New System Would Retain Some of Best Features But Seeks Conventions

A state wide campaign to do away with the primary election—at which very few people vote—and to put in its place, conventions, the delegates to which shall be chosen by primary ballot, and to leave to the legislature other forms of procedure, is gaining considerable impetus here.

The campaign was inaugurated by C. Knight, H. H. Thinks, Robert A. Taft, Louis H. Brush and H. L. Davis, and is non-partisan. It appeals entirely to eliminate the primary idea but does not eliminate enough of it to get back to first principles in choice of candidates, and permits the use of some intelligence instead of a blind following of a minority vote in a state as at present.

The petition must all be signed by next Monday and filed. Blanks are on tap at Kavanaugh's cigar store and at the over town and county, or may be found at the Reflector-Herald office.

In a brochure explaining just what the proposed amendment means, former Congressman Knight says:

Purpose Explained

"The amendment which it is proposed to submit to the voters of the state at the November election is so simple that it speaks for itself. The present constitutional provision compels all nominations to be made by primary elections. The proposed amendment would give to the legislature the power to say how such nominations shall be made providing, however, that if such nominations are authorized by convention, the delegates must be elected by a DIRECT VOTE OF THE PEOPLE.

"This safeguard gives the people every right and protection that exists under the primary, makes it impossible to retain the old system of electing delegates and yet make possible state conventions at which duly elected delegates would make nominations for all state offices.

Gives a Double Choice

"Under this amendment the state legislature can retain the direct primary for the nomination of congressmen and county officials, and can also institute by a convention whose delegates have been selected by the people at a primary.

"To state the thing in another way, it is proposed to give back to the legislature the power to make such rules and regulations as it may see fit in providing for the nomination of state, district and county officials, but it can provide no method without giving to the people a chance in a primary to select their own delegates to that convention which may be held.

"Back of the movement there are no motives except the desire to establish responsible party government and correct the dangerous condition that the direct primary has brought upon us. Under this system the man of moderate means can no longer seek a state office unless he can afford to have some person or interest finance his campaign.

Yast Expenditures

"The expenditure of vast sums of money at each primary has become a necessity. Only the man who has had principle and yet if he object to this had principle and yet if he hopes to make any progress he must conform to it. Incidentally such a system will lead to the gross abuses that have recently occurred in other states.

"Any system of selecting candidates for office which puts a premium on wealth, drives the poor or compels him to seek financial assistance from those who seldom give it unless through the influence of being and are paid at the people's expense, is regarded as highly subversive of honest representative government.

"No laws can regulate any such situation. Corrupt practice acts are in abundance and yet, as every one knows, they are violated with impunity at every election.

"When we have reached the point that no governor can be nominated for a $10,000 job without spending for such nomination from $50,000 to $100,000. It is high time to call a halt. The primary system as it now stands is an out of public life our able men who no longer submit to long and arduous campaigns in fields of political adventurers who recognize no party principles and most of whom are not even doing a job for what there is in it.

"Indeed, every man now dows his own platform and the possibilities in this direction are unlimited.

PRINCIPLES DISAPPEAR

"Party principles have disappeared, the consensus of opinion of party leaders is set at naught, and instead of the elected representatives of each other and adopting different plans for the welfare of the state, all of this is now left to the discretion of individual candidate who, more often than not, is intent upon concealing or pleasing some group which is also intent upon grinding its own ax without much regard for the common welfare.

Restore Responsibility

"We believe this amendment, if adopted, will restore responsibility to government, will induce able men to enter public life, will do away with the disastrous use of large sums of money to procure nominations, and will cause all parties to consider principles rather than expediency.

"This campaign will be financed by men who are not seeking and never

* Hot Weather Helps The Coal Dealers *

Messrs. McDougal and Sehringer, owners of The Plymouth Elevator, state that conditions at their place of business are showing that something has gone drastically wrong. The fact is that this enterprising firm has sold no less than five carloads of coal to be used by the home-owners in Plymouth this summer. No, what a mistake. This should be next winter. Anyone ought to know that homes are not being heated by furnaces this kind of weather. And, if we may judge next winter by the past, it is likely that these coal men, and a few other coal dealers in this part of the state will be ready to spend the rest of their days doing in some southern clime where coal will not hurt their conscience.

