When Willard Game is Finished Saturday; Score of 40-42.

Local Team Noses out Willard, 42 to 40.

The Russell and Reynolds Ford Basketball Team played a fast and furious game at Willard last Saturday night when they met the Willard Y. M. C. A. The game was rather hoisly played but went at a fast clip. Willard made rapid substitutions when their players became winded using a total of nine men. The local group was limited to six by necessity. Neither team had a big lead at any time. At the end of the first half the score was 25 to 27 in favor of Willard. Rhine began the third quarter by slipping in three short shots for Plymouth and the Fords took the lead and held it. Willard staged a spurt at the close of the game but it was not quite successful.

This game was followed by a one sided tilt between the pioneer Rubber Co's Girls team and the Arthur Leather Goods Girls from Canton in which the Willard girls won by a large margin. One would naturally expect that the Rubber Girls would have more bounce than the Leather Girls.

The Plymouth Fords will play the Mansfield Blue Jackets at the Friends' House in Mansfield Thursday evening.

Auto Wrecked

By A. C. & Y. Train New Year's Day at Crossing Near Town.

A miraculous escape was again recorded Saturday shortly after dinner when Mr. Valentine Diehl and Mrs. Louise Deucher emerged from a badly wrecked Jewett car that was struck by a westbound Northern Ohio train at the crossing on the Fennel road. Mr. Diehl suffered severe cuts and bruises about the head while Mrs. Deucher received several sprained muscles and minor scratches.

Those who gathered at the scene of the accident state that it was the most mysterious mishap they ever saw. The two wheels on the right side of the machine and the entire right side of the body were completely demolished, while the left side of the car was barely damaged. The fact that the crossing rised up to a point while a ten foot embankment surrounded both sides of the road as well as a steep embankment on the track makes it a most dangerous point to be bumped by a train.

Mrs. Deucher had been spending a few days at the Diehl home and on her way to Plymouth to get a bus for Cleveland when the mishap occurred. Both Mr. and Mrs. Deucher are resting very well at the family home.

IN CINCINNATI
Mr. Otto L. Kinsel is in Cincinnati where he will spend several weeks remodeling the home of Mr. H. R. Sykes.

Lester Opydke, age 62 years, died at the family home on the Shelby Road, Friday, Dec. 31, after a lingering illness covering the past year or so.

Mr. Opydke was taken to Cleveland a little over a year ago for treatment and for sometime his condition was improved. While not bedfast, he suffered a great deal and his condition was not regarded as critical until just preceding his death.

He was the son of Stacy and Katherine Opydke and was born April 29, 1864.

On June 7, 1905 he was united in marriage to Olive Horenbaugh, who is the sole survivor.

He was affiliated with the Masonic and K. of P. Orders and was a faithful member.

Mr. Chappell expressed his regret that he was compelled to leave the local company, in a way that felt it was as sincere as their regret that he was leaving Shelby Globe.

MEN'S PROGRAM AT

A special program by men is being arranged for the next Parent Teachers Meeting which is to be held Thursday evening January 13. There will be musical numbers including a chorus of men and perhaps a short play.

He was laid up for several days, but is now able to be out.

ADD IMP MEETING

School Paper

to be Issued by High School—Your Support is Needed in this Matter.

A committee is now at work on the P. H. S. Post, official organ of The Plymouth Schools, and from reports, it will be a credit to the staff, school and town.

The personnel of the staff is not available for this issue of The Advertiser; but no doubt the advertising solicitors will be around within the next few days. When they call be ready to take a space in the paper.

The Post will be filled with school news that will be interesting to the public as well as the school children. Several feature stories have been prepared for this issue.

The support of the merchants will be needed in this venture and The Advertiser has contracted to print the paper at a very low figure. Let's all pull together and show what Plymouth CAN do. Other towns smaller than Plymouth are putting out a paper every six weeks for the schools.

Quits Business

After Five Years; Owing to Ill Health Miss Taylor Closes Store.

Miss Elmore Taylor, who has conducted one of the best dry goods stores in this section of the state, has closed the doors of her store here and will retire from active business owing to ill health. The remaining stock was sold to a firm at Republic and will be moved there.

Miss Taylor, during her business career in Plymouth, made many friends, and patrons of the store will regret very much her absence in Plymouth. The Taylor store had a wide reputation for having one of the finest assortments of dry goods ever known in a small town, and patrons always felt confident when they shopped there.

It is not known who will occupy the store room where the Taylor store was located. Miss Taylor will make her home in Tiro for a while, and perhaps later, move to Plymouth.

PURCHASES FARM

Mr. Clifford Sourwine of Tru street has purchased the 75 acre Mellick Farm situated about one mile south of Doyle's Corner on the state road to Mansfield and about 1 1/2 miles south of Shelby.

He expects to move onto his new property sometime this spring.

TO CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY

Elas B. Helfer, well known to the town as "Doc," will celebrate his birthday Tuesday, Jan. 18. Doc says he was born in 1850 at Canton, Ohio. He has served the public as deliveryman for the American Railway Express for a number of years. During winter and summer "Doc" and his "Honey Bee" can be seen looking after the interest of the company.

GIRL SCOUTS WANT DONATIONS

Since the American Legion has moved its quarters to the new location over Arthur Meyer's shoe shop, it is necessary for the Girl Scouts to seek other rooms, for several reasons. We are very fortunate in being able to obtain the room for the home for the troop, and are now working to fix it up into a permanent home for the troop.

