

SCHOLARSHIP CONTEST HELD FOR SENIORS

On April 19 there will be 7,000 high school seniors working for four hours on a test made up of significant content in mathematics, history, science, the world today, and English. These 7,000 seniors are the seniors who have been chosen by their respective schools. The schools were instructed to take into consideration not only scholarship but desirable attitudes and future promise. No doubt, a majority of them will be the students that any campus desires. These students who stand highest among this number will have a background of preparation that will make them very desirable college students.

The Department of Education with the cooperation of the county superintendents will give certificates to those students who rank in the high twenty per cent in each county. The State Department of Education with the cooperation of each of the five institutions will give certificates to those who stand highest among this number in each of the five districts. The State Department will issue certificates to those who stand in the upper five per cent in the state. These certificates will not only be acceptable to the students as a mark of distinction but will have a very wholesome influence in creating greater respect for scholarship endeavor.

In addition to the certificates, there will be a number of scholarships awarded to those who stand among the highest of the 7,000. A number of scholarships have already been provided by Ohio colleges and universities. It is doubtful, however, that the number will be greatly increased before the state awards are made on May 10.

Each scholarship is granted with the following provision: that the institution is obligated until the expiration of the scholarship to maintain the student at the same standard of work and conduct himself in a respectable manner.

Scholarships covering tuition for four, three, two, and one year periods are being provided.

May 1 Last Day For Listing Personal Tax

The listing of personal property for assessment began Monday of this week. Taxpayers have only until May 1, 1930, a shorter period than in previous years, and therefore no time should be lost in seeing the assessor, who is Dan Clark, in Plymouth.

Besides forfeiting the $100 exemption penalty of 50 per cent is attached for those who are late. Blanks may be secured at the trustee's office, afternoon during the week, except Monday.

Mr. Clark also states he will be in the office Saturday morning to accommodate those unable to come during the week.

PERU BOY YET MISSING BUT MAY BE IN WEST

Although one month has elapsed since the death of Robert Manlett, and the strange disappearance of Walter Wilhelm, authorities have not the slightest clue of suspicion as to the whereabouts of the two boys.

The theory has been advanced recently that young Wilhelm may have gone to some western state, Nebraska, where relatives and friends of the family are living. It is said that the boy has been seen in the vicinity of that part of the U. S. and may have traveled westward.

Sheriff Harry D. Smith, who has been in close touch with the situation has obtained no information which would lead to the discovery of the boys.

On March 16 the body of the Manlett boy was found in the Potomac River, about 25 miles from the city. The two boys who were constant companions, had been target shooting.

It is thought that an accidental shot may have ended the victim's life. The shock of the death may have sent the boy away, and after he has recovered from the fear of returning, and realizes the state of affairs, his return is expected.

Pilgrims Win: Expect Victory Friday Night

The Plymouth Pilgrims were defeated by the Willard track team in a meet held there last Friday. Plymouth copped only six firsts to Willard's twelve, allowing the foe men to go victorious with 72 points to our 24.

Seeing these trackmen once exhibit their metal, proves that they will shine again soon, and one setback should not discourage them. There are some very promising men being timed and our standing in the meets should not be the lowest.

The following are the first place winners for new P. H. S. and the events in which they won:

Long—brood jump. Brigg—500 yd. dash. There will be a triangular meet at Shelby, when the Plymouth team will journey there on Friday, April 18, to compete against the neighboring competitors and against Ashland. The meet will begin at 3:00 p. m. promptly.

Public's Attention To Be Focused On The American Boy

The object of Boy's Week, which is to be observed in Plymouth the week of April 26th, under the direction of the Lion's Club, is divided into two statements.

The object as stated positively is to focus public attention upon the boy as one of the World's Greatest Assets by making the nation think in terms of boyhood, to interest every one in boys, to interest boys in themselves and to emphasize fundamentals in character building for citizenship.

Not to provide a week's holiday. Friday afternoon through the Rotary Club in New York City in 1920. Since then it has grown in interest and spirit until it is observed in every part of the world. The progress and growth of this plan makes possible the exchange of ideas and ideals and furthermore it makes ideals real with men and for boys.

