RATTLER ATTACK HENRY CRAMER

When he jumped from a wagon to a hay mow Henry Cramer received quite a surprise when he felt a stinging sensation on the index finger of his left hand, and discovered that he had been bitten by a rattlesnake.

Mr. Cramer, who with his three sons, assisted by Charlie Hanick, was hauling hay from the field at his farm six miles west of town Friday afternoon, and as the wagon neared the hay mow in the barn, Mr. Cramer jumped onto the pile of hay, using both hands to balance himself. The snake, in its coil, at once bounded toward Mr. Cramer, striking the index finger of the left hand.

Mr. Cramer's hand immediately began swelling, and the pain was intense shortly after he was bitten. Realizing the situation was serious Mr. Cramer was driven over to New Washington, but the services of a physician there were not available, and a rush trip was made to Plymouth, where Dr. G. J. Seale gave medical attention. In the meantime, the entire left hand had swollen to twice its normal size, and the pain was intense.

The rattler was only a small one, measuring about twelve inches, and had three rattles. As a rule, a rattlesnake gives warning, but the fact that Mr. Cramer disturbed the reptile while in its coil, the result was that it attacked without warning.

Four years ago while making hay on four farms in that section of the county, 37 rattlers were killed. It is said that this species of snakes is plentiful in that section, but it has been some time since anyone was bitten. Several narrow escapes from the fangs of the reptiles have been told, but Mr. Cramer is the first person said to have been bitten by a snake in many years.

In describing the action and effects of the bite Mr. Cramer stated that when the teeth of the snake went into the finger that the feeling resembled that of a large needle with much force, and that about every twenty minutes the swelling would travel up the arm about two inches, until finally the pain and swelling reached the arm. The upper portion of the arm above the elbow colored to a blue-red color. A cord, wrapped and tied around the finger immediately after the attack, was snapped in two under the severe pressure caused by the snake poison.

Wm. Cramer, the oldest son, killed the reptile a few minutes after it had struck his father.

Willoughby, chairman, D. C. Dawn, C. J. Ross, T. W. Beelman and F. H. Stires, were with the architect at the opening of the bids which were found to be lower than had been expected. The bids total but $50,222 exclusive of equipment, and the commission has about $55,000 available.

TO DELIVER FIRE APPARATUS SOON

The regular monthly meeting of the Village Council was held Tuesday night with all members present. The problem of having the new fire engine which will be delivered within the next two weeks took up the greater portion of the session. The new truck measures a little over 21 feet, and it is necessary to secure suitable quarters for the equipment. Several sites for the erection of a fire proof building was put up before the members, and various other plans, including an addition to the city building which now houses the library and rest rooms. No definite action on this subject was taken at the meeting Tuesday night.

The fire truck, it is said, is of the latest and improved type, mounted on a Model A Ford chassis, and includes all modern equipment. It is to be delivered to the town within the next two weeks, so officials state.

A special meeting will be held Saturday afternoon by council for the purpose of opening bids for the proposed improvement of the drain sewer on Sandusky street. A number of bids have been received, says Clerk Trauger, and the session Saturday no doubt will be a busy one.

Other regular routine business was transacted, and the meeting was adjourned until Saturday afternoon.

"WILD BOY" IS IN LIMELIGHT AGAIN

Pompey Brown, who 26 years ago, was known as the wild boy of Huron County, again stood in the limelight Friday when he was taken into custody on the Vagus farm in Peru Twp. by F. B. Clark, a deputy sheriff and dog warden.

Recently, Brown left the county home, where he is listed as an inmate and was given shelter at the Vagus home. Officials state that Brown probably will be brought before the probate judge soon for a sanity hearing.

Back in the days when Harry Snyder was sheriff, Brown then eight years old, lived with his father and grandmother in a hut on the Dean Farm in New Haven in what was known as the Beech woods, long since cleared away.

Hunters had reported seeing a little chap, attired only in a gunny sack with openings for his arms and legs, scampering through the woods with the agility and furtiveness of a wild animal. In due time it was decided by the authorities that Pompey had to go to school. The threat was made known, that anyone who tried to run away from Pompey, would be shot, and Sheriff Snyder decided to take no chances.

One day the sheriff, F. B. Clark, and others, went to the shack with the intention of capturing the boy. But the youngster and the others went to the attic and threatened to shoot in some way a heavy fire was started down stairs and the smoke began to bother the inmates. Here, Sheriff Snyder handed a pound of sulphur to Pompey through an opening in the roof and told him if he put it on the fire, it would counteract the effects of the smoke. The boy felt for the fuse and in a minute or two everyone in the house came tearing out, almost choked by the fumes.

Some time before the mother of the boy had died in the shack in a pitiable condition of neglect, officers report. The father of Pompey is said to be living near Shelby.

