

$100,000 Damages Wrought by Winds

Freak high winds that rose about 7:30 a.m. Tuesday caused an estimated $100,000 in damage in Plymouth area before the day was out.

R. Earl McQuate lost the roof of a portion of his furniture store at 26 Plymouth street when the wind ripped roofing and rafters from the frame structure. Rain driven by the wind penetrated the newly decorated building and damaged some items of furniture, Mr. McQuate said.

The patriarch of Plymouth shade trees - a giant elm over four feet thick in front of the home of R. Harold Cushman at 125 Plymouth street, was blown over. The tree was estimated to be over 200 years old. Thought to be sturdy, it showed evidence of extensive decay in its center. An adjoining tree also toppled over. Fortunately, neither tree disturbed power and telephone wires running through them.

The front door of the residence of J. Harold Smith at 83 Plymouth street lost three panes to the wind. A television antenna on the home of Roger A. Miller at 25 Mills avenue was blown down, as was another on the home of J. Eldon Nimmons, 31 North street.

The roof of the garage of Harold Penwell in New Haven was blown off by the high-velocity winds, and that which was not blown off soon after collapsed of its own weight. Street lights in the village were turned off Tuesday night until ex-pers could clear broken tree limbs and other debris from electricity wires.

Two windows in The Advertiser composing room were blown in about 10 a.m. Tuesday by high winds and the inky operator, Harold Davis, Jr., Ironton, narrowly escaped injury from flying glass.

The Buick sedan belonging to Theodore Bettec was severely damaged when the winds blew the garage roof up and then let it down again - right on top of the car. Police Chief Robert L. Meiser reported he counted 40 television antennae blown down before he stopped counting.

The buildings at the village water plant were damaged slightly and salt used to soften drinking water was wetted by the winds and rain. The rains turned into snow shortly after 10 a.m. and temperatures dropped to below freezing promptly.

About 100 Plymouth High school musicians will depart for Newark at 9 a.m. Saturday to compete in band, orchestra and chorus against 30 schools from the eight-county District 7 of the Ohio Music Education association.

The band will play at 1:40 p.m. "Storm King March," "Laureate Overture" and Handel's "Larghetto" will comprise the band's entry in the contest.

The chorus will sing at 3:20 p.m. Folz's "Be Thou Not Still" and Larkin's "Lord Bless You and Keep You" are the selections which it will submit for rating.

The band, in uniform, will number 67 members. The chorus will total 45.

Richland, Ashland, Morrow, Knox, Delaware, Licking, Holmes and Coshocton county schools are included in the district.

Individual ratings will be accorded bands, orchestras and choruses, Mr. Dubbert reports. The students will travel in two buses.

Nearly 70 men attended the first dinner Friday to hear the Rev. Dr. S. E. La Follette, superintendent, Mansfield district, Methodist church, say the church is the hope of the world in international affairs.

Her sister was summoned from Monroeville to fetch her, since her vehicle was damaged beyond operability.

The Ad Says So!

Advertisements in The Plymouth Advertiser are read, says Edward O. Ramsey, operator of Plymouth Drive-In theatre, and what's more, they mean what they say.

Except sometimes, such as last week, for example, Mr. Ramsey had every intention of opening his theatre for the new season, and so advertised. Trouble was, there was a slight discombobulation of the electrical machinery, and rather than do a poor job, Mr. Ramsey decided to wait a week.

He says he'll be open Saturday night. His advertisement says so, too. If he's not, don't say you weren't warned.

Sewer Tax OK'd On First Reading

Amid heated discussion of the justice of the rates fixed for productive industry, the village council passed unanimously on first reading Thursday night the sewer usage tax ordinance.

As it stands now, the ordinance retains the rates set by the council nearly two months ago:

$3 a dwelling a quarter.

$6 a quarter for clubs, cafes, restaurants, service stations, dairies, stockyards, and the like.

$25 a quarter per building for the public schools.

$10 a quarter per 100 employees for the productive industry.

Councilman Royal W. Eckstein went along with the majority after producing figures to "show that the rate for productive industry is only half that which is assessed private households."

He figured the average work force for 100 employees as 4,000 man hours, or 206,000 man hours annually. By simple division into the annual charge for 100 employees-$40, he concluded that the cost per man hour for sewer usage is $0.0015.

The household, on the other hand, pays $0.0031 an hour for sewer usage, computed by assuming four persons living constantly in a house 168 hours a week, or 112,320 hours a year.

