Doings in Congress

By Cong. WM. LEMKE

WHAT A HEADACHE FOR America! While the San Francisco Conference is playing power politics, under De Gaulle France, one of the "Big Five," is shooting up the Syrians. Britain, another of the "Big Five," threatens to shoot the French unless they stop shooting their barracks. To make things worse, Iraq demands that we, Britain and Russia get out of their country as agreed at Teheran. When British troops are withdrawn in Greece the "Communies" will overthrow that Government. Europe is seething with potential revolutions.

RUSSIA JUST GRABBED PART of Denmark. It politely informed General Eisenhower to keep hands off. It also informed the General not to worry about Vienna, that that was Russia's sphere of influence. United States Senators the Syrians and return of ators were advised by the Soviet that it was not advisable for them to take a look at Berlin, Poland, Finland, Lithuania, Estonia, Latvia, or other territory occupied by its troops. The Senators should remember that the sixteen Poles that were invited to Moscow have not been heard of since.

IN THE MEANTIME, THE SAN Francisco Conference has turned a deaf ear to the cry for justice from the smaller nations. Our delegation has been willing to put the stamp of approval upon the grabbing of other nations, and other nations' territory. A conference of appeasement rather than of justice.

THEN, ALONG COMES THE Russian Ambassador, and in effect, informs the world that unless the "Big Five" work together and permit each to grab what they want, there can be no world peace. The "Big Five" reserve for themselves the right to force of them to start World War III. They, however, deny this right to the smaller nations. But what if one of the "Big Five" starts the rampus? Then, what if the smaller nations not again be bulldozed into joining one or the other of the "Big Five" the same as in World War I and II?

ALTHOUGH THE EUROPEAN war is over, the Dove of Peace has not yet arrived. The rulers that ran away and left their people, are now determined to liquidate those who had the courage to stay. Poor old Britain, who did not desert his people, and who made our victory easier, is now to be tried for treason by those who deserted in the hour of danger. King Leopold, who stayed and suffered with his people—who made the best of a desperate situation—is also to be tried by those who ran.

HATRED AND VENGEANCE are rampant in Europe. The time has come when it is time to call a halt to needless bloodshed. It was our soldiers and our Generals and our material that won the war. It is our duty to inform the run-aways that the spilling of the blood of the brave and innocent, who made the best of a bad situation, must cease, that it is not compatible with a universal, just and lasting peace.

MORE GASOLINE!

TO MILLIONS of Americans the announcement that "A" coupons will hereafter be worth six gallons apiece was one of the most welcome pieces of domestic news which has come out since the war started. The shortage of meat, the difficulty of getting butter, eggs, cigarettes, clothes, tools and countless other things find out the background as we contemplate the enjoyment of a 50 per cent increase in motoring.

Of course our range of driving will still be very limited compared with the gasoline we consumed in normal times. And many of us will be handicapped by poor tires, worn out automobiles and repair difficulties.

And, most important, the increase will deal a major blow to the black market. With enough gasoline to do our errands, visit our nearby friends and go to church and the movies, and a selfish few will continue to buy extra gasoline through illegitimate channels.

17,000,000 DEAD

Accurate figures on the cost of our two wars, measured in human lives, may never be compiled—but the staggering figures already available paint a gruesome picture of the terrible blow to humanity which has resulted.

Estimates to date indicate that the total losses in life on battlefields has already matched the losses in the First World War when approximately 8,500,000 were killed—a total of 17,000,000 in the two wars. That does not take into consideration the millions of civilians who lost their lives in air raids, in concentration camps and through starvation and disease.

In addition, the number of wounded already is considerably greater than in the last war when over 21,000,000 received wounds. Total wounds for the two wars will probably total over 50,000,000 for all of the countries which have been involved.

Although the United States has played a leading part in both wars, our losses are small in comparison with those of many other nations. Our dead in the last war totaled 126,000 and have reached slightly over 200,000 in the present war.

HOW TO WIN FRIENDS and INFLUENCE PEOPLE

SUCCEEDS IN AIRCRAFT FACTORY

WANT to know how to get ahead if you work in an aircraft factory? Well, here is exactly how one girl did it. She is Margaret Peters of Kent, Ohio. She employed a principle in human relationships which you can employ, and which will not cost you a penny.

When Margaret got a job in an aircraft factory, there were about 20 girls employed in her department. They all did about the same kind of work, had about the same opportunities.

