HURON COUNTY FAIR BOASTS IMPROVEMENTS THIS SEASON

Many new improvements have been made and planned in preparation for the twenty-fourth annual Huron County Fair, Norwalk, Ohio, Aug. 27, 28, 29 and 30.

Mrs. Elfreda Crayton, fair secretary, reports that the grandstand has been given its annual overhauling. In addition, a new heavy fence has been erected along the outside edge of the race track and a new fence has been built around the infield.

In order to give additional space to the shows and 4-H Club exhibits and to lessen the congested condition in the large exhibition hall, a new building will be erected to house school and 4-H Club exhibits. A building formerly used as a cook house, will be moved to the lower part of the grounds to help house the large rabbit and poultry exhibits.

Mrs. Crayton also announced this week that plans are being made to enlarge the present grandstand. Fair officials had hoped to have this portion of the building plans completed by fair time, but due to labor and material shortages, the grandstand project may be delayed. The present stand has an estimated seating capacity of 1500. Bleacher seats erected at each end of the grandstand gives additional seating capacity.

NEW HOME FOR LEGIONNAIRES

Negotiations were closed this week which will give the Eret-Parsel Post, American Legion, a new and permanent home. The deal involves the purchase of the upstairs over the West Store and Tracy's Restaurant, on the west side of the Square.

The newly-purchased Legion home is now occupied by a pool room operated by Clyde Crawford and George Lippert. It is reported that the Legion will renovate back rooms upstairs and use these as headquarters, until the pool room lease expires. With the expiration of the lease, which has a year and a half to run, the entire second floor will be redesigned and furnished for the local chapter of the American Legion.

For several months the local chapter American Legion has been looking around for a permanent home, and news of the purchase of the new headquarters will be well received by the chapter's one hundred and four members. It is expected that the Legion will assume renewed activity in its organization, as well as sponsoring community projects.

Purchase of the upstairs quarters was handled by the finance and building committee of the Eret-Parsel Post, including G. H. Watts, Paul Russell, Frank Week and Paul Root. The deal was made direct with the West Store and Tracy's Restaurant.

The necessary legal work.

It is hoped to have a portion of the new quarters ready for occupancy some time in September. All meetings of the Post will be held here in the future. The chapter has maintained meeting rooms over Weber's Cafe for the past several years.

When the Legion holds its election of officers in September, there will probably be a home building committee appointed to handle all the details for improvement of the new home.

When tea first was brought to America, housewives did not know how to prepare it. They boiled it, threw out the water, and served the leaves, sweetened with sugar or syrup.

RETURNS HOME

Mrs. Doris Gooding, who has been the patient for the last two weeks at the Mansfield General Hospital, having undergone a serious operation, was removed to her home on North Street, in the McQuate ambulance.

POST CARDS mailed from the Victory Highway, Colorado, by Earl and Janice McQuate, state they travelled over this beautiful road U. S. Highway 40, and also visited a gold mine 1100 feet underground. Janice states she wouldn't let her. That's the story with gold mines... no generosity.

NOW MR. AND MRS. John Latus are vacationing on the other side of the country—they have been touring through Montreal, New Hampshire, Maine and mailed a card from Plymouth, Mass., where they bought a Plymouth paper (Plymouth, Mass.) of course.

R. J. PAGE, better known as "Tommy" Page, has been "cleaning" things up for the past forty-four years. He has established something kind of a record. Tommy first began his dry cleaning business in the Wyand building, upstairs, over the past Shift grocery store; moved from there he went to the Trauger rooms over the Kroger Store, and for the past thirty-four years has been in his present location. He began his 35th year there on last Thursday, August 8th.

ENJOYED A SHORT VISIT WITH

Cletus and Thurman Baker at the Plymouth Elevator Tuesday afternoon. They brought in some nice and give, and they were as good as I've ever seen. Long, white, well-filled kernels... just the kind that would be used in making "Mother's Quick Oats." The Baker's, a father and son combination, are doing a good job of raising a 150-acre, located south of town.

ED VANDERBILT IS RECOVERING

from a painful injury he received last week while working on a grain elevator at the Plymouth Elevator. Ed stepped on a long spike which ran well into the fleshy part of his foot, and he has been off from work since. Things are shaping up all right, though and Ed expects to be back at his job soon.

