of the $100 certificates in five days. Junction City has a population of about 900 people.

TEACHERS GET LAKE TRIP

Generous Individuals Appreciating Their Labors Offer Reward For Effort.

Columbus, O.—(Special).—Several public-spirited men have made it possible for the Ohio War Savings Campaign to offer a vacation trip to three lakes, including a visit to Niagara Falls and Georgian Bay, to the school teachers of the state who attain the highest per capita sale of War Savings Stamps during the next few months. The state has been divided into 22 districts of four counties each, and one teacher from each district will get a free vacation trip free of all expense.

The school teachers have been indistinguishable in their efforts to promote the habits of thrift by encouraging pupils to invest in Thrift and War Savings Stamps and this reward for extraordinary work has been announced by the Ohio committee with great appreciation of the opportunity to acknowledge their labors.

Jolly - Jingles

By Dudley T. Fisher Jr.

They didn't call 'em vampires then
But girls were girls and men were men—

Some years ago in sant-o-san,
A town in far away Japan,
You'll never find it on the map
But there lived a little jap
With almond eyes that shone as bright

As stars upon a summer night.
She wore a silk kimono trimmed
With flowers and birds that lightly skimmed

Across a field of azure blue,
(She chose that shade to match her shoe)

And in her hand a parasol
She gaily twirled—and that was all

The balmy summer afternoons
She spent composing funny tunes

You wouldn't like 'em, but perhaps
They didn't sound so bad to Japs

And as the ancient story goes
For artist chaps she used to pose.

Now maybe that's the reason why
She had so many dates you'd die
Of laughing just to see the bunch
That tried to take her out to lunch

For all her suitors in a row
Would reach a half a mile or so.

And when with one she'd make a date
A dozen waited at the gate
Well armed with stick and stone and club

To catch the unsuspecting dub
And speed his wreny journey home—
With things a buzzing by his dome.

And so it went from day to day
Her many suitors, old and airy,
Came hobbling to her cottage door
With crutch or cane, or softly swore

At double chins and tummies fat
But don't let's talk of things like that.

And if you go to Sant-O-San
You'll see her picture on a fan
And if you ask which lucky guy
Won out, they'll tell you with a sigh

That to her shrine came many men
And many went away again.

The News Idea in Norfolk

Norris and Gene Huse, owners of the Norfolk, Nebraska, Daily News, were yanked out of bed at four o'clock that spring morning. The night freight had brought the rumor that Omaha had been destroyed by a cyclone. They hurried to the office of the News, only to learn that all wires were down. Hours passed. Then the flustered telephone manager admitted that a call had just come from Omaha—over a packing company's leased wire.

"You can't use that wire for a pork-packer's private business," commanded Norris Huse, "when thousands of people want to know whether friends and relatives in Omaha are dead or alive. Get the Associated Press on that wire, and I'll fight my end of the responsibility with the packing people."

So the wire was commandeered and over it came the first news of the great disaster. This is a bit of ancient history, but it shows why the Daily News, published in a town of 9,000 population, has a circulation of 10,000 in a territory 150 miles square in Nebraska and South Dakota.

The paper was founded by William Huse, who came to Nebraska in the bitter seventies. The prairie schooners were still streaming out of Wisconsin and Illinois, and "soddie" were strung up like orange-bog villages, writes Robert Welles Ritchie, in "The Country Gentleman" of January 24th. But this man had imagination; he looked forward to the day when the region would become what it is today, a great empire of corn, the richest 150 miles square in America—so folks out there boast.

Temper and Tight Collars.

Dr. Leonard Williams, lecturing on "Common Sense," at a nursing conference and exhibition in London, said that people with tight collars did not drain their brains properly, and often suffered from bad tempers. He had noticed that since women had given up high collars and were wearing garments which gave complete freedom to the neck they had become sweeter tempered.

The Horse To-day

The Blue Grass is the home of the Thoroughbred, the Standard-bred trotter and the American Saddle horse. It is true that some of the famous studs have been dispersed, some of the old-times have retired from business, some of the great estates have been cut into smaller farms; yet today Kentucky, is race-horse crazy. In fact, racing is booming all over the country. Consequently, racing horses with pedigrees and speed are bringing fabulous prices writes Stuart O. Brown in "The Country Gentleman" of January 24th.