4H CLUB AT COLUMBUS

Members of the 4-H clubs of Logan county to the number of nearly six hundred drove to the Capital City recently and enjoyed visits to points of interest including state institutions. They were shown through the penitentiary through the courtesy of Governor Myers V. Cooper and Warden Preston E. Thomas, after which they were taken on an inspection trip over the campus of Ohio State University. They were shown over the State House by guides and generally, the result is the state treasury proving of special interest, especially after they were informed that it contained over $150,000,000 in government bonds and securities.

MOTHER OF TWINNS DIES

Death played a tragic role here early Wednesday morning when the drive deeper called the young mother of twin girls born in the early evening of Tuesday.

Mrs. Kenneth Wilkinson, mother of a 2-year old blue-eyed youngster, and wife of Kenneth Wilkinson, gave birth to twin girls early Tuesday evening at her home on Trux street. The youthful mother never rallied from the ordeal, and throughout the long hours of the night the attending physician and neighbors kept vigil, hoping against hope, that Fate would be kind to those little twin girls, the blue-eyed boy, and Dad. But all was in vain, for at 5:15 Wednesday morning, the little mother passed away, leaving behind her the twins, who will grow up without a mother's love.

The Wilkinson's are almost strangers to Plymouth. Coming here from Willard where he has been employed for the past three years, Mr. Wilkinson was connected with Kenneth Evans, later accepting a position at the Home Restaurant. But in the short course of time they have lived here, they made many friends, for they were a friendly couple. And to day, the entire community is extending sympathy to the bereaved ones.

The mothers of both Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson arrived here Wednesday morning from Carbon Hill, Ohio. The remains were taken to the Fink establishment in Willard and Wednesday afternoon the last journey was started for Carbon Hill, where they will be interred.

Mr. Wilkinson is extended the deepest and most heartfelt sympathy of the community in his bereavement and this sad hour will be long remembered here.

SUMMER VACATIONING

COLUMBUS, O.—The picnic season for the various divisions of the several departments of state was inaugurated several days ago when one hundred employees of the division of motor vehicles enjoyed an outing at the picnic grounds near the storage dam, Riverside drive. A splendid luncheon was served at six o'clock in the evening and the time was spent in games and social diversions. Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Chalmers R. Wilson, Assistant Deputy Commissioner C. C. Goss, Chief Inspector Harold E. Culbert and Chief C. W. Hunsicker made brief addresses after which boating, dancing and golf were indulged in until the grounds were closed.

Unusually large receipts of lambs, and a sharp decline in the prices, went hand in hand this spring, as might be expected.

The annual family reunion of the Woodworth family was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Chapman, one mile east of New Haven on Saturday, June 29th.

About 50 members of the family were present, also a few invited guests. The day was all that could be desired cool and pleasant. Relatives from South Bend, Ind., Hillsdale, Mich., Cleveland, Ohio, Norwalk and Huron, besides many living nearer were present.

A cafeteria dinner was served at noon to which all did ample justice. After dinner a business meeting was called by the president.

AUDITORIUM AT LAKESIDE OPENS

LAKESIDE, O.—Heavy rain early Sunday morning did not keep people away from Lakeside and nearly 2,000 persons turned out for the dedication services at the new auditorium.

The new building, just completed at a cost of about $125,000, was officially accepted by the Lakeside Association with services at which Dr. E. C. Wareing, editor of the Western Christian Advocate, Cincinnati, presided.

The program opened with a prelude by the Oberlin Vested String Choir, and a procession by the Indiana Presbyterian Choir of Columbus. The response was given by Rev. C. A. Rowand of Toledo, followed by prayer by Rev. Albert E. Smith, Cleveland. "Open the Gates of the Temple," was sung by Mrs. Louis Myers of Cleveland.

Tasks Reported Finished

The dedication sermon was delivered by Bishop Francis McConnell, Pennsylvania, president of the Federated Council of Churches of America.

"We are here to consecrate this building to the worship of Almighty God and to the spiritual interests of humanity: have the workmen completed the task allotted upon them?" asked Bishop McConnell, upon which the contractor, the architect and chairman of the building committee reported that they had.

P. J. Slach, Cleveland, president of the Lakeside Association's board of trustees, presented the auditorium, which was accepted by the bishop, who responded.

"By the authority invested in me as bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, I receive this building for formal dedication; it is an expression of a high 'regard' for developing and intelligence on the part of those who have encouraged and supported the enterprise.

Gives Keys to Manager

"Therefore, I heartily present to Almighty God this auditorium for worship and to the noblest interests of mankind."

Upon the presentation of the keys of the building to A. L. Hoover, Slach said:

"It becomes my duty to entrust to you the keys of this beautiful building. As manager of the association, you have been largely responsible for its erection. We have all profited by your leadership."

