

Huron County Land Tax Appraisals Up

New appraised figures will be used on the 1954 tax duplicate, Huron County Auditor Bernard F. Keon announces.

A reappraisal ordered in 1950 by the Ohio Board of Tax Appeals, after four years delay, will be in effect this year.

Land values, which have been about the same since they were reduced in 1931 and 1932, 30 per cent, followed by 15 per cent straight across the duplicate, causing the land duplicate to be reduced from $22,235,790 valuation to $13,122,410, have been considerably increased in value.

The current value of land in Huron county will now be $19,190,290. The 1954 appraisal raised building values, and there is generally not much change in buildings, except where improvements have been made, in the current appraisal.

Property owners are invited to inspect their valuations at the county auditor's office and compare them with other property owners' valuations. Since June, when the announcement was made that the new appraisal would be submitted, hundreds have already checked their new valuations.

The new appraisal generally omits with the standard set by the Ohio Board of Tax Appeals: the appraisal should represent 50 per cent of sales values from 1946 through 1953.

The increased values affect the tax rate on all voted levies for any purpose over the 10 mill limitation. The rates over the 10 mill are reduced in the same proportion as the amount of the increase.

West Proclaims Dec. 15 S-D day

Police Chief Asks Cooperation To Avoid Mishaps for One Day

Chief of Police Robert L. Meiser today asked for help. "Yes, I'm asking for help," Chief Meiser said. "I am asking every driver and pedestrian in Plymouth to help reduce traffic accidents to a minimum zero, if we can, on Dec. 15, S-D day (Safe Driving Day)."

"I am asking every man, woman, and child who uses the streets accept full personal responsibility for observing the letter and spirit of all traffic regulations. "S-D Day is being observed all over the country. It is sponsored by the President's action committee for traffic safety and hundreds of local, state and national organizations to demonstrate that traffic accidents can be reduced materially when all motorists and pedestrians do their part."

Following is the Mayor's proclamation: "Whereas the President of the United States has asked all Americans to unite in a nation-wide demonstration that traffic accidents can be avoided if all motorists and pedestrians do their part; and Whereas, the Governor of our state has asked all of the communities in Ohio to support this worthy effort:

"Now, therefore, as Mayor of the Village of Plymouth, I hereby proclaim Wednesday, December 15th, as 'S-D Day' in this community, and ask all citizens to drive and walk on this day so as to keep the accident rate for the period from traffic accidents."

Mayor West has designated Chief Robert L. Meiser as director of S-D day activities for Plymouth. Governor Frank J. Lausche has officially proclaimed Dec. 15 as "S-D day" throughout the state of Ohio. Governors of other states have issued similar proclamations, in support of this nation-wide undertaking, as the result of the appeal of President Eisenhower.

In pledging support for the program, Mayor West said:

"This is an opportunity for every citizen to join in a common effort against a common enemy: the traffic accident toll. He can help as an individual, and as a member of groups, which he is associated with, his church, P.T.A., his club or fraternal society, his union, his association—and all individuals and organizations can and should participate actively."

"On this day—Wednesday, Dec. 15th—let us all do the very best we can to give our attention to these things:

1. Observe the letter and the spirit of all traffic regulations.
2. Be courteous to every driver and pedestrian - practice sportsmanship.
3. Give full attention to driving and walking.
4. In short: Drive and walk as you would wish others to drive and walk. If we can do this on just one day, perhaps we'll realize how important it is to do likewise every day."

Dance to Be Held By School Groups

Wayne Strine's orchestra will play for round and square dancing Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in the high school gymnasium as part of the Teachers' association and the Mothers' club present their Christmas dance.

Cake walk will be staged during the evening, according to the committee. Refreshments will be sold at popular prices during the affair. Sandwiches, candy, and hot and cold drinks will be offered.

Proceeds of the dance will be divided equally among the two sponsoring organization.

Mothers Give Tables To School Cafeteria

Elementary School Principal Wayne Strine got an extra special present Tuesday afternoon.

With profits of $460.22 from the Nov. 11 turkey dinner, the Mothers' club of the school voted to purchase ten small tables from which children who use the cafeteria may eat their noon meals.

The first of what the club hopes will be 10 collapsing tables to fit the niches built into the auditorium walls will be paid for from the treasury.

After Mrs. Russell Barbour enumerated miscellaneous needs of the cafeteria, the club voted without dissent to purchase these items at once. Potholders registered in the kitchen will be a project of a sixth grade class.

Prizes will be awarded to Carol Sloan, fifth grade pupil, and Virginia Burrer, sixth grade student, who sold 20 and 15 tickets, respectively.