The road horse, the light harness horse, was the by-product of the racing trotter," said Prof. W. S. Anderson, of the University of Kentucky. "The automobile has killed the road horse, thus leaving the trotting horse in demand for racing only."

And the automobile—rather, the hard-surfaced automobile road—has had its effect on the saddle horse. "I'll gladly get you a saddle, my dear," said an indulgent Lexington father to his daughter, "but where in the name of Daniel Boone are you going to ride him?"

Government Stallion Wins.

Troubadour of Willowmoor, 6439, the Morgan stallion at the head of the Government breeding work at the Morgan Horse Farm, Middlebury, Vt., won over all Morgan sires exhibited at the 1919 International Live Stock Exposition. In a class of nine entries Troubadour of Willowmoor was first, Sir Ethan Allen was second, and Ajax was third. Troubadour is a solid bay in color—is nine years old, and was selected by specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture as a yearling. He has been maintained and developed at the Morgan Horse Farm, where he has been used in military remount breeding service as well as for improvement of the registered Morgans.

Troubadour of Willowmoor weighs 1,200 pounds and stands 15½ hands high. He is a son of Troubadour by Jubilee de Jarnette, a pure-bred Morgan. His dam was Fannie 2d, a well-known trained type mare of the breed.

The Day of the Farmer

When three hundred hard-handed, sun-browned men from thirty-two states assembled recently to map out a program for the get-together of American farmers, they declared solemnly—though in more elegant language—that the farmer shall no longer be the national goat! The organization of the American Farm Bureau Federation means that the day of the farmer is at hand, says

New Phonograph Needle.

A phonograph needle which is said to eliminate the scratching or rasping sound which sometimes accompanies the playing of a record is one of the interesting products being introduced on the market by the Pla-Rite Manufacturing Works, makers of electric stoves and novelties, Galesburg, Ill. The needle is made of steel and has a coil, the function of which is to absorb and weaken the static electricity generated by the friction resulting from the high rate of speed at which the record travels beneath the point of the needle.

According to a statement of the company the diaphragms of most phonographs are made of mica, a non-conductor of electricity. Thus when the ordinary steel needle is used, with no coil to absorb the electricity, the current is halted abruptly by the mica, causing the rasping noise. With this metallic sound eliminated the music of a phonograph is much more agreeable. The company also makes a diaphragm.

Said Too Much

Commenting on the many and varied excesses offered for evading the draft, Provost Marshal General Crowder remarked that most of the would-be slackers come to grief through talking too much. "They remind me of the young fellow who, on the spur of the moment, asked a girl to marry him."

"Yes," replied the girl. "After waiting for five minutes for him to say something 'love,' she said: 'Well, what have you got to say?' "Nothing," replied the young man. "I've said too much already."

The Only Way.

A certain judge could not control his temper and consequently could not control other people. One day there was unusual disorder in court and at last the judge could endure it no longer.

"It is impossible," he said, "to allow this persistent contempt of the court to go on. I shall be forced to go to the extreme length of taking the one step that will stop it."

There was a long silence and then one of the leading counsel rose, and with a trace of a smile, inquired: "If it please your honor, from what date will your resignation take effect?" Chicago News.

Vagrancy was highest in England in January, 1910, since when it has steadily been decreasing.

TOO much weight in an automobile means low mileage to each tire and each gallon of gas. Too little weight means wasted power. The Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" Touring Car represents the happy medium in the matter of weight.

How Tuberculosis Spreads From A Diseased Herd to A Healthy One

Tuberculosis may be introduced into a healthy herd by any of the following means:

Addition of an animal that is affected with the disease. Animals should be purchased only from herds known to be free from tuberculosis or from herds under supervision for the eradication of the disease.

Feeding calves with milk or other dairy products from tuberculous cows. This frequently occurs where the owner purchases mixed skim milk from the creamery and feeds it to his calves without first making it safe by boiling or pasteurization.

Careless showings of cattle at fairs and exhibitions. Reports have indicated that numerous herds have become infected thru mingling with diseased cattle at shows or by occupying infected premises.