If sewer usage taxes are not paid within 90 days, the amount due may be certified to the county auditor and assessed against the property owner in the manner prescribed by law, with full penalties.

Ray Buys Business Of Harold Penwell

Donald Ray has purchased the assets and good will of New Haven Auto Supply & Service and will assume management under the styling Ray's Auto Supply & Service on Apr. 1.

Ray, formerly owner of the business, plans to remain in the area long enough to repair the roof of the building, which was blown off in Tuesday's high winds, and thereafter go to California.

A 1951 graduate of Plymouth High school, Mr. Ray lives with his mother, Mrs. Ruth Ray, at 127 Trux street. He is married to the former Elaine Rooks and is the father of a seven-month-old son, Steven.

The business will offer 24-hour wrecker service and a complete auto service and repair section, including body and fender-work.

Ralph Tutchings Is Willard Mayor

Husband of the former lady-in-wait of the Advertiser, Ralph Tutchings will be acting mayor of Willard upon the resignation of R. Wayne Miller.

Mr. Miller is quitting because his wife is taking him out of town. Mr. Tutchings, yard clerk for the Baltimore & Ohio railroad in Willard, was elected president of the common council of Willard and as such is next in succession to the mayor.

Don Ford, himself something of a moundsman in his day, is sure to be impressed with the excellence of Early Wynn, Mike Garcia and Bob Lemon. Harold Dietrich has a bet that the Big Three will win 60 games.

Ken Myers, another strong fan, likes the White Sox but wouldn't bet against the Indians.

Weldon Cornell took time out from his vacation in Florida to look at the Cleveland Indians of the league and the world, to boot, the New York Yankees. He was unimpressed. "The Yankees will be lucky to finish out of last place, the way they looked against the Cardinals," he writes.

Earl McQuate and Carl Lofland toward the Indians on sentimental grounds, and Jim Cunningham is likewise a Tribe supporter.

A local cattleman has offered Myers a chance to recuperate after the World Series debacle, but wants reasonable odds against the Indians' strong pitching, which this year included a young phenom named Nuke Score, a lefthanded pitcher who will play in October.

Mr. Fazio wishes to thank all the members of the alumni and friends who contributed to make it a success.

34,944 dweller-hours a year. Others of the council seemed reluctant to alter the figure set before, and Mr. Eckstein consented to go along with the majority.

Mayor Glenn West pointed out that the most feasible date for inception of the ordinance is June 1. The ordinance will receive the required three readings, with the next two to come Apr. 5 and 19.

Required publication will occur Apr. 21 and 28, and the 30-day delay authorized in the law would put the ordinance into effect May 19. The difficulties of billing for the part of a month will prevent the enforcement of the ordinance before June 1.

Householders who are not connected with any extant sewer contract are not required to pay the assessment, the ordinance decrees.

The Board of Public Affairs is charged with the responsibility of administering the ordinance, which will determine the classification of various business establishments to fix the tax.

If sewer usage taxes are not paid within 90 days, the amount due may be certified to the county auditor and assessed against the property owner in the manner prescribed by law, with full penalties.

'Let's Play Baseball' Week Has Lots of Support --- for Al Lopez

This is National "Let's Play Baseball" week, a promotion staged by professional baseball to stimulate interest in the sport, which last year recorded a certain lightening in interest by paying customers.

Not that Plymouth's baseball fans think such a promotion is necessary. Except for a very slight period when a man named Brown and a football team bearing his name were creating headlines, they have not stopped talking baseball since Lopez swept Cleveland burned.

Anyway, almost to a man, they think - and they are better - that the Indians' loss to the Cleveland Indians will steer the Cleveland Indians home first in the American league again this year.

Don Ford, himself something of a moundsman in his day, is sure to be impressed with the excellence of Early Wynn, Mike Garcia and Bob Lemon. Harold Dietrich has a bet that the Big Three will win 60 games.

Ken Myers, another strong fan, likes the White Sox but wouldn't bet against the Indians.

Mr. Morrison's Niece Weds Mansfielder in Church Rites

Niece of Judson A. Morrison, 77 Portine street, Miss Sallie Elaine Humphrey exchanged marriage vows Mar. 12 in Mansfield First English Lutheran church with John A. Haag of that city.

The Rev. George M. Billman, assistant pastor of the church, presided over the ceremony at 2 p.m. before an altar decorated with pink snapdragons and white gladioli, palms, ferns and candelabra.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. John R. McGraw of Memphis, Tenn., formerly of Shelby, and of James Humphrey, Shelby. She was attired in a white rose point lace and satin gown with lace bodice over satin and lace-covered buttons in back. Long sleeves ended in points over the wrists. A full skirt of satin had lace panels in front and back and ended in a chapel train.

