

Chapmans to Mark 50th Anniversary

A St. Valentine's day bride in 1906, Mrs. Richard R. Chapman of New Haven will observe Sunday her 50th anniversary of marriage to the young Canadian-born farmer whom she promised to love, honor and cherish in the Methodist parsonage at Willard.

An open house staged by their eight living children will be held at their home - next door to the one in which Mrs. Chapman was born Feb. 21, 1885 - Sunday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. Her maiden name was Pearl Woodworth.

Richard Chapman was born in a small hamlet near Ottawa, Can., July 29, 1883. He is a staunch member of the New Haven Odd Fellows lodge. Mrs. Chapman belongs to the Rebekah lodge.

For more than a half century, both of the Chapmans have been members of New Haven Methodist church.

For the past 39 years, they have lived in the farm home in the south side of U. S. 224 east of New Haven.

The Chapman clan gets bigger every year. Right now it numbers 34 - two sons, six daughters, 21 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Tragedy struck the family in September when the eldest son, Henry C., popular New Haven farmer and youth benefactor, died of injuries received when a trench he was digging at the New Haven Methodist church fell upon him. He was donating his labor at the time.

The remaining children are Mrs. Walter Buchanan, (Evelyn), New Haven, four children and three grandchildren; Mrs. Ted Close, (Mary), Detroit, Mich., two children and one grandchild; Mrs. Frank Schoen, (Jessie), Bellevue, one child and one grandchild; Mrs. Joe Rosenberry, (Florence), New

Noeckers to Observe 50th Anniversary St. Valentine's Day

A quiet observance at home because of illness is the routine Tuesday for Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Noecker, who will mark their golden wedding anniversary.

They were married by the Rev. Mr. Edmunds in the parsonage of Mayflower church, Mansfield, Feb. 14, 1906.

She was Katie Picking of Sharon township before her marriage. The Noeckers went to farming in the township and spent the next half century there and in Auburn township, where they now live.

Mr. Noecker was stricken with apoplexy in April, 1935, and has been bedfast since. Mrs. Noecker has not been strong for the past 18 months.

They have three daughters, Mrs. Carl Bendle and John Smith, both of Shelby, and Mrs. John Weller, Plymouth route 1. There are eight grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Noecker, who was 67 in July, remembers how she and her young bridegroom, then only 22, made their way by horse and carriage from Mansfield to Sharon township on that wedding day 50 years ago. It was a good day for a wedding because it was St. Valentine's day - reserved for lovers since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary.

Opposition Mild, Orderly As Council Passes Meters

A 16-page ordinance that required 20 minutes to read orally was approved on Friday night by a vote of one, by the village council Tuesday night in the first step to establish parking meters about the public square.

Anticipated fireworks failed to materialize as Mayor Alfred Parkinson cleverly maneuvered the regular session of the council until 70 minutes had passed before the parking meter issue was broached.

Nine visitors - whom Mayor Parkinson said he was "ticked pink to see up here" - were present as Clerk Carl V. Ellis began to read the ordinance, which provides:

1. Establishment of parking meters in the zone described by the southern extremity of Dix street at Sandusky, the western extremity of Trux street at Main, the east property line of the elementary school in West Broadway, the north property line of First Presbyterian church in Plymouth street, and 51 stalls in the middle of the square itself.

2. Penalties of 10 cents for violators who pay their fines within 60 minutes of the expiration of their legal parking time and $1 for those who pay within 24 hours, with a maximum of $25 or 10 days in jail for those whom the village may need to prosecute.

3. Weekly collections of moneys deposited in parking meters by a meterman to be designated by the chief of police.

4. Payment for the meters only from revenues deriving therefrom.

After the ordinance had been read, Mayor Parkinson called for a motion to adopt it on first reading. It was promptly offered by Maurice Bachrach. The vote was five to one, only Lowell Keith dissenting.

After the council had taken its action, the mayor opened the floor to discussion. Although the prime movers in the businessmen's efforts to upset the move were present, only Don Willett spoke.

He said he had spent two and a half hours in Willard police department sounding out the administrators of the Willard meters. He claimed that meters would be expensive to maintain, citing heavy Willard expenditures, and that certain meters already had to be removed. He said the expense of administering the system was burdensome and eroded the net take.

"Do you think," he asked, in even tones, "that the parking meters you propose for Plymouth will be a paying proposition?"

Mayor Parkinson answered. He said it was apparent Willard had erred in establishing so many parking meters down side streets. There would be no cost incident to obtaining a wagon in which to collect the moneys, as Willett had implied, and that instead of acquiring a counting and sorting machine, the village would turn its collections over to Peoples National bank, paying a small fee for this service.

On the question of frequent repair to meters, Mayor Parkinson gave as his opinion that Willard's meters are not up-to-date. Those he had seen were hermetically sealed and except for stoppages caused by "slugs," there could be no practical failure.

"We're going out to get the best meter of the seven that are manufactured," he said.

When Willett had completed his observations, Parkinson seized the opportunity to philosophize somewhat on what the council is trying to do.

"Neither I nor the council is out to do any harm or hurt anybody in this town. If I thought for a moment that parking meters would hurt our town I wouldn't hold still for it," he said.