However, the price of coal is not so bad as it used to be, but the fellow who operates the mine. So if you want to make sure of not having any worry about getting your needs for the winter it will be a wise thing to place your order today.

Preparing For Wheat

The Plymouth Elevator shipped two carloads of oats this week in order to make room for the new wheat crop which will begin to move in this section next week. The thrashing or the grain will probably begin the latter part of the week.

The wheat and hay crop this year proved to be exceptionally good in spite of the backward spring weather experienced throughout this territory. Many farmers in this section are taking the advantage offered by The Plymouth Elevator, knowing that their service and method of doing business is conducted on a high plane.

Perhaps it will be pleasing to know that the crowd Saturday night is estimated to be the largest in the history of Plymouth. It is said by several of the able business men in town that the crowd was the biggest ever recorded in their memory.

This proves that the music of the Reformatory Band is pleasing the people, and that they attend each concert with much enthusiasm and interest in the evening's entertainment.

Complaints were again registered this week by business men in regards to local people parking cars at an early hour in order to have choice seat for the concert. It is hoped that this practice will be eliminated during the remainder of the series of concerts.

Mr. Webber was on playing first base and as a low liner came down the field he made a reach for the ball. Webber was brought to Plymouth where he was given medical attention. Attending physician states that it is a very painful break.

Northern Ohio Chapters Will Attend Picnic

Will Be Guests of Bay View Company Saturday at the Bay View Peninsula

Members of the Northern Ohio chapters of the Isaac Walton League of America will be the guests of the Bay View Company of Cleveland, for the annual picnic to be held July 24 at Bay View Peninsula, a restricted summer colony development six miles west of Sandusky.

The sportsman's picnic will bring more than fifteen hundred members of the Isaac Walton League and their families to Bay View from twenty communities in this part of the state according to Mr. H. A. Worman, president of the Bay View Company.

The picnic is being arranged for by the entertainment committee of the Sandusky chapter. It is said. The program for the day includes a variety of swimming and diving, contests tennis, baseball, horse shows, yacht races, boat casting and fishing.

Arrangements are also being made for bench parties, dancing boating and other entertainment. It is said. A special feature is to be the setting up of a large tent, the wooded portions of Bay View, where it is said that a larger variety of rare birds are found than in any other one place in the state.

The entire property, and all facilities such as dancing and boating, bathing beaches, and the like are to be opened to the Isaac Walton League picnickers, by courtesy of the Bay View Company. The peninsula was selected for the annual outing because of the favorable reports of its bird and sport facilities made by the Ohio Fish and Game Protective Association, following that organization's outing at Bay View last season.

In addition to guests from Cleveland; chapters to be represented at the picnic will include those from Sandusky, Massillon, Greenfield, Bay View, Kent, Piquette, Findlay, Fremont, Clyde, Norwalk, Willard, Plymouth, Shelby, New London, Lorain, and Lodi.

Green Spring to Be Center of Big Sanctuary For Birds

Green Spring soon will be the center of a bird sanctuary in which absolutely no hunter will be allowed and where song birds and pheasants will be encouraged and protected.

H. C. Gammett, Elmwood, has distributed a thousand Hungarian pheasant eggs among the farmers from the McPherson highway through Green Spring to Lowell and bordering along the Green creek and the new road which is now under construction.

The hatching of the birds has been very successful, and within a few months hundreds of them will be enjoying the freedom and protection of the sanctuary. Their appearance will be a delight to hundreds of visitors, and to insure their safety, a heavy penalty will be imposed for any shooting within this territory.

Surveyor Here

Mr. Barret, of the Richland county surveyor's office, was in Plymouth Monday checking up on the proposed improvement of Trux street. It is likely that an effort will be made to sell the bonds sometime in August, which will no doubt result in the construction of this road before winter sets in.

A report will probably be handed in to the county commissioners at the present time who are being asked to state highway repayment in the proposed improvement. The estimated cost for the road has not been given.

WEIGH THE FACTS

There are obvious remedies, available to the people, for many conditions in industry for which people demand projects of legislative relief that usually end in nothing.

