

Larry Schreck, Jack Root Set Scoring Pace For Pilgrims

Larry Schreck and Jack Root are setting the scoring pace for the Plymouth Pilgrims as 1949 seasons draw to a close.

In the six games to date, Larry has found the range for 22 field goals and 11 fowl shots to take the lead with 55 points.

Right behind him is Jack who has pumped home 20 goals from the floor while hitting for 9 points from the grates line for a total of 49.

Not too far down the line is Bob Schreck with 34 markers and then comes Wayne Mewe, 6' 3" center of the Pilgrims, with 27 while Dean Grabach, an aggressive little forward, has 24 points to round out the scoring of the first five.

As a team, the Plymouth basketball boys have racked up 85 field goals and 46 out of 93 attempts from the free throw line for a six game total of 216 points. Meanwhile, the opposition has rolled a total of 219 points against the local lads.

So with a 2 won and 4 lost record thus far, the Pilgrims are averaging 36 points a game while the opposition has managed an average of 36 1/2 points against them. This is a pretty good average, seeing as how the Plymouth team is on its losing side of the ledger.

In scoring in league games, competition is a little closer. Larry Schreck leads here too with 33 points while Jack Root has 31. Bob Schreck has 25, Mewe 21, while Dean Grabach has rung up but 11 markers.

Two Tough Ones Coming Up
As the holiday vacation ends next week and we again return to the books, the basketball boys face two of the tougher class B teams in this area.

On Tuesday the Pilgrims will play host to the Sulphur Springs Yellow Jackets. The Yellow Jackets, with a veteran squad having 8 of the first 10 all over six foot, are favored as the top team in the Crawford County league.

Sulphur Spring uses a man for man defense and has one of the best foot breaks ever seen on a Crawford County hardwood.

Then on Friday the local lads will host the Ontario Warriors, who along with the Jackets are currently leading the Richmond County league race.

The Warriors have the two top scorers in the county in Howard Stankovic and Howard Duffin, who rank 1 and 2 in this department.

So all and all this coming week ranks as a big one in Plymouth basketball circles. So let's all come out and root for the team and give them a good backing.

Wm. G. Ramsey Dies At 69 Years

Word has been received in Plymouth of the death of William G. Ramsey, Friday, December 23rd at the home of his twin sister, Mrs. A. C. Parker, of Parker's Landing, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Ramsey was 69 years of age last September 12th. He operated an ice plant at Willard for several years and is well known locally.

Several of his children resided in Plymouth a number of years ago. Survivors include his widow, Roberta, three children, Mrs. James Lindor of Greenwich, Pa., Mrs. Pemberville, William of Parker's Landing, Pa., four grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. Edward P. Blomston, manager of Mansfield office of the Social Security Administration, announced recently. This means that the combined contributions paid by employee and employer on a $3,000 of wages which was $60 this year will be $90 in 1950.

This increase in the rate of contributions was enacted by the congress in 1947, Blomston said. The maximum amount of wages on which contributions apply with the same employer during a calendar year is still $3,000. If a worker is employed by more than one employer during the year, each income up to $3,000 is subject to the tax. The worker can apply for a refund of taxes paid on the excess of $3,000 for the year, but the employers involved are not entitled to any refund.

The worker's basic benefits will not be increased because of this increase in the contribution rate. Any change in the benefits must be made by action of the congress, too, Blomston said.

Social Security Tax Rates Go Up Jan. 1

The social security tax on contributions will increase 50 per cent in 1950. The present rate of one per cent of wages or salary on each the employee and employer will be increased to 1 1/2 per cent on each beginning January 1, 1950.

WEDNESDAY reminded me of one of our late citizens, namely, Elias Heller. "Doe" used to go around in the springtime shouting "Finner day." And that was just what Wednesday's weather proved to be. . . . Fine. A cloudless sky, calm and peaceful like. . . and had it been a little warmer we no doubt could easily experienced a severe case of spring fever.

Looking Forward To 1950

Looking back over the past year our community has been very lucky. We didn't experience a serious fire, only a couple of traffic fatalities and a small number of smash-ups which didn't prove serious to the occupants.

Financially we held our own in business; our local bank is in exceptional condition, and local stores are expecting to maintain an even keel during the next twelve months. Primarily, Plymouth is a farm village, and farmers will no doubt hold their own during the coming year, although it is expected that farm prices on some items will go a little below the 1948 average. On the whole, farmers are in good shape, and they should remain cautious during the next twelve months. This will be reflected in our local trade area.

There are two things that will affect us; no matter how snug we may be in our own community... labor and taxes. If labor continues to demand higher wages, and the government is determined to exact more taxes, it is but natural that we will feel the results, whether directly or indirectly.