Mayor Glenn West today proclaimed Wednesday, Dec. 15, as "S-D Day"—or "Safe Driving Day"—and pledged the full support of the village government in making the project a success. He urged all citizens to do their utmost to keep Plymouth entirely free of accidents on Dec. 15.

Protestant Church Bells to Ring Here Christmas Morn

Plymouth churches will give 100 per cent cooperation to the Christmas belling program, it was disclosed this week.

"Our bell is a heavy one," says the Rev. Ralph M. Felix, pastor of First Presbyterian church, "but we will ring it for the full three-quarters of an hour period. And we're glad the Scouts are going to help."

The Rev. T. M. Sheesley, pastor of Plymouth-Shiloh Methodist church, committed both churches to the program, and Royal W. Eckstein, president of the church council of the First Evangelical Lutheran church, promised that he would ring if the steeple is ready.

Response to the appeal launched by this newspaper for the ringing of church bells has been excellent so far, the publisher reveals.

Plymouth Bowlers Have Ups, Downs In Willard Leagues

Plymouth sponsored teams suffered their ups and downs in Willard leagues last week.

The Fate-Root-Heath team of the Industrial league took all four points from the S & W grill, which put the Plymouth team in first place by three points. In the Commercial league, McQuate's Furnitures and the Pioneer Super Elites split with two points each, which dropped McQuate's one-half point out of first place.

The Fate-Root-Heath team of this league was able to win only one point from Greenwich Mill and Elevator. In the Ladies "A" league, Lofland's Insurance won two out of three from S and W Grill Lassies. This put Lofland's in fourth place with a won and lost record of 16 and 17.

In the Ladies "B" League Koser's Market had their roughest night of the season, losing three games to Vera's Beauty shop. This defeat dropped the grocery squad into second place.

Dietrich's Dairy cooled off by dropping two out of three to Lave's market. The dairyman fell into second place in the Inter-City league.

Always Shop in Plymouth

On the Sidelines

As Richland county league schools open their 1954-55 basketball seasons this week, those who specialize in second-guessing the coaches think that Lexington, Bellville and Shiloh will be the powerhouses.

Ontario is apt to produce a surprise, although only one letterman returns to Coach Bob Haines' Warriors quintet. Union, Lucas and Butler are expected to have only middling fair clubs, and Plymouth appears to be the weakest team in the loop.

One reason why three schools always have strong teams is that they play - or rather, work at a longer season. At Ontario informal basketball practices have been going on since the opening of the school year. The same is true of the other schools where football is not part of the athletic program.

State rules apply to the number of games that a particular squad may play, depending on whether the school engages in football, and to other aspects of the game. But so far as the Old Timer knows, there is no restriction against the number of practice sessions.

Nothing probably ever will be done with it because the offender port the team can't do so very well. Gymnasiums are small, and schools would never hold still for a change, but it is plain that unless opportunity is equalized, the league will always be the kind of thing that a true sportsman abhors - a group of strong teams and a group of perennial doormats. What should be done is to regulate the number of practice sessions, whether formal or informal, that may be conducted before the season starts, the same way the Big Ten controls spring and fall football practice. In this manner, the results of the league competition year after year could be left up to the material available, which is as it should be.

Plymouth should be able to field two team soft boys under 14 and Greenview has a strong interest in doing the same. One team can probably be rounded up in New Haven and another in Celeryville and at least a six-team league can be started. Perhaps the Shiloh boys can be induced to put in two teams.

Outfitting wouldn't be expensive. Limit uniforms to tee-shirts and blue jeans, and all the sponsor would have to pay for would be caps like the big leaguers wear. The balls and bats can be used by all the teams.

This would be a dandy stunt for the American Legion here or for the Community club, both of which are - as they should be - interested in youngsters. Surely there is someone who could do the directing, and we know of four people who would be willing to coach the local teams.

It takes some planning, and it requires a devotion to duties that are slightly onerous. But what better enterprise can be undertaken? How about it, gentlemen?

GUMP'S

Over 35 Years of Friendly Service in Shelby

Those demon correspondents from New Haven, Mrs. A. W. Penrose and Mrs. R. E. Van Wagner, are shown here comparing professional notes. That's The Advertiser they're reading, natch.

Veteran Correspondents Are Specialists in People

News items from the village of New Haven have been reported by Mrs. Rolla Van Wagner and Mrs. A. W. Penrose since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary.

Mrs. Van Wagner has written the weekly news letter for The Advertiser from that Huron county hamlet for three decades, and Mrs. Penrose more or less half that time for the Willard Times, the largest weekly in Huron county.

It's a lot easier nowadays than it used to be, to report the news from New Haven, the correspondents say. The reason? Telephones, for one thing.