Recently we have had a demand for political protection from the "bread trust." It is complained that a gigantic combination has been buying up the bakeries with a view to increasing the price of bread. The statistics prove that the so-called "bread-trust" controls only a small fraction of the ovens in operation, and that independent bakeries have increased their volume of business while the "bread trust" has been extending its operations. But what is perfectly obvious is that every housewife's kitchen is a potential bakery. Our grandmothers did not rely in the delicatessen or the "bread trust" to supply the family with bread. They put on their aprons, rolled up their sleeves and baked the bread.

Just now, with gasoline at a price higher than has prevailed for some time, a country-wide demand for an investigation into the price of gasoline is voiced in Congress, and the cry goes up that the increase in price is due to the manipulation of monopoly. Here, too, there is a remedy that would work disaster to price boosters in the hands of consumers. If the motor car owners of this country would slow down speed ten per cent on the average for thirty days it would pay havoc with gasoline prices. Incidentally motorists would enjoy themselves more by giving themselves an opportunity to get a better look at the scenery, and there would be a considerable saving in hospital bills and funeral expenses.

It is surprising that the cost of gasoline is not higher than it is, especially in view of the fact that its cost in Europe averages perhaps a hundred per cent above the American price, with a negligible freight rate per gallon from the United States. Because of this foreign situation exports of gasoline are increasing enormously, with pronounced effect on the domestic price. During the first four months of this year our exports of gasoline increased 32.6 per cent over those in the same period last year, or at a rate of nearly a billion and three quarters gallons a year. The increase in consumption of this commodity during the past twenty years has been enormous, the supply of crude oil and therefore of gasoline not being unlimited. Every new motor car or airplane represents a substantial increase in the demand for gasoline. During the first three months of this year the increase in demand for gasoline in the United States over the corresponding months of 1925 was twenty-two per cent! There is no necessary continuity of supply of crude oil in quantity sufficient to keep pace with the increased demand, and depletion of crude oil stocks, never greater than enough to supply the country for sixty days, naturally produces fluctuations in price. When there is a slump in the accumulation of oil stocks below that point, there is an increase in the price of gasoline. If there was a real monopoly in either crude oil or gasoline, the possibilities of extortion would be unlimited.

Senator Harrell, of Oklahoma, who is an independent oil operator and in close touch with conditions in the largest source of oil production in the country, gives some interesting figures which throw light on this situation. He presents figures showing that of 400 commodities covered by the investigations of the statistical bureau of the Department of Labor, gasoline since 1913 has shown the least upward fluctuation, and that because of more efficient manufacturing methods, the wholesale price of gasoline has fallen far short of increasing in proportion to the price of crude oil from which it is made. Oklahoma-Kansas crude oil has risen in price 113 per cent between 1913 and 1925, while the price of gasoline has gone up 25 per cent. In 1913 the exchange retail value of gasoline, that is, its purchasing power as compared with other commodities, was 16.8 per gallon; in 1925 it stood at 12.1 cents. That is, if all commodity values were now reduced to the 1913 level, gasoline would now cost at retail 12.1 cents. Price of farm products stood in 1925 at 57.8 per cent above the 1913 level; the price of gasoline stood at 13.7 per cent above the 1913 level. In every recent year the farmer's dollar has been worth more in gasoline than it was in 1913, and the farmer's dollar has had less purchasing power than that of any other factor in production.

Gasoline is selling today at the refinery at twelve cents. The increase above this represents handling, freight and middlemen's profits. It represents the cost of multiplied filling stations, located at convenient distances, and in many instances expensively equipped. It represents a high cost of labor and of operation in general. It represents gasoline taxes. In part a price spread between the refinery and consumer.

High prices of gasoline in themselves produce a corrective. They represent a decline in crude oil production, or an insufficient production to meet the demand. Reduction of oil stocks is always followed by an increase in the price of crude oil. There has been an increase of fifty cents per barrel in the price of crude oil in the last six months. Such increases put the "wild-catter" to work—the operator in new or doubtful fields. They thus increase the total production of crude oil, depress the price accordingly and bring down gasoline prices. This is a more certain corrective than an act of Congress or a sensational investigation.