MR. AND MRS. I. H. Entler of Plymouth Route, are getting acquainted with their new collied dog, "Rex," which was received last Thursday from Washington, D. C. Rex is a K-9 dog, having served in the army overseas, since January, 1943, but now has his honorable discharge papers. His serial number is tattooed in his ear and is trained to attack, to sit, to stay and to heel, and is better perfect in all. While not vicious type, he is trained to obey and when told by a daughter of the Entlers to "Go get 'em" when going after the cows, the Entlers assure that the dog will not harm. The new dog replaces a former police dog, also named Rex, who died after reaching the age of 16 years. The Entler family is very proud of the new dog.

EVERYTHING went off beautifully at the Briggs-Fackler wedding Sunday evening until the bridal couple left the Presbyterian church. Their daughter, Jan, was suddenly turned into one of "chagrin" when they saw the large Fackler stock truck parked in the driveway at the church and placed under the hood. What memories it brought back to Dick (the groom), for it was the same prank he pulled when Betty Briggs and Quentin Squire were married so long ago. Wonder, too, how far they got before they discovered the "Just Married" sign which hung so cleverly under the rear of his car so that anyone passing by would see it. He would undoubtedly overlook it himself. More memories... for it was the same sign he had so painstakingly printed and placed in Plymouth at the wedding, how far they got before they stopped at a gas station the afternoon congratulated them—for what, they didn't know, until the sign was pointed out to the newlyweds. Whether it's chickens or pranks, Dick, they do come home to roost, don't they?

MEMBERS OF THE Community

Club are reminded of the picnic to be held at Mary Faye Park next Tuesday at 6:00 p. m. Bring a covered dish, sandwiches, and table linen. There will be games and contests. This should prove an interesting session, and it will probably be the last of the outdoor meetings. Won't you make an extra effort to come out?

DOUBLE RING CEREMONY UNITES IN MARRIAGE MISS JANICE ZANETTE BRIGGS AND RICHARD D. FACKLER

A very beautiful "all white" wedding uniting two of Plymouth's young people took place Sunday evening, August 11th, at the First Presbyterian Church when the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Briggs, Miss Janice Zanette Briggs, became the bride of Mr. Richard D. Fackler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fackler.

The double ring ceremony at 6 p. m. was read by Rev. H. L. Bethel, pastor of the church, in the presence of a large group of relatives and friends.

Guests were seated by the ushers, Mr. Carl L. Pollock, Mr. J. Whitney Briggs, Mr. Quentin Squire and Mr. Roger Miller.

The channel of the church was arranged with many baskets of white hydrangeas. A pair of seven-branched candelabra, other candelabra advantageously placed a lighted cross in pastel pink decorated with white lilies and with the soft twilight through the stained glass windows of the church furnished the illumination for the marriage.

Proceeding the ceremony as Mrs. Marie Guthrie as organist played, the candles were lighted by Mrs. Edna Rhine and Miss Arline Ford, friends of the bride. Their formal gowns were pink.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Guthrie who played "Bright Sonnet," "Sketch" and "White Orchids." She also accompanied Miss Mary Alice Weller who sang "I Love Thee"—Greig and "Love's Old Sweet Song."

The traditional wedding marches were used and during the ceremony Mrs. Guthrie softly played "Till the End of Time."

Following the bride were her attendants. Her sister Miss Margaret Eleanor Briggs was her maid of honor. She was gowned in white taffeta, with a very full net skirt, fitted bodice, round neck and cap sleeves. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Junior bridesmaids were Miss Mary Yvonne Lentz of Denver, Colorado, niece of the bride, and Miss Suzanne Daugherty of Kent, Ohio, cousin of the bride. Their dresses were identical, of white organza made with full skirts fitted bodice, off shoulder necklines and cap sleeves. They carried colonial bouquets of mixed garden flowers.

Flower girls were the little Misses Joanne Briggs of Plymouth, niece of the bride and Kathleen Daugherty of Kent, Ohio, cousin of the bride. Their dresses were of white organza made identical to the bridesmaids. They carried green and yellow baskets of flower petals.

The bridesmaid was attended by her brother, Mr. John Fackler of Willard, Ohio.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her oldest brother, Harry Dayton Briggs and given in marriage by her father.

The bride was very lovely in the wedding dress of her sister, Mrs. Lucille Briggs Pollock. The gown was of white faille necklined and long pointed sleeves. The bodice buttoned down the back and was attached to a full skirt which extended into a long train. A long veil worn virgin style was held in place by a feathered bandeau. Her only jewelry was a necklace, the gift of the groom. She carried the white Bible which had been carried by her sister, Mrs. Betty Briggs Squire at her wedding. On the Bible was an orchid and white ribbon streamers knotted with stephanotis. She also carried a handkerchief belonging to her maternal grandmother, which also had been carried by her sisters, Mrs. Carl Pollock and Mrs. Quentin Squire.