If anyone has chairs, tables, or other furniture which they wish to donate or lend to the troop we will be glad to call for them and will appreciate the help. A large rug would be a great help, and a coal stove, of the Round Oak, or a similar variety, as we do not intend to put in gas.

Will anyone having such articles call Mrs. Seiler at R-81 or notify some member of the troop.

Schools Resume

Activities After Brief Holiday Period; Majority of Students Show Results.

After a ten-day vacation for the Christmas Holidays the public schools have again resumed activities and all classes are now running on schedule. Superintendent Berry and his staff have made an excellent showing and it is predicted that the ending of the first term will bring to a close a successful period for the majority of the pupils and students.

The teaching staff and the children all report a very delightful time during the Holiday season and are now ready to settle back down to the school studies.

EXCHANGE BURNS

The North Fairfield telephone exchange burned down Monday night about 11:30, a total loss resulting from the blaze. About 275 phones were put out of commission. A truck from Norwalk was called to the fire but was unable to help as such a headway had been gained by the blaze. The exchange was housed in the Lipert building.

"WATCH" MEETING

The Junior Aid of the Presbyterian Church held a very interesting, wide awake watch meeting, at the manse on New Year's eve. After the business meeting, a New Year program was rendered. Ruth Balford and Clara Beamer directed the music and singing. Raymond Steele, Olive Cline and Elsie Steele directed the other social activities. Suddenly the clock on the mantel reminded every one that the calendar had changed, from 1926 to 1927, as silently as the falling snow flakes.

Before taking their departure for home, the members of the Junior Aid were served a wholesome breakfast (it was now breakfast time) of pancakes and molasses, which each one enjoyed to his full capacity.

Snow Falls

Make It Necessary for the Sleds and Sleighs to Come Into Action.

The younger set around town are enjoying the snow this season to the fullest. This is evidenced by the numbers of children and youngsters that can be seen coasting on the hillsides, and occasionally the "snowballing" act. Although weather reports indicate a severe storm, it is probable that another snow can be expected, followed by a freeze. Several places near town are ideal for skating and should a solid freeze come within the next few days the youth of the town will indulge in this phase of winter sports. Some of the young blood of the town have purchased sleds and it is rumored that lessons will begin soon.

Sleds and sleighs are coming into service and if the snow continues to fall it is likely that more of them will be seen. The state highway department has been rendering unusual service this year in keeping the main highways clear of the snowdrifts, but there are many by-roads that are almost impassable.

Many of the older inhabitants with a "weather eye" say that this is an ideal winter and that the outlook for the next few weeks are good.

Children should be warned of the dangers of coasting on the traveled thoroughfares, and every precaution should be taken to prevent a fatal accident.

COUNCIL ELECTS

NEW COMMITTEES

The monthly and first meeting of the New Year was held by the village council Tuesday night and several matters received attention, including the granting of a franchise to the Ohio Power company after certain alterations had been made in the original franchise which was presented some time ago.

New committees for the ensuing year were appointed and are as follows:

Fire and police—Ritter and Brumback.
Brinkerhoff Fund—McPadden and Ritter.
Finance—Brumback and Snyder.
Streets—Wentz and VanWagner.
Rest Room—Snyder and McPadden.

ACCEPTS POSITION

Mr. Fred Buzard, a former resident of Plymouth, but who has been located in New London for some time, has accepted a position with The Fate-Root Health Co. in the brick machine department. Mr. Buzard has had considerable experience as manager of various works and no doubt he will prove very efficient in this capacity with the local company.

JUNIOR BOOSTERS RENDERED

FINE PROGRAM

The Junior Boosters of the Presbyterian church rendered a pleasing New Year program at the Sunday evening service, January 2. "Christmas in Many Lands" was told around the Camp Fire was enjoyed by each booster. The occasion was one long to be remembered.

Birthday Held

By People's National Bank; 23 Years of Service to the Public.

This week the People's National Bank are celebrating their 23rd anniversary and are receiving numerous congratulations over the success this institution has made. A good and conservative record was made this year, and about $20,000 was paid to depositors in interest.

The bank was established in 1904 with H. J. Willmet as president, R. H. Nimmons, vice-president, J. L. Beel, man, cashier and J. E. Nimmons, bookkeeper. R. H. Nimmons is now the present head of the bank, while Mr. J. E. Nimmons is cashier.

A slight change is being made in the lobby of the building, which will make a pleasing effect.

All the present officers and personnel of the bank are being commended for the record made the past year.

NOTICE

Huron County taxes, Plymouth Villages and New Haven township will be taken at the Peoples National Bank until January 20.

ENTER 1927

Uncle Sam should have a prosperous year in 1927 unless all signs fail.
This is the view of the leaders in the business and industrial world. The Associated Press recently made a survey of the situation and the results show that everywhere conservative Americans are optimistic about the immediate future.

Judge Gary, chairman of the U. S.
Steel Corporation, declared that while no one can be certain about the future, there is no reason why prosperity during the coming year will be seriously interrupted.

"Prospects are good," Mr. Green declares in conclusion, "and our options should be planning to keep abreast of this progress."

The predictions for a prosperous 1927, barring unforeseen calamities, are therefore well nigh universal. While we are enjoying prosperity it behooves us not to forget the policies which have brought prosperity about.
Only a few short years ago we were trying to recover from our part in the most disastrous war in all history.
The American people adopted a program which had for its policy the rehabilitating of the United States along sane and constructive lines and without a deviation from American principles. The principles included with withdrawal as far as possible of the government from private enterprise, the adoption of a protective tariff and adherence to the time honored principle of non-interference in the affairs of Europe, and a determination to have nothing to do officially with behaviorism.