The gasoline situation is discussed as typical of other situations which sometimes arise in which theories and generalizations take the place of the facts in the minds of many politicians and of the public. Nothing is to be gained for the public by an attack on the oil industry, especially the crude oil industry which is contributing so much to the prosperity of certain portions of the country. It is significant that newspapers carry at length sensational statements about the high price of gasoline, and give little or no attention to the concrete facts presented in such a speech as that of Senator Harrell which seems to explain the rise in price.

CONGRESSIONAL REPRESENTATION

Appropos of the effort of some people to do away with the rule of the folks through the primary is the refusal of our Congress to follow the Constitution in apportioning representatives in Congress are naturally opposed to a change of their district lines. There is a refusal to reapportion Congressmen in spite of the tremendous changes in population that there are in the country.

The result is that there is an inequality in representation in Congress that was never designed by the framers of that instrument. We have our representatives of the Senate in two for each state regardless of the population of the states, while it was designated that the more numerous body should be selected in proportion to the number of people in the states and selected from districts. Ohio, according to the new census, should have two more Congressmen and it is quite a striking fact that Los Angeles cast more votes for president in 1924 than Georgia, Alabama, and Mississippi combined. These three states however, have thirty Congressmen and Los Angeles has two. Of course we realize that is the disfranchisement of the colored race, that makes this striking inequality, but all the more reason why it should be adjusted. The southern people should not be permitted to deny the great mass of their citizens the right to ballot and still have representation in Congress in proportion to the total number of people rather than the votes cast. The truth the Fifteenth Amendment should be enforced in the South, and that an apportionment should be made properly all over the union.

—Bucyrus Telegraph-Forum.

Congress has adjourned and the President has left Washington, but of course there is nothing to worry about as the Senate investigating committees will stay right on the job.

: Notes :

It is estimated that more than 26 million youth under 25 years of age have NO religious training. Then it is asked, "Why the Crime Wave." A Hindu says, "If the Christians would live like Jesus Christ, India would be at your feet tomorrow." In India, alone, where there is a certain standard of religious training required for membership in the church, 100,000 could not be baptized for lack of teachers. The recent cut in appropriations has made necessary the withdrawal of quite a number of greatly needed men from the field. Last fiscal year the United States spent one billion dollars for chewing gum; for candy, two billion; for crime in arrests and prosecution and losses, three and one-half billion dollars. We are ashamed to say how little for the church.

Of 4,800 boys brought into court in a recent given period of time, only three had been active church members or attendants.

The hot weather and fine roads are hard on church attendance these days. Our reward, both in the present and future life depend upon faithfulness. The enlightened Christian soul, commonly called conscience) either condemns or approves our conduct. What does yours say?

We are promised a concert, (deferred from last Sunday,) on Next Sunday evening, when Professor Davis, with selected talent will put on, what all who know his thoroughness, are sure will be a superior program. Nothing should be allowed to interfere with our attendance. An offering will be taken to purchase music for our Junior choir, that is giving us some fine service.

Mr. and Mrs. Judson accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Gibson Sunday afternoon to Tiro, and called on Mr. and Mrs. Loudon. Mr. Loudon is much improved in health, to what he was last spring.

The Friendship Class has postponed their picnic that was to have been this week, until two weeks from this Tuesday. Miss Carson plans to be present at that time.

Miss Jessie Cole, Mrs. Judson and other expect to spend some time at Lakeside within the next week or so. Mr. and Mrs. Gibson will spend from August 3 to 10, or later there. The M. E. church will take its annual vacation the first two Sundays in August. The Sunday school will carry on during these days, as usual.

Sunday school at 10. Morning worship at 11, concert in evening, next Sunday. We will be disappointed if you are not there. If you are, you

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

The troop met on July 14 with fifteen present and one new member, Eleanor Munk. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved and the treasurer's report accepted. Several of the troop are beginning on their second class tests, meeting with Captain Frome on Tuesday evening at 7:30. Several of the scouts expect to take the test this week, and it is hoped there will be at least twelve to register at national headquarters soon.

At the last meeting we had two full patrols, and I hope the girls will be regular in their attendance so that we may perfect our formation and begin to drill soon.

Some of the girls have their uniforms ordered so I hope before long we will have a real troop.

On August 4th, we will begin to collect dues of 5c per girl payable at each meeting. Any girl absent will please bring dues for all back meetings at the next meeting at which she is present.