Mrs. Harry Briggs appeared at her daughter's wedding wearing black with black and white accessories and a white gladioli corsage. Mrs. Henry Fackler, mother of the groom was wearing rose with white accessories and also wore a white gladioli corsage.

The recessional following the ceremony took the bridal party to the back of the church where they received the congratulations of their friends and relatives, following which a reception for one hundred and fifty guests was held in the church dining room. The

BING OPENS A NEW STORE

WILL OPEN A FURNITURE STORE IN COSHOCTON.

The Bing-Coschocton Company, associated with The Bing Furniture Company of Cleveland, has leased the building at 220-222 Main Street, Coshocton, for a new modern furniture store.

The building has three floors and is owned by Martin G. Saba, owner of the Neal Hotel. Extensive plans to completely remodel the building and have an attractive new front will begin as soon as a Civilian Production Administration approval is received. Mr. Robert A. Carton of Coshocton, was the attorney for Mr. Saba.

The Coshocton store will be closely associated with The Bing Furniture Company of Cleveland which has a record of more than half a century of service to homes in Cleveland and vicinity.

Established in 1891. In March, 1891, L. S. Bing, Sr., father of Louis S. Bing, Jr., now president of The Bing Company, opened a furniture store in downtown Cleveland. In 1907, the company made a progressive move and opened a new store at 822 Prospect Avenue. As the community continued to grow, so did The Bing Company.

In 1916, the second generation of ownership and management joined the store. Jay M. Hall, son-in-law of L. S. Bing, Sr., joined the organization. In 1918, after graduation from Harvard University and service in the U. S. Army in World War I, Louis S. Bing, Jr., present president of The Bing Company, Cleveland, entered the firm. In 1929 the company erected and moved into the present ten story building containing 90,000 square feet of floor space. They also became charter members of the American Furniture Association with buying offices in New York. This increased their ability to have the latest things needed for the home long before the average store can secure it, a service which will be available to Coshocton and vicinity.

Percomitant in Industry
In 1942, Louis S. Bing, Jr., was elected president of the National Retail Furniture Association and remained as board chairman in 1943. In this capacity, he has continued to represent the furniture trade in official contacts with government agencies and other trade groups. In 1944, he was given the Cavalier Cup which is awarded annually to "the outstanding furniture merchant in the United States who has best served his industry, his country, and his community." Mr. Bing is also active in the American Red Cross, and is a member of the Executive Committee of the Cleveland Chapter of American Red Cross, Cleveland Welfare Federation, the National Refugee Service, and has been recently appointed a member of the National Advisory Committee of the Consumer Durable Goods Division of OPA.

Jay M. Hall, president of The Bing-Coschocton Company is also active in many civic and social organizations. He is at present treasurer of the Cleveland Retail Merchants Board, and is vitally interested in the Community Fund and other social and philanthropic agencies.

Will Employ Local People
Both Mr. Bing and Mr. Hall, as officers of The Bing-Coschocton Company will give this community the benefit of their years of experience in supplying its home furnishings and appliance needs.

Mr. Bing emphasized that the local store wishes to become a part of Coshocton and its surrounding territory in every possible way. The store personnel also wishes to be active in all community and civic affairs and to participate in person as well as in spirit.

Mr. Bing further stated that a complete line of furniture, rugs, carpeting and electrical appliances will be offered by the new concern. Large stocks of furniture and home equipment merchandise will be made available to Veterans, employees of the many factories, and to the new C. E. Plastic plant employees. The employees for The Bing-Coschocton Company will be mainly residents of Coshocton and vicinity.

An announcement of the official opening of the store will be made as soon as OPA gives us the green light on our remodeling program.

The Bing Company also operates furniture stores in Shelby, Ohio; Mansfield, Ohio; and have recently opened in Tiffin, Ohio.