A lot of people are beginning to realize that if they must pay taxes, or rather increased taxes heaped upon them, they are in favor of paying local taxes, which are deductible from income taxes. As a result, they approve bond issues which increase property taxes and can be marked off the income tax report. And, too, the taxpayer doesn't have much of a grouse when he knows he is getting some benefit from his tax dollar. So consequently he favors new schools, water systems, sewage disposal plants and other public benefits for which he is taxed.

In 1950 Plymouth would do well to construct its own municipal building, even though it requires a special bond issue. A new building can house the village offices, garages and fire department, thus doing away with various items of expense and lessening a fire hazard to our fire-fighting equipment.

Plymouth can well look into the future for a sewage disposal plant. Perhaps, some day, when the foreign countries do not need our dollars, our state and federal governments will turn their eyes to the needs of our own American citizens... communities that are hampered by water shortages, lack of proper sewage disposal, schools and post offices and light plants. A billion dollars poured into our own country on projects such as these would give manufacturers and labor a chance to participate as well as alleviate conditions which should never exist.

Plymouth's growing pains have been slow, but definitely our village is increasing in population; our business circle has improved, and our school system and buildings are going forward. If our stores can continue to offer the friendly service and attractive prices that they have for the past few years, and our utilities can be extended at attractive rates, and our schools and churches can be kept attractive, then there is every reason to believe that we will continue to grow in 1950... an aim for every citizen to work toward.

WASHINGTON REPORT

BY SENATOR ROBERT A. TAFT

THE action of the American Farm Bureau Federation in rejecting the Brannan Plan without qualification is encouraging to those who are opposed to socialism and the handout state. The Brannan Plan proposes that the government guarantee parity prices to the farmer, and then let the product be sold to the consumer at whatever price it brings, the difference to be charged to the taxpayer.

Since the guarantee would produce a surplus, it would require a new law to give it that surplus. If the consumer subsidy were of the same magnitude as in England, it would cost the American taxpayer about six billion dollars. Since the farmer and the consumers are the taxpayers, they would simply get a bill from the government for the benefits they are supposed to receive plus a sum added in to pay salaries to several hundred thousand employees required to administer the plan.

The appeal of the plan is based on what looks like a very simple argument. Parity represents the fair price which the farmer ought to receive, therefore, it is argued, the government should guarantee it to the farmer. The fallacy lies in the argumentative conclusion.

For if the government undertakes to guarantee everybody in the United States that which he ought to receive, there is no way for it to perform its guarantee without taking charge of the whole situation and operating a planned and controlled economy.

A PARALLEL proposal is that of Jack Kroll at the recent CIO meeting that the government guarantee a job to every man. That sounds reasonable too. Every man ought to have a job just the way a farmer ought to have parity. It is a perfectly legitimate demand that government policy should be directed toward the accomplishment of that goal. But a guarantee is a very different thing. If the government is to guarantee every man a job, then it will have to have the power to create jobs and to go into any business it chooses for that purpose. But this may not solve the problem, because it is likely to put it to work the men in those private industries discouraged by

Bureaucratic Snooper

We are glad to see that some congressmen, including a few of Ohio's representatives, have had the spunk to stand up and challenge the Census Bureau's right to ask every fifth person in the population making less than $10,000 a year, just how much he does make.

We agree with Representative Clarence J. Brown of Blanchester, who started the fight, that this part of the decennial census would make of the census takers, who will be Democratic political appointees, a "crew of super-snoopers."

In order to obtain all the dope on incomes under $10,000, the census takers would have to ask every person they canvass whether that person makes $10,000 or more. We say that is none of the census takers' business; it is, so far as the government is concerned, a private matter between the individual citizen and the collector of internal revenue.

The Census Bureau says it wants to find out the exact income of every fifth person earning less than $10,000 a year because of requests from private business organizations for the economic data this would supply. Maybe the bureau has had such requests; a few of them, anyhow. But let no one be so politically naive as to believe that this is the real reason for the bureaucratic snoopering the Census Bureau wants to undertake—without authorization of Congress.

The real reason, of course, is that promoters of the hand-out state dearly love to use the taxpayers' money to obtain all the statistics they can. Then the statistical analysts in the government bureau adapt the figures to their own purposes, and use them to promote and exploit governmental projects that will cost the taxpayers still more money. That's the real reason for the planned snoopering.

The compilation of a breakdown of the incomes of American people, all the way up and down the line, might make sense; but a canvass to obtain data on the earnings of one fifth of the American population making less than $10,000 is for political purposes and for accentuating the in-American cleavage among classes that is the stock-in-trade of the high-tax boys in Washington. Don't be fooled that it's anything but that.