Hoover responded, explaining details of the building and the uses to which it will be put.

The afternoon program was given by the quartet of the Cleveland Festival Orchestra and Howard Justice, tenor of Cleveland after which the building was thrown open for public inspection.

During the evening, the Indiana Choir gave a sacred concert.

Some Things About The Modern English Language

A Radio Lecture Broadcast from WTAM, Cleveland, Ohio, (1070 kilocycles, 288.2 meters) by Harry L. Ridenour, Head of the Department of English, Baldwin-Wallace College, Berea, O. (Permission is given to any newspaper or individual to use this article, in whole or in part, if proper credit is given to the author.)

In any business, professional, or social gathering, the careful observer will often see a group of people engaged in animated conversation. Not always is it true, but often the group is interested in the discussion of one of the latest books. Not always, it may be noted in passing, is the book under discussion one of the best sellers, but this is more than likely to be the kind of book that will interest enough people to the extent that they will buy and read it. The books to be mentioned at this time are of various kinds, and there is to be no attempt to give a series of formal book reviews.

Fiction-lovers have been interested in watching the rapid progress into popular favor of the new Warwick Deeping novel, Old Pybus. This is of course an English novel, with English background, feeling, and language. Many people love to read the English expression, such as "rotter," "bounder," "a topping hat," "some a cropper," "really," and this book has such expressions aplenty. Old Pybus gives new scenery to those who usually read only American books. The book tells the story of young Lance Pybus, who wanted to determine for the young man what his major interests in life should be. The young man turns for friendship and counsel to his grandfather, who helps him to establish himself in his profession, and to see somewhat the point of view of Lance's father.

Such a description, necessary brief, gives no indication of the love interest, the friendship between the older man, called by Lance "the Venerable," and the young man, who is called "the Venerable" much more than the Venerable needed him, the many touches concerning the business of becoming a writer, the attempts on the part of Lance's temperance. This new Deeping novel, entitled The Bookman, Monthly Score in December, is a list of twelve popular pieces of fiction. In the January list it became the first in the list, and it retained that prime position in the February Bookman.

A charming little book is "Bambi, The Story of a Deer," told by Felix Salten. The book is almost a prose animal epic. It is one of the best of the magazine books, as among the best sellers, says John Galsworthy. "Bambi is a delicious book. The delicacy of perception and essential truth I hardly know any story of animals can stand beside this life story of a forest deer."

"I don't, as a rule, like the method which places human words in the mouths of dumb creatures, and it is the triumph of conversation, one feels the real sensations of the creatures who speak; it is a little masterpiece. The writer makes us enter into the feelings of joy and sorrow of the woodland creatures. The magpies, living two days, look up to the may-beetles, which attain the advanced age of thirty or forty days; the crows and the crows and the pheasants, the rabbits and the squirrels, unitedly feel the terror of their common oppressor. This is no Joel Chandler Harris story of Uncle Remus and Brer Rabbit. Harris makes his stories enjoyable, but in a different way. In Salten's book, we feel at times a slight tightening of the throat when we come to a description more than usually poetic."

And while we are in the mood for beautiful literature, of which we do not get too much in America, we should not forget to call at the libraries or the bookstores for Robert Frost's slender volume of poems "West-Running Brook." Frost is a poet, not merely a rhymester, a versifier. I read all these poems at a sitting, and the time required for even slow reading is not more than an hour. The longest poem may be read in two to four minutes, and read understandingly. The poems are quiet observation upon life, and the New England author is never "preachy." Neither is he sentimental. There is none of what Robert Tarkenton calls "lovely splash." The following lines, selected from various poems, may give you a touch of the work of this leading American poet.

"I often see flowers from a passing car
That are gone before I can tell what they are.
Heaven gives its glimpses only to those
In no position to look too close."
"I have wished a bird would fly away
And not sing by my house all day.
Have clapped my hands at him from the door
When it seemed as if I could bear no more.
The fault must partly have been in me,
The bird was not to blame for his key."
And of course there must be something wrong
In wanting to silence any song."

Read Frost for the birds, the flowers, the unattended thatched roof, the wind whirling the leaves at your knee, the thoughts of the tree at your window, the minor bird, the fireflies in the garden, the bear pulling down the little red, those who love rural New England and all others who should want to love it must read Robert Frost in "West-Running Brook" and his earlier books of poetry.

For the sophisticated reader who knows how to read rapidly and widely in many of our contemporary writers, there is a new book from the pen of John Riddle, Meaning No Offense. Taking as his motto and title the words of old Trader Horn to Lewis and Clark, the writer gives us a series of parodies upon the writings of a number of our writers, Fanny Hurst, Sinclair Lewis, Thornton Wilder, etc. The book is short, and is worth an hour of two of the time of one who will recognize and enjoy.