STEPPING UP FARM SAFETY

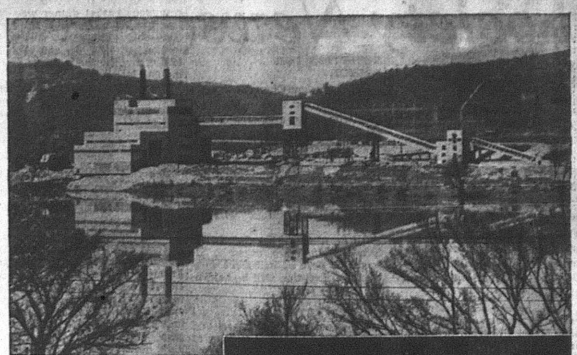

Each year accidents claim half again as many farmers and rural people either killed, permanently disabled, or temporarily injured as the total battlefield toll of World War II—700,000 farm people compared to 1,100,000 military personnel. These are the cold figures. And the tragedy is that most if not all of the farm casualties can be prevented. In addition, the annual loss of farm property by fire and lightning averages close to $100,000,000. And much of this loss, too, can be prevented.

Because these losses reduce farm output, to say nothing of the unnecessary loss of life and property, every effort needs to be expended to prevent them or at least keep them to a minimum. Stepping up farm safety and thereby preventing waste resulting from accidents is particularly important this year when food is needed so badly by millions of starving people throughout the world.

The problem of reducing farm accidents and fire losses is difficult, but not insurmountable. Farming is one of the most hazardous of all occupations. Farm workers are largely on their own without the aid of safety supervisors to continually warn against unsafe practices. Unlike industry farming does not have elaborate safety devices, nor continuing inspection of equipment and premises, nor has it coordinated safety programs. And traffic hazards on the open highway are just as great for rural people as for those from the city. Hence the most fruitful field for promoting farm safety is education.

Farm safety education must begin in the home, be taught in the schools and kept alive by all agricultural workers who are in touch with farmers. The basic elements of an educational program in farm safety are rooted in recognizing two principal factors: (1) the physical hazards which cause accidents or fires and (2) the faulty human behavior which fails to respond to these hazards, or a hazard, and to inspire him to remove the cause for the hazard. As an elementary illustration, a horse or mule normally well behaved is likely to kick in self defense if suddenly surprised. The remedy here is to simply give the animal warning before approaching it.

Other causes of accidents may require more effort or even cash outlays to prevent them. One of the major causes of farm accidents and fires, and the one most difficult to control, is the low economic status of many farmers who find it very difficult to provide themselves with adequate safeguards. On the other hand, there are many reasonably well situated farmers who develop careless habits and fail to eliminate hazards or provide needed safety devices. And yet they too frequently excuse their negligence on the financial grounds. For example, one well-to-do

Above—The Ohio Power Company's Tidd Plant will be enlarged to a capacity of 244,000 horsepower. With additions completed, this plant will use an average of 60,000 tons of Ohio coal each month and over a hundred million gallons of water will flow through its condensers every day.

Right—The company will duplicate the 134,000 horsepower steam-electric generator shown here which is now installed at the plant.

New Turbine at Tidd Plant 134,000 Horsepower Added by O. P. Co.

THAT industry in the area served by The Ohio Power Company is now making rapid progress toward full peacetime production is evidenced by the announcement made today by Mr. E. A. Lewis, Vice President and General Manager of the Company. He said that contracts have been awarded and work will be started shortly after Labor Day on the installation of an additional steam-electric generator in the new Tidd Plant at Brilliant, Ohio. The plant was only completed last fall and the new unit, rated at 134,000 horsepower, will double the plant's capacity bringing it up to over a quarter-of-a-million horsepower. To make the energy provided by this new unit available to its customers, the Company will build additional transmission line facilities between the Tidd Plant and one of its principal distribution centers. The total cost of the plant and line additions will be approximately $10,600,000.

Until recently, Company forecasts of its expected growth indicated that there would be no need for new generating capacity until 1950, but the increase in load since the first of the year has now made it advisable to advance the time to July, 1948.

"Plans for the original Tidd Plant," said Mr. Lewis, "were begun during the dark days when the war in Europe and Africa was raging and all the United Nations were calling on this country for greater and greater production. From the very beginning of the war in Europe, we had recognized that there would be an enormous increase in the demands for electric power and began expanding our facilities, determined that our armed forces should not suffer because of any lack of electricity in the area we serve. Because it takes years to build and equip electric generating plants, we must anticipate future demands years before they appear."

"In 1940, six months before the Germans overran France," continued Mr. Lewis, "we set about the installation of a 114,000 horsepower generator at our Philo Plant. Before this unit had been completed, we foresaw the need for still more generating facilities and a second unit of the same size was ordered for Philo. These additions to the Philo Plant brought its capacity up to over half-a-million horsepower and made it one of the largest and most efficient steam generating plants in the world. But the tempo of war increased and industry in Ohio was expanding to meet it. Millions of men and women in this state were working night and day making steel, munitions, planes, trucks, tanks, guns and thousands of other things needed by the Allied armies and navies. Their productivity was increased tenfold by electric power and our job was to see that their hands were sustained.