Skimmed of animals in car which have recently carried diseased cattle and which have not been disinfected properly.

Use of community pastures in which tuberculous cattle are allowed to graze.

In most cases the outward appearance of the animal bears no relation to the degree of infection. The disease frequently develops so slowly that in some cases it may be months, or even longer, before any symptoms are shown; therefore be on the safe side and have your herd tested.

PALE CHILDREN NEED GUDE'S PEPTO-MANGAN

Unnatural for Children to be Pale and Thin—Paleness is Sign of Thin, Watery Blood

PEPTO-MANGAN MAKES RED BLOOD

Prepared in Liquid and Tablet Form—Both Possess Identical Medicinal Qualities

It is necessary for boys and girls to laugh, romp, play, and enjoy themselves, for it is at that stage of life that the foundation is laid for future health.

Prompt attention should be given to the child who seldom laughs, whose physical condition prevents playing like the other children, whose appetite is poor, and who tires easily.

If the lassitude is due to poor blood, which is often the case, a simple, safe, and pleasant remedy is within easy reach. Gude's Pepto-Mangan is just the tonic for pale, thin children. Gude's Pepto-Mangan contains the very ingredients that increase and enrich the blood, enabling it to supply the entire body with the sorely needed vigor, strength and vitality that make happy, romping children.

For the convenience of the public Pepto-Mangan is prepared in tablet as well as liquid form. Both forms possess exactly the same medicinal properties.

When you ask the druggist for Pepto-Mangan, look for the name "Gude's" on the package. If it is not there it is not Pepto-Mangan.

SUPPORT YOUR TEAM

Committee endorsements are coming along for gubernatorial candidates, with Cole in the lead, and Mayor Davis second but not very close.

On Friday midnight the wet and dry issue passed out. This gives Ohio a chance, for the first time in her history—to get down to bigger and better business.

The tax question promises big. Some want an air tight law. Others want one they can beat. That's the trouble now, for the day of the tax dodger dates back to Moses in the bullrushes. With some, no tax law is honest if you can't dodge it.

It has been the tax question that makes Vic Doneyche shine like a full orb. In our opinion no other Democrat has a near chance. He has the vote in a jewel box on his roll top, and he's going round now thanking them in advance for the support he's going to get in the August primaries. He spoke at New London Tuesday evening.

The Republicans are seeing this and it has stirred a lot of comment. Maybe Mr. Cole won't let the man desite the fact that 2 counties have already endorsed him.

Committee endorsements don't count for much now. There was a time in the good old convention days when they were good straw, but with the primary plan its endorsement of the fellow in the booth that counts.

If Doneyche gets the democratic nomination for governor, and he'll get it if he lives, then the Republicans will have to concentrate on a man who can split the farmer vote up with Vic as news as possible.

There's only one man who can do that. He's Mr. Taber, of the state grange. Now wouldn't that make a race for your whiskers? It would be as interesting as the Attica fair, and close enough to bring the grandstand to its feet.

The fellows who championed classification last fall may just as well save their time and money. Mayor Davis was for classification in Cleveland, and it will be a long time before he stands with his right hand in the air to take the gubernatorial oath.

The same question put a barbed wire entanglement around the aspirations of our friend Tom Latham. He is non est.

This narrows the field down to McCullough of Canton, and since he doesn't really enter for a week or so, one must deal with caution in commenting on his probable strength.

McCullough is not particularly strong with the farmer. Not as strong as Cole. The elimination of both would not result because they are not good capable men, but because some one must be found who can break Doneyche's bulldog grip on the farmer.

That's why Taber is coming into the spot light. Taber fought classification. Taber and Doneyche are both friends of the farmer. Both have the confidence of the farmer. The farmer would be happy with either.

Just what the farmer would do if he had to go into the booth and choose between Taber and Doneyche we do not ken, as Harry Lander would say.

And there's a lot of town folks that would be as badly muddled.

That was old stuff that Gov. Cox gave the Duckworth club the other night in Cincinnati about being disinterested in what his clients were doing for him in the matter of the presidential nomination. They all say that.

The fire seems to have gone out in the Sharp camp. There were two glows in the flame. One looked like a senatorial glimmer guaranteed to stand gubernatorial. Neither is burning with a brilliancy that would attract a wayfarer.