There was a great outcry against these policies from the internationalists who declares that the principles were short sighted and that they would result in the disintegration of Europe and the consequent impoverishment of the United States.
The results have proved that the nationalists were right. America is today generally prosperous and the future, so far as we can see, is a bright one. Nor has Europe been dis-stroyed. On the other hand, the nationalists across the water are showing visible signs of improvement. All of them are looking forward to better days in 1927 and most of them feel that they have rounded the corner and come from the shadows into the sunlight.

It is significant too that in many European countries there is a general demand for the adoption of American methods of business organization and procedure. Evidently a great many folks there are coming to realize that they see it, even if our own interna-

A Tour Abroad

DENMARK

It is Sunday night in a little town of 4,000 inhabitants and I am lulled
to sleep by strains of music floating from the dance hall on the roof of my hotel. The dance hall, I am told, close at 12 o'clock. Social standards vary with the accepted customs of the nations. The Dane says Sunday dancing is a harmless diversion but he condemns in unqualified terms our Sunday baseball games and prize fights. The Englishman drinks with impunity at sidewalk bars while church bells across the street are calling people to worship, but laughs at our Puritanical ideas on civic virtue.
But moral standards among both Dane and Englishmen are high and Sunday dancing and Sabbath drinking may not be quite so bad as some of the moral lapses in the social life of the American of today.

Small Town Life in Denmark

I was aroused from my slumbers early this morning by the patter of wooden shoes on the pavement below
my hotel window. Looking out I saw streams of laborers—both male and female—pouring toward city and field. The little town of Odder is a perfect type of the average small town in Denmark, and so let's get the setting for the background to the story about small town life in Denmark. The town is more than 1,000 years old, but long before it became a political unit the Vikings used it as a base of operations. Its cobble-streets run in serpentine courses in many directions. Its public square is flanked on all sides by business houses, one and two stories high,
and to modern eyes the old lines of ancient architecture. It has its hardware stores, its groceries, its cigar and tobacco stores and its general merchandise stores. Strange to say I found in it only one drug store
and that dispensed nothing but drugs.
In a small place 20x40 feet only two clerks were employed—a man and a young girl. The stone-flagged sidewalks are narrow and irregular.

Through the residence section the streets are narrow and crooked. The miniature houses are built close to the sidewalk and on the window ledge of each you invariably find a box of flowers. Beautiful flowers of many varieties also flourish in the tiny front yards. In lieu of house numbers the name of the home owner is found on a porcelain plate attached to the front entrance. The summer sun sets late and following the evening meal family groups fill the promenades. Here is heard the gossip of the village.
Atom-buses are so scarce that a new Ford attracts attention, but bicycle brigades you find everywhere. Bicycles are ridden by young girls and boys, middle-aged men and women, grandmothers with fly bonnets and grandfathers with flowing beards. It is small town America 40 years ago.
And about it all there is an atmosphere that acts as an opiate on the nerves of the tired American.

Forming a Triple Contract

The object of my visit to Odder was to form a contract with the small town banker, merchant and farmer so that I might study the business attitude of each toward the other and thus analyze the Danish system of co-operative farming and marketing which has given this nation a seat on the top of the agricultural world. I began at the Odder Landbank where I was most cordially received by the president, Mr. Ad. Muehlisch. The Landbank (note the prefix "Land") which means agriculture) has a capital of 500,000 kroner or $125,000,
with deposits aggregating 1,900,000
kroner or $475,000. Its real resources were only $5,000.00. The bank's total resources ran to nearly $1,000,000.
Very little of the money is borrowed by the farmer. The farmer doesn't need it. He is the depositor. The borrowers are the merchants and small town manufacturers. More than two-thirds of the bank's stock is owned by farmers and the bank is controlled by farmers. Last year its net profits were 30 percent. "How is this?" I inquired. "In my country the banking situation in America, I did not comment but he wondered. He was feeling his way. "Over here we could not exist under such conditions," he countered. "The farmers are our most valuable customers. It is from them we get our money. They lend to the merchant and manufacturer. Oh, yet, land values slipped in 1920. Land that sold as high as $175 an acre sold, when deflation came, as low as $100.00. Men who sold at high prices on deferred payments pledged their mortgages and when they had to redeem or protect those mortgages they found themselves in financial difficulties. Banks that rediscouted many of these morgages found themselves in deep water.
Thirty out of the 200 banks in Denmark suspended business; ten were completely wiped out and the remaining 20 merged with other banks.
If it had not been for the farmer in that crisis conditions might have been much worse."

Mr. Muehlisch leaned back in his heavily upholstered chair
and he viciously at the end of a big black cigar as if recollections of the deflation days had revived his fighting spirit. "What part did cooperation play in this crisis?" Mr. Muehlisch shot me a quick glance, leaned over the table and assumed an aggressive attitude, then his expression changed and he laughed a good natured laugh.
"Why, it saved us. We could not get along without cooperation. It is the life-blood of business in Denmark.
What does the merchant think of cooperative marketing? He thinks enough of it to back it to the limit.
His prosperity depends on it. The prosperity of the farmer and the Danish farmer could not prosper without cooperative marketing. No danger of offending him. He does not look with much favor on co-operative buying,
but he is 100 percent co-operative when it comes to selling." Interest rates in Denmark are low. The rate is five percent on first-class collateral.
As the value of the collateral decreases the interest rate increases.
Americans in Odder are as rare as Eskimos at the equator. The news of my day in the bank, I think, had been broadcasted. People on the streets turned and stared at us. In our room at the hotel that night I turned to my traveling companion and remarked: "Say, old top, if that bank should happen to be robbed tonight we would have to lie here and wait the rest of our days." My companion paled to the gills.