"Anticipating still greater demands for power, The Ohio Power Company in 1944 put an army of men to work on construction of the new Tidd Plant at Brilliant, Ohio, where ample water was at hand and large coal supplies were available. This plant was named after George N. Tidd, President of the Company. There is no need to recite the problems that war conditions imposed upon the engineers and others in our organization to provide the electric facilities that were so necessary to the war effort. The struggle with shortages of materials and manpower that in one way or another was overcome. Nevertheless, in spite of all these difficulties, the Tidd Plant was completed in record-breaking time. Late in September, 1945, it was placed on the line, and since then has been supplying low-cost, dependable power to homes and industries in this area."

The Company plans to have the new unit in operation by July, 1948. It is a duplicate of the first unit, a 134,000 horsepower "single barrel" turbo-generator. The turbine is driven by steam at a temperature of 925 degrees Fahrenheit and under a pressure of 1,300 pounds to the square inch. The boiler that will supply this steam is enormous and capable of furnishing 24,000,000 pounds of steam daily.

In his statement, Mr. Lewis further emphasized his own and his Company's belief in the future prosperity of the state. "Here in Ohio," he said, "the area that we serve has extraordinary natural resources. It is rich in coal and oil, limestone, clays and salt, to name only a few. It is a prodigious producer of steel, products, rubber products, chemicals, bricks, tiles and cement. Our Company has been taken through a national advertising campaign to tell industrialists all over the nation that Ohio provides ideal locations for many types of business. Complementing our efforts have been those of state and municipal authorities and business men's associations in the 555 communities we serve. The fact is that substantial progress has been made. Already a number of new industries have come into the area and we see evidence of still greater industrial development here. New industries as well as our existing customers may be assured that they will have a supply of dependable, low-cost electric power sufficient to meet their requirements for years to come."

THE OHIO POWER COMPANY

farmer recently tied his moving machine in gear with rope when he was unable to get the necessary repair part. When the machine became clogged and he wanted to take the time to untie and tie it, he simply left it in gear and kicked at the clogged material while kicking at the material the team started up and mangled his foot in the blades, necessitating prolonged medical care. Had not his son returned from the armed forces he would have been forced to abandon the rest of his crops for the season.

As new farm machinery becomes available and as rural electrification becomes more widespread, many farmers without previous experience are likely to free the machine. One time while kicking at the material the team started up and mangled his foot in the blades, necessitating prolonged medical care. Had not his son returned from the armed forces he would have been forced to abandon the rest of his crops for the season.

demonstration agents, agricultural engineers, safety specialists, and other farm leaders to impress on these farmers some of the basic safety principles. Manufacturers also have an opportunity to further emphasize needed safe practices in the use of their equipment on the farms.

In the field of farm fire prevention much can be done to prevent needless losses. Inspection and repair of chimneys is one of the simplest but important ways to prevent many farm fires. Likewise the safe handling and storage of gasoline and kerosene will prevent many accidents. Maintenance of one's own electrical wiring on the farm is a good precautionary measure, as is the provision of an adequate water supply.

Considerable progress has been made in recent years to prevent farm fires. The extension of rural electrification has brought more adequate local water supplies. The advance of all-weather roads has facilitated help from neighbors and fire departments. Wider use of the telephone has speeded the reporting of fires. And more fire departments, both voluntary and local government managed, have been established in rural areas to serve farmers.

But safety practices must be continued the year around. Three nationally sponsored week-long programs, Spring Clean-Up Week, coming early in the year; Farm Safety Week coming in May; and Fire Prevention Week coming in October, anniversary of the great Chicago fire in 1871, serve to emphasize the need for practicing safety on the farm at all times.

The Shiloh Community Grange met on Wednesday evening at the Grange Hall in Shiloh for their regular meeting. It had been planned to have an early dinner honoring all members having birthdays recently, but because of extra farm work at this season, the plan was changed and the later meeting was held. During the business meeting it was announced that ninety-four dollars and thirty-five cents had been cleared by the organization by serving the Lion's Club dinner recently. A letter was read from the secretary of the Club expressing appreciation for the splendid work. Plans were made for an exhibit at the Richland County Fair, Aug. 22-23.