"You can get into touch with so many more people now than formerly," says Mrs. Van Wagner. "Almost everybody in New Haven has a telephone."

"And," adds Mrs. Penrose, the mother of six boys, three of whom are still in school, "people do ever so much more than they used to. Transportation has made the difference - good cars and good roads. I mean."

Another factor which makes for easier coverage of the news in New Haven is the centering of social activities in the church. That church has been remodelled. The fact that New Havenites are strong church workers is supported by evidence: the church debt has been reduced to about $6,000, and the remodeling ran to about $20,000.

Just about everything goes on in the church hall, the correspondents say, and for what doesn't happen there, they go across the street to the township hall or down the road to the school.

And what about big stories? "Whenever there's a big story, such as an accident on Route 224, we call the paper and they come out to cover it. They're better equipped. But they can't compete with us when we tackle the folksy news," Mrs. Penrose says.

The copy is turned in Tuesday. Mrs. Penrose's deadline is 3 p. m. and she takes her stuff to Willard.

Bond Sales Go Up By 17 Per Cent During October

An increase of nearly 17 per cent in October purchases of Series E and H Savings bonds by Ohioans brought the state to 80 per cent of its 1954 quota accomplished, Avery C. Hand Jr., chairman, Richland county savings bonds committee, reported today. Sales in Richland county for October were $225,207, and compare to E and H investment of $208,331 for the same month a year ago.

Ohio's share of the national quota of $5.3 billion dollars is $343,400,000 in E and H bonds, Chairman Hand said. The October increase in the state compares to a 4 per cent national gain. Cumulative total for 10 months in the state shows $274,971,122 invested in the two bonds, and this includes the $26,097,471 purchased during October. State sales of the two bonds a year ago were $223,310,640.

Ohioans must invest approximately 35 million monthly in the two bonds during November and December if the state meets its responsibility to the national quota. At the end of October, only two of the five state areas were selling their proportionate shares of the state goal. The northeast area (Cleveland) had 92.1 per cent sold and the northwest area (Toledo) had 84.8 per cent sold. Standings of other three areas were: north central (Canton) 77.3; southern (Cincinnati) 69; and central (Columbus) 66.3. The nation, state, area and counties should have sold 82.5 per cent by October 31 to keep abreast of quota requirements.

Best winter feed for pheasants and game animals is a row of corn left standing near wood cover such as protected ditches and woods borders.

Mrs. Van Wagner leaves her copy in her door and The Advertiser's red demon fetches it on Tuesday afternoon about 1 p.m.

Supplemental stuff is telephoned in, just as spot news. And both correspondents, always tip off the home office on outstanding feature material or picture opportunities.

Almost always, anyway. There are two examples where modesty interfered. Mrs. Van Wagner didn't tell her boss that her husband, veteran chief of the tool shop at Fate-Root-Health Co., had invented a new chain saw gadget that made a peach of a feature yarn, and Mrs. Penrose has not yet tipped off Earl S. Frye, veteran publisher-editor of the Willard Times, that her husband will start his 42nd year with the Baltimore & Ohio railroad in March.

Occasionally, as is true in most small towns, the correspondents have stories about their own to write. As in the case of young Glenn Penrose, who was married in Dahlgren, Va., recently. Or when the Lyle Grabachs of Plymouth, son-in-law and daughter of the Van Wagners, made a trip.

"We handle them straight," Mrs. Van Wagner says. "Whatever they do, we write it up and turn it in, just the same as if it were somebody not related to us."

Names make news. People like to read their names, and those of their neighbors, in their newspapers. To that extent they haven't changed much in a century. That's the stock in trade of Mrs. Penrose and Mrs. Van Wagner, and the reason why their line of work won't ever go out of date.

And names are with them all the time. "You can't even move away from it," Mrs. Penrose says, laughingly. "A few years ago we went to Willard and I tried to give up this job. But Mr. Frye said that I do the work by phone mostly anyway, and I could do just as well living in Willard as living in New Haven, so long as I knew all the people. So I never gave it up."

High Schoolers Learn Of Military Obligation

Maj. Bernard A. Gilman, office-in-charge of the Mansfield Army Reserve center, was guest speaker before a group of 35 Plymouth High school juniors and seniors Nov. 17.

Maj. Gilman told the students about the eight-year military obligation facing them and talked about the active Army reserve units in this area. The students saw a 30-minute colored film titled, "Double Duty America."

Lt. Dean L. Freytag, commanding officer of Company A, 865th Engineer Aviation Battalion, an Army Reserve unit comprised mainly of Plymouth men, acted as program chairman for the meeting.

Maj. Gilman told the Plymouth students that after they have served two years active duty with the Army they must fulfill six years in reserve duty, and with three years of active duty the reserve service is cut to five years.