Not content with the reputation which Microbe Hunters brought him Paul de Kruif in 1928 published in book form, under the title, Hunger Fighters, a running comment upon the romance which may be seen in the adventuresome careers of those men who have been in the vanguard in the fight to make our food supply adequate and to keep hunger on the run. If you have never thought of the romance of science, even in the desperate struggle, and the scientific way read this book. Read of Charlevoix who gave a life time to the finding of the right kind of wheat for the western prairies; Shull and Hoffer, and more ancient experimenters in maize and in self-productivity; Babcock, the grand old man of Wisconsin, who is probably better known there for his milk-tester than for his work as a founder of the hidden hunger, which work brought him the title of the father of the vitamins; Goldberger the so-called soft-spoken desperado, as desperate, because of his daring methods in seeking remedies for pellagra. Read of the sunrunner Steenbeck, the automatic man, Francis, who worked for six years, with only six days' freedom, to discover a cure or a preventive for tularemia, the rabbit disease as dreaded by hunters being. You will agree with the author, who says that "the adventures here told of are only a fragment of the recorded story of the modern fight on hunger. On a grand scale it is a battle—though not considered to be by the men themselves—carried on in the workaday humdrum lives of thousands of searchers who are persistent, quick-witted, and full of courage. Think of these unknown men, and you may laugh at those prophets of doom who predict man's approaching starvation."

A few words in closing concerning the book, Hunger Fighters, by Steenbeck, The Magic Island. This is the story of voodoo practices in Haiti, of sacrificial bulls and he-goats, and the difficulties encountered by the author in gaining the confidence of his native servant Louis to the extent that Louis was willing to help him see these native rites. The seasmanship reader should pass this book by. But he who is interested in life and remembers that we have wretched trials here in the United States today may care to see this thing in its native, unvarnished way. After that he'll want to read "Mumbo, Jumbo, god of the Congo," and then to a good show to get straightened out from his overdose of Witcham. It takes the book sound worse than it really is. But those who love Horatio Alger and the charming books about Elmo will find "Magic Island," a shade disappointing.

MANHELD FOR AUTO ROBBERY

A short time ago, Henry Blumenthal, aged 51, was arrested in Norwalk on the charge of stealing the Oakland automobile that was found with a big load of burglar tools in it, parked on Benedict-av near Park-av. Blumenthal was found loitering about the place where the car was found at about 9 p.m. and was taken to the police station on suspicion. He finally stated he had stolen the car at Clyde.

The man's finger prints were sent to the War Department at Washington and Saturday Police Chief Remington received word that the man of the finger prints had been sentenced in 1918 at Chicago on a burglary charge. The chief is getting in touch with the Chicago police and expects to learn more about Blumenthal, who was bound over to the grand jury in the sum of $500.

A Chicago man said to have the name of Brady, has tried to get possession of the car, which was stolen at Chicago on May 19, but authorities at Norwalk have not heard any more from him since he put in a claim for the machine a week or so ago through the Chicago police.

"SORRELL AND SON" AT SHELBY

Story of Father-and-Son Devotion Based on Warwick Deeping Novel

Father-and-son love is the theme of "Sorrell and Son," Herbert Brenon's production of Warwick Deeping's best-selling novel, made into a United Artists Picture, and offered at the Castamba Theatre Thursday.

H. B. Warner appears as Stephen Sorrell, and Mickey McBan and Nils Asther exact, respectively, the child Kit and the matured Kit Sorrell. The notable cast includes Anna Q. Nilsson as Dora Sorrell; Carmel Myers as Florence Palfrey; Norman Trevor as Thomas Roland; Alice Joyce as Fanny Garland; Mary Nolan as Molly Roland; and Louis Wolheim as Sergeant Buck.

Much of "Sorrell and Son" was filmed in England and with the aid of the author, Warwick Deeping. All of the film "Sorrell and Son" is faithful to the spirit and letter of Warwick Deeping's book, and the ending of the film is that of the book. Herbert Brenon, who made "Peter Pan" and "Bea Geste," says that "Sorrell and Son" is his best motion picture. A father himself, Mr. Brenon believes the story of "Sorrell and Son" is that of any father and any son, and that the appeal of the film as entertainment is supplemented by its effect on men and women who view it.

The story of "Sorrell and Son" is that of a British war veteran whose wife deserts him and his six-year-old son. The veteran, Captain Stephen Sorrell, M. C. thereafter struggles against ingratitude, poverty, vice and physical exhaustion to rear and educate his beloved son, in whom he is ultimately well pleased to intervene with the story of father-and-son devotion are the sub-plots of Stephen Sorrell's friendship with Fanny Garland; Kit Sorrell's love for Molly Roland; Roland's kindness for Stephen Sorrell; Sergeant Buck's enmity for Sorrell; Florence Palfrey's scorn of her drunken husband and sorry passion for Captain Sorrell; and Dora Sorrell's bitter struggle to win from her husband the love of her son, Kit.