After she had been working there a while, a young woman named Brown was picked out of the other girls and promoted to a more important position. What happened? Well, the other girls who had been working alongside her immediately became jealous and said there was no reason why she should be upped when they hadn't been. Not only this, but they talked to her only when they had to, the rest of the time they kept their noses turned haughtily up, and made unkind remarks which the woman could overhear. Not a very nice situation, but that's the way it was.

At first, Margaret, being human, felt jealous and envious of Miss Brown's promotion. Then she said to herself, "Well, after all, she has some good qualities and I must not let my tongue run away with myself." So she became friendly with her and to her surprise found that Miss Brown was really nice.

Now after this first advance, it was easy to carry on in a friendly fashion, because she saw there was more to Miss Brown than to the other girls. So she asked Miss Brown to make suggestions about her work, and how she could improve it. Miss Brown was eager to show her; one reason was that this helped Miss Brown make a better showing in her department.

More work came in. The factory expanded. Miss Brown became more important to the company. She asked Margaret to work overtime and Margaret was pleased, for this meant more money.

Suddenly Miss Brown, who, by this time, was general inspector, was called for service in the Women's Army Auxiliary corps.

The foreman called Margaret to his desk and said, "You have been recommended to take Miss Brown's place."

Of course Margaret was delighted. Then asked, "Who recommended me?"

"Miss Brown."

So Margaret took Miss Brown's place at another increase in pay. The other girls who had been snooty to Miss Brown and who had criticized her were exactly where they started. Margaret got her advancement by not criticizing another person and by trying to find something good in her. And she did find something to admire. And today the two are good friends and Margaret is making more money than if she had let herself become envious and had criticized another girl because she had been promoted when she herself, hadn't.

LETTERS FROM OUR BOYS IN THE SERVICE

Mrs. R. Byron Griest received an interesting letter this week from her husband, Cpl. R. B. Griest, relating his literary and experiences. Cpl. Griest is a former member of the State. Censorship hereafter prohibited the publishing of plases and dates, but since V-E Day censorship has been lifted and we know our readers will be interested in his account. Cpl. Griest is a former member of the Plymouth high school faculty. The letter follows:

Hello Darling:

I've had another long chat with you. Last night I told you about my Riviera trip; tonight I will tell you about all we've done and where we've been since we left the states. Today we were told that our letters would no longer be censored. I have known for several days that I could tell about all we have done but am now just getting around to tell you.

It all goes back to when I saw you last—July 16, remember? I returned to Indianapolis Gap that day and moved from there by train to Camp Myles Standish just outside of Boston, Mass. This trip added three new states to my list, namely: Connecticut, R. I., and Mass. There we were processed as you already know. On Saturday, Aug. 6 we went by train to the Port at Boston and were put on the boat. How it was done I will tell you in detail when I get home. We spent the night on the boat, pushing off the next morning at 8 a. m. This trip took us until August 13 when we docked at Liverpool, England, coming around the northern tip of Ireland. We got off the boat the next afternoon and immediately entrained for a trip across England to Winchester where we arrived at 2 a. m. that night. Winchester Barracks was our home for the next five weeks, where we made preparations to cross the Channel. For me it was just a period of waiting, because we all knew what the next step was to be. September 9 found us rising at 4 a. m. and driving to Southampton where after many hours waiting we were again put on a ship. Our vehicles and all putting out to sea. We slept on the boat two nights and pulled up along Omaha Beach and docked the second night. Early the next morning they started to unload our vehicles onto barges and putting us ashore. Each driver went onto the barge as soon as his vehicle was placed there. It took a long time but long before dark we were all unloaded and in our bivouac area, a pasture field some three miles inland, where we spent the night.

The next day we drove by convoy to our new pasture field where we stayed until the middle of October. This was near Treviere, France. Omaha Beach was where one of the D-Day landings was made. However, when we arrived there there was not even a plane to hinder our landing. While we were stationed in that pasture field I drove a lot for the Chaplain and I got to St. Lo, where it is said to be the worst destruction in all Europe. Only houses around the edge of town were intact and some of them in bad shape. Then we traveled across France as I know it. I've told you before. On this trip we hit such cities as Carant, Le Mans, outskirts of Paris, Verdun, ending up in Piennee not far from Metz. After bivouacking there about a week, we replaced the 5th division and our location was in Jaunly. You have an address of some friends there. After about a week the 5th came back on the line and we were moved farther north, our position being Giramont, from which place we sat when the drive on Metz began. While there I made daily trips to Briey, some twenty miles away. It was getting cold, then, too. You have an address of friends in Giramont, too, which I sent to you. These people were Polish and had come to France not too long before. As the front advanced we moved into Metz for a few days but soon we moved to Boulay where we sat until the last week in January. Our division was just holding there. We spent Christmas and New Years there and this was indeed one of our finest places. We lived the best yet there.