The Army officer said the law passed by Congress says that every man between the ages of 18 and 26½ years who enters the service today must serve on active duty and in the reserve for a total of eight years.

Turnpike to Mean Heavier Use of 61

The opening of a part of the new Ohio Turnpike has given rise to considerable speculation as to its effect upon "initial Ohio" cities, towns and villages north and south of the Turnpike.

When the Turnpike is finally opened to the Indiana line - perhaps by snowfall next year - traffic patterns will have been established that will pretty much tell whether or not some towns which are now focal points of highway traffic - and the volume of business that goes with it - will continue to be so.

Plymouth trading area residents are particularly interested to know if Route 61 traffic will increase as a result of the opening of the Turnpike at what would have been called the Milan-Edison exchange north of Milan, 24 miles north of Plymouth. Businessmen contemplating expansion programs are keen to know if the expansion will be warranted by an increase of transient business.

If traffic surveys completed in Columbus are sound, the answer is yes.

Route 61, from north of the junction with Route 98 and at least as far as the junction with Route 224, is figured to be an arterial highway of heavier use after the Turnpike is completed. If the underpass of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad in Route 61 north of New Haven can be raised, it will be even more so.

Until that underpass is corrected to accommodate bigger trucks, traffic from southern points of origin is expected to flow primarily over routes 13 and 250, according to state highway department surveys, but traffic from points west and south of Columbus would still continue to use that stretch of 61 between Routes 98 and 224 even if the underpass is not corrected.

"The question, so far as we are concerned," a state highway official declared, "is not so much whether the road will be used, but how much it will be used. If we could figure out the volume of traffic that will be drawn to the route because the Turnpike is opening, we'd be geniuses. Then we'd quit these jobs and go into business for ourselves at fancy salaries."

Some increase in traffic flow of motor transportation over Route

Papers on South America, Religion, Travel Read to Twentieth Centurians

Papers on modern living in South America, the World Council of Churches and a tour through North Carolina were read to 21 members of the Twentieth Century Circle which met with Mrs. Carl M. Lofland Monday night.

Mrs. Robert McBeth's paper, "Modern Living in South America," concentrated upon those areas of the southern continent most adjacent to the United States - Venezuela, a country of enormous wealth which is hungry for immigrants (many of them displaced persons) and capital investment to develop the rich but wild state, and British Guiana, where coffee is grown.

Mrs. Ruby Young emphasized the effort of the World Council of Churches, which recently met at Evanston, Ill., to overcome dissimilarity among 161 Protestant denominations in the Christian faith. When it was necessary during World War II to under-

Yule Log—A Festive Cake-Confection That Requires No Cooking

This gay Yule Log is a refrigerator cake, a grand climax for a guest dinner, easy to make and to decorate and economical as well. The green holly leaves are simply cut from holly leaves and the berries are red cinnamon candies. The topping is whipped cream. But it's the combination of flavors that really distinguishes this dessert. Thick, smooth apple sauce, spiced with nutmeg, and enriched with chunks of walnut meats, alternates with graham crackers to form layer upon layer. As you can see, the ingredients are simple. It's combining them that produces such a delicately nut-crunchy, taste-tickling result. To insure just the right sweetly tart for their flavor go into the apple sauce you buy in cans and jars. Sandwiched between graham crackers in this manner, apple sauce lends moistness and body—and wonderful flavor, of course. Now see how simple this Yule Log is to prepare:

Yule Log
2 1/4 graham crackers 1/2 cup finely chopped walnut meats
2 1/4 cups canned apple sauce 1/2 cup heavy cream
1 teaspoon nutmeg Red cinnamon candies

Arrange 3 graham crackers in row in loaf pan, lined with waxed paper. Combine apple sauce, egg yolk and nutmegs. Add layer of apple sauce mixture; repeat use of graham crackers and 6 layers of apple sauce, ending with layer of crackers. Chill in refrigerator several hours. Just before serving, cover with whipped cream. Garnish with citron, or in "ape" holly leaves and red cinnamon candies. Slice and serve. Yield—6 servings. Instead of whipped cream, white confectioner's sugar frosting may be used, if desired.

Area Notes Drop Of Retail Business 3,500 Expected at Warehouse

Retail business in Richland and Huron counties was poorer during the pre-Christmas season this year than last, according to Roger W. Tracy, state treasurer.

Figures for the week of Nov. 13 show sales tax collections in Richland county of $42,954 this year, as compared with $51,263 last year. The difference of nearly $9,000 means that retail sales volume was down $300,000 for the week.