National Boy's Week has its headquarters in New York City in the United States in Chicago, with Walter W. Head, as chairman.

It is made in the handbook which can apply to the work in its entirety. The job is not to make life easier, but to build men stronger.

WILLARD M. E. CHURCH FAST REDUCING DEBT

The Willard Methodist Church is conducting a pre-Easter financial campaign to reduce its debt. The church is in the building debt. A goal of $2,500 has been set.

The meeting will start at 10:00 o'clock A. M. and in the forenoon Mr. Riee will talk on the starting of Flower Garden. Mr. H. H. Klink of Sandusky will discuss Flower Exhibits. At 1:15 P. M. there will be a discussion of Better Laws by County Agent A. G. Hummon, followed by an illustrated lecture on Home Beautification by Mr. H. H. Klink.

All indications, judging from the census reports from Chicago, show that the American village may soon follow the path of the little school house, and become a place to hold picnic.

Figures from eight states in the district show a decrease of 5 to 10 per cent in population, state that over 90 per cent of the small towns showed a decrease in population. The decrease is not a new phenomenon, but is a long term trend. At least Plymouth, if suffering at all from a reduction, has not been reduced 50 per cent, and there is yet hope. Increases, usually, are less than the normal birth rate.

In Michigan and Ohio a decrease of 20 per cent in population has been recorded up to date. One male in Illinois was entirely abandoned and reared by his mother. The total population will probably show an increase, but will be found in the large cities and suburban districts.

"Motor transportation, good roads, pictures in the larger cities, and the broad view conveyed to farmers and villagers by radio and newspapers are said to account for the population shift."

A more detailed suggestion is that the farmer, satisfied on his good road, with a radio, highways into the large cities, adequate centralized schools, modern equipment, does not care to retire from the city into a small town. Rural delivery of mail and merchandise does away with the need to go into town for supplies.

The village doctor may suffer a setback, for the convenient means of transportation lessen the former patients to the specialist in the city. The village inn is not needed for no two reasons. First, it is no longer a necessity for a stopping place. The tourist camp is a stiff competitor to the small town hotel.

The village smithy long since passed out of active existence although there are still one building where the farm horses can be shod.

In direct opposition to this theory is the one that the large square in metropolitan city will be broken into small groups and the manufacturing companies move into the small towns and suburbs.

TO HOLD ECONOMICS BAKE SALE SATURDAY

Time: Saturday, April 19th, 1 p. m. Place: Brown and Miller's Hardware Store.

Come, candy and your cakes, pies, rolls, candy and Easter eggs on our table.

The proceeds are to be used to start a fund for furnishing the Model Dining Room in the Home Beautification Department of the High School.

Opinions expressed under this column are those of the advertiser, not of The Advertiser.

The prospects of a white way lighting system around the square is very dim. To expect the property owners around the square to stand and watch their property in such conditions is expecting too much. Small towns are barely holding their own and taxes are already high.

We have all helped to build up the municipal lighting fund and the lighting system proposed will in no way cripple the operation of our Board of Public Affairs.

Modern lighting systems are found in practically all small towns of the West and easterners are impressed by them. Go ahead and put in the new lights and everyone will be pleased when they see the difference.

VANDALS ENTER TRAUGER SCHOOL AND DO DAMAGE

For the second time in two weeks the Trauger school, located southwest of Plymouth, on the Ervin road, has been molested by intruders and the windows broken out.

Six panes were discovered to be destroyed when Mrs. MacCullough opened the country school last Thursday morning. County officials have found to clean except a hat, purchased from a Mansfield dealer.

Mr. McCullough, after discovering the broken glass and empty bullet holes on the school room floor, immediately called County Superintendent Kern. Sheriff Hamlin and Davis of Mansfield took charge of the investigation.

The bullet holes in the glass were made by a 32 caliber revolver. Several good bullets were found outside of the school on the grass, three holes were drilled in the school wall, and one was discovered in the ceiling.

As the school had only recently purchased articles and the shades were practically new, the loss is keenly felt by both students and teacher. The three windows were located on the south side of the building.