We applaud such congressmen as Brown and John M. Vorys of Columbus, both of them Republicans, and Ohio's congressman at large, Stephen M. Young of Cleveland, for demanding that the Census Bureau show good cause why it should be allowed to include in its decennial canvass, questions for which Congress gave no sanction. If we're going to have any more invasion of our private lives by government, we ought to insist that it at least be by authorization of the elected representatives of the people.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Letter To All Motorists

Today my daughter, who is seven years old, started to school as usual. She wore a dark blue dress with a white collar. She had on black shoes and wore blue gloves. Her cocker spaniel whose name is Coot, sat on the front porch and whined his canine belief in the folly of education as she waved good-bye and started off to the hall of learning.

Tonight we talked about school. She told me about the girl who sits in front of her, the girl with the yellow curls, and the boy across the aisle who makes funny faces. She told me about her teacher, who has eyes in the back of her head, and about the trees in the school yard, and about the big girl who doesn't believe in Santa Claus. We talked about a lot of things—tremendously vital—unimportant things; and then we studied spelling, reading, arithmetic—and then to bed.

She's back there now—back in the nursery sound asleep with "Princess Elizabeth" (that's a doll) cuddled in her right arm.

You guys wouldn't hurt her, would you? You see, I'm her daddy. When her doll is broken or her finger is cut or her head gets bumped, I can fix it—but when she starts to school, when she walks across the street, then she's in your hands.

She's a nice kid. She can run like a deer and darts about like a chipmunk. She likes to ride horses and swim and hike with me on Sunday afternoons. But I can't be with her all the time; I have to work to pay for her clothes and her education. So, please help me look out for her. Please drive slowly past the school and intersections — and please remember that children run from behind parked cars.

Please don't run over my little girl.

Six contestants from Ohio brought home trophies from Plymouth Motor Corp.'s Third International Model Plane contest at Detroit. They competed against 535 of the world's leading model flyers who were invited to the meet because of their outstanding records. Above, A. B. Dowd, merchandising manager of Plymouth, congratulates Frank V. Claire, 24, of Ridgeville corners. Looking on, from left, are: William B. Hale, 25, of Columbus; Robert A. Gardner, 21, Massillon; William P. Ward, 12, Akron; Sid Tanabe, 24, Cleveland; and Richard A. Modler, 13, Dayton.

Nearly 1800 pieces of snow removal equipment have been checked and serviced by State Highway Department officials awaiting the first snow to fall in Ohio. "Dry run" practice trips have been made all over the State to acquaint drivers with fastest routes to follow in order to keep highways open to traffic. At top left Director of Highways T. J. Kater checks a map pinpointing the placement of equipment for most efficient use. At top right Sherman Ford, Division 7 superintendent, checks a snow plow. Other scenes depict various line-ups typical of inspections over all the State. When snow comes, the State Highway Department will be ready to keep traffic moving.

EARLY CANALS AND ROADS

The southwestern corner of Ohio is rich in history. It was at Cincinnati that the second settlement in the Northwest Territory was established in a real estate bargain second only to the purchase of Manhattan Island from the Indians.

Mathias Denman bought 740 acres of land, now downtown Cincinnati, for $125 back in 1788 for the purpose of establishing a town and a ferry across the Ohio River. Fort Washington was built here in 1789 and became the base for most of the military expeditions into the Indian country to the north by General St. Clair, General Wayne, General Harrison and the others who finally secured the western frontier for Ohio settlement.

Many motorists each year visit the monument on the site of the Queen City. William Howard Taft in Cincinnati; William Henry Harrison and his grandson Benjamin Harrison at North Bend, just west of the Ohio River metropolis; and Ulysses S. Grant at Point Pleasant, just a few miles east of Cincinnati on the Ohio River.

One of Ohio's first roads from Toledo along the Indians' Miami Trail, ended at Cincinnati as did a branch road off Zane's Trace from Chillicothe. This city was also the south terminal of the Miami and Erie Canal that connected with Lake Erie at Toledo. This canal, whose course is now a busy Cincinnati street, underlain by an incomplete subway, set off the German section which was commonly known as the "Over the Rhine" area.

In 1847, Ohio's historian, William H. Howe, described Cincinnati's location as: "950 miles from New York by Miami and Erie Canal, Lake Erie, the Erie Canal and the Hudson River," the route followed by many of the immigrants who settled in western Ohio. The Cincinnati and White Water Canal extended 85 miles to the westward to connect with the White Water Canal of Indiana.

by the Kentuckians at the mouth of the Great Miami River in 1785, is but a short distance down the Ohio from Cincinnati off Route 50. Route 137 to Hamilton and Route 4 from there to Middletown follow the path of the early Toledo road and parallels the route of the Miami and Erie Canal which supplied waterpower for industries in these cities as well as transportation for the products of the area.

The history of Hamilton, like that of many other Ohio cities, is closely tied up with the early military expeditions into the Indian country. General St. Clair built Fort Hamilton on the bank of the Great Miami River where today can be seen a stone monument marking the site.