W. A. Julian, that Cincinnati manufacturer, seems to have the democratic call for U. S. senator, provided Uncle Jud don't run for governor,—and he won't.

You will recall that the secretary of state ruled that a presidential candidate could not choose his delegates to the national convention. That they must be elected by the people.

That stunned our good friend Harry Daugherty, who had a list of hand-picked fellows who were guaranteed to stand hitched and not get fussy under the lash.

New Madison county which is in the seventh district proposes that Mr. Harding name his delegates and Madison county will help to see that nobody else runs.

In the Harding For President Club, Josiah Bendley is president Myron T. Horrick first vice-president, and Frank B. Willis, second vice-president.

It is planned that Frank B. Willis will make the nominating speech that will put the name of Mr. Harding before the Republican national convention. Success he makes such a hazardous service, that the convention forgets Mr. Harding and nominates the speech maker. That's happened three times—the history of national conventions.

Therein. Let us give so that he can commend us. Time, eleven o'clock.

On Friday evening at seven thirty will occur the Preparatory service. Preparedness is a virtue applicable to spiritual things as well as other things.

April-Hatched Chickens Make Good Fall Layers.

A test at the Ohio Experiment Station to determine the best date for hatching chicks shows that Leghorns April 20 or thereabouts is a satisfactory date, in the latitude of Wooster. Two weeks either way from this date would not be expected to affect materially the results secured with pullets.

It was found in one experiment that there is little to be gained by hatching Leghorns as early as February 22. It is difficult in normal seasons to get satisfactory hatching eggs at that time of the year and the percentage of fertility is lower. Chicks hatched at this date require brooding thru a longer period and much more care than during warmer weather. In most instances these early-hatched pullets go through a molt similar to that of one-year-old hens in October and November. Chickens hatched even as late as June 19 have been profitable for egg production, but it is generally more difficult to rear as large a percentage of the chicks as when hatched earlier in the season. Chicks hatched in April generally prove to be satisfactory fall and winter layers. The results secured with Leghorns in these experiments will not apply to some of the slower maturing breeds.

HOW TO PROPEL THE FUEL FOR THE STRIKE

Uncle Sam Set Up His Own Coal Pile as Soon as Strike Began and Kept Replenishing It From Mines Which Continued to Work

—Nation Able to Last Out the Six Weeks Through Efficiency of Government Control.

By BRUCE CLAETT, Assistant to Director General of Railroads.

I have the thought that the people of the United States would like to know how their coal supply was handled during the six weeks' strike of bituminous coal miners, which has just come to an end. This was the first nationwide coal strike the country ever experienced, and therefore the problems arising were novel. Necessarily, during the continuance of the strike, the exact stocks on hand could not be known at the times, although as to all vital facts, the public seems to have been kept fully informed day by day. Uncle Sam set up his own coal pile as soon as the strike began and kept replenishing it from the mines which continued to work, but meanwhile the pile was being diminished more rapidly than new supplies were coming in, and before long it became a question of keeping people warm rather than what industries should be continued. Had the strike continued much longer many industries would have had to shut down and people thrown out of work, but on the restricted basis to which the country finally came and with the part-time operation obtained, undoubtedly the nation could have "carried on" for weeks longer, if not months.

Strike Anticipated. Several weeks before the coal strike began on November 1 its coming was plainly apparent, and therefore the director general of railroads, Walker D. Hines, consulted with all the regional directors of railroads and the principal members of his staff, and decided that if the strike came it would be the job of the railroad administration to make the coal produced go as far as possible, but through discussion the plan was adopted of allowing all coal mined up to the time of the strike proceed as billed to consignees on the idea that once the strike actually began the railroads could look after their own and the emergency needs of the country by taking over the coal that was on hand at that time. Through this method foresighted consumers were placed in a position to store up. The alternative method would have been for the railroads to have begun to buy coal early in the strike, thus keeping such coal out of normal channels.

Prior to the strike a very careful survey of stocks on hand, both of railroads, industries and individuals (as far as possible) was conducted so that the railroad administration went into the strike with an accurate knowledge of the coal situation throughout the country as was obtainable. The administration's original survey on November 1 showed 22,000,000 tons of bituminous coal on wheels and in rail road storage subject to distribution under the administration's supervision. To this was added the daily production which totaled 18,900,000 tons in November, and of the aggregate the stocks still available for the country's protection on December 8, 12,900,000 tons.