The Yankee's Footprints

The Danish system of farming and marketing is fifty years ahead of America's but American farm machinery forms a vital part of the agricultural life of this little nation. On every farm is found improved American farm machinery. Asked why he does not buy the cheaper farm machinery made in England and Germany the Dane will tell you that he wants the best and it is more economical to buy the higher-priced American machinery and pay the freight across the Atlantic. He uses American plow stocks, American plow points and binders, American harrows and reapers. In out-of-the-way places one discovers many interesting objects.
Once while roaming around rural England I dug up out of an old iron-bound chest, in a modest little church
in an isolated town shunned by tourists, the marriage contract of Captain Jones, commander of the Mayflower,
to Mary Everett. The Englishman
did not attach much importance to it.
The other day while plundering thro-

the attic of an agricultural building
I came across one of the first reapers and binders made in America. Manufactured in 1850 it was a crude, clumsy looking machine built entirely of wood. The machine was bought by an Englishman who soon became disgusted with it and sold it to a Dane. What the Dane did with it his tory does not record, but it must have taken the patience of a Dutchman to operate it.

AMERICAN INDUSTRY MAKES PROSPERITY

Mention is seldom made when a
"great corporation" reduces the price of its service or its wares to the public, but if the price increases a penny, every self-seeking guardian of the "people's rights" fires up his hot-air boilers and broadcasts the "crime" to the nation.
The foregoing statement may be a trifle exaggerated, yet it expresses a condition which existed in this country, but which is gradually disappearing—due to a better understanding by the people of facts which apply to industrial activity.

In a period of high prices such as has existed since the war, the General Electric Company has made eight reductions in the price of Mazda lamps.
The latest reduction took place September 1, and amounted to seven percent on the sizes most generally used and approximately five percent on all types. This latest reduction means a saving to the public of approximately $4,000,000 a year. The prices on Mazda lamps are now 44 percent below
the 1914 prices, as compared with a 55 percent increase in the average of other commodity prices since the war. Only an organization constantly improving manufacturing methods and standardizing and simplifying production, could make such reductions in the face of increased cost of materials and labor.

Prosperity in the United States is mainly due to industries of this character, which, by mass production, extensive use of electric power per workman and high wages which result from large output per worker, have increased consumption per individual beyond that of any nation

in the world. "Two-by-four" industries, inefficient manufacturing methods, lack of horsepower per worker,
limited production and low wages,
never would have secured such prosperity as we now enjoy.

A PETITE DOLMAN SLEEVE FOR THE PETITE MISS

A semi-dolman sleeve is very suitable for the semi-grown-up young lady. Not only is the armhole not too extreme, but the sleeve itself,
from the elbow down, is loose fitting instead of very snug. Plaids are inserted in the skirt to give the necessary fullness for the active young miss. Canotes, crepe, rayon, many of the similar crepe materials
may be used for this dress, the collar and cuffs being of contrasting material edged with rows of stitching in crochet silk. The wide belt with its flowing ends adds another youthful touch to the dress.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE

The 10th annual farmers' institute of Shiloh promises to be one of the best.

We call special attention to our state speakers, C. R. Snyder of Bucyrus, and Mrs. N. W. Kyle of Defiance. Both come highly recommended by state officials. Our county speakers Dr. R. R. Barrett on Wednesday p.m., E. S. Nall Wednesday evening and J. R. Gilkey, county agent, Thursday a.m.

Mr. John Howard, county auditor and Mr. A. L. Allen, county surveyor, will speak on Thursday afternoon concerning taxes and good roads.

While a good attendance is desired at all sessions, we call your attention especially to these last two speakers as time will be given for discussion. The entertainment will be furnished largely by the school, making it truly a community event in which everyone is interested.

This community cannot prosper only as the farmers prosper. Let's all back the institute, schools, churches, business men, farmers, all, and make it a big success.

What Is a Diuretic?

People Are Learning the Value of Occasional Use.

EVERYONE knows that a laxative stimulates the bowels. A diuretic performs a similar function to the kidneys. Under the strain of our modern life, our organs are apt to become sluggish and require assistance. More and more people are learning to use Doan's Pills, occasionally, to insure good elimination which is so essential to good health. More than 50,000 grateful women have given Doan's signed recommendations. Scarcely a community but has its representation. Ask your neighbor!

A Good Resolution

We know of no better resolution one can make other than to start a plan of saving during 1927. The old axiom that a "Penny Saved is a Penny Made" is being manifest each day in all walks of life. Saving is the first step to success and the thoughtful young man or woman will be well paid in later years. Come in today and let us explain our thrift plans.

pupils will be merited in several subjects, receiving 90 or above as an average.

Beginning with the second semester, the Junior High school will use the merit and demerit system. The purpose of the plan is to allow the Junior High to become a part of the high school organization just as rapidly as advisable. The main object of the organization is to pass all pupils by subjects from the 7th grade on instead of passing by grades as has been the case in the 7th and 8th grade heretofore.