She wore a Juliet cap of white satin trimmed with orange blossoms, pearls and rhinestones, from which was suspended a fingertip veil of imported silk illusion. Her flowers were white carnations and lilies of the valley.

Given in marriage by her stepfather, the bride was attended by her aunt, Mrs. Floyd Humphrey, Jr., of Shelby route 3, as matron of honor and Miss Ruth L. Smith of Mansfield as maid of honor.

Mrs. Humphrey was attired in pink net over taffeta with a jacket of embroidered net. She wore pink silk illusion trimmed with pearls and rhinestones and carried blue carnations. Miss Smith chose a blue net over taffeta dress with jacket of embroidered net and a small hat of blue silk illusion with pearls and rhinestones and carried pink carnations.

James W. Humphrey, Shelby, the bride's brother, was best man. Ushers were Gordon A. Hampton of Shelby and Robert A. McLaughlin of Mansfield.

The Haags will live at 347 West Third street, Mansfield. He is employed at Wilkins Air Force station. Mrs. Haag is a nurse at Mansfield General hospital, from whose school of nursing she was graduated in 1953.

Friendships Class Observes Mar. 17

"The wearin' of the green" was the theme of the Mar. 17 meeting of the Friendship class when it met in the Methodist church.

Mrs. Harry Shutt sang two Irish songs, and Miss Jessie Cole conducted an Irish quiz together with a Bible quiz for the program. Refreshments were served in keeping with St. Patrick's day.

A short business meeting was presided over by Miss Cole, and Mrs. Bertha Seaholts led the devotions and read a poem in memory of the late Rev. C. Roscoe McKeeken.

Newcastor Warren Guthrie learns from glass-topped engine how Boron changes the nature of combustion.

GLASS-TOPPED ENGINE SHOWS WHY BORON* GIVES IMMEDIATE IMPROVEMENT

Why do three drivers out of four report immediate improvement with Boron Gasoline? The glass-topped engine which newcastor Warren Guthrie has been looking into holds the answer.

It shows that non-Boron gasoline often burns uneven and ragged, while Boron Gasoline burns with a smooth, even sweep. The piston gets a smoother, steadier, longer-lasting "push." The result is a new smoothness in engine power and performance from engines that used to run rough.

Why don't you try a tankful of Sohio Boron Supreme? Chances are that you, like thousands of Ohio drivers, will feel an immediate improvement in engine performance.

Industry Needs A Water Supply

Modern industry - whether it makes carriage bolts or fancypantry - requires water in abundance, and water is something we haven't got much of.

We can't very well meet the requirements of an industry without an adequate supply of water. At least another increment of 150,000 gallons a day, which is more or less what we are using now, is necessary, and quickly.

Not only because we - and that's the editorial we, for we don't know of many others who really want another industry in our town - know a new industry won't come here unless we have water, but because we'll all have higher fire rates to pay if we don't get more water soon.

To go to where the railway crosses Route 598 near New Haven is a pretty long haul. However, if that's the only place that water can be found in abundance, that's where we've got to go.

After an initial rapport (that's a French word which roughly means the two seemed to get along together) between them, the Board and the owner of the present site appear to have diverged in the intensity of their purpose. There may be good reason for this, but we feel the public is entitled to know.

If the Board's arguments have relatively more merit, the public will side with the board and bring its sentiments to bear upon the situation. Up to now, the Board seems to have shown an understandable reluctance to consider a large cash outlay because of what the public is likely to think. Telling the public promptly is a good way to learn the public's sentiments, for, people being what they are, they'll soon tell their elected representatives what they think.

If the landowner's arguments have more merit, the Board will not need to entertain any doubts as to the propriety of going ahead, for, people being what they are, the eminent fairness of a position, adequately presented, will be accepted as such.

If the Board thinks its negotiations should be carried on privately for a while, we go along with that idea. But the Board should not feel that private negotiations take the place of a full and frequent consultation with the public.

Public opinion is a just and fair light to throw upon any matter, and public opinion justly and fairly mobilized always has the right effect upon right as opposed to wrong.