Mrs. McCullough, who has been teaching at the Trauger school for three years, discovered the broken windows two years ago. The depredations were traced and were found to be the work of a boy who confessed doing the deed with air rifles. They stood the cost and avoided being sent to a corrective school.

The first, second, fifth and seventh grades are taught this year in the school. There are twelve pupils enrolled. Authorities hope to identify the person responsible for the damage by the end of the week. Nothing was missing from the school building.

Hacker roomed at the Tourist's Inn, and at one time worked for the State, trucking. He originally came to Plymouth from the place named, but he had been in the county jail until the case is heard by the court.

Will The Small Towns Vanish?

Will Plymouth gradually shrink and eventually sink into oblivion, becoming only a name of the past? "When you see a grand old house, there are one to be one of those old-fashioned little towns down there, the kind you don't see any more," will be said of our little village when our grandchildren fly from one metropolitan center to another.

All indications, judging from the census reports from Chicago, show that the American village may soon follow the path of the little school house, and become a place to hold picnic.

THE P. H. S. LIST

Published in the Interest of the Plymouth Public Schools

A DRAMATIC CRITICISM

OF THE 1930 OPERETTA
The Operetta "College Days" which was presented by the Glee Clubs of Plymouth High School showed much ability and musical talent among the students.

The characters were well chosen and had their parts well prepared. Correl Scott is to be congratulated for his musical talent which was pleasingly shown. Ruth Fennel also showed much musical ability. Huldah Davis acted the part of the emotional student to perfection. Robert Baitell was very good in his part as president of the college. Elouise Shaver and James Shepherd were very natural as college students. The other characters were also well fitted for their parts, especially Harry Long as the college dude.

The choruses contained much action and musical ability. The color scheme lent a very pleasing effect. The director, Miss Fennel, deserves much credit for her coaching ability. The cast expressed their appreciation by presenting her with a basket of pink roses.

We are extending our thanks to the orchestra which consisted of Miss Dorothy Straub, pianist; and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schreck, playing saxophone and violin.

Another interesting feature was the selections by the male chorus which included James Shepherd, Harry Snyder, Don Elmsel, David Bachrach and Millard Hale.

WHY STUDY BOOKKEEPING?

Some say that very few students, who take a course in Bookkeeping in High School will ever take it up as an occupation. This is doubtless true. But a course in Bookkeeping will prove to be a valuable asset to everyone regardless of occupation. A course of this type enables one to become familiar with the handling of checks, notes, drafts and other business papers that one must use in modern everyday life. Business terms and forms cease to be vague and mysterious. A Bookkeeping course enables one to care for his or her personal transactions in a business like manner which will grow to be a saving of immense value. A knowledge of business will result in the betterment of society, and efforts towards the advancement of society are always readily fostered.

To enable the Bookkeeping students to acquire the maximum benefits of this course some bookkeeping desks are needed. At present there are sixteen enrolled in first year bookkeeping, and we have eight desks to accommodate them. This shortage necessitates the use of some old tables and ordinary school desks. The School Board, although willing, is unable to obtain this equipment on account of limited funds. The Commercial Club, which consists mostly of students of this department, has taken upon itself the task of securing the needed desks. Whether they do this will depend upon the patronage of the people in the community.

PRODUCTION AND DISTRIBUTION

The production of all luxuries, commodities and necessities of life is one of the greatest enterprises today. Distribution is next. Producing the article or thing wanted is the first thought. If each individual produces each and every thing he needs the thing he needs, the cost would be very high. Man could barely pay for the cost of the necessities of life, considering the position he has in life today. He would have to spend all of his time in producing the things he wants. Man has to spend part of his working hours in increasing his social position. The rest of his time he uses to build his home and body. If one man or a group of men provide better ways of producing articles and employ others to make a certain part of it, the cost of production for that man and all the rest of us will be cheaper and more can be produced for the money. The production of water by the city is easier done and costs less than the individual can get it himself.

After production, distribution is the question. The distribution of the article or articles, man needs or wants is also valuable. He must go get the thing he wants or needs whether it is several feet or several miles, more or less. It costs a man money to get what he needs and take it to the place he can use it. If several individuals go together and distribute the products or articles needed and sell them to the rest of the people, the cost to each individual will be less than what he can afford to do it himself. The distribution of water from the reservoir to the individual by hand is heavier in price than it would be by piping it to his house and using mechanical force. Therefore "Time is Money" in the business world of production and distribution.