Lizzie Takes Us Home

Experiences Encountered On An Overland Trip From Florida
BY ELSA M. SEILER

At four o'clock Lizzie's vitals were back in place, and after she had been hauled around the block a few times to loosen up the parts, we were free to depart.

We proffered one of our traveler's checks and the garage man took it with a sullen, suspicious air, as much as to say, "I know I am being done up, but what can I do about it?"

The car was very tight and twenty miles an hour was the most we dared make, but we went on, and hoped for the best. Lizzie did not seem right, but we decided to chance it.

We passed Myersdale, and Berlin and went to Somerset, where we hoped to spend the night. I stopped at a filling station and inquired as to rooms and we were directed to the Vesper Hotel, run by a Mrs. Winters, where they assured me I would be well taken care of, as she was a motherly old soul.

We found the place, and I went up a board stair to make arrangements for the night. I touched a bell in the office, and an old lady came out in answer to it. My face was dirty, for I had had no chance to wash all day, and I was tired out, with the confusion of the garage and the disappointment at not getting further that day.

I asked if we could get a room and she replied that we could for $1.00. I then said "We have a dog with us, will you take him?" She simply threw up her hands. I said "You won't take us then?" and my voice broke, for it seemed that was the last straw. I took out my handkerchief, wiped my eyes and found her looking at me with suspicion, written all over her face.

"There is a woman," she said, in a cold voice. "There must be something decidedly wrong here."

I tried to explain that we had been having trouble with the car, that I was tired and cold, but she did not relax her chilly manner.

She finally after some time said that she had a room on the third floor which she would let us have, but that we must assure her first that the dog had no fleas and that if he injured her rug she would make it good to her. She took me up and showed me the room, and it bore every trace of masculine occupancy. The bed was unmade, but she said she would put clean linen in the bed, and if anyone could have hurt that rug I would like to know how.

While I looked at the room she gave me the advice that we had better leave the car and go home on the train, and further observed that she supposed we had left all our money in Florida. Possibly I did look like a hobo, but I assured her that we had plenty of money to pay our way, and departed, telling her I would let her know whether we wanted the room. It was my first encounter with the hard headed landlady, which I had hitherto supposed existed only in fiction, and I hope it will never be my ill fortune to meet another like her. I wondered if she ever heard of "Inasmuch as ye have done it to the least of these."

I went back to the car and told the Boss I would not stay there if I slept on the side of the road and told Ho he did not know how he had been insulted in fact I sputtered all the way to Sipsville, where we stopped at a garage to have a mechanic listen to Lizzie for us.

We had stopped at the Ford garage at Somerset with a similar request, but a supercilious young gentleman assured us that he knew nothing about the car as he was only the stock keeper, and invited two or three other young fellows to go out and take a look at the Lizzie, and then stood and made remarks to each other, as I climbed in the car, instead of trying to help us.

At Sipsville I tried again to get a room and was told by a woman at the store there that she had a room with no furniture in it, but she would set up a single bed, and we could have it for $2.00. I told her she was too high and on we went.

At Jennerstown we were again on the Lincoln highway and found room in plenty. I picked out a decent looking house and inquired and was told by the woman who opened the door that we could get a room and she would take the dog as well.

The Boss put the car in the garage back of the house and we went in and were escorted upstairs to a clean neat room. Later when we went to bed we found the bed slanted to one side so it was somewhat like sleeping on a hillside, but we managed to sleep anyway. We washed up, and found a place where we could get supper at five cents. We were starved after our light luncheon at noon, and cleaned up everything on the table.

When we returned to the house the landlady requested us to register as

Plymouth gave local fans an idea of the fight that they are going to make for the pennant in the city league in their first game with the B. & O. team when they took a lead of two runs in the second inning and held the strong railroad team for five innings.

The league leaders got Weber to four hits in the seventh and scored three runs to win the game after they had been allowed to hit safely but three times during the first six innings of the game. Reese and D. Weber starred with the stick for Plymouth, each receiving a double and a single out of three times at bat.

The B. & O. team was out hit by the Norwalk boys and gave their moundman better support but the batting rally of the seventh could not be checked in time to prevent the scoring of the winning tally.