The Manager of the Castamba Theatre said that in presenting "Sorrell and Son" to his patrons at popular prices he felt he was announcing presentation at his theatre of one of the five greatest motion pictures ever made.

Unusually large receipts of lambs, and a sharp decline in the prices, went hand in hand this spring, as might be expected.

VANDALS SCATTER TACKS ON GRANGE ROAD AT WILLARD

William Vogel of Willard and County Dog Warden F. B. Clark both deputy sheriffs, on Thursday, investigated the case of roofing nails thrown in the Grange road, leading westward from Willard to the new ice plant.

The officers found that 20 tires had been punctured and that one tire picked up nine of the nails.

At three places along the road, the nails were found and it seems certain that the nails were placed there with wrong intent. The officers, however, have not been able to place blame on anyone.

Clyde Ferrell had the misfortune to lose a very fine registered Holstein cow recently. As the cow failed to respond to treatment she was examined carefully after she died and a three inch finishing nail was found in the second stomach which had come thru the walls and was piercing the heart. As Mr. Ferrell says he never had such an article on the farm they believe the critter got the nail in mill feed.

He has been with the Church of Christ here for several years and has gathered a great many friends who are loathe to part with him.

NOT SO WELL

Ben Egner who contracted small pox is reported as not so well. The case started out lightly and he was allowed to do some labor which apparently proved too much and he has been confined to his bed several days. Dr. Hunter was called from Toledo the last of the week for counsel.

Dr. Hunter and Mrs. Egner are brother and sister.

RETURNS TO HOME

Mrs. Elzina Plough has returned to her home on East Main street for the summer and Mrs. Rose McDonald will be her housekeeper. Her daughters Mrs. Cora Harris from Chicago and Mrs. Rena Willis from Elyria spent last week with her. Mr. Harris was also here the first of the week for several days.

LOGGERS ENTERTAIN

The local order of Rebekahs entertained the New London Lodge at their Friday evening and a very good time was reported. There were twenty-five guests and about an equal number of hostesses. Following the routine business the entertainment committee with Miss Mary Carpenter as chairman and the members of the committee takes from the young set had a very diverting list of activities. Contests, music and readings were included and the most convincing number was the Rebekah band which was costumed to represent "Ye alien time" with banjos, hoops, trains and other outstanding features of former days. Their instruments were equally clever and they made a great hit. Miss Velma McLaughlin was chairman of the dining room and following the program the guests were invited to the tables which were covered in green and pink and presented a very pleasing sight. Hot pork sandwiches, coffee, ice cream and wafers were served and a jolly time enjoyed.

The county physician, Dr. Pike, was assisted by the county nurse, Mrs. Hunter and Dr. Haynes and Misses Kilgore and Robison and Misses Bender and Mead, the latter two ladies coming in the afternoon. Over twenty children were examined and nothing of a startling nature discovered. Several appointments in the afternoon had to be cancelled. The children examined were from four to six years of age.

CLASS PICNIC

The Deep Delvers of the Church of Christ held their annual picnic at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Atwater Wednesday. The members of the class gathered in the afternoon and had a good visit and at six o'clock the husbands arrived and enjoyed a splendid picnic supper served on trays and concluded with ice cream. As the evening proved damp and chilly the trays were served inside. Rev. Levi Donaldson was a guest and returned thanks.

RECEIVES APPOINTMENT

Royce Mead has received the appointment for the rural mail route number one out of Greenwich and goes on the route July eighth. There were sixteen who took the examination. The route has been handled by Bert Strimble for several years and he has resigned and was relieved last September owing to illness. The route was run this winter by the Deputy. The new carrier has been appointed for his brother Lawrence Mead enroute and is not now to the work.

Sunday night and learn what made our nation what it is, so that we might celebrate it on the 4th. Mrs. Boyd Mitchell and daughter Barbara Ann spent the fore part of this week in Delhi, with her parents Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Young.

SHEEP DAY IS COMING

Sheep men of Ohio who attend the "Sheep Day" which will be held on Tuesday, July 30th at the South East Test Farm of the Ohio Experiment Station will have an unusual opportunity to see and hear much of value to their industry. At that time the sixteen flocks composed of fine wool breeding ewes and their offspring which have been on a continuous experiment for the last five years may be viewed at the most effective stage of their development.