Huron county figures are substantially the same. Sales tax collections for the week of Nov. 13 this year were $14,064, as against $15,311 for last year. The difference, roughly $1,200, is far less than the Richland county figure, but represents a drop of $40,000 in retail business for the week.

Huron county's drop is the more serious from the standpoint of per capita buying. The drop amounted to $1 for each man, woman and child in the county, whereas the Richland county drop means a decrease of only ten cents per man, woman and child in purchases.

Mr. Tracy attributed the statewide drop of 13.8 per cent as compared with last year to the department store and automobile fields. The former turned in reports off $224,907 from last year - a drop in sales volume of $7,000,000, and the latter figures of $191,872, a slide in sales volume of $6,400,000.

More than 3,200 persons are expected to attend the public dedication of the new warehouse at the Wilkins Air Force depot scheduled for 11:45 a.m. Wednesday, Dec. 15.

The principal address will be made by Gen. Edwin W. Rawlings, chief of the Air Materiel Command.

Other distinguished guests invited to take part include Senators John Bricker and Thomas Burke, Governor Frank Lausche and congressmen from this area, including 17th District Congressman J. Harry McGregor.

Also invited have been top Air Force, government and civic officials of the surrounding cities and towns and villages whence most of the labor that keeps the huge installation in operation is derived. The depot workers will attend the ceremonies.

The 400 by 2,000-foot building is expected to be completed within the next 10 days by George Lathrop and Sons, Toledo contractors, who started the project in January, 1953. It cost more than $5,000,000.

With completion of the building the depot will include more than 1,000,000 square feet of storage under cover and will become one of the biggest Air Force installations of its kind in the world.

Following the dedication ceremonies, a lunch will be served to the guests and a tour made of the new building which covers 18 acres of land. The new structure will have 800,000 square feet of storage, one of the largest buildings of its kind in the world.

The Roethlisberger Transfer Co. of Shelby is furnishing the vehicles and drivers for moving 14,700,028 cubic feet of air material into the new building from outdoor storage sites and the other warehouse.

The job is expected to be completed until next April. Additional material is being moved into the installation here from off-base storage places to cut the rent being paid out by the Air Force. Each van used in the moving has a conveyor and hydraulic lift operated by the tractor for handling the heavy material.

In charge of the entire job is Col. Narce Whitaker, commanding officer of the depot, who succeeded Col. Glenn C. Thompson July 17. He also will be in charge of arrangements for the dedication program.

Rated as a senior pilot, Col. Whitaker enlisted in the Army Air Corps as a flying cadet in June, 1938. He flew 63 combat missions during World War II in the Asiatic-Pacific theater. A native of Rosanna, Ky., he was graduated from Stuart Robinson High school at Blackey, Ky., and the University of Denver in Denver, Colo., where he received his degree as a civil engineer.

Officially activated May 10, 1943, the Shelby installation plays a leading role in supplying equipment and airplane parts to the Air Force throughout the world. It was renamed the Wilkins Air Force depot on Sept. 28, 1951, after being called the Parcel and 831st.

Approximately 3,000 civilian government employees are working at the depot. The employment hit its lowest ebb shortly after World War II when only 700 persons were employed.

November Weather

November, 1954, started off with five days of drizzly rain and snow flurries. Then followed 12 days of clear skies and beautiful weather with the highest temperature of the month—73 degrees, on the 18th. The lowest was 23 degrees on the 2nd. The average for the month was 44.4 or 2.0 degrees below normal.

Rainfall was light, occurring on the first five and last six days for a total of 1.39 inches—a deficit of .83 inch. Snow flurries, mixed with rain, were frequent.

Taken altogether, it was not a bad month, far different from the November of 1950, when we had a snowfall of 14 inches—remember?

Library Lists New Books For Holiday Reading

"Deep Down Under". This is the story about the thrilling lives of men who work beneath the sea. Here are the fabulous frogmen who, with rubber fins, goggles and aqualung, swim fathoms beneath the surface of the sea on hazardous missions. Here is the eye-witness account of the daring operations who dive in salvage work and for the construction of buildings in New York city. Here are the pearl divers who go down under with no aid or protection except their own experience and wits. This book by John Floethy is an authentic record of the adventures, and is illustrated by striking photographs.

"The Plum Thicket", by the author of the several popular books about Kentucky and the mountain folks, is the story of "a summer no child should ever have seen", says the book jacket. This makes the book intriguing. It is the story of a golden summer and a violent climax, by the author of "The Kentuckians". Katie for the first time comes alone to her grandparents' house in Arkansas, and her days are idyllic until she finds and wonders about the close thicket of wild plum trees whose massive shade covers a child's grave.