The Warren County Canal to Lebanon entered the Miami and Erie Canal at Middletown. North and west of Hamilton is Oxford where Miami University was established in 1809 and where Western College for Women, one of the first women's colleges, is located.

American Men Too Romantic

Helen Eastin, novelist and magazine writer, who disputes the notion that American husbands are too romantic. In fact, she claims they're too romantic. Writing in the December issue of Cosmopolitan magazine, Miss Eastin explains that husbands overwork themselves to free their wives from household drudgery. The result, she says, is that the wives become underworked and overpaid and the husbands begin to appear around the house like the soap opera idols. As a solution, the author recommends that husbands and wives become better friends by sharing and enjoying mutual work and recreation.

PORK AND SAUERKRAUT

By BETTY NEWTON

Is the family hungry for pork? Most everyone relishes a pork loin roast, but some of the less tender cuts are equally delicious. The spicy aroma of barbecued spareribs will bring everyone to the table in a hurry.

Pork Necks with Sauerkraut

2 lbs. pork neck bones
2 medium potatoes
1 1/2 lbs. sauerkraut
Salt
Pepper

Cut meat in serving pieces. Season with salt and pepper. Brown slowly in a heavy pan until well browned on all sides. Add enough water to almost cover meat. Cover pan and cook over simmer flame about one hour. Cover meat with sauerkraut. Add potatoes, replace cover and continue simmering until meat and potatoes are done. This is a one burner meal but may be done in the oven at 350 degrees. Allow 45 minutes to cook kraut and potatoes in oven.

Sweet-Sour Spareribs

1 lbs. spareribs
2 Tbsp. fat
2 Tbsp. brown sugar
2 Tbsp. cornstarch
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 C. vinegar
1/2 C. cold water
1 C. pineapple juice
1 Tbsp. soy sauce
1 bottle rub
1 C. boiling water

Separate ribs, cover with boiling salted water. Cover pan and cook over simmer flame 1 hour or until tender. Drain, brown ribs slowly in fat. Mix sugar, cornstarch, salt, stir in vinegar, cold water, pineapple juice and soy sauce. Add the boiling cube which has been dissolved in the 1/2 C. boiling water. Add to the ribs and cook stirring constantly until sauce is transparent. Place onions, pineapple, carrots and green pepper in pan. Cook until vegetables are tender. Serve with rice or fried noodles. Makes 4 servings.

Former Residents Visit U. N. Headquarters

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Martin of 187 Beverly Hill Road, Clifton, New Jersey and formerly of Plymouth, recently visited the Headquarters of the United Nations at Lake Success.

Upon arriving at Headquarters, the visitor finds himself in a converted plant, for the temporary home of the United Nations is in a portion of the Sperry-Gorham plant. Partitions set up in the old assembly line area have provided office space for the international Secretariat, numbering some 3,000.

There are two large Council Chambers, each with a public seating capacity of 500. In one Chamber, the 11-member Security Council meets, and in the other, the 18-member Economic and Social Council and the 12-member Trusteeship Council. There are four large conference rooms, each with an elliptical table, around which sit the representatives of the fifty-nine Member Nations. These rooms are used largely for the meetings of the six Main Committees of the General Assembly. In addition, there are several smaller conference rooms.

Because there is no room at Lake Success large enough to accommodate all the delegates and the alternate delegates of the 59 Member Nations during plenary meetings of the General Assembly, these meetings are held in the City of New York Building at Flushing Meadow, about eleven miles from Lake Success.

This building has been loaned to the United Nations by New York City, and may be remembered by many who attended the World's Fair of 1939-40, for which it was constructed. There are 866 seats for visitors at the Flushing Building, and these, like those at Lake Success, are booked by application to the Admissions Office. The problem of languages in the meeting is solved by using simultaneous interpretation. This means that one may put on earphones and, over a radio receiving set, "tune in" to one of the five official languages—Chinese, English, French, Russian and Spanish. The remarks of a speaker are heard by interpreters who sit in glassed-in booths and simultaneously translate the words of the speaker into one of these languages.

Requests for admission by mail are always granted to a person or group for meetings open to the public and held during the designated period of the visit. The only requirement is that requests must be received in sufficient time for confirmation by mail. The one exception is an opening day of a regular or special General Assembly session, after the date has been announced.

All inquiries should be directed to the Admissions Office, United Nations, Lake Success, New York. The number of visitors to the United Nations averages over 300,000 a year.

We pause for a word of thanks

As we approach the half-way point of this turbulent twentieth century—another year of service to our friends is complete. Serving you these past twelve months has been a satisfying privilege for us. We thank you for your helpfulness and cooperation... and invite you to take even greater advantage of our services during 1950. Our sincere best wishes to you for the New Year...