Mr. E. S. Bayard, who directs the Editorial policy of the farm papers in Ohio, Pennsylvania and Michigan, will speak on "Shorn and Ohio Agriculture." C. R. Arnold will discuss "Trends in the Sheep Business," and L. A. Kauffman will tell about "Better Farm Sheep Practices."

Those who plan to attend this special Sheep Day should bring a picnic lunch. The South East Test Farm is located at Carpenter which is a small place without lunch facilities for any number of people. The maple grove, however, at the South East Test Farm is an ideal picnic ground. Why not make this occasion an instructive day outing for you and family? Plan now to attend. You are at all interested in sheep and will not interfere as the sheep are on a well graveled road.

MARKET PRICES FOR POULTRY

A dead hen on the poultry market is worth more than a live hen eating her rations every day, and laying no eggs to pay for the rations. Especially is this true just now, when poultry prices are good, and the usual summer slump in egg production is beginning.

Calling laying flocks in July is the method prescribed for obtaining steady egg production through summer and fall, according to R. E. Cray, extension specialist of the Ohio State University here.

Egg farmers will do a more profitable business if they maintain egg production through the summer and fall seasons, culling the "loafers" from the flock and sending them to market as meat.

"The average poultry flock slumps badly in production during summer and fall, with the result that the large markets are short of fresh eggs," says Cray. "The problem of the poultrymen is to maintain only the layers, and do away with the others."

"The non-layers are identified by their withered, dried, and shrunken combs, their yellow-pigmented beaks and feet, and by the fact that they usually moult early. Such birds are often inactive, sluggish, and fat."

"The heavy egg producer has a brilliant red and full-blooded comb, a faded and colorless shank and beak, and retains her plumage well into the fall."

DEPUTY BEDELL CRIES

IMPROVEMENTS UNDER WAY AT OHIO STADIUM
COLUMBUS, O.—The Ohio Stadium is being further improved this summer. Workmen are even now engaged in tearing up the cinder track that has been in use since the Buckeye plant was first built in 1922. This track has been the scene of world's as well as of intercollegiate records.

The improved drainage system that is to be installed and the new surface are expected to be of great advantage next spring when the Ohio speedsters once more get into action. New rails are to be placed along the track and the telephone wires, used at the Ohio Relays and other big meets, are to be placed in underground cables. New flooring is to be placed on the runways to facilitate drainage.

Plans are being completed for improvement of press accommodations. The two press boxes that have been in use will be replaced by a newer, longer one on the west side of the field. Heat, rest rooms, and other comforts will be incorporated in the new layout.

A topographic survey is to be made this summer of the 294-acre golf course site recently contracted for by the athletic department. Since this course is to be paid for and constructed out of athletic receipts, it is not expected to be in operation for two years at the least.

LIVESTOCK ON INCREASE
Ben Brumley, of McComb, Ohio, President of the Producers Cooperative Commission Association, of Cleveland, Ohio, in a recent statement concerning the business handled stated that this farmers' company has shown a remarkable increase in truck business during recent months.

A report for the first six months of 1929 shows that the increase in truck cattle was 65 1/2 per cent, over the same period last year. Calves increased 56 per cent, hogs 77 per cent, sheep 105 1/2 per cent.

The increase in total head handled was 30 per cent while the increase at the yards was 28 1/2 per cent.

Brumley stated further that farmers in the Cleveland territory report the radio market that is given direct from the Producers office at the yards, is highly satisfactory and profitable.

He also stated that cooperative livestock marketing has shown a big increase throughout the entire state, both from the standpoint of the amount of live stock handled as well as the number of farmers marketing their live stock in this manner, and that the future as a whole looks unusually good.

SOME TOWNS, LIKE TRUCKS, GET STUCK IN THE MUD

There is something about the building of a highway that is, to me, as a magnet to steel. When driving through the country, a "Road Under Construction" sign is a near command to drive around the barrier, and learn if the notice is telling the truth.

There is something majestic and awe-inspiring about the laying of a ribbon of concrete across a plain, through the valleys, or over the hills. Perhaps it is not the actual construction as much as the value of what the completed work will be to the communities it will serve, wondering if those it will benefit will take full advantage of the opportunity.

The paving of a country road is an epoch in the life of the area through which it passes, for it marks the passing of the old into the new, and to me, a changing from the old order of things is always of interest.

Last fall, while making what has been spoken of as a "clinic journey," I obtained permission to drive a twelve-mile strip of newly-laid concrete through the Palos Hills country in Illinois. It was a beautiful roadway in a beautiful country, and I could but marvel at the thoroughness—the perfect contour of this "sidewalk for motor cars" to hillside, vale and woodland—it was perfect.