We do not presume to tell the Board how to do its business. We do insist, however, that water before another summer is out is essential, and the community cannot allow any small obstacle to remain in the path of its just and proper needs.

to the Editor:-- Sewage Disposal Issue Faces Shiloh

To the Editor:

We hope you will cooperate with us to the extent of publishing this petition relating to the value of conserving water resources of the county and state.

The State Department of Natural Resources through the Division of Wild Life has an appropriation of funds from the hunting and fishing licenses for the building of lakes and stocking them with fish.

Therefore, we the sportsmen and citizens of Huron county, are circulating a petition to bring about the proposed lakes to Huron county.

The following petition is approved by all conservation clubs of Huron county.

"We, the undersigned Council of Huron County Conservation clubs and citizens, approve of the policy of the Division of Wild Life in spending a part of the money obtained from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses and any other available funds for the building of lakes and stocking them with fish."

This will provide sport and recreation for our citizens and conserve water for agriculture and industry.

We therefore petition the Division of Wild Life to consider a location in Huron county for the building of such a lake.

Respectfully yours, John Stotz, secretary

George Leydorf, chairman, Council of Huron County Conservation clubs

Advertiser wants Ad. 6751

Shiloh village council met last night with Edward N. Turpish, partner in Wilcox & Turpish, Akron consulting engineers, to consider how the village can comply with the state's order to cease polluting the Mohican river.

Shiloh's present permit to dump raw sewage in the river expires in June. A routine application for its renewal will be filed, but the council is not deluding itself that the state will require some action.

The problem is so difficult that even the most liberal thinkers cannot foresee how the village will be able to finance the construction of a sewage disposal plant and a complete sewage system.

There are no sewers in the village at present. Each household is either equipped with a septic tank or a cess pool, and the overflow runs down two ditches. By far the principal portion of Shiloh's sewage runs south toward the Mohican river.

A small amount runs in another ditch north from the ridge line toward the Huron river.

Any sewer plan would have to provide for a main sewer down the center of Main street. Houses lying north of the ridge line would have to be serviced by pumping from north to south, since the fall of the ground is from south to north, and houses lying south of the ridge line would require pumping from south to north in the reverse direction of the flow of the river.

There is no feeling among the council - comprising George Harwood, A. C. Hines, John Kuhn, Rev. R. L. Wood and Jack Thompson - that Shiloh does not need a sewage disposal system. The only question is whether the village can afford it.

Present bonded indebtedness of the community is $18,200, on a tax duplicate of $531,467. This amounts roughly to three percent of the tax valuation of the town.

One way out is to present to the state authorities in connection with the application for renewal of the permit to dump - the fourth such application Shiloh will have made since the water pollution control unit was established - a statement from the county auditor that Shiloh is unable to sustain such financial load.

While it may be possible to obtain such a statement, many believe that it will not be forthcoming. They reason that no auditor would run the risk of incurring the displeasure of the state authorities by stating in writing that a community cannot finance even the most modest sewage disposal system nor would he take a chance on bringing every other small community having sewer troubles into his office for the same statement.

From the signs, Shiloh is in for the same long, tough fight experienced in Plymouth and soon to be faced by Greenwich. And in the long run, the state will win out, most observers think, albeit perhaps not with full 100 per cent Shiloh money.

Easier Tacking

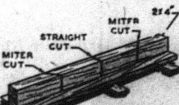

THE handling of tacks is greatly simplified with the use of a magnetic hammer and a slanting pickup surface. Here's how it's accomplished: Use a 12 x 14-inch piece of Masonite Presswood, fastening a block of wood to one end, as illustrated in American Builder. Spill some tacks at the upper end of the incline, and they will assume a head down position when the board is jarred slightly. With their heads facing in one direction, it's a simple matter to pick them up, one at a time, with a magnetic hammer, and drive them home.

Better Miter Box

HERE'S a miter box that has two advantages. Miter can be cut on either or both sides, and the outfit has a solid base. Take three pieces of 1 x 2 lumber and cut them to a length of 10 inches, according to American Builder. Nail them to a 2 x 4 about 24" long into which 45-degree miter and a straight cut have been sawed. Finally, nail a piece of 1 x 2 about two feet long on each side of the 2 x 4.

Around the Square

Robby, Bob the Clipper, Don Willet and a few other new car buyers are getting the ribbing of their lives. As with any new machine, theirs have had some bugs in them that need to be adjusted. The ribbers insist you'll find Robby's rig down at Jud's with the hood up every day. Robby says that's because he has to push cars of Bob's brand every morning. Don says Bob's type sounds like a threshing machine. Bob just grins, and says he's only got 184 miles on his, so how can he tell if they know what they're talking about? Besides, if he was a sucker, he's in good company. Henry sold a lot of 'em last year.