This week end will be a busy one for both basketball teams. Friday evening both teams play Madison township at the East Mansfield Building. Then Saturday evening Crestline's fast teams will meet our girls and boys teams on our home floor. This promises to be a very fast game as Crestline boasts two good basketball teams.

Rev. McBroome had charge of chapel exercises in the Junior and Senior High school Monday morning.

The annual Farmers' Institute will be held in the auditorium next Wednesday and Thursday, January 12-13. New steel lockers have been ordered for both boys and girls locker rooms and will be here and ready for use within the next ten days.

VERSES RECEIVED

The following Christmas verses descriptive of a new home were received by a number of friends from the gifted pen of Mrs. Jesse A. Fenner of Cleveland.

It's a modest house on a modest street,
Up here where we're thinking of you;
Where the smoke-cloud lifts and the sky is sweet
With an all but country blue.

It's a children's street, all laughter and noise
Over bicycles, skates or skees;
It hums with the voices of girls and boys
As the hollyhocks hum with bees.

It's a street that has gone to the dogs—alas!
As every house of us owns;
Our collies and terriers roam massed,
And litter our landscape with bones.

It's a cheerful street, come summer, come spring;
But now, when the snow-drifts rise;
When the kindled logs on our andirons sing
Their forest-learned melodies;

When home-coming folk on our street may see
Red wreaths in our windows hung;
When every house has its shimmering tree;
When the old Noels are sung.

When it's Christmas time again; it seems
That our home at the city's ledge
Grows over-full of its joys and dreams
And of life's high privilege.

We are fain to share. Though we can not bend
The fates to your heart's desire,
As we would, today—will you let us send
This ray from our Christmas fire.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

W. H. Gibson, Minister
The holiday time was indeed a great time of feasting, both physically and socially. Many were entertained away from town, while some entertained friends from a distance. Now we are starting on another New Year, and many stores are taking invoice. We wonder if it would not be profitable for the churches, rather the MEMBERS to take an invoice of how they stand, not in relation to each other, but in relation to God, their obligations in the church and responsibility to others. We occasionally look at our reflection in a mirror. Why not stand off and look at our reflection in the honest, true mirror of one's own conscience, as it is reflected by the Holy Spirit? We eagerly grasp at opportunity for business or social advantages. Are we as eager to grasp the blessings in the privilege of Christian fellowship, "If there be any virtue, let us think on these things."

The Week of Prayer, observed generally throughout the Christian world, is being held this week at the Methodist Church. Each evening, at 7:30 until and including Friday evening, the lessons all pertain to the Week of Prayer, its Privilege, How to Pray What constitutes Prayer, Answers and how they come, etc. Even though you may never pray, you may be helped. If you do pray, of course you will be present.

ARTICLE No. 4

One of the most interesting hands that the writer has come across in a long time was submitted recently, with the request that the proper bidding of all four hands be given. It is as follows:

Hearts—9	Clubs—none	Diamonds—A, K, Q, J, 9, 8, 7, 5, 4, 3	Spades—10, 7
Hearts—Q	Clubs—A, K, Q, J, 7, 6, 4	Diamonds—none	Spades—A, K, Q, J, 2
Hearts—6, 5, 4	Clubs—10, 5, 4	Diamonds—10	Spades—8, 6, 5, 4, 3

No score, first game, 2 deals and passes. What is A's proper bid and the natural continuation of the bidding? A should bid one club but with the firm intention of leading spades on the next round if the opportunity is offered. It is apparently a freak hand all around and if A leads five spades his opponent's hand and is ruffed in diamonds at once, he may not be able to make game. For that reason, one club seems the better opening bid with A's hand than one spade. When A bids one club, Y is in a position where he wants to shut out any information about hearts or spades so should bid five diamonds. B is in a position where he can safely bid five hearts because of A's bid of one club, showing tops in that suit. Z must pass and A is confronted with the problem of bidding six clubs, five spades or passing. Either bid is sound but the pass seems the better judgment. Next to passing, six clubs is the best bid. Whatever A does, Y should bid six diamonds. The bidding should indicate to him that A does have an overwhelming hand and it is up to him to make the game, if possible, at the expense of not more than 200 points less his honor score. B should now bid six hearts to show A that the five heart bid was sound. Z and A should now pass and Y, in the writer's opinion, should bid seven diamonds. His maximum loss is 300 points less 80 honors, or a net loss of 220 points. He also has the chance that if A-B overbid with seven in hearts that he and his partner may be able to take a trick. B should double seven diamonds and Z should pass. With A's hand, the writer would also pass. The double of seven diamonds is a certain profit and the bid of seven hearts is doubtful. Always play the certainty in this position. As the cards lie, a bid of seven hearts could be defeated by one trick if Z would open a club. It is a foregone conclusion that either A or B is void of diamonds and the fact that Z has four clubs and the knowledge that there are other void suits around the table would influence a sharp player to open clubs. With any other opening, A-B would make seven hearts. A-B can also make seven clubs with any opening so that Y's bid of seven diamonds was a good sacrifice.

The test hands given in the preceding article caused a wide difference of opinion, so do not be disappointed if your analysis varies from the writer's.