"Soldier of Fortune", is a novel by Ernest Gann, author of the best seller "The High and Mighty". This probably will be enough to put it on the library's waiting list, but it may be added that the author leaves it to the reader to decide who was the soldier of fortune: Jane Hoyt, who searches for her missing husband in the far East, risking all, even her love; Louis Hoyt, who is both wild and Irish, and is supposed to be dead in Red China; or Hank Lee, American expatriate and notorious black-marketeer.

"Benton's Row", Frank Yerby has set his new tale of life and love through four generations in the south again. From Louisiana comes this spellbinding story of a renowned delta family and of its illicit Cajun branch that brings the book to a dramatic climax. Tom Benton, to establish a family, stole his wife, land, and slaves from another man. On such a foundation how could a family be anything but brawling, dangerous, beautiful and, in the finale, tragic? Yerby has been called by critics the modern Dickens, giving due credit to his story-telling ability.

"No Time for Sergeants". From Bennett Cerf comes this remarkable statement about the book by Mac Hyman, "I always thought I laughed till I cried was just a figure of speech until I read this book. It's a four-star, one hundred percent wower". Just to look at the author's photograph on the back of the book jacket is to know from his whimsical expression that he can write a good book to bring one out of the doldrums. This is the account of the hillbilly from Georgia who had to be kidnapped by the draft board so that he could train for a war which he hadn't as yet got around to finding out about.

"Leopards and Lillies", the novel, by Alfred Dugan, deals with the tumultuous time in English history which brought about the signing of the Magna Carta. The title refers to the coat of arms of Anjou and France, but the love story concerns the lives of Margaret, married and widowed at fourteen, and Sir Falkes, who in spite of his low birth attains a position of great power during King John's reign in England. Critics say, "First-rate entertainment". —M. P.

25 Years Marked by Maids or Mist With Noon Arrair

The Maids of the Mist observed their 25th anniversary with an all day bachelorette party. Dinner was served at noon to 40 guests and eight choruses. Four of the choruses were given by the Maids, including Mrs. Kai Foraker, Mrs. Mayne Dawson, Mrs. Lyus Kuhn, and Mrs. Ida Kuhn.

Mrs. Cecile Frakes led the devotions and the Lord's prayer followed. Mrs. Mary Hutchinson welcomed the group. Musical numbers sang a solo, and Mrs. Frakes Van Loos gave a reading called "How Lullabying Came About". A song by Mrs. Agnes Willet followed.

A highlight of the program was a style show of fashions worn 25 years ago. The four models, Agnes Willet, Agnes Kuhn, Maxine Willet, and Margaret Roberts, impersonated stars of the silent screen. The same group appeared in a short play with a one-act comedy, written by Mrs. Edna Dick. Gerry Kugge gave a reading, "The Dressed Turkey", and Lou Hawk spoke on "Give Thanks for the Program".

The last piece of the program was Mary Hutchinson and a cleverly arranged crystal ball through which she traced the history of the happenings of the past 25 years. Mrs. Frakes, Ida Kuhn, and Mrs. Dawson helped to fill in the years leading up to today.

The meeting of Jan. 11 is planned at the home of Mrs. William Vanloo, West Broadway road. The theme of this meeting is "Meals for the Freezer".

Levering Farm Solves Mystery

The mystery farm of The Advertiser's Nov. 18 issue is a mystery no longer. Readers were quick to telephone, call or mail responses to the editor's office. The winner was Herman Garrett, Shiloh, who should call at The Advertiser office for his reward.

The J. B. Leverings, with nearly a century of dairying behind them on a farm near Shiloh, have tackled hens. The result is an operation that is compact, well organized, and a money maker so long as egg prices don't fall lower than the thermometer in February.

Their farm is a 60-acre spread on both sides of Route 178 east of Shiloh. The major part of the ground lies to the west of the road, with only 14 or 15 acres to the east. The land rolls, and is suitable for grains which are taken to the farm cooperative at Shiloh and mixed with egg mash as the basis of the diet of 300-odd hens.

The Leverings have been on the farm three years. They bought it from the Schatzers. Mrs. Levering's health has been poor during the past summer, and Mrs. Levering has been carrying a good share of the load.

"Oh, she's a /r/h, "it keeps me busy. I pick up eggs in the forenoon just before lunch and again in the afternoon. I feed twice a day, and I have to change the water every day."

The 300 hollies who need her careful attention are of the Leghorn family, which started as chicks at Buevris in a sex-tested lot. Does this sex-testing thing work out?

"See for yourself," Mr. Levering roared. "We had only four cockerels in the whole lot, and we are not sure but that two of them aren't a couple of colored chicks that our granddaughter got for Easter and brought out here to turn in with our flock."