A REVIEW OF THE P. H. S. ART EXHIBIT

The people of Plymouth had the privilege of viewing the works of the world's great artists, April 16, at the High School Auditorium. Such artists as Raphael, Rembrandt, Millet, Whistler, Bonheur, will be represented by their most outstanding pictures, most of which are in the Public Art Galleries of this country and in Europe, or are privately owned by people of great wealth.

Many of the originals are valued at thousands of dollars each, but modern methods of reproduction has made it possible for every one to own a good reproduction for a small amount of money.

Some of the pictures represented in the exhibit are "Disgrace and Impudence," by Sir Edwin Henry Landseer, who possessed a remarkable degree of excellence in depicting animal expression in his works. (Landseer's pictures are mostly owned by the British government.) "Can't You Talk," by G. A. Holmes.

The picture shows the simplicity of childhood and its great faith in material things. "Angels," by Millet, a French artist, shows in a striking way the social and religious life of the French peasants of the 19th century. "Planting Potatoes," also by Millet, shows the dress and surroundings of the French peasant. "Reading from Homer," by Laurens, is one of the world's favorites, and shows the customs and environments of the Greeks. The original picture "Helping Hand," is one of the prized possessions of the Corcoran Gallery, Washington, D. C. It is the work of the French artist, Emile Renou, and shows in a beautiful way the desires of youth to imitate adults. "Sir Galahad," by Watts, "Age of Innocence," by Reynolds, "At the Beach," by Israels, "Signing of the Declaration of Independence," by Trivett, are all masterpieces and works of real genius.

The exhibit included many other famous pictures besides those listed above. Also a program was furnished by the members of the P. H. S. Art Club, and representatives from the Culver Art and Frame Co. of Westerville, Ohio. The program included short lectures on the various pictures by members of the Art Club and the Musical Numbers and Readings was furnished by the Culver Art and Frame Co.

A Senior: "Dear Lord, I ask nothing for myself! Only give mother a new son-in-law."

"Have you been married," asked the Judge.
Mr. Derr: "Yes."
Judge: "To whom?"
Mr. Derr: "A woman."
Judge: "Of course it was a woman. Did you ever hear of anyone marrying a man?"
Mr. Derr: "Yes sir. My sister did."

Mr. Miller: "Sorry, old man, that my hen got loose and scratched up your garden."
Mr. Jenkins: "That's all right: my dog just ate your hen."
Mr. Miller: "Fine! I just ran over your dog and killed him."

THE LITTLE BIRD SITS AT HIS DOOR IN THE SUN

The picture that comes to my mind is that of a little oriole sitting at the door of its home sunning itself. It has just finished its dinner and is singing a beautiful song. The melody is that of a sweet warbling sound. It is happy because spring is here at last, and the sky is blue, the grass is green, and the sweet, smelling perfume of the flowers, is enough to make anyone happy. Finally with a sigh of content it nestled down in the door to have a nap until supper is ready.

Elaine Snyder

"THE PLOWMAN HOMEWARD"

"The picture that comes to my mind is of an old farmer just doing his last strip of plowing. He has to go across a railroad crossing and must wait for the train. The sun is setting. The red strip hides the beautiful blue of the sky which sends a little lighter cast of red which makes a purple color. After the chores are all finished he sits on his porch and enjoys a good smoke as he says to his wife, "Wonder if tomorrow will be a nice day."

In the moonlight the shepherds
Soft lulled by the rills,
Lie wrapped in their blankets,
Asleep on the hills.

The picture that comes to my mind is a shepherd lying asleep on the hills. A shrill, cold wind is blowing and the sheep are huddled together to keep warm. The shepherds are wrapped in their coarse woolen blankets, a staff beside each. The stars are shining bright and the moon is full. You can hear a low roar like a dog growling. It is the low rustling of the rills as they are rocked by the wind.

SPORT SHAVINGS

By Barber

Socrates or some other wisacre in Ancient History once remarked, "The end is not yet," and whether the old Smart Boy was speaking of polo or golf it matters not, but Babe Ruth feels as though the sentence was coined for his case alone, and derives much consolation therefrom.