Some 968 country editors across the nation participated in a poll conducted by The American Press, and came up with these answers:

- 70.4 per cent in favor of postponement of reduction on corporate taxes from 52 to 47 per cent.
- 53 per cent against Ike's proposal of reducing taxes on corporations' foreign earnings from 52 to 38 per cent to stimulate more foreign investment.
- 74.7 per cent in favor of three-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements act.
- 42.2 per cent in favor of continuing foreign economic aid, 38.1 per cent against.
- 46.2 per cent for raising Congressional pay.
- 44.7 per cent against five per cent raise for federal employees.
- 67.7 per cent for flexible rather than rigid support of agricultural prices.
- 51.1 per cent opposed to Ike's re-insurance program allowing federal guaranty of losses by private insurance companies in event of loss on policies now regulated as too risky.
- 54.6 per cent for 35,000 more housing units a year for the next two years.
- 86.1 per cent bitterly opposed to amendment of Taft-Hartley law providing for abridgement of states' rights to forbid compulsory union membership.
- 80.5 per cent opposed to guaranteed wage schemes.
- 53.2 per cent opposed to giving the vote to 18-year-olds.
- 47 per cent in favor of the Bricker amendment, 44.8 opposed.
- 50 per cent opposed to Senate investigation of stock market.
- 76.8 per cent against state laws allowing manufacturers to set retail price of their products.

Aside from the sentiment on the Bricker amendment, Phin's views went along with the majority in each case. If we're out of step with a modern, right-thinking America, then we're in good company.

A belated St. Paddy's day story. Seems a high school tenor rendered "Kathleen Mavourneen" in a public meeting. One in the audience was seen to wipe a tear from his eye.

"You must be Irish," remarked his neighbor.

"No," replied the chap. "I'm the music teacher."

The appearance of Myrus the Mentalist at Willard will have a goodly number of our townfolk in attendance, even if it is a Monday night, when all the clubs meet. (Memo to ourselves: ask around and try to find out why all clubs meet on Mondays or Tuesdays and the place is simply dead Wednesday, Thursdays and Fridays.) His feats are remarkable, to say the least.

The whole business of extra-sensory perception (that's the technical term for it) is the special science of Professor J. S. Rhine at Duke university. And he's done a lot of looking into it, trying to explain how some folks have the most uncanny way of predicting the future or telling what's in the backs of our minds.

The prof's brother, Styles, is a well-known beagle breeder over near Greenwich.

Anyway, the appearance of Myrus is for a good cause, and Chas. Resseger will be glad to arrange for tickets for you.

Remember the date: Monday night, Willard High school auditorium, 8 p.m. and for testimonials as to Myrus' skills, ask Harris Postema, who has a memorable experience with him at Norwalk.

Memo to A. R.: the newspaper doesn't make the news. It prints the news. If a well-read lady with four lovely children scoots off with some ne'er-do-well in a fancy car and is found in a motel somewhere in Nebraska while the kids cry for her and her husband looks downcast, we feel bad, but that's news just as much as the cye of the young chap who finds $100 in the street with no claimers. The newspaper prints both.

And to another respected subscriber, who suggests that a newspaper should print less news about abnormal people and more news about normal people, remember what B. Franklin said: "It is the drivers of the abnormal - those who deviate from the run-of-the-mill - that cause invention, progress, discovery, prosperity, squander, distress, misery, and embarrassment." His point was, y'see, that abnormality is normal.

Finally, to the fellow who wants his name kept out of the paper: The one sure way to get his name out of the paper is to get married, don't have kids, don't buy a new car, don't go to Sandusky or Mansfield or wherever, don't get a new hat, don't prosper in this world, don't let the policeman on the head, don't get a parking ticket, in short, just don't. Just die. No, don't do that. You'll get into the news.

It was nice of the postman, our friend Mac, to say he likes a piece we ran. He's an accommodating chap and has a good suggestion: mailboxes at many houses are too small - in the junk mail cut out as much as you can. As of the end of this month, many are too small. Few folks complain their mail is all but up.

Before you berate your postman, look to your mailbox. It is large enough to meet the requirements? Does it protect the mail from the rain and snow? Does the lid work?

Clyde Caldwell Reports from Shiloh — High Winds Cause Damage in Shiloh

The high winds which ravaged the area Tuesday left considerable damage in their wake here, tearing off chimneys and roofs, blowing down trees and taking down innumerable television aerials.