Physical Improvements of Church

Rebuilt porch; frescoed church; installed electric blower for organ; cleaned cistern; re-laid tiling in cellar; repaired gutter on house and painted porch roof; repaired church windows; painted church, parsonage and barn two coats; screened back porch; created laundry in basement; installed gas stove in auditorium of church; repaired water lines in parsonage, all at a cost of about $1450.

Religious Activities

At New Haven, morning preaching is well attended as are the mid-week services Wednesday evenings. Sunday school attendance keeps up quite well. The Ladies Aid Society flourishes, with quite a number of members who have no connection with the church, yet help in many ways to support the church.

Plymouth—Morning services have until lately been well attended. At present many find other interests to take the place of worship. Here, as in most places, there is little influence on the making of the church, the center, consequently we do not have all teachers, nor many pupils as we would wish, in the church services. Evening services are usually satisfactory, according to what they have been in former years.

Most of our choir are dependable and furnish high grade of splendid music. Our pipe organ now in good repair, adds to the interest of all services. We regret that Brother Judson, who for a long time has given his time and energy to directing the choir, has lost his voice, and we miss it. He is still faithful, however, doing his part, and taking his place. We are fortunate in having Mr. and Mrs. L. Z. Davis with us. Mr. Davis is doing splendid work with the young people's choir.

The Epworth League has done splendidly, but now has taken off during the summer. Some of our young people will attend the institute at Lakeside this year again.

Our W. H. M. S. did fine work under the leadership of Mrs. Ford. Her successor Mrs. Brown is starting splendidly with a number of new members.

The Ladies Aid society, with Mrs. G. A. Brooks as president, has done good work. They have pledged $150 to the improvement of two church and parsonage, besides buying new linoleum for kitchen, and furnishing varnish stain for the floors and some woodwork, and paid other bills.

Mention should be made of the Friendship Sunday School class of ladies, who have contributed quite liberally toward the repair fund.

World Service contributions, while not large, have been coming steadily and remittances have been made to the Chicago office. Some prefer to pay at one time, and with what we expect to come in by September 1 we hope to have as good a report as last year for Conference, possibly better.

The church has kindly granted the pastor two weeks off, in which to refresh himself in a restful way. He will leave for his vacation next Monday, am. visiting relatives in West Virginia for a week, then spending a few days at Lakeside. The pastor is happy in the work with this splendid people, and we know of no complaints of his work, although there may be much room for them.

Barthelmess Makes New Film On Coast After Long Absence

"Ransom's Folly, which comes to the Castamba, Shelby, Friday, is the first picture Dick Barthelmess has made on the Coast in over seven years. "Ransom's Folly" was filmed at the Marshall Neuma Studio under the direction of Sidney Olcott. Colonel George L. Byram, a retired U. S. Army expert, superintended the costume and military detail.

In this picture Dick plays the role of "Lieutenant Ransom," which was made famous on the stage by Robert Edeson. This is the second Edison stage play Dick has selected for the screen, the other one being "Classmates."

"Ransom's Folly" is an adaptation of the famous story by Richard Harding Davis. It takes Barthelmess back to the time of the Indian wars. He plays the role of Lieutenant Ransom, an adventurous soldier who embroils himself in sundry difficulties on account of his dare-devil disposition. Miss Dorothy Mackall is seen opposite the star. She has the part of a daughter of a Western pioneer. After a series of thrilling episodes she finally wins the hand of the dashing soldier.

Others in the cast are Anders Randolph, Pat Hartigan, William Norton Bailey, Brooks Benedict, Colonel C. C. Smith, Pauline Neff and Billie Bennett. More than fifty full-blooded American Indians have parts in "Ransom's Folly"—among them Chief Eagle Wing and Chief Big Tree.

HIGH STEPPERS IS CAREWE'S LATEST

Edwin Carewe's latest First National production is "High Steppers," taken from the popular Sir Philip Gibbs' novel, "Hells Apparent." The picture will be shown at the Castamba, Shelby, Tuesday, with Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes in the featured roles.

The story concerns the effect of sea-mad living on a typical modern family. This family is driven to the brink of ruin before a sudden realization of the impending disaster brings them to their senses.

Mary Astor is cast in the role of a girl who gives up high stepping for stepping with her feet on firm ground. Lloyd Hughes plays opposite her as the boy who is caught up in the swirl of the furious modern dance and is only saved because of his love for the girl.