We'll probably never know why, but in the last week in January we were replaced by the 26th division and were moved by vehicles to the Bulge area. This was a blood trip starting at 9:30 at night and ending at 11 in the morning. This is undoubtedly the coldest ride I've ever had in my life. The roads were covered with snow and I drove the open jeep all the way. We sat us down about four miles outside Bastogne in Magaret. This town exchanged hands from Americans to Germans etc. four times, so you can imagine what it is like. Usually there was but one room left to each house and it was in such a room that I lived there for four days. They decided that they didn't need us there and we left the Third army and entered the Ninth, setting down at Suxen, near Maestricht, Holland. We were in Belgium, however. The town was just a small farm town but we lived in a castle on the outskirts. You probably remember my telling you about it. And then after about two weeks of tomfoolery in Holland. Our station was in Zeelburg, near Einhoven and Helmond. This is where I learned to know my Dutch friends and had such a wonderful musical time. By the way, I'm sending some pictures of this family. When I see you, I'll tell you all about them. More, I should say. We returned to Belgium after less than a week and took over our old place. But it wasn't long until we joined the Ninth Army's drive to the Rhine.

We moved up to a town right outside of Julich and after that the advance was so rapid we again moved in two days to Krefeld. It was there that we had that swell hospital. I forgot to mention that we had a setup in Munchen-Gladbach for about 4 hours, and moved on into Krefeld. Then we were removed once more from the line of combat and were put through a training period in area about twenty miles from Munchen-Gladbach. Our town was Noithausen, across the river from Dusseldorf. Then we joined in the fight for the Ruhr pocket. We moved so rapidly and so many times that I scarcely remember myself. These are the moves in succession seven in all, in 12 days. Across the river to West to Ottomarsboch near Munster, Ahlen—the first city to be declared an open city in Germany. (There were twelve hospitals full of German soldiers in this town.) From Ahlen we moved to Beckum; from Beckum to Hamm; from Hamm to Aeseln near Dortmund. There we finished our drive and were then made into a government troops. We were moved farther east and set up in Bochenforde near Lipstadt. It was from there that I went to the Riviera and when I returned I found my unit near Recklinghausen where we are temporarily occupying. Our next move, rumor has it, will be into France where we will await our turn for shipment either to the Pacific or to the United States. You know how and what I'm hoping. Well, there it is in brief. Details will have to be told to you. If there is anything you want to ask me, so, as I'm free to talk about anything except movements to the Pacific. Once more I don't have to let others read what I write.

Yours forever and ever,
Byron

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Robinson received the following letter from their son Harvey, now at Okinawa:

May 17, 1945
Okinawa, Suina
Dear Mom and Dad:
I received your letter of April 22, and May 8 and was sure glad to hear from you again. It's the first in about three weeks, but I always say better late than never. I'm sure glad you received the lamp and ash trays. I was beginning to think they had got lost in the mail somewhere, and I'm glad you like them. They are pretty nice, I didn't have the stuff to finish them here, but I think Dad can fix that, don't you? I'd sure like to see Uncle Jess again. It's been a long time since I last saw him.

I haven't been sick or anything like that, just worn out and a little tired that's all. People get tired with no sleep don't they? Yes, the war in Germany is over but it's a long way from being over, over here. But I guess some people think this is a snap taking these islands. It isn't like walking on solid ground all the way like it was in Germany. No, I have a long time yet before I'll ever see the states again. We now get discharged on points. I and most of the fellows in this outfit have the same amount of points. I have only 49 and that isn't very many, although there are a lot of fellows in the army that don't have that many. They're discharging those that have 85 and over, and there are a lot of them. So you see, it will be a year, or may I say when the year is over I'll be coming home not until then.

You want my menu? Well, it's anything we have, or anything you have will be one hundred per cent better to what we are eating now, or have been in the last year, so you don't have to worry about that. You know what color I like, and that's blue serge. The last time I looked I was 5 feet 11½ inches tall, and still 30 inches around the waist. My pants are just a little longer than they used to be, I take a size 30-35 pants now, yes, they took some pictures of us like that and it could be like I'm big.

Well, Mom, I'll have to close for tonight. Will write again soon.