A large pine tree in the front of the Lottie Fluke residence in West Main street was blown against the front porch roof and a press time was being strongly buffeted by the southwest winds.

A television aerial on the roof of Mrs. Grace Dwyer's house adjoining was blown down, taking a large part of the chimney with it. Part of the barn roof was blown from the Paul Rader residence in Guthrie road, two trees were blown down in the yard of Robert Miller in Route 603, and yards everywhere throughout the area were littered with dead and broken limbs.

The Mansfield weather station reported gusts there at times reached a velocity of 68 miles an hour.

Arthur Dewey of West Main street was taken to Shelby Memorial hospital in McQuate's ambulance Tuesday morning.

Fred Guthrie of Guthrie road, who entered Shelby Memorial hospital on Mar. 13, was released Monday and is now convalescing at his home.

Fishin' No Good

The advent of spring and the recent mild days have turned the thoughts and activities of a number of Shilohans towards fish and fishing and boats and boating.

Vernon (Big Mose) Moer hauled his house trailer up to his favorite location near Vermillion one day last week and is now feverishly refinishing his boat in his workshop in Pettit street. Apparently wax and varnish don't get along together when applied vice versa on a boat.

Ralph (Rastus) Henry wetted a line for the first time this year in the Huron river Sunday, but reported "nary a nibble." His brother Galen (Pete) is reported to have fared considerably better in the Blackfork near Rome. He returned Sunday, according to reports, with a nice string of black suckers.

Mrs. Fannie Caldwell of north Delaware street has been confined to her bed for several days, suffering from a combination of influenza and bronchitis.

"Sandals of Peace" is the sermon subject of the Lenten vespers service to be held in Mt. Hope Lutheran church Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

Auxiliary of Garrett-Riest Post No. 503, American Legion, is sponsoring a Sue Marlin party to be held in the Legion hall Tuesday at 8 p.m.

This party is open to the public, and among the products to be presented are greeting cards of all kinds, stationery, wrapping paper, hose, household novelties and many other useful items used every day in the home. Every member is requested to be present and to bring a friend.

Miss Phyllis Keith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Keith of West Main street, has been selected to represent the local unit at this year's Girls' State. Miss Karen Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Williams of Noble road, has been alternate.

Felixes Have News Of Grandchild

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hale of Syracuse, Ind., are parents of a daughter, Deborah Susan, born Mar. 11. Mrs. Hale is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Ralph M. Felix, 32 East High street.

Chorus Sings Two Numbers at Shelby

"Adoramus Te" and "Be Thou Not Still" were the numbers which the Plymouth High School chorus sang at the fourth annual Richland County Music Festival Saturday night at Shelby High School auditorium.

Robert L. Dubbert, music instructor, directed the Plymouth chorus of over 40 voices.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home.

The newly married couple left for a honeymoon trip in New York state. The bride wore a light blue linen suit for traveling.

You wouldn't notice it by reading another newspaper, but Plymouth is a fine community of good residential properties, as the above pictures show. Upper photo, the new Willo-Root addition as seen from Route 61, approaching from New Haven. Lower, residences of Thomas Root and Dr. Charles L. Hannum, approaching from Shelby.

It's a Small Village, Mr. Editor, But It's Home to 1,560 Souls

Celebrating without fanfare this year its 130th anniversary since it was founded by Abraham Trux in 1825, the village of Plymouth, with 1,560 persons living in it - enjoys its reputation of being different.

Over the years, the village has gained the reputation - whether or not deservedly one knows - of being the home of aged folks, and of retaining the last vestige of individualism that characterized the Ohio territory before it was entirely won from the Indians.

Today, with one resident 97, another 95, two 94, and one 93, the village can't quite count all those who are over 70. They live among their families, their friends, and with their God, content and happy, respected in their age and revered in death.

A younger crop of villagers lays greater store by the vigor of the schools. For the first time in history, the school system now numbers 500 pupils. In the past 10 years, the village has built two elementary schools, at a net cost of close to $300,000, which it raised in part by bonding itself to pay that much over a long term of years and in part by old-fashioned community enterprise such as bake sales and turkey dinners.