Some miles from the convergence of this roadway with the main arterial highway, a large force of workmen with a score of dump trucks were making a fill. Trucks loaded with loose earth came from both directions; systematically they swung to the edge, half circled to the center of the paved mass, then backed; a whistle blew, the truck stopped, the dump body tipped as the end gate opened; another whistle, and the truck moved out and on up the road. For an hour I watched them as like giant ants they came and went, filling the hole that was bad for the highway.

Then something happened. A monstrous truck, very heavily loaded, backed up too far, went off the pavement and down the embankment, settling deep in the wet, loose, spongy loam. It was STUCK—no doubt about it! A loud whistle blew—the truck stopped, the dump body tipped and returned to the fill; inbound trucks drew up in a line. Chains rattled as each hitched to the tow—a workman slid down in the truck in the mire, attached a chain thereto, and a whistle blew thrice. At the first whistle, all trucks moved forward taking up the slack, at the second, gears meshed into low, at the third, every clutch of every truck was engaged, and without jump or jerk, all, as one, moved forward, steadily, surely, until the stuck truck was back on solid pavement. There was no fuss, dissension, excitement or bluster—all of the trucks pulled, NONE was standing at the side of the road, idling, watching or shouting advice; all pulled in the SAME direction at the SAME TIME.

The moral is plain. If your town is "stuck"—if it isn't moving forward, gather 'round, everybody, hook on, get a sure "hitch," then PULL TOGETHER—in the same direction.

This Town Doctor Article is published by The Advertiser in cooperation with the Lions Club.

Did you ever know a fat man who was out of work?

A good EXAMPLE is more effective than a sermon.

Nothing rises to the surface quicker than a complaint.

Pleasure butts in even where everything is supposed to be business.

I can't think of anything more futile than an argument about a historical date.

Playing your first game of golf is equivalent to having your salary garnished for the rest of your life.

A business man succeeds in proportion to his ability to satisfy the desires of his customers.

It is commonly held that poets, artists, composers and writers should have all their time free for creative expression.

It is considered a shame if a Walt Whitman is compelled to earn his living as a structural iron worker, or an Edgar Allan Poe is forced to spend seven hours a day in a bank teller's cage.

The assumption is that these men would do more and better work if they were freed from the necessity of earning a living by ordinary labor.

The consequence of this attitude is that as soon as a stenographer has sold a sketch for $20, or a linotype operator has had a sonnet printed in the New Masses, they quit their jobs and devote all their time to making pictures and writing poetry. Most of them earn far less money than they would.

Of the list of those States which had a gasoline tax in 1928 the State of Ohio stood first with a consumption of 560, 631,000 gallons. California which headed the list with 1,017,618,000 in 1927 went but 101,404,000 in 1928. Illinois, Massachusetts and New York had no gasoline tax in 1928.

At the coming in of the year 1929, 207,231 unprotected main highway grade crossings existed in the United States, according to a compilation made by the Interstate Commerce Commission, at which 2568 people were killed during 1928.

With a motor vehicle registration of 24,493,124 there were 124,932 motor fatalities in the United States in 1928, or 102 per cent of the automobile registration.

HOG CHOLERA HELD IN CHECK

COLUMBUS—Hog cholera is no more prevalent now, generally, in the United States than it was a year ago when losses from this cause were comparatively small in contrast to those of preceding years.

Ohio is one of nine states which have reported slight increases in the disease, federal veterinary officers have informed the university.

Upon the fact that more spring pigs have been immunized against cholera this spring than were so treated last spring, the government veterinarians have a rather optimistic forecast for the year. However, they point out, hog cholera becomes more prevalent in September, October and November.

In a general survey of the principal hog-raising states, the government has discovered that there has been, thus far this spring, a well marked decrease in hog cholera in five states, no appreciable difference in six states, a slight increase in nine states and a considerable increase in four states.

THE AMERICAN FLAG

By Rev. G. R. Mente, Ph. D. Shiloh, O.

We hear a great deal today about American Constitution, its liberties, its freedom, but very little about America's wonderful flag; but right here the question might be asked: What constitutes an American Citizen? Having been born across the seas and having taken out Naturalization papers, so called, does not by any means make me an American; knowledge of our language, ability to quote the Constitution, even the oath of allegiance is not sufficient to make me an American citizen; a knowledge is required of that wonderful story emblem: THE FLAG, CALLED OLD GLORY, that emblem of universal brotherhood, whose charms call together beneath its folds the sons and daughters of all nations.