Important in the supporting cast is Dolores Del Rio, beautiful Mexican, a recent Carewe film "Inde." Senorita Del Rio is a perfect Spanish type and is actually one of the wealthiest society girls in Mexico. She has been seen in "Joanna," a First National picture released not long ago.

Others in the cast are Rita Carewe, Edward Davis, Alec Francis, John Stepping and Clarissa Selwynne. Edwin Carewe directed the production. Lois Leeson made the screen adaptation.

Members of the Inaak Walton League of America are pledged to do their best to restore for posterity the outdoor America of our ancestors.

ANN PENNINGTON, JAZZ DANCER IN "MADAM BEHAVE"

Ann Pennington, famous pep dancer and Police beauty, whose fancy steps and twinkling toes are not unfamiliar to motion picture audiences, has the featured leading woman's role opposite Julian Eltinge, in Al Christie's comedy "Madame Behave."

When Miss Pennington went to the Christie studio in California, direct from the Ziegfeld office, to play her part in the comedy named, she brought all her charm with her—the same charm that has endeared her for years to Broadway. Naturally, she was in object of great interest to everybody on the Christie lot.

Her first introduction to the Christie studio leading ladies was in the backyard where the "Christie Girls Athletic Club" was having its Saturday morning exercises. The Christie leads Molly Moller, Vera Steadman, Joan Lorraine, Duane Thompson, Frances Lee and others were busily doing handstands, cartwheels and leapfrogging when Ann appeared and showed them the exercises which the girls in the Ziegfeld Follies use to keep their waistslines from wandering over the beauty limit set by the stage manager.

Miss Pennington does a lot in "Madame Behave" to make it a delight and a fit cousin to Charlie's Aunt.

Can or Pen Rooster, He Spoils the Eggs

The season has come when a rooster may be good to eat, sell, can, or keep penned up until fall, but bad for the flock income if let run with the flock during the hot summer months. They will not lay eggs, only spoil a great number of those that are laid.

Warm weather will quickly spoil fertile eggs. They start to incubate at 65 degrees Fahrenheit, says G. S. Vickers, extension specialist in poultry at the Ohio State University, and at 90 degrees blood vessels form rapidly. The blood decays and a rotten egg is the result.

Fertile eggs during the summer cost the poultryman in the United States over 50 million dollars a year, according to estimates made by the United States Department of Agriculture. Forty-two and one-half percent of the fertile eggs marketed in the summer are unfit for food when they reach the consumer. Roosters sold early in the summer will bring a higher price than those sold late and leave a larger estate in the form of good marketable eggs.

By culling it is possible to keep the roosters at home. A copy of the bulletin, "Home Canning of Fruits, Vegetables and Meats," prepared by extension specialists at the university may be obtained by writing to the editor of the College of Agriculture at Columbus.

Seth E. Gordon, former executive of the Pennsylvania game commission and known nationally for his efforts in behalf of conservation, is now in charge of a special extension bureau of the Inaak Walton League of America.

Contest Closes

The close of the church school contest at Mt. Hope Sunday morning was appropriately observed with orchestral music from members of the church school, vocal solos by Mrs. C. S. Stroup and Miss Avis Spangler of Shelby, and a saxophone solo by Thomas Ruckman, all of which were appreciated and enjoyed by the large audience in attendance. Mt. Hope was honored with the presence of Paul Kuhn, superintendent of St. Paul's church at Mansfield. Mr. Kuhn is a conscientious active worker in his own church and brought greetings from his school and a splendid message of practical thoughts, in which he emphasized the relationship of the individual to the church with the personal value for each. His talk was most heartily received.

Mr. Kuhn is a brother of John Kuhn of the official board, and his hearers felt he had a special interest in their spiritual welfare.

As the red side won by a large majority, preparations were immediately made to feast the winners solo and a committee was appointed for that purpose, and that social event will be held soon in the school auditorium.

Shiloh Methodist Church

Sunday school at 10 a.m. Charles Hamman, superintendent. The attendance last Sunday was very gratifying for this time of the year. Keep it up.

Sermon at 11. Subject: Jesus the same yesterday and forever. Heb. 13:2. Epworth League at 6:30 p.m. There is no evening sermon.