As ever, your loving son,
Harvey (Robinson)

Even after the sub surrendered, the officers of the Pillsbury who went aboard took a big chance as 14 booby traps were wired for its demolition and had they not been found in time, all would have been lost.

Enjoying Life

Pfc. George Hough writes his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hough this week that he has been having a seven-day vacation which he enjoyed with friends in London, England.

George has been near Augsburg, Germany, with the Seventh Army connected with Special Service and the Red Cross. For eight hours a day he works in the laboratory of the Red Cross and at night runs shows for the boys; in-between-times he develops pictures for many of his buddies, so he hasn't had any too much time of his own and was looking forward to his leave.

He also enclosed a number of pictures of himself taken near Hitler's hideout and several pictures of Hitler's Concentration camp showing the hundreds of human bodies piled high, to be cremated in the huge ovens. All of them had died of the inhuman treatment and the starvation and disease contracted while held prisoners.

MISS GERALDINE M. STEELE BECOMES BRIDE OF LT. W. L. FOSS

Geraldine M. Steele, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Steele, Willard, Ohio, became the bride of Lt. Warren L. Foss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Foss, of Farrington, Maine, Sunday, June 3 at 3:30 p. m. at Mt. Hope Lutheran church, Shiloh, Ohio, Rev. Henry Boehm, officiating.

Preceding the ceremony, Misses Barbara Ann Mitchell and John Feller of Oberlin Conservatory of Music, presented a program of organ and vocal music. Their selections were "I Love You Truly," "Carle Jacobs-Bond," "Gavotte," "Ch. Neustadt," "Because," "Guy D'Hardelet," "O Perfect Love," "Jos. Barbey," "I Love Thee," "Edward Grieg," "Wedding March," "Jacques Lemmens," "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin," "Richard Wagner" and "Wedding March," "Felix Mendelssohn, Bartholdy."

Ferns and a lovely arrangement of white orange blossoms formed the altar decorations. White lighted tapers held by two seven branch candelabra, one of which was placed at either side of the altar, furnished the illumination.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white marquisette gown made with fitted basque, long snug sleeves, ending in points over the hands and a deep ruffle of self material accenting the neck and shoulderline. The extremely full skirt was edged with deep ruffling as was the formal train of the gown. Her finger tip veil was attached to a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white flowers caught with a shower of white ribbon. Her only jewelry was a pendant of diamond and pearls belonging to her aunt, Mrs. Charles Lookabaugh.

The groom's gift to the bride was a locket and ear rings studded with rubies and diamonds.

Mrs. James Patterson, the bride's sister, was matron of honor and the Misses Jeannette Chapman of Plymouth, a close friend of the bride and Ernestine Taulbee, of Dayton, a former roommate were bridesmaids.

The gowns of the attendants were taffeta covered with net and fashioned similar to that of the bride's. Mrs. Patterson's gown was pink, she carried a bouquet of pink roses tied with matching ribbon. The bridesmaids in yellow and blue respectively carried bouquets, colors contrasting with the gowns. Flowers in pastel shades formed their hairdress. The same color scheme was carried out in the pew markings and church decorations.

Lt. Henry A. Johnston of Ulrichville, O., room mate of the groom acted as best man. James Patterson of Huron, O., brother-in-law of the bride and Richard Steele of Mansfield, O., a cousin of the bride, acted as groomsmen.

Mrs. Steele appeared at her daughter's wedding in a blue gown with white accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Immediately after the ceremony eight relatives and close friends of the family were received at the bride's home. Refreshments were served from a table catered with a three-tiered wedding cake topped with bride and groom figurines and floral arrangements. Lighted tapers in crystal holders were placed at either end of the table. Bouquets of flowers were used throughout the hour.

The new Mrs. Foss wore for her wedding trip, a melon colored palm beach suit with blue accessories. Her corsage was white gardenias.

Mrs. Foss is a graduate of New Haven High School, of the class of 1943 and has been engaged in government work at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, for the past two years.

Lt. and Mrs. Foss left immediately following the reception for Maine, where they will join the groom's parents for a brief visit before returning to their home in Dayton, Ohio.

He can't ask you now!

... He's an American hero. After fighting bloody battles in the Pacific, he was home on leave two years ago.

... You may remember seeing his picture. His name is John Basilone, Marine Gunnery Sergeant. He traveled all over America, urging every American to buy more bonds.

... He said: "You don't know—you can't know—how much it means to the boys out there when they hear the folks back home have just put another War Bond Drive over the top."

... They gave him the Congressional Medal of Honor and offered him a commission. He didn't want it. "I'm a plain soldier," he said. "I want to stay on."