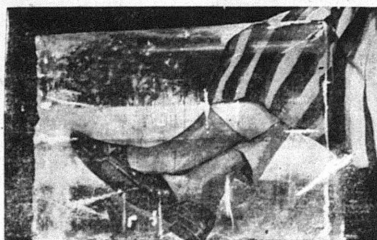

The village is proud that each of its school bond issues passed by more than the required majority. Faced with the need to expand its high school facilities in the next year or two, the Board of Education is already seeking a solution to the dilemma which faces it: state law allows the school district to sell bonds up to eight per cent of its tax valuation. Plymouth school district has only $50,000 to go to reach that limit, but the required addition to the high school will cost three times that amount.

In summer, folks come from miles around to enjoy picnicking in Mary Park park, a gift of John A. Root and his late wife in memory of her mother, which the village has developed substantially. The athletic plant situated in the park - lighted for night play, with permanent seats, accommodating nearly 1,500 persons - is one of the finest of its kind in the state. All of the labor and materials were donated.

For nearly seven decades, the village has been the home of the Fate-Root-Heath Co., a stock company which is the successor of the Fate-Gunsaulius Co. It manufactures light industrial locomotives, clay working machinery, lawnmower grinders and other small items, and was the designer and producer of the first Plymouth truck, forerunner - so far as the trade name goes - of the Plymouth automobile. Its president is John A. Root, eldest of three brothers associated in the company who came here from Medina about the turn of the century.

The citizens of Plymouth derive their livelihood in part from employment in the Fate-Root-Heath Co. factory - about 300 of them - and from a double handful of retail establishments grouped about the Public Square. The oldest business in point of continuous service is The Plymouth Advertiser, founded by David A. Locke on Oct. 6,

1853. Locke later became famous as Petroleum Volcano Nasby, celebrated Civil War humorist and essayist. In later years, many of Plymouth's residents have found employment in Wilkins Air Force station, Shelby Air Depot, a mammoth storage establishment of the U. S. Air Force located eight miles

Others are engaged in rail-roading, two common carriers serve the town, the Baltimore & Ohio railway and the Akron, Canton & Youngstown Railroad Co., and in diversified farming.

The village has a grain elevator and a stockyard, whose operations are said to be the largest of their type east of the Mississippi river. Although nine churches are officially incorporated in the village, only four are going concerns today. The First Presbyterian church, the Methodist church, and the First Evangelical Lutheran church, and St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church. Total official church membership in the village is 760; exclusive of minors, too young to affiliate themselves formally with a church.

Villagers lay great store by their churches, and they are a center of social life in the town. An American Legion post, together with its auxiliary, is active, and the village has a lodge of the order of Free and Accepted Masons and of the Eastern Star.

Two literary societies, their membership restricted by constitution to a small number or by careful invitation, have been active for more than 50 years. The younger of them, the Twentieth Century Circle, is the larger, with 25 lady members. The Tourist club has 11 members.

There is no chamber of commerce in the village, nor does a merchants' association function any longer. No service clubs are organized, but the Community club stands in the place of a men's service organization.

Since World War II, 31 new homes have been constructed in the village, which has gradually added to its area if not its population.

The volunteer fire department has a membership of 18 and a paid chief. It has two apparatus, one of which is completely modern, and serves two adjoining townships with fire protection on annual contracts. There is an active auxiliary of the fire department.

The public library - actually a branch of Richland County Public library - was organized nearly 30 years ago as a project of the Girl Scout organization. A library board consults with the county librarian as to the conduct of the activities in the library, of which an annual feature is a summer reading project for children.

The high school instrumental band, organized five years ago, has grown steadily. It is uniformed and equipped as few other small units in the state, and boasts 55 marching members. The band presents an annual Christmas and a yearly spring concert. The Band Mothers club is its principal unofficial support.

The high school fields a basketball team in the Richland County league and plays its home games in the school gymnasium, which can accommodate about 200 spectators. The football team plays a seven-game schedule, chiefly at night. A baseball nine plays a few games in the spring.

The village owns its own electric power distribution system, which is managed by a Board of Trustees, and derives its water from wells situated in the northerly section of the town. Water consumption averages 150,000 gallons a day, but additional wells would be needed if the village demand should exceed that by much.

As with all villages in Ohio, a mayor and council form of government is in force. Incumbent mayor is Glenn West, a retired hardware merchant and painter. The mayor and council are elected in odd-numbered years for two-year terms.

It is common for residents to of the village to belittle their town among themselves, and one frequently hears disparaging remarks about it from long-time residents. Outsiders, however, had best be on their guard against idle repetition of these statements, which are but another manifestation of what Plymouthites for 125 years have termed "our independent line of thinking."