Following the business meeting an impromptu program was presented by Ray Fauber, Joe Page and Ed Miller. Mrs. Lucy Downend accompanied the group as they sang favorite songs. Lovely refreshments were served in a style from a table centered with garden flowers. Cakes with colorful icing spelled out "Happy Birthday" and ice cream and coffee completed the refreshments. The committee in charge was Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dawson and Clyde McQuate.

IT'S THE EFFECT THAT REALLY COUNTS

SOME patriotic American tourists in Philadelphia got a shock. They had come there principally to see the famous Liberty Bell. The voice of independence. The holy of holies. The most sacred object in America.

The guide told these tourists the old, old story of how on July 8th, 1776, people poured into Philadelphia with a holiday air; shutters went up; stores closed; flags fluttered in the wind. Something was about to happen—something tremendous, something significant, something that never had happened before in the history of America.

Out upon a balcony stepped a man, D. Carnegie holding a document in his hand. Cheers, and finally the man's free hand lifted, indicating the moment had come for the crowd to subside. The hand came down, there was a breathless hushed moment then he started off.

"In Congress, July 4th, 1776 . . ."

The Declaration of Independence!

After the reading of the Declaration the tourists went in to see the Bell itself.

Then, one of the tourists discovered an imperfection on the Liberty Bell. He looked more closely. The word Pennsylvania was misspelled. Where there should have been two n's there was but one. It was spelled: Pennsylvania.

He was shocked. He discussed the matter with his fellow tourists. His remarks tended to destroy the pleasure his companions were experiencing in their sight-seeing trip. What matter to him? He was establishing himself as a critic! He'd known there was a crack on the Liberty Bell, but he hadn't known there was a word misspelled.

Critics can find small flaws in everything from the Liberty Bell to Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. Critics have pointed out that "dedicated to the proposition" isn't a happy choice of words; and they claim that the long-winded sentence that closes the Gettysburg Address ought to be shortened and tightened.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON—In view of the tremendous pressure upon the White House and persistence of the "oil lobby" upon congress, President Truman's veto of the Tidelands oil bill was an act of courage and that of a man seeking to protect the interests of the states in the face of a special pressure group, including some of his own personal friends.

The oil company lobby and the attorney general of the state of California had been pressing for action in a race against time in the bill. They won, and congress passed the measure which relinquished all federal rights in these rich oil bearing areas to the states for the benefit of private and corporate exploiters.

Congress refused to affirm the appointment of Edwin W. Friday, the President's friend, as under secretary of the navy, because of his alleged interest in the Tidelands oil case. And after castigating Friday for his activities, congress turns around and gives Friday and his associates just what they had been demanding.

In each meeting congress on this President Truman is upon unshakable ground when, in his veto message, he declared that the Tidelands oil bill was an "unconscionable" measure which relinquished all federal rights in these rich oil bearing areas to the states for the benefit of private and corporate exploiters.

President's friend, as under secretary of the navy, because of his alleged interest in the Tidelands oil case. And after castigating Friday for his activities, congress turns around and gives Friday and his associates just what they had been demanding.

Doings in Congress

By CONGRESSMAN WILLIAM LEMKE

President Truman the other day warned the bureaucrats in the War and Navy Departments and in other Federal bureaus that their expenditures must be substantially reduced. This in order to prevent inflation. We agree with the President. The number of Federal payrollers and the number of alphabetical set-ups must be reduced. The war ended a year ago. There is no longer any reason why three million payrollers should ride on the taxpayers' backs.

However, the President's cry for inflation comes with poor grace. He just forced through Congress, by using the party whip, a gift of four billion four hundred million dollars to Britain. In this he was ably assisted by the State Department and some Republicans. There seems to be a foreign colony in Congress. Members who think more of foreign nations and foreign people than of their own—among them a few Rhodes scholars.

The cry for economy comes with poor grace from the President who recently authorized a loan—gift—of one billion three hundred million dollars to Britain with poor grace because he is still making loans—gifts—to other nations. As long as this practice is continued there will be no end to the crying. There will be continuation of printing press money—inflation.

Here is how some of the Departments pyramided their expenditures in round numbers. In 1894 the Department of Agriculture spent $2,800,000, and in 1944, $3,012,000,000. The Department of Commerce in 1894 spent $10,500,000 and in 1944, $217,000,000.

The Department of Justice in 1894 spent $6,000,000, and in 1945, $117,000,000. The Department of Labor spent in 1894 $168,000 and in 1945, $72,000,000. The Post Office Department in 1894 spent $1,100,000 and in 1945, $1,110,000,000.