The Leethorn lay a large, white egg about 325 times a year. On the Leverings' farm, she lays it in a nest that is lined with wood shavings which the Leverings haul from a lumber outfit in Mansfield.

"We like the shavings," Mrs. Levering says. "It keeps the eggs clean and it's easy to handle."

The eggs show it. Once a week or thereabouts, the eggs are graded as to size and carried to Mansfield, where they are sold at farmers' prices to a large retail grocery outlet.

That prices have gone down, there's no disputing. How far and how long is the next question. "Well, sir, I just couldn't say for sure how long, but I can tell you how far - they used to be 60 cents a dozen and they're down as low as 20 sometimes," says Mr. Levering.

Costs have risen and tend to stay there, it is pointed out. Egg mash sold for $5.85 with and carried to the last batch of the Leverings bought. Three hundred hens will consume a lot of mash in a month.

The farm supports a good diversified grain crop - five acres of wheat and, this year at least, eight acres of corn. Mr. Levering fetched a few ears as samples. One of them measured a good four inches around and 13 inches long.

This past season, Mr. Levering said, he had a bit of trouble with deer and raccoon, both of which entered acreage sown to corn and nibbled off the tops of the ears. You can even see the tiny teeth-marks on some of the ears.

"I called the game warden at Mansfield and told him I was going to do a little shooting out of season. That got him right up here," Mr. Levering says, with a smile. "but it didn't do much good. We just had to let the corn outgrow the deer."

When the snow drifts in this winter, the Leverings will need to break a path to the henhouse, which their birds never leave, to go back and forth. But that's all, because they're comfortable, warm and pleasantly located in the farmhouse.

Problems in the hen business? "Aside from prices," says Mrs. Levering, "you get cannibalism in chickens, which we had three years ago and seem to have whipped, but don't ask me what we did. For I couldn't tell you. It just stopped and maybe it's the kind of care you give them - you aren't scare them."

35 Richland Countians Are Enrolled At Miami University's First Semester

Of the 5,046 students regularly enrolled at Miami university this fall, 35 are residents of Richland county, a survey shows.

Butler, Miami's home county, has taken the lead in student representation with 688, and close behind it is Cuyahoga county, whose seat is Cleveland, with 649. Miami has a total Ohio enrollment of 3,944 for 1954 which is less than last year's but still greater than that shown for the preceding two years.

Out-of-state registrations at Miami currently are quoted at 1,070, slightly short of the figure for 1953 at this time. Illinois continues to lead the non-Ohio delegations with 284 and Indiana follows with 192. Third place goes to New York, with 137. New Jersey has 78, Michigan 71, Pennsylvania 58, Wisconsin 45 and Kentucky 41. All but 14 of the states are represented at the University this year.

There has been an increase in foreign student enrollment; Miami now instructs citizens of 26 countries outside the United States.

Another Mystery

Anybody know where Pine street is? Or McDonough street? One will get you five not more than half a dozen residents can direct you to these addresses. But they exist. Ask Carl V. Ellis, village clerk.

Pine street connects Railroad street and Riggs street. McDonough connects West High street with Nichols avenue. There's a sign which reads "Pine street" affixed to one of the Fate-Roof-Heath Co. buildings. But a reporter couldn't find any which reads "McDonough street."

Girl Scout News

Troops 3 met at Mrs. Cook's, 34 North street, Nov. 17. First we played a game and had our business meeting. Then we had refreshments and sewed on our towels until it was time to go home. Louise Newmyer, reporter.

Bishop Farm's Success Partly Due to Clover That Grew Long

"You take the first road right off 298 after it crosses the railroad tracks, and you'll find it on the left, about half a mile."

The directions were accurate and the reporter encountered no difficulty. The farm belongs to Otto Bishop, New Washington new car dealer, and it's one of several he owns in the area.

In 10 years he has made it into a rich and profitable enterprise, which he attributes to two factors: some money he spent on a drainage ditch, and an accident.

The accident is interesting because it shows how useful is a crop of English clover. "We planted this English clover with the intention of plowing it under as green manure," Otto Bishop says. "When the time came to put the plow in there, we were called on to do something else, and I thought it would do no harm to let the clover grow a few more days. What happened was that it rained, and by the time we got in there it was over knee high. My neighbors urged me to work it for seed, but I'm a stubborn cuss - when I decide it's for green manure, that's what it's for. So we turned it under. And you can see what a dandy thing it was to do that."

The corn crop on that piece this year ran well over 100 bushels an acre. When you consider that corn and beans are the only two crops that Mr. Bishop grows on his 196-acre piece, you can count up the dollars if your mind will go that fast.