Only 7 more Sunday until Conference at Elvira. It behooves every member to get busy in order to make a creditable showing at Conference. We fear that the real prayer life of the Church of Christ is not keeping pace with the changes in the social and ethical life of our nation.

Prayer, it is through prayer, our Lord's last wish that we might be kept from the evils of the world, the flesh and the devil. For it is Jesus who has unlocked to us the gates of prayer. It was through prayer that we have been able to privilege of addressing the great I am that I am as Father. How unlimited the power of prayer! How unlimited the power of prayer! How unlimited the power of prayer!

It is the pledge that every one of us should make. My grace is sufficient for me. O the blessedness of time that we have taken to ourselves. All that the loving Christ can bestow. O the blessedness of time that we have taken to ourselves. All that the loving Christ can bestow. O the blessedness of time that we have taken to ourselves. All that the loving Christ can bestow.

Clam Diggers Threaten Bass Fishing In Ohio

Due to the activities of certain unscrupulous men, bass fishing in Ohio's streams and rivers is in danger of becoming a thing of the past. These men, called clam-diggers, or mussel-fishermen, enter the part of the waters known as the "shallows" and proceed to rake, scrape and dig mussels from the streams' beds. Untold loss of spawn results from this practice. Mussel-fishermen operate only in the rivers not too badly polluted, and the rolling of the otherwise naturally clear waters alone makes natural bass propagation impossible, according to C. F. Blakeman, secretary of the Tiffin, Ohio, chapter of the Inaak Walton League of America.

Due to the fact that there are few lakes in Ohio, persons living there have to depend upon the rivers and streams for their fishing. The Ohio division of the Inaak Walton League is leading in the fight to eliminate the "clam-diggers" who are threatening one of the finest sports in America, a red-blooded battle with one of nature's gamest fish—the black bass.

"Isaak Walton Hour" broadcast every Thursday evening from WBBM, St. Louis, over the air theatre, Chicago, at 10:15 o'clock, central daylight savings time, is devoted to the conservation platform of the Inaak Walton League of America. Short sketches and playlets, featuring "Uncle Ike," an old timer of trout and stream are enacted over the air by a regular cast of "air-actors."

Frank Kanney and wife of Willard friends of the M. E. parsonage folks accompanied by Mrs. Kanney of Tiffin paid a pleasant visit on Friday last.

The Follinger family, Mrs. Eliza Campbell and Mr. and Mrs. S. Villard all of New Washington were called at the M. E. Manse on Sunday evening.

A party consisting of Ivan McQuate, Fred Witche, W. V. Koster, Rev. R. Mente, Fred McBride, C. D. Nelson, D. E. Bushey, E. J. Stevenson and Fred attended the monthly session of the R. A. Chapter in Plymouth on Monday evening.

Rev. and Mrs. L. A. McCord and son Ross motored to Springfield, Ohio the first of last week for a visit at Mrs. McCord's home. Mr. McCord returned to Shiloh on Thursday evening having gone after his family to bring them back home.

Actors Today Have College Diplomas

CLAIRE MARLOWE

EDUCATIONAL STANDARDS OF STAGE ARE RISING SAYS CLAIRE MARLOWE

NEW YORK CITY—More than half the actors playing on the legitimate stage today have college diplomas. This is the assertion of Claire Marlowe, who brings down the house at one of Broadway's successes, "The Great Gatsby," by singing "When I Dream of the Last Waltz With You." Although Miss Marlowe's role in the play is a singing one, she has made an intensive study of the drama. "Twenty-five years ago not one actor or actress out of fifty had a college diploma," the singer points out. "Now you will find, if you go into the matter deeply enough, that forty-

Celeryville Loses Pep

Lack of practice may be Celeryville's excuse for losing to the Ideal Laundry in a shut out game last Friday. It wasn't hard work for the Laundry boys to make a few runs and the Celeryville errors urged them on to victory.

The Laundry made several safe hits and felled the ball well. Willoughby of the Laundry, was hit in the chest while up to bat and forced to remain out of the game.

The Muckers were sure to hit the ball into the hands of the Laundry boys. They managed to have bases filled or partly filled about four times but Fackler proved too much for them.

Kuhn of the Laundry made a home run in the second.