But even Socrates failed to sum up the fact that after one has seen thirty-six blissful summers, one begins to feel the pace.

And, although the Bambino has been Big Chief Lam-em Mille' for about ten years, he must remember that even Babylon fell.

Not only that, but Babe's pedal extremities are becoming slightly weary.

Now that Roger Hornsby's 'heel' is on the bum, perhaps he'll try his hand at toe dancing.

To America, Max Schmeling may seem just another ham, but in his home town in Germany, he's the main cheese—and how!

So now the pilgrim trackster can claim a rating of 600. They polished off the Mansfield Reserves' track squad, but were pushed over by the rajiories of Willard.

But the score was only 72-50 and that wasn't so tough. Nine points were conceded to Willard because the Pilgrims lacked pole vaulters.

Down at Willard the multitude is spluttering about some fellow, who hopped the century 9.9 seconds. See us, if he can negotiate said distance within above time, all we have to say is well, well.

Vance Snyder found that he could top the hurdles and now he's going after 'em strong. The youngster took a second down to Willard in the High Timbers, in spite of the fact that it was his first attempt at hurdling.

And the Vagabond Gob continues to take first honors with his little discus.

We mean—er—ah—Mr. Thomas Webber of course.

Whereas Mr. Johnny Miller who resides at Willard may ramble the hundred in 2.3 seconds and toss a mean javelin, but Rabbit Long just can't wait, and didn't allow the fellow to out leap him. And as Willie Shakespear once growled in the heat of the moment "That (eventually) is that."

Then came the 880 yard relay. Well the Ole Pilgrim father—er that is—the pilgrim youngsters, simply slipped around the ole cinder path so fast that the rajiories refused to keep step and as a result—it was just too bad for Willard.

D'ye know that Helen Wills international tennis champion, is an up and coming young artist?

Lightning: I read yesterday that a school teacher was electrocuted.

Bugs: Tell me more!

Lightning: The paper said that Prof. F. F. Gooch was severely shocked by the—foul language of baseball fans.

"HELLO SISTER" PAINTS TRUTH ABOUT YOUTH

Olive Borden and Lively Cast Make Whoopie on Screen of Castamba Theatre.

Go no farther than the Castamba Theatre to learn what the boys and girls of today are doing when they are not at church—if ever.

The picture is "Hello Sister," is chock full of entertainment of a kind that makes the oldsters itch to turn back the hands of time, and the young ones wish they could be like Olive Borden, Lloyd Hughes, Norman Peck and Raymond Keane, the principal players in this rapid story of modern youth.

It opens right up with a wild house party. Jumps to a spiffy country club takes in rousthouses with plenty of whoopie, pictures a Church bazaar with a horse race thrill, stages a big singing and dancing number, and is what you might call brimming with action.

Everescent is brunette Olive Borden and her society gangsters who take their fun where they find it. And they have a story that gives them every chance. Miss Borden portrays a girl who, at her grandfather's death, is brought up with a round turn, and is told that for six months she must change her life if she wants his fortune.

She starts out to earn it, and then enters the man in the person of handsome Lloyd Hughes. What happens then is nobody's business unless you are sitting in the theatre and looking at this really entertaining photoplay. And do just that thing if you want to spend an enjoyable evening.

James Cruze, famous director, supervised the production which was directed by Walter Lang. They did a good job and had the good sense not to spoil a good story by having the principals break into song every scene or two with or without the slightest excuse.

P. T. A. POSTPONED

Frythian Sisters Temple No. 493 held its annual inspection April 2nd, with Mrs. Charlotte Beal of Shelby, O., as inspectors. She commented: "the temple on its splendid exemplification of the ritualistic work and gave a grade of 99."

Fifty-five members were in attendance and enjoyed a social hour in conclusion.

RAISING CELERY AND ITS PROBLEM IN CELERYVILLE

Celeryville, Ohio, is located three miles south of Willard, and six miles north-west of Plymouth, Ohio. There are in the midst of the celery district.