The State Department in 1894 spent $1,850,000 and in 1946, $90,100,000. The Treasury Department in 1894, spent $55,000,000 and in 1946, $11,350,000,000. The Executive Office in 1894 spent $97,300 and in 1946, $914,200,000. The Federal Trade Commission in 1924 spent $682,000 and in 1945, $2,054,000. The Interstate Commerce Commission in 1894 spent $223,000 and in 1945, $9,200,000. Less we forget, the Office of Price Administration spent $4,500,000 and in 1945, $178,000,000.

The total of these previous appropriations for all these departments was $98,130,300. They have increased until it has reached the present grand total of $1,072,554,000. This is not the end but the beginning. If we continue to make foreign loans, God only knows where we will end. Printing of paper money will not help the situation. The financial collapse, call it inflation or deflation, will overtake us.

The printing of money does not print wealth. The wealth must be produced by the toilers. Money is simply a convenient way of exchanging it, but if we give the foreigners our wealth, paper money in our hands will be of little value.

The Government was three hundred billion in the red and as a result of the war another $42,000,000,000, making a total of $62,000,000,000 or twice the value of all the property in the United States.

UNDERGROUND FOR THE ATOMIC AGE . . . The danger is real that an atomic bomb attack will be made upon the United States, said President Truman in urging that we should start preparations now to go underground if a bomb should come our way. His statement was given added weight by the war department's specific request to the National Speleological society, to come up with 50,000 square feet of cavern space for factories, shelters and storage.

The modern cavern, speleologist or just plain spelunkers, have a positive passion for exploring caves. They are tackling their assignment with zeal. These spelunkers who suddenly find their hobby taking on vital importance, are bankers, scientists, school teachers and others who just want to get away from it all by way of their underground hobby.

WHAT AND WHERE IS HEAVEN Part II • by Dalton F. McLaughlin

The new Jerusalem was the city that Abraham looked forward to as the center of the glorious inheritance promised to him and his seed forever. In the book of Heb. 11:10 it says of Abraham "For he looked for a city which hath foundation, whose builder and maker is God."

Now just before Jesus went to the Cross He made a great promise, and says "In my Father's house are many mansions . . . I go to prepare a place for you . . . I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." John 14: 2, 3. This is the prepared place in heaven? "But now they desire of the holy Jerusalem, that is, heavenly; wherefore God is not ashamed to be called their God: for He hath prepared for them a city." Heb. 11:16.

This place prepared for Christ's followers is the new Jerusalem, the holy city of God. In this world the righteous have no continuing city; they seek this heavenly city to come (Heb. 13:14). This "Jerusalem which is above . . . is the mother of us all" (Gal. 4:26). This new Jerusalem is the home city of every child of God, whether he be Gentile or Jew.

To John on the Isle call Patmos, Jesus Christ gave an extended view of this heavenly city. "And he carried me away in the Spirit to a great and high mountain, and showed me that great city, the holy Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God." Rev. 21:10.

This new Jerusalem is 12,000 furlongs, or 1,500 miles in circumference, or 375 miles on each side.

Vegetables, Fresh And Canned

By Dr. J. B. Warren

Fresh vegetables are better for us than canned vegetables. Raw or cooked properly soon after leaving the garden, they give their full food value. But if vegetables are left about the home for a considerable time or are not cooked so as to retain their mineral contents, then freshly canned vegetables can easily be more valuable as food than fresh vegetables.

Further, canned vegetables can be used safely in seasons when good quality fresh vegetables cannot readily be obtained.

Thus, as you can see, we are operating under very difficult conditions. We will still call you on the telephone, but in spite of our operating difficulties, we will try to see that you get the best in service and at a reasonable and reasonable cost.

side. It contains 149,835 square miles. It has 12 foundations composed of 12 precious stones a wall of Jasper 216 feet high, 12 gates each of one solid pearl, streets of gold, with the throne of the Father and the Son in the center, and the river of life, clear as a crystal stream. (Rev. 21: 10-21; 22: 1, 2.) And now! What is the best thing about this heavenly home? Let God's word give the answer "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away." (Rev. 21: 4.) Part III will tell of the joy that will be there.

HOW CHILDREN SELECT FRIENDS

ALMOST every mother knows what it is to apologize for a sulky child. Even the most friendly children appear sullen on occasion. Junior has a warm hello for the plumber, the carpenter and the postman, but he may balk at shaking hands with Cousin George. And Susan, who babbles for hours to the laundress, may refuse to utter a word in the presence of Aunt Eleanor.