... Well, he stayed a plain marine—like Joe and Bill and the fellows down the street. He can't ask you to buy bigger bonds during the Seventh. He was killed a few weeks ago on Iwo, just after he had led his assault team to the edge of an airfield we needed desperately.

... We can't let him and all our other fighting heroes down. Remember, last year we had two War Loan Drives by this time. The Seventh is our personal call to arms—two drives in one. That's why our quota is large. ... We must meet it—we will meet it—for the hero of Iwo—for Victory—for pride in America.

SHILOH NEWS

SON OF FORMER SHILOH PASTOR MAKING STRIDES IN RESEARCH

An important personage is always of interest to people, especially when connected with history-making in our community. A man who has made a fine reputation is Paul D. Crimm, M. D., who is a director and thoracic surgeon at Boonville tuberculosis hospital, Evansville, Ind. He is the son of Rev. H. H. Crimm, who was pastor of the Methodist church in Shiloh from 1886 to 1900. Paul started to school in Shiloh. His picture and a short article of his work was given in a recent issue of the Ohio Wesleyan magazine. "An article of Dr. Crimm's 'Surgical Treatments of Tuberculosis' was written for the December issue of the Bulletin of the National Tuberculosis Association."

ENGLISH BRIDE ARRIVES HERE

A brave and sweet little English girl, is fulfilling the old saying "Where thy shoe last week will go," and had come to the United States to cast her lot with her husband's people, Mrs. Theodore S. Crimm, and sixteen months old daughter Heather came from her home in Manchester, England, on the Thomas H. Barry, arriving at our shore last week. She is now at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith of Greenwich, a family that are well known in Shiloh. Mrs. Smith was born and reared in Shiloh and has near relatives known here. Her husband, Theodore, is better known as Ted. He is in the Army Air Corps and is now stationed in Florida. He was sent to England soon after the U. S. entered the war, and while there met and married Miss Dickie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dickie of Manchester. Her parents and two brothers are in Manchester. She reports a very pleasant crossing, although the weather was very rough part of the time and they were two weeks on the way.

We join the relatives in Shiloh in extending a welcome, and hope she will find real contentment and happiness in her adopted country.

INJURED IN FALL

Mrs. O. W. Kaylor was called to Saginaw, Mich., Thursday to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kaylor. Mrs. Kaylor had the misfortune to fall down the cellar steps while carrying a basket of laundry, and was badly broken elbow. Mrs. Kaylor from this place, will supervise the care of the sons.

SMALL CROWD

The smallest crowd in the history of Decoration Day observation in Shiloh, was present for the program on Wednesday. It was a fine day, the farmers were late in their work, and many of our citizens were at work in various places.

But it was an earnest group with hearts in harmony and sympathy for the occasion and the attention was unusually good.

Every one on the program gave their best, and the audience felt the heart of Mr. and Mrs. Crimm and expressed their appreciation.

Judge Cramer's address was well received. His manner was pleasing, his delivery good and clear and his subject material well constructed.

The well rounded bugle tones were by David Jones of Shelby.

SOLDIER NEWS

From Adelphi Jay Arnold C. S. of the U. S. Navy, comes some interesting information. Jay says he enjoys reading the Shiloh news, and he is glad for the boys that are able to get home. Jay was suffering from a very bad cold, but was on duty in the Pacific. He said it rained almost every day and the weather was not and uncomfortable. He said he would surely be glad to get out of that climate.

When Jay wrote his short letter to his Mom and Dad it was May 21, and the first anniversary of his ship, and they were celebrating with a big dinner. Jay and Arnold prepared the dinner and a menu card for each.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

TOM: "It's mighty nice to receive a compliment like you've just given us, Judge. We do take our responsibilities very seriously and try to do the right thing with everybody. In spite of it, we get criticized now and then."

OLD JUDGE: "I know... you've got to take the bitter with the sweet in times like these. Speaking of criticism, and I mean really unfair criticism, reminds me of the spirit beverage business."

FRANK: "How is that, Judge?"

OLD JUDGE: "Simply this... can you think of any other business in which the seller is responsible for what the buyer does with his merchandise? If a person eats too much cake and gets indigestion, the baker isn't blamed. Nor is the coffee merchant criticized if someone drinks too much coffee and can't sleep. But the seller of spirit beverages gets blamed plenty if one of his customers overindulges. Doesn't seem quite fair, does it, Tom?"

TOM: "Frankly, it doesn't, Judge. We've never looked at it that way before."