There are about 200 acres of the finest celery raised in the state of Ohio, allowing no exceptions. There is no celery grown in any other state that can compare with the quality and the flavor of that grown near Celeryville.

To grow a big crop of celery, large amounts of plant food are necessary. Usually about 800 lb. of muriate of Potash, mixed with 800 lb. of 20 per cent phosphate acid, is used on one acre, with a top dressing of Nitrate of Soda. The Golden Self-Blanching French strain is used, and the early plants are started about the 15th of February in the greenhouse.

They are then transplanted and, on the average, in about 14 to 16 inch square. The plants are then set out in the fields about the 1st of May, in rows 2 ft. 6 inches apart, the plants being four inches apart in the rows.

Celery blight is about the only disease the Celeryville growers have to contend with. To control blight the growers use a Bordeaux spray, in the dust form, or the Liquor spray, in the same form, 6-10 mixture. The cost of producing celery, is about $300 per acre and Willard.

The growers that have the Skinner Irrigation System, to irrigate the fields, are Wier Bros., Sharda Bros., Steven Cok, Henry Newmyer, John Burma, Frank Burma. The largest growers are H. VanZoo & Sons, 25 acres, Henry Newmyer, 22 acres, Holthous Bros., 15 acres, Weir Bros. 12 acres, Burma Bros. 12 acres.

There are thirty farmers in all, raising celery, with an average of from five to ten acres each. Most of the celery is trucked to market. Markets used are Columbus, Dayton, Springfield, Youngstown, Canton, Findlay, Lima, Marion, Mansfield, Sandusky, Massillon, Fostoria, Toledo, Cleveland, and Willard.

Usually you will find the celery workers in the fields at four o'clock in the morning, where they remain until a late hour at night. In harvest time the celery farmers do not get any more sleep than the law allows. There are always a few truck smash-ups every year.

When your nerves are all shot, eat more of the fine quality celery that is grown in Celeryville, and you will feel better and live to a ripe old age, still having a steady nerve—"for health's sake, eat more celery."

THE LAW OF THE CROSS OF THE CHRIST OF THE CROSS

Rev. J. W. Miller

A well known postulate of science is, that a higher law may overcome or supersede a lower. Gravity draws a piece of steel to the ground, while the magnet will overcome gravity and lift the steel from the ground. A miracle, in the Biblical sense, is not contrary to natural law, but is a higher law—the supernatural—overcoming the natural law.

The grace of the Cross of Christ, is not contrary to the potential of the universe, but is the full potential of the universe. It is the full and final expression of a Divine energy, not perhaps unrelated to the cosmic force, more marvelously than all, because it is the consummation of God's power in the highest and holiest reach of power. Down at Newark, Ohio, last summer, I found a rough boulder on the hillside. It was a blot upon the landscape, and the lowest form of elemental matter. The law of God came to that ugly and inert mass, borne by the wind and the rain, and said, "If you want to be something more than you are, you must give yourself up and be broken in pieces." The rock surrendered, and the power you do not understand and I cannot explain, transformed the rock into a nobler matter—it became soil.

By the side of the Licking River, I kicked the soil from my feet, dirty and clinging soil, but again came the law, saying to it, "If you would be more than you are, something finer than mere dirt, you must give yourself up." The soil yielded its life to the seed. The power you do not understand, and I cannot explain transmuted it into germinal plant life. I held the handful of seeds, in my hand, so insignificant that the breath of a little child could blow them away. The law comes again: "If you would be something better than you are, something larger and richer than little seeds, you must die. 'Except a grain of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but if it die, it shall bring forth much fruit.' The little seeds, broken, burst asunder, and the power you do not understand, and I cannot explain transformed those little seeds into a beautiful meadow. In that beautiful meadow, with its clover-play, and the sun making pictures through the clouds, while the wind caressed and kissed its waving beauty. The law came once more, "If you would be something better than you are, something higher in the scale of life than mere grass, you must yield up your life." The power you do not understand and I cannot explain transformed the meadow into animal strength, and it became cattle. The law still presses its high claim and says to the cattle, "If you would be something better than you are, something nobler than mere cattle, you must yield up your life." The power you do not understand and I cannot explain laid hold, and the life of the cattle was lifted up into the life of man, and became the strength of the farmers muscles, the vigor of the statesman's brain and the thrill of the poet's nerves.