Answer to Problem No. 2

Y:	B:
A:	D:
Z:

Hearts—7 Clubs—8, 4 Diamonds—A, K, Q, J, 7, 6, 2 Spades—J, 10, 4, 3

Rubber game, no score. 2 deals and bid one diamond. A bid two clubs, Y passed and B bid four clubs. What is the best bid? Z should pass. His partner Y would not even be able to bid his diamond suit with two clubs so must have a pretty weak hand. If Z bids four diamonds, he is sure to get doubled and lose at least 400 points. In the actual game, Z did bid four diamonds, was doubled and lost 500 points—a pretty severe penalty for such bad bidding.

Answer to Problem No. 3

Y:	B:
A:	D:
Z:

Hearts—6 Clubs—7, 4 Diamonds—9, 8 Spades—A, K, J, 10, 7, 5, 4, 2

Rubber game, Y-Z, 10; A-B, 21. What would you bid if you dealt and held Z's hand? When Z looked his hand over, he thought to himself, "I can make two or three spades with this hand but no more unless my partner has a big hand, in which case we are in no danger anyway. If, however, he hasn't a big hand how can I get the bid with this hand so cheaply as possible. There's only one way to ascertain this by concealing the spade strength and endeavoring to make my opponents think I have an entirely different type of hand." With this idea in view, Z opened the bidding with one heart. A bid one no-trump, Y bid two hearts and B bid two no-trumps. Z was in a position to pass and try to defeat the two no-trump bid for his partner would surely open hearts. Z therefore, bid three spades, hoping that A-B would not overbid him. As a matter of fact, they doubled and here's where Z was lucky. His partner also passed, although he held five hearts to the ace and only three spades to the ten. He was a sharp player, however, and figured that Z must be trying some stunt or he wouldn't bid three spades over two no-trump, after he helped the bid. Unless Z had a very good reason, so he trusted Z and passed. Y-Z just made three spades doubled, whereas A-B had five odd either of clubs or in diamonds. Z's trick bid in this case was well thought out and well supported by his partner. Such trick bidding is not recommended, but is given as an interesting example of a clever departure from normal bidding.

Answer to Problem No. 4

Y:	B:
A:	D:
Z:

No score, rubber game. 2 deals and bid one no-trump. A passed, Y bid two spades and B passed. Z bid two no-trumps and A passed. What should Y now bid? Y should bid three spades. Z's bid of two no-trumps should inform Y that Z has only two little spades or a singleton, but that he has high cards in the other three suits. With Y's length in spades and such an unbalanced hand, he should stand a better chance for game in spades than in no-trump. The object of all sound bidding is to get the best bid for 26 cards out of 52. Remember, advice and if you can give additional information of a sound character by rebidding your suit, don't hesitate to do so.

TAX REFORM IN CALIFORNIA STIMULATES REFORESTATION

The intimate relation between reforestation and taxation is shown by the effect on the lumber industry of the adoption by California at the recent election of an amendment to the Constitution relieving growing trees from taxation, says the National Lumber Manufacturers Association. As soon as it was certain that the voters had adopted this amendment, D. H. Steinmetz, Vice-President of the Pickering Lumber Company, one of the largest operators in the California forests, expressed the inauguration of a sustained yield system of cutting out that Company's lands, Mr. Steinmetz stated the Company's position as follows: "I have issued orders to our logging crews to leave every tree of 20 inches and under standing. Heretofore we have cut down to 12 inches. Besides this we have entered negotiations for the purchase of 960 acres of cut-over lands adjoining our property on which we will start a reforestation program under our forest engineer J. V. Wolf, as soon as the purchase is made. This land was cut over twelve years ago and since that time has lain idle, the country has been without taxes and that land has not been productive. Amendment No. 22 means that other lands such as this tract, cut over years ago and still non-productive, will be given over to reforestation by the large pine producers. The Sugar Pine Lumber Co., of Fresno, has already voted its plan to obtain a forest engineer for reforestation work."

The lumber industry all over the United States is exhibiting satisfaction with the action taken by California and the similar course decided upon by the electors of Louisiana and Minnesota. Great regret is expressed that the heavily timbered state of Washington, which by inaugurating sustained yield forest practice may keep up its present large lumber yield indefinitely, should have rejected for est taxation reform. The industry is confident, however, it is only a question of time until Washington and all other states interested in preserving the forests and the forest industries will abolish destructive taxation.

JAZZ TOE DANCING IS NEW FAD OF BROADWAY

DOLORES FARRIS

New York City—The last stronghold of the opera has been invaded. Toe dancing, always considered sacred to opera, has come at last to Broadway. Dolores Farris has brought Broadway to her feet by doing the Charleston and the Black Bottom in steps up to now used only for the ballet.

"I do not feel that I have given up my ambition which was, of course, to be an operatic dancer," declares Miss Farris.

"I realize that some will think I have taken the wrong turning, but I do not believe this is true. I have spent years of serious study of the ballet. This experience I am turning to jazz. Why not?"

"I call my dancing jazz done the classical way. I grew interested in jazz while I was studying, and in seasonally, almost without my being aware of it, I began to adapt jazz tempo to my toe dancing. The result is different, and I have been told, wonderfully effective. I have reason to believe that the idea will spread.

"I will probably horrify some conservative souls, but then you know there are always people to be horrified at everything new. All the great composers were scorned when they first began to reveal their genius. It is the same with writers and artists.

"Toe dancing to jazz will not shake the foundations of the world, but it makes the world a more amusing place. I shall feel happy about it. And to save my life. I can't see why a ballet to 'I've Got the Girl' might not be pretty as well as good fun to watch.

NEW YORK'S FAMOUS EAST SIDE BIRTHPLACE OF MANY FAMOUS MEN

The "East Side" of New York has been a fertile field for fiction writers, for column writers for dramatic authors and for proscribers.