The police department is manned by a full-time marshal, chief, and one part-time patrolman. The street department has a full-time commissioner and some territory is owned by the village, maintained by tax upon its inhabitants, and as modern as any in the state.

Headquarters for Easter Pets, come in to see our polka-dotted chicks. The Feather Pet Shop, 22 Central Ave., Shelby, Tel. 22051.

Antique Fancier Recalls Deals

Since 1918, when she first came to live in New Haven, Mrs. Emma Snyder remembers a few exciting events, and most of them are connected with her passion for antiques.

But some of them would make headlines in a great metropolis and the details of these events remain stuck away in the crannies of her memory. Nowadays she has plenty of time to recall them, for she lives alone in the old farmhouse in the east side of route 598 north of New Haven. The acreage is farmed by the Babcocks, who live a short distance away, and Mrs. Snyder keeps the house filled with knickknacks of a vintage character that she picks up here and there.

"I'm just excited about antiques, I guess," says Mrs. Snyder, "and just about the best deal I ever made happened one day when I bought an old corner cupboard for a song and sold it before nightfall to a lady from Wellington for $50."

"And the time I bought from May Page in Plymouth some old clocks that worked with wood movements—my, that was a real find."

Back in the early twenties, Mrs. Snyder recalls vividly, tragedy struck into New Haven. After a dispute, George Huff shot his wife and killed himself. "In a small place like New Haven, where everybody is some relation of somebody else, these things strike home particularly hard," Mrs. Snyder says.

To illustrate how relations are scattered about, Mrs. Snyder points out that she is the step-mother-in-law of Mrs. Kolia Van Wagner and the mother of Kenneth McGinnis of 178 West Broadway.

Mrs. Snyder is partial to glassware of the Victorian vintage, and is particularly pleased when she runs across a piece of milk glass. "You don't find one often, and when you do, it's hard to find one that matches anything else."

The dealers in antiques are a secretive clan and they keep in touch with each other over the grapevine. Big dealers have their agents and sub-dealers, and if you buy an antique from a big one, you pay for the pound of flesh he had to give to the small one, and for the pound of flesh he had to give to the original owner.

Tricks of the trade? "My land, there're loads of them, I just couldn't begin to tell you all of them. And I don't think I should, either," claims Mrs. Snyder.

First, she says, you have to know what is an antique and what the market is for it. Then you have to know who the customers are and what they're likely to pay. The difference is your profit.

"Sometimes, your money is tied up a long time in some thing or other, and when you sell it you have to figure the interest on your money over that long period of time," Mrs. Snyder explains.

Some years ago, when banks were foreclosing and folks were selling out, a lot of antiques were shopped off at cheap prices. Some of these are returning to the market now, she says, but a lot of them went to collectors and are permanently lost to the market.

"But after all, that's the whole secret to antiques—somebody collects them. And once you've collected them, you don't let them go."

"I'm afraid there's not much I can tell you about farming, but maybe what I can tell you about antiques will take its place," smiles Mrs. Snyder.

TOO MANY LUXURIES
The greatest trouble with this modern living is to keep our ambitions pinned down to our salaries.

Golf Team Planned

William Jump has been named captain of a Plymouth golf team to compete in the 10-team Willard Golf league this summer.

He is looking for players to round out his squad and requests those interested to communicate with him.

Play will be conducted over the Norwalk Elks course of nine holes and players will be handicapped on the basis of 75 per cent of the number of strokes over par for a nine-hole round. In this manner, he says, inexperienced players have the same advantage as experts.

Matches will be played on Thursday afternoons with tee-off time no later than 5:30 p.m. Play will open May 12.

Handicaps will be adjusted each week in accordance with recorded scores.

WHEN WINTER GRIPS THE HIGHLINES...

Ohio Power's cross-country de-frost goes into action!

When sleet appeared on big transmission lines a few years back it most always meant large size trouble. Tons of ice made cables sag and snap. Short-circuits developed as sun melted ice too quickly and wires danced crazily together. Light and power went out in stores and homes and factories.

Winter's still rough on power lines—but Ohio Power's "cross-country de-frost system" has done a lot to reduce failures from sleeted lines to an all-time minimum.

Ohio Power

The business of de-icing lines is rather technical, but the main idea is this: When lines are reported "iced up," enough extra electricity is shot through them to raise their temperature. Ice goes — and electric service goes on.

De-frosting on a king-size scale is just one of the many unseen things Ohio Power does to help you get the most value from your electric service. We're working on more ways to improve your service all the time.