The human being stands out at the peak of the creation. Only God is just above him, but the law of the Cross has not ceased. Christ came into the world and said to every man, "If you would be something better than you are, if you would mount the glory and become partaker of the Divine Nature, you must surrender to the Christ of the Cross. You must yield your life and all its submission to the Cross of the Son of Man." Wherever a human being hears that call, and comes and finds himself, without reserve, upon the crucified Christ, that supreme power you do not understand and I cannot explain, regenerates and gives him a spiritual manhood, which, in its range of life, is as high above the level of man, as are the cattle above the rock upon the hillside. This is the Law of the Cross of Christ; this is the good cheer of the Cross. It is God's best power to man and man's highest hope. It is not I who have written; it is not I who have sung; I am but a chord another has smitten. A chiming another has rung.

THE LIGHT OF THE CROSS

Rev. E. McGroom

For centuries the cross was an emblem of the utmost degradation and depravity. To die upon the cross was as shameful as the hangman's noose of today, and of course much more so.

But nineteen centuries ago, on a little hill just outside the walls of Jerusalem occurred a crucifixion, the memory of which has gradually changed the significance of the cross from that of shame to that of supreme glory. Today in every land under the shining sun the sight of the cross stirs within the hearts of men thoughts of the highest idealism.

Instead of being the emblem of the end of a life of selfish lust and greed, it is the token of unselfish sacrifice. This great change of import is not accidental but consequential. It was brought about, as all things in this universe are brought about, in accord with the law of cause and effect. For centuries that which life of man which yearns for expression and appreciation beyond the confines of the material and realm of the temporal, had been seeking a proper medium and mode of expression. The spirit within him, which differentiated man from the beasts about him, had striven incessantly in its effort to comprehend the nature of that being from which it has received its being. Jesus came teaching "God is Love," and commanding, "when ye pray, say 'Our Father'."

Men for ages had been struggling with the enigmas of life, trying to find the method by which he could get the most out of it. Jesus said "He that would save his life shall lose it, and he that will lose his life for me shall find it." What strange paradox was this? Ah—that is the secret of changed significance of the cross!

This same Christ taught that men's souls and life were of more value than all the riches of heaven and practice. That the loving Father wanted free spiritual children—not fettered spiritual slaves.

Such a doctrine of life was revolutionary, and in the case of every great revolution, whether it be political, material, or spiritual, its leaders must go the limit to prove to the world the soundness of its fundamentals. This one who declared "To lose life is to find it," was no exception.

Therefore, upon that hill outside the city wall, the Nazarene gave up his life; or to quote own words, "I lay down my life no man taketh it from me, but I lay it down, and because I lay it down I have power to take it up again."

The radiance of the cross then lies in the reflected glory of the Easter morn. The glorious significance of the death on Golgotha is that it was a free will offering to the eternal principal of eternal life through sacrifice. The real sacrifice there made was the seed from which sprang forth "The first fruits of them that sleep" in the person of the resurrected Christ on the first Easter morn.

With no risen Christ, the cross would still be only the slaves gibbet.

THE EASTER OF THE SOUL

Rev. A. M. Hines

Our meditation should be not on what the average person thinks of Easter but on the highest conception of it. High standards are never the result of averages. We are to think not of what it is but of what it should be.

For many, Easter is but a festival of the springtime. Joyousness is expressed by apparel and is in contrast with the drabness of the long winter. It is folly to argue that the name is derived from the heathen practices of our Anglo-Saxon forefathers. Names change in their use and meaning. It is fitting that Christianity should transform our words and give them new meaning as it has transformed our conduct and our thought.

Easter should be something more than a return to the brighter activities of living after retiring for a time for relaxation. There is an advantage in a season of meditation but that meditation should be upon our moral and spiritual condition, and should result in the joy of a happy solution of our problem.

We see in Easter the promise of an immortality of the soul. Sometimes we think of the resurrection as a type of the resurrection in nature. The apparently dead through the winter. Easter would thus be put a commemoration of the idea that as in nature the dead rises again so man is a creation of God and his seeming destruction in death but precedes a new life after death.