And that same "East Side" has developed something else than gangsters, despite the accepted theory.

The congested "east side" of New York has given to its state a governor. In a dive of a score of years ago a youth sang and played to the accompaniment of nickels thrown on the floor by pleased patrons.

That boy became a millionaire and a famed writer of songs.

Men occupying the highest positions within the gift of New York came from the east side and its most successful business men, at the present time on Broadway, got their start in what some are pleased to call the slums.

All of which resolves itself into the matter of environment and goes far to prove that what is ordained must be and it is within the province of man to rise above environment if he so wills.

Environment, by the way, is the underlying theme of "Rose of the Tenements," the new F. B. O. production directed by Phil Rosen, the man who has "Abraham Lincoln" to his credit as, perhaps, the greatest of his many successes.

The central figures are two poor little waifs, wreckage on the sea of life by a strange circumstance reared to young manhood and womanhood by a Jewish couple.

And when their foster parents are called above the girl carries on, moans the boy and bears his burden only to find that the only happiness that has ever come into her life, the love of this boy is doomed to be crushed.

Many times the screen has told a story of regeneration but never in such a striking or more original way than in "Rose of the Tenements." Shirley Mason is "Rose" and Johnny Hannon, a juvenile of real worth, is the boy.

Edwin C. King, first vice president of F. B. O. in charge of production personally supervised every detail of this production and the supporting cast is a brilliant example of selecting types that combine dramatic ability with personnel.

MISS LIVINGSTON STAR IN NEW DRAMA "HELL'S FOUR HUNDRED"

Margaret Livingston is the penniless but "refined gold digger" of The Back Stage Cafe in "Hell's Four Hundred," Fox Films dramatic version of Vaughan Kester's sensational novel "New York Life," "The Just and the Just." Miss Livingston is starred in this production, which will show at the Temple Theatre Willard, on Wednesday and Thursday.

She finds "gold digging" among the night crowds of Broadway is as uncertain of returns as prospecting in the vast open spaces among mountains and desert wastes. However the former cafe dancer lays a campaign for "the game." The vice bar on Broadway makes her the lure in a plot to "get" the relentless district attorney who has started to clean up, but the lure decides the profligate son of a wealthy family is more profitable diggings.

The profligate forces a check to buy the girl an engagement ring and the forgery results in murder under such circumstances that the district attorney is suspected and arrested, while in fact he has a perfect alibi that he cannot use.

Eventually the slayer is injured so seriously that he had no chance to live and before he dies, he confesses. His death leaves the girl just where she started, two jumps ahead of the pawnbroker and the police vice squad.

Miss Livingston's role offers many dramatic opportunities. In the supporting cast are Harrison Ford, Wallace McDonald, Henry Kolker, Marcelline Day, Rodney Hildebrand and Amber Norman.

PRISCILLA DEAN GOLF INSTRUCTOR IN FINE DANCE

The teaching of golf to a bunch of playful, bow-legged cowboys is an interesting feature of the story of Priscilla Dean's current Metropolitan star production, "West of Broadway," which will be on view at the Shelby Opera House on next Wednesday. The scene is laid in the wild and woolly West, where men are men and where on particular man, a woman, forms an exclusive golf and counterpoint, a man of which is "No woman allowed."

The woman-hater (Arnold Gray) sends to an Eastern club for a golfing instructor. Several weeks later Priscilla Dean rides into town, manfully dressed in golf knickerbockers and top coat. The club members think she is a "nice looking young man" and they

"PARADISE" HAILED AS SUPERB FILM ENTERTAINMENT

"Paradise," a First National picture, suggested from an adaptation of Cosmo Hamilton's novel of the same name, is to be seen at the Temple Theatre, Willard, Sunday.

Milton Sills is seen in the stellar role with Betty Bronson as his leading lady, and a brilliant supporting cast.

London and the South Seas are the locales.

Sills appears to great advantage and Betty Bronson adds much to the picture as a former stage dancer.

Kate Price and Charlie Murray keep you laughing every time they flash on the screen. Noah Beery is rough and tough in the role of a scheming, low-down white who tries to kill Sills and steal Betty Bronson. Lloyd Whitlock, as the "heavy," is happily cast and gives a polished performance.

Producer Ray Rockett, one of the Rockett brothers who filmed "Abraham Lincoln," deserves much credit for his latest picture.

SCENES OF BEAUTY IN "DESERT VALLEY" STARRING BUCK JONES

Amid scenes of rare beauty among the fantastic formations of the canyons of the Mojave, Fox Films feature "Desert Valley," starring Buck Jones has its first showing at the Shelby Opera House Friday.

Comedy thrills and suspense abound in this fine picture whose story deals with the feud of cattlemen over water rights.

Back plays the part of an irresponsible cowboy, who has a knack for getting into trouble over other people's troubles. Virginia Brown Faire is the girl in the case and Malcolm Waite the ruthless owner of the water rights.

Hard riding, spectacular fighting and comedy of a rare order make this one of the best westerns seen locally in some time. This is a clean wholesome picture which the entire family will enjoy.

Scott R. Dunlap directed the production which is based on the widely read novel by Jackson Gregory.

A Little History of Long Ago is Interestingly Recalled by Eugene Patterson.

The older residents of the town and vicinity will appreciate this story while the younger generation will get an insight as to some of the hardships and trials that the youngsters of many years ago had to endure.