The drainage ditch could have been financed by petitioning the county commissioners. Otto Bishop and his neighbors decided against it because Huron county as well as Crawford county approval would have been required. They figured this would be time-consuming. Also, there was one neighbor who wouldn't have any part of contributing a fair share of the cost, and they calculated he would throw a monkey wrench into the works. So they went ahead on their own merely with the informal approval of the county commissioners.

The drainage ditch runs generally east to the railroad. It cost Otto Bishop well over $5,000, so you can imagine what it amounted to all told.

And what's he going to raise on the farm? "Hold on," laughs Mr. Bishop. "I'm just trying to get the thing into shape so we can think of a chief crop for it. I've been thinking of getting a good hog man and starting a hog crop on it."

He's got perhaps 55 head of hogs on the farm now. That it would make a fine hog farm is the consensus of his neighbors. If he decides to do so, he'll have to build a good hog barn. The other buildings have been equipped with cement floors and are in excellent condition.

What of the chances of barley, rye and millet as secondary money crops? "Dunno," says Otto Bishop. "We grew some rye one year, got about 22 bushels to the acre, a good crop, but it barely paid out. Barley's a fair crop, helps keep down weeds, matures fast enough, but again not a big money maker. When I was young we were always taught that millet is not so good for horses because the seeds were said to make it bad for the kidneys, but we don't raise horses anymore, so what would we do with millet? Still, we'd be glad to tackle any such crop if we knew of any possible market for it."

One interesting fact about the farm is that it lies in two school districts for tax purposes. In one part, Mr. Bishop pays the Plymouth school district tax, and in the other, a Crawford county tax. There's quite a difference in the amount he pays, he says, both because there's more land in the Plymouth district and because the Plymouth tax rate is higher.

His neighbors look for more progress on the Bishop farm because Otto Bishop will listen to reason, he's progressive, a go-getter, interested in farming as a money-making proposition, and willing to take a chance.

"What better neighbor can you have than that?" asked one. The reporter took off with a shake of his head. That kind will bear some beating.

The lower the freezer temperature, the longer rancidity in ground beef and sausage is retarded. At zero degrees, hamburger didn't develop rancidity for 6 months in West Virginia tests.

Clyde Caldwell Reports from Shiloh —

Shiloh to Wind Up Electric Rebuilding

"With the completion of the line in Euclid street, now under construction, and a line in Railroad street, soon to start, Shiloh's electric system will have been completely rebuilt."

So states Ami Jacobs, president of the Shiloh board of public affairs.

The project, started two years ago under the supervision of Tom Lorden and now being carried on by Russell (Tag) Moser, entailed the replacing of all old lines, cross-arms and poles throughout the village with new ones. It has been financed solely from reserve funds in the board's treasury. No special bond issues were required.

Mr. Jacobs further states that the stringing of Christmas lights throughout the business section in Main street will be started any day now. The lights, however, will not be turned on until two weeks before Christmas.

Mrs. Robert Pennell and daughters, Jackie and Jonnie, were guests in the Benedict home on Monday and Tuesday preceding Thanksgiving. Jackie returned with her mother, Bessie, but Jonnie remained here with her grandparents for an indefinite visit.

The Rev. and Mrs. O. S. Goerner and daughter of Holgate were Thanksgiving day guests in the home of Mrs. Goerner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Black, Pettit street.

Harry Roethlisberger of Shiloh and Mrs. Isabel Roethlisberger and son, Kenny, of Plymouth were entertained Thanksgiving day in the home of Mrs. Roethlisberger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Boyce, in the Noble road.

Mrs. Mesdames Ditha McBride, Ethel Russell, Nadine Butner, Anna Firestone, Elma Stevenson, Isabel Roethlisberger and Fern Pittinger and Miss Ollie Zeigler attended the Past Matron's association of district No. 10, O. E. S., at Belleville Saturday.

Fire Chief and Mrs. Merton A. Benedict entertained at their home in West Main street, Thanksgiving day Mr. and Mrs. John Elliott and Mr. Albert Benedict of Shelby.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wentzell of Lakewood were Sunday guests in the same home.

Methodists Talk Of Church School

The Church school program for the coming year was outlined at a meeting held Friday evening at the Methodist parsonage.
Mrs. R. Earl McQuate, church school superintendent, presided over the meeting of the Methodist Church Commission of Education.
The group elected Mrs. Audrey Bevier as literature secretary and Deryl Ream as librarian. It was agreed that the commission would meet quarterly.

A Christmas program was announced for family night, Dec. 19, at 6:30 p.m. There will be carols and moving pictures followed by a social hour for the children of the church.

Church school workers met at the home of Mrs. Robert Lewis
Nov. 30 to make plans for the Christmas program.