On the other hand, the person born on America's soil does not of necessity understand the true meaning of citizenship. More is required than a simple claim by inheritance. To know how and when to salute the Flag, ability to sing "My country 'Tis of Thee, is by no means conclusive evidence of true Americanism. The true spirit of patriotism clusters around the flag for which the Flag stands. The 48 world nations carry their banners in the line for protection of the Divine right of King—America's sons rally around the Flag in the name of the divine right of the common people, as outlined by the fathers of long ago. Never shall I forget when a good 50 years ago with hands raised in the air, that emblem of freedom in the town of Worcester, O., I vowed to make that flag mine for "ready to lie down in a coat of blood and today the heart beats just a little quicker when the glorious emblem of freedom is displayed. While travelling in foreign lands, or visiting loved ones across the ocean, the sight of the stars and stripes has ever added thrills to the heart beats. How anxiously we would watch the display of Old Glory, as we were near shore, and how the refrain of the song America for me, would make us feel proud, for it was indeed: "So the home ground, America for me, and my heart is turning home again, and there I long to be.

To the blessed land of room enough beyond the ocean bars, Where the air is full of sunshine and the flag is full of stars. How sad as we notice that the very fundamentals of this glorious Flag seem to be perished in the mad rush of this age of Commercialism. We must get back to the underlying truths of the sacred emblem of Freedom, that Flag of our fathers, and see that they are deeply impressed upon our day and generation, for the youth of today will be the citizenry of tomorrow. Let us diligently teach our children to keep ever sacred a heirloom of our heroic deed, which tells its story of sacrifice must be Loyalty and promote universal brotherhood among our citizens.

Let us last Flag Day to see so few flags displayed, taking the motto back to the struggles of the Continental under Washington who purchased our freedom with his blood, it points to Gettysburg, recalling the offering of the boys in blue who went forth under the refrain: And we rally round the Flag, boys, rally once again! It makes the blood tingle as we follow Roosevelt and his brave boys up San Juan Hill or witness the raising of the Star and Stripes over Manila's fortifications by our heroic sailor boys under Dewey. It makes the heart mellow as we see the shadows of the White Houses, row by row on Flander's Fields, when our brothers in khaki said: They shall not pass, and thus saved the world for Democracy! So this Flag carries a message from the past. REMEMBER, for what might have happened if our fathers, brothers sons had not been willing to follow the flag, nobody can tell. And while I love to think of the day when war shall be no more, it is well until that day dawns to teach our own people and the world at large to have respect for our emblem of freedom and liberty, and let us be ready to defend it against any foe. But there is another message from the story of the Flag: Watch, for if it is with a great price that we purchased our freedom, you will agree with me that it will require a corresponding price if we shall continue to enjoy our blessings. Therefore remind the coming generations that while we call-upon them to remember the struggles and heroic deeds of those who left us this Flag as a heirloom, that it requires continual watchfulness, the Stars and Stripes shall continue to wave over the land of the free and the home of the Brave.

TEMPER ART URGE WITH THOUGHT OF USE

When the artistic urge of the home maker takes the form of a desire to make lamp shades, it will be well for her to reflect upon the purpose of the lamp for which the shade is being manufactured, say home furnishing specialists of the agricultural extension service of the Ohio State University.

"If the lamp is to be used for reading," says Miss Anne Biebricher, "the shade should be of a size and shape which will permit the rays of light to fall far enough to cover the book. This shade can have a flare.

"For general illumination, a diffused light is to be preferred to a bright light. A shade on such a lamp may have straight sides. A shade should protect the eyes from brilliant light but should allow the radiation of rays for the proper distance, depending upon the purpose of the lamp. Fan-fold shades do not look well on many lamps, and should be selected cautiously. A lamp shade should be deep enough to cover fixtures on the lamp, yet should not appear too heavy."

HOME CHERRY CANNERS

ARE OUT OF LUCK

Home cherry canners are out of luck. It's just too bad for them.

Demand for cherries from packers in Norwalk territory is so great that most of the fruit has been sold to them on the trees. The packers hand over checks in payment to the growers and that is all there is to it for the grower. No picking, no buying, or boxes or crates, and no shipping expense. Big city packers are paying growers at the rate of seven cents a pound for cherries on the trees. Inasmuch as a quart box of cherries weighs nearly two pounds, it can be seen that the packers are paying more than the average housewife cares to pay. The boxes cost about two cents each, the crates cost more and pickers get about three cents a box. It can be seen that the packers are paying 15 cents or more a quart and the growers do not have to fuss and fume about having their cherries marketed.

One of several things is likely to happen to the cherry pie enthusiast. He may do without, he may be forced to take a smaller piece or he may have to pay more, all of which is very disconcerting to say the least.

The early Richmond crop in the Norwalk district is bigger than was expected, although below normal. But the Montgomery, regarded by many as the King of the sour cherries, is scarce this year, because just as he was about to get a good start, a frost or something else hit him a hard wallop.

Most of the cherries taken by the packers are rushed to Cleveland to be pitted and frozen. Fruit handled in this way keeps well high perfectly and retains the natural delicious flavor, even if kept frozen several months.