Mr. Eugene Patterson delightfully recalls many of the personal happenings he experienced in his younger days, but who is now confined to his home with an illness. Mr. Patterson recently celebrated his birthday of which he tells as follows:

Monday, December 27, 1926

I am celebrating my 51st birthday. It is quite a contrast to my first birth day, 51 years ago today, and I would like to give you a description of the house in which I was born.

I don't think there was a nail driven in the house. I don't know whether they made nails at that time, but anywhere it was a log house with chicken and plaster inside. "Chickens" was where the logs did not lay close enough together, they would fill in a wedge of wood, then plaster over it.

The house had puncheon floors—to make these floors, they took a log and split it as thin as could be, some times 4 in., or 6 in. thick. Then it was cut down and laid so that they lay close together for the floor. It was made as level as possible by use of a foot rule.

The logs were built up in the house so the end logs reached over a little farther than the other logs. A pole was put across the top to form a trough. We had no tile roofs, no slate roofs, no galvanized iron roofs, nor even shingle roofs in those days, but had to have clapboard roofs.

A clapboard was cut about 5 feet long and split thin, then laid in the roof, the first clapboard resting in the little trough to hold it from sliding off. The gable ends were made by cutting the gables a little shorter and putting a pole across from one gable to the other, and the clapboards were laid on the poles. There was a stick put in the first trough which reached up about one half the length of the clapboard and a pole put in to hold the clapboards pole blowing off. Then another row of clapboards, and a pole put on to hold them, etc., etc., on up to the top. In this way, they made the roof so there was not a nail in the whole roof.

The hinges and latches were made entirely of wood and if you wanted to lock the door you pulled in your latch string.

These puncheon floors gave way in later years (after we had sawmills to saw the lumber) to board floors.

There was a small window to the east and a double window to the north.

There was a lean-to to the back of the house. A lean-to was where the roof extended down in front where what would be another story so there was one or two rooms.

At the back end of this lean-to was our elstern, which was made of the biggest whitewood tree we could find in the woods, dug out for our rain water trough and there were plenty of wigglers and mosquitoes in it. We did not mind mosquitoes in those days.

We had nothing in those days in the way of gates. Our gates that went out to the road was a big stump four feet thru. There were two fence rails over that, with notches cut in the stump for steps to go up on one side and down on the other. We knew nothing about gates, everything was bare. We had a pair of bars in the middle of the house to go out into the lane.

The old stick chimney had fallen down and father went to Milan one day with a load of wheat and brought home the first cook stove we ever had. Old Granny Sowards thought Pattersons were getting pretty high-toned that they had to have a cook stove to cook on.

We had nothing to cook in but cast iron kettles. We also had a cast iron wash kettle with three legs to heat the water when we washed. Mossey Kappenberg has one now and I guess he stole ours.

The first tin wash dish I ever saw Father brought home from Milan where he had gone with a load of grain and he came home in the night. I was probably about four years old at that time.

I will now give you a description of the house. The bed stood in the north-west corner of the room. In the south end of the room was a fire-place, an old stick fire place with crane and andirons which went down a few years afterwards. The bed had curtains around it and there was a trundle bed pushed under it, where my brother Will slept. He is sleeping in Arlington, Virginia now, and I am nursing this cancer.

I will remember Father telling Will to go down to the woods at the end of the lane and place away from there. Will was gone for a little while and when he came back, without the cows, Father asked him why he didn't bring the cows. He said that he couldn't find them. "Where did you go," asked Father. "Well, I went down to the lane and I scattered," he replied, "but found no cows." We always had a bell on one of the cows but the range was so great at that time it was hard to find them.

I was the only one of the family born in the house, the older boys were born different places away from there. I cannot tell where now without my Father's Bible, which Mrs. Rose Reed has.

I was the youngest of the family and had to take the snubs of the rest of the boys. I was the runt of the family. Will and I used to fight some but I generally got the worst of it as he was bigger than I was.

Take a contrast of conditions then and now; our polished floors of today and the old puncheon floors of that time, different way of cooking now, then we cooked in old iron kettles.

I remember when we went three miles to meeting with an ox team. Later we had horses and bought a horse team and a wagon. Then we would invite our neighbors to fill up the wagon and go three miles to church. Now, we don't go to church living right in town.

My mother and her mother walked to Plymouth from Mansfield, when my mother was about 12 years old. They were going to Attica to see my mother's two brothers, William and Samuel Miller, who lived there. They stopped at a house, which I judge from her description, stood where the Topping house now stands. The people where they stayed all night were afraid they would miss the train, as there was only a trail cut through the woods, so they got on horseback and followed them to see that they got the right trail to Attica.

The first log house my Father built was in Attica, where the old Sutton bank used to stand. Later he bought a farm and moved into the country.

Threshing in those days was quite different from today. We would clean off a place in the field, down to solid ground, and put the wheat around it that the horses would tramp over it. Then a man would stand in the middle of the circle holding the reins and guide the horses around in a ring until the wheat was tramped out. After we had barns, we used the barn floors for the threshing ground. Then we used a fanning mill to clean the chaff from the wheat. I rode the horses many a day for my brother to thresh wheat, on the barn floor. He would stir up the straw and I would keep the horses going around from one end of the floor to the other. Our barn was about 16 feet wide by 40 feet long. Later we got the horse power with a cylinder, the same as we have in a threshing machine now, and a man would stand behind it to rake the straw away and shake the wheat out