As an anniversary, the Christian Easter commemorates the Crucifixion of Christ as well as His resurrection. It is a memorial of the two great events of Christian History but it is something more than a memorial. It is to remind men that He was "the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world;" that his sinners were washed away in the blood that flowed from His wounded side. We observe Good Friday as the day on which He hung upon the Cross but by that Crucifixion He gave His life that we might live. We are quietly and humbly not because of sorrow at the greatest tragedy of history but because of our own unworthiness and sinfulness; because for our redemption the Son of God must suffer and die. The Resurrection Morn is more than the promise that we too shall rise again. It is the assurance that this sacrifice was acceptable with God and that He was indeed the Son of God. It is the assurance that as God would not leave His Son in the grave, so He will not leave man destined to an eternal death. As the life of the Son must be immortal, so the souls of those who live in Him must live forever.

EASTER, THEN, COMMEMORATES THE RESURRECTION OF THE SOUL

The Passover of the Jews has been exemplified in the Christian Passover. In one death angel passed by those homes in Egypt whose lintels and doorposts were sprinkled with the blood of the Passover lamb, so the angel of eternal death will pass over the souls of those who are sprinkled with the blood of the Lamb of God.

"For even Christ our passover is sacrificed for us." Therefore let us keep the feast, not with the old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth."

SPIRITUAL LIFE IS UNION WITH GOD

Prof. R. H. Miller

Whom God raised up, having loved the pangs of death because it was not possible that He should be held of it." Sin always enslaves: right living always makes free. Throughout the pages of the Book, this that is the message of the Christian life. In every place we read that he who sins becomes the bond servant of sin. Our lives are a continuous illustration of the fact. Whichever way we turn our freedom is restricted by the evil results of our misdeeds, great or small. If we abuse our bodies, the resulting physical disability hinders our freedom of action—we must remain indoors or bedfast when we would go abroad and revel in the freedom of God's great out-of-door world. The convicted criminal is restricted by prison bars from the enjoyment of freedom.

Equally striking is the exemplification of this great truth in the spiritual realm. Spiritual life is union with God; spiritual death is separation from God. Sin separates us from God and so results in spiritual death. Right living binds us closer to God and results in spiritual life everlasting. How fitting it is that He who lived the perfect life on earth and thereby kept in perfect communion with God could not be held by death itself but rose to life everlasting and continues the perfect spiritual union with God.

To the Voters of Richland County

I wish to announce my candidacy for the office of Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of this County to be voted for at the November election.

I have been in the active practice of the law in all of the courts of this and adjoining counties as well as the Court of Appeals, the Supreme Court of Ohio, and the United States District Court since 1897, with the exception of about three and one-half years spent in the Military Service, in the Spanish American War, the Mexican Border Disturbance and the World War, and I feel with this experience I am fully qualified to serve the public in this office.

It was my intention to seek this office twelve years ago, but on account of my absence from home in the Military Service on the Mexican Border and in the World War, it became impossible at that time.

I appeal to the Voters of this county to investigate my reputation and qualifications and if found worthy, may I have your support and vote as a candidate for the office of Common Pleas Judge

Respectfully submitted,

MRS. TUBBS RECEIVES LAST LETTER FROM MRS. HOWELL

Mrs. Frank Tubbs Receives Letter From Mrs. Howell Prior to Death.

Mrs. Lucretia Howell whose sudden death saddened the entire village wrote a letter to her good friend, Mrs. Frank Tubbs, just prior to her departure for the hospital. The letter is dated Sunday forenoon—April 6th, the same day she left for the Shelby Hospital. In it she says "she will be operated on the following morning and that it is just seven weeks since the other one. I am so worried and broken up over it and feel can never go through it all again, but am looking forward to perfect health and I surely hope happiness."

She then makes mention of her return from the Sunny South a year ago and the happy memories she retained from that trip.

Mrs. Howell asked that her friends both write and pray for her as she was far from her own people, and would be lonely during her stay at the hospital.

Mrs. Howell passed away Thursday night, her wish for perfect health and happiness never realized. Dearest sympathy is extended the bereaved ones.