Prior to the strike orders were issued by the railroad administration to give preference to coal loading, and this naturally resulted in hardship on some industries. The result was however, that in the week ended October 25 a total of 13,200,000 tons of coal was produced and moved in the United States, this constituting a record for the country. It took hard work by everyone concerned to distribute this amount, and the production never reached 50 per cent of normal, with the result shown above, viz, that in addition to using the production every day, the stored coal in possession of the railroads was depleted in the six weeks of the strike from 22,000,000 tons to 11,870,000 tons.

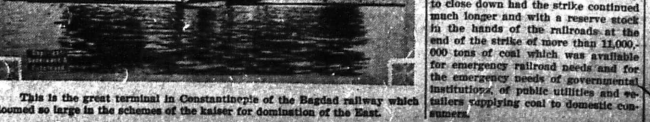

At times during the strike some complaints were made regarding the holding of this coal in storage and on wheels by the railroads. Without such a storage, however, the country would have suffered much more than it did, and it would have been impossible to have looked after the emergency requirements of the parts of the country in greatest need. Throughout the strike practically all of the coal moved was produced in West Virginia and Pennsylvania, although some coal was produced in Kentucky, Alabama and Wyoming and a few other states. The great central competitive fields, however, closed down completely and outside of the stocks on hand the people in that territory had to depend entirely on the coal from the East and upon the coal in the hands of the railroads at that time of the emergency.

At the beginning of the strike coal was delivered freely to all of the branches of the government's priority list, but soon after it became necessary to restrict deliveries to the first five classes, which included railroads, army and navy, together with the departments of the government, state and county departments and institutions, public utilities, and retail dealers, and toward the end of the strike the department of the government's requirements, due to the fact that principally in the middle West the stocks became almost exhausted and it was necessary to depend practically entirely upon the coal produced in the East. The amount which could be shipped west was limited, not by capacity, but by transportation facilities and the necessity for moving that coal West was one of the reasons for the curtailment of passenger service in all parts of the country, which naturally led to some hardships and some complaints.

With regard to these complaints, a careful survey shows that, taken as a whole, the country had stood remarkably well the restrictions which had to be placed.

The action of the government during the strike which created the greatest comment was the placing of restrictions in connection with the use of bituminous coal and coke in supplying light, heat and power to stores, office buildings, manufacturing establishments, etc. These regulations were put into effect by the railroad administration on the advice of the central coal committee and under authority of the fuel administrator. They were put into effect primarily as a coal conservation measure and because prior to their issuance these regulations, sometimes more stringent than these regulations, had already been laid down in several sections of the country. Prior to the issuance of these regulations the fuel administrator had issued a request that coal for light, heat and power be conserved as much as possible. Just as soon as the Indianapolis settlement was reached the attorney general, following out a prior arrangement, immediately notified the railroad administration, and plans were at once begun to modify restrictions, with the result that within two days after the strike was formally ended, instructions were issued to regional directors permitting them to remove the restrictions as to the furnishing of light, heat and power, and also permitting them to restore passenger trains which had been taken off as a coal conservation measure.

The receipt of the word from Indianapolis was taken as a signal for the releasing of instructions already prepared for the turning of empty coal cars towards mines which were expected to begin operations in order to transport the maximum production of all such mines at once.

This is the great terminal in Constantinople of the Bagdad railway which loomed so large in the schemes of the Kaiser for domination of the East.

On the Job Every Day. The committee remained in practically constant session day after day of the strike, including Sundays, and as rapidly as telegrams and letters came in, took immediate action.

Back of this committee and co-operating closely with it were the regional and district local coal committees, picked in advance of the strike and established immediately after the outbreak of the strike. These regional and local coal committees have fallen a very large share of the burden of handling the coal distribution problems from day to day, and it is to the credit of these committees that they have had a minimum of clashes with state or local authorities when it is appreciated that on these committees was placed the responsibility of distributing coal and looking after the constantly decreasing stock of the country.