When this happens, we feel we've called on to make excuses. Yet, before we can correct such rebellious conduct, we have to find out what prompts it. We parents might not find a child's hostility to some people so surprising if we realized that youngsters are fascinated by what people do.

The plumber who answers Junior's questions while he fixes the sink, and the laundress who explains the mysteries of her washing machine to Susan, are making friends with the children on the basis of common interests. Cousin George and Aunt Eleanor would get a warmer welcome if they talked to Junior and Susan about the new panda at the zoo, or played ball with them, or helped build a castle with wooden blocks.

More often than not, when young ones withdraw into their little shells, or take refuge in a corner of the room, they are simply saying, "You do not interest us." We parents often forget that children are not impressed by the factors that count in grown-up social life. Such matters as blood relationship, wealth or social standing, race or religion are unimportant. They are worldly considerations which adult society has not yet imposed upon their direct, spontaneous reactions.

The problem boils down to the fact that children are forthright in their social contacts, accepting or rejecting each new acquaintance purely on his merits as an individual. In our eagerness to develop the so-called social graces in our boys and girls, let's not forget that, in adult life, it is the honest, natural person, free of snobbish attitudes,

HOUSE & HOME

By MARY E. DAGUE

By MARY E. DAGUE

Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen.

LONG before canning was developed for the home and commercially our grandmothers stored food for winter use by the drying process. Both fruits and vegetables were dried and stored away for use during the winter.

So the only thing new about drying is found in the modern food driers on the market today. We needn't improvise our equipment as those grandmothers did but there are several types of driers available.

Aside from the comforting assurance that dried food is perfectly there are other good reasons for taking care of surplus fruits and vegetables by the drying process. Dried foods take up a minimum of storage space. The drying process is very simple to follow. There is no danger of loss by spoilage.

Unless you have a steam pressure cooker for canning or store in a quick-freeze locker, the only safe way to put up corn for winter use is to dry it.

All fruits and vegetables must be fresh and in prime condition—young, tender and of first quality. Just as in canning, drying fails to improve the quality of the food so be very careful in the selection of your products. The first thing to do is to wash and clean whatever fruit or vegetable you plan to dry. Then comes the blanching, cold-dipping, draining and spreading on trays for drying.

To dry corn, hull and remove silk from ears. Put in a square of cheese cloth. Take up the four corners and plunge into a big pan of boiling water for three minutes. Spread on the vegetable, still in the cheesecloth square into a big pan of cold water and keep it there for thirty seconds.

Now cut the corn from the cob using a sharp knife and being careful not to cut too deep. Spread on tray and let dry until crisp and brittle. Stir occasionally as it dries and when perfectly dry in an air tight container.

Let's Explore Ohio

Camping is good at Lake St. Marys

Though Ohio has few natural lakes, it has a large number which are man-created. Many of them were developed in the early days of the last century as reservoirs for the canals which threaded their way across the state.

Today these lakes have become splendid recreational and sporting areas.

One of the most attractive is Indian Lake, north of Bellefontaine. Having all the advantages of an attractive summer resort, Indian Lake has a further advantage of supplying some of the finest fishing in Ohio. It has been plentifully stocked with black bass, channel catfish, bluegills, crappies, catfish, perch and walleyes, which are caught in great numbers during the early spring, summer and fall seasons.

There are adequate lodging and camping facilities conveniently located, and boat licenses at which both boats and equipment can be rented.

The section of the lake known as Long Island is considered by many sportsmen to have the best fishing.

Nearby is beautiful Lake Loramie which yields excellent catches of bluegills and bass. Boats, tackle, meals and lodging are all available.

South of Bellefontaine and east of Route 68 at West Liberty are Mac-O-Chee Castle and Mac-A-Chee Chateau, early homes of members of the famous Platt Family and now used as museums in which are fascinating collections of Indian relics.

Just a mile from Mac-A-Chee are Ohio caverns with their fantastic stalactites and stalagmites formations.

With Indian Lake and Lake Loramie as two of the points of a triangle, the third point is Lake St. Marys or Grand Lake at the town of St. Marys.

This is the largest inland lake in the state and covers 15,000 acres—almost 2½ square miles.

Here, too, fishermen have found excellent sport. Accommodations are ample for both the transient visitor and the Ohioan who wishes to spend his vacation on this charming inland lake.

For the Sunday driver there are facilities at all three lakes for picnicking and a pleasant day in the out-of-doors.