Neither I nor the council is out to do any harm or hurt anybody in this town. If I thought for a moment that parking meters would hurt our town I wouldn't hold still for it," he said.

Coach Lew Pettit issues another call for supporters of the Booster club, which will meet in the high school Monday at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting will be of an organizational character. Fans of high school athletics are invited to attend.

Scavenger contract with William E. Armstrong was renewed for five years, with billings twice annually. The same rates remain in force. 25c a week or $1 a month.

Frederick Blackford will be engaged to haul stone to fill holes in West High street and the north detour around the West Broadway bridge. The village truck will be sent to Bourgeois Co., Shelby, for "tune-up," since it was represented to be incapable of hauling stone.

"It is not this council that will get the benefit from what we're trying to do. We stand to make $2,000 the first year, maybe $3,000 the second year while we are paying them off. But the new council, they're the fellows who'll have the gravy, because the meters will be all paid for by then."

It was learned yesterday that resort to referendum is contemplated by the opposition group, of which one member said "There are a few who are swinging over in favor of parking meters and we know we haven't made any friends by speaking up like this." This would mean that with three readings required by the council to pass the measure, plus the 30 days required by law to allow a referendum to be taken, it would be unlikely that any parking meters could be installed here before the middle of the summer.

Target date for passage of the ordinance, Mar. 6. Maximum period of grace for filing of referendum, 30 days, or Apr. 6. Next election, May. Time required to advertise assuming simple majority votes; three weeks. Likely date of installation, with 30-day delay cited by most manufacturers, July 1.

In other action, Paul Koontz was authorized to obtain a sewer tap permit to enable him to build a house in Mulberry street south of the H. V. Ruckman property. It was an exceptional case, as the council has already decided to enforce Ohio law by placing sewer matters in the hands of the Board of Public Affairs.

Willie Barrett, 30, native of Salvemville, Ky., was hired as street supervisor at $3,500 annually.

Mr. Ellis announced that as of Feb. 1 the sewer fund contained $4,380.73. The only monies drawn from the collections have been for minor office expenses. Delinquent water accounts were briefly discussed, and the board recommended every effort should be made to collect them.

Col. R. F. Ezzard, acting commander, Wilkins Air Force station, William Meade, chairman of Richland county's March of Dimes drive, and Lieut. Richard Botsch, base public relations officer, look over a certificate awarded the station for its 1955 March of Dimes efforts. Signed by Basil O'Connor, national chairman, the certificate acknowledges the post's outstanding performance in the 1955 drive, which Lieutenant Botsch directed.

Root, Ramsey, Mack On Chamber Group

William E. Root, R. Harold Mack and Edward O. Ramsey were appointed to draft by-laws and constitution and nominate officers for the new Plymouth Chamber of Commerce Friday night.

Next meeting of the group will be Feb. 17 at 8 p.m. in the elementary school, when the draft constitution will be discussed and nominations for officers received.

Russell W. Frey, publisher of the Rittman Press and four other weeklies, addressed the assemblage of about 20 businessmen. He said that a Chamber of Commerce can succeed if its members will act upon "what they can agree upon and put aside what they cannot agree upon."

For 22 years Mr. Frey was a professional organizer and paid secretary of Chambers of Commerce at Lima, Lakewood and Quincy, Mass.

The steering committee, of which A. L. Paddock, Jr., is chairman, was instructed to communicate with each businessman in the village to encourage his attendance at the next meeting.

Her grandfather, Harold Sams, was part of the committee which arranged the dinner. Nancy was the youngest member present.

Pilgrims Lose Again As Lions Take Lead

Plymouth's Pilgrims dropped another Richland county league contest here Friday night, 96 to 71, to Belleville's Blue Jays, firmly entrenching the Pilgrims in the cellar.

Shiloh's Lions took over first place in the league by whipping Lexington's Minutemen, 71 to 63, at Shiloh.

Plymouth never was in the contest. Belleville jumped off to a 26 to 12 lead in the first eight minutes and never was headed there after, although the Red and White played well enough in the second and third periods.

For Plymouth, Ed Taylor had 17 points and Herb Caudill 16. Belleville's scoring twins, Johnson and Garber, had 22 points apiece.

Jack Hall Stars as Shiloh Wallops Minutemen

Little Jack Hall was the big gun for Shiloh as the Lions swept to their ninth league success against two losses and took over undisputed possession of first place.

He dumped in 30 points, Otis Hughes added another 15, and George Poffenbaugh had 10 as the Lions came from behind after eight minutes and never gave up at Shiloh.

Tom Voltz, Newt Young and Johnny Barr had 16, 14, and 12 markers, respectively, but Shiloh contained big Ron Armstrong with only eight points.

For the Lions, it was the 10th straight victory. They haven't been beaten since Lexington turned the tables on its own floor Dec. 16. The score then was 75 to 72.

Lexington surged up again with a little better than two minutes left to go, but Jack Hall clicked for seven straight points and put the Lions out of danger.

The ancient hall in which the Lions play rocked with the cheers of nearly 350 supporters.

Mrs. McQuown to Be Host To Twentieth Century Club

Mrs. Norman B. McQuown will entertain the Twentieth Century Circle Monday. The program will be in charge of the program committee, which have arranged for a speaker to speak on travel.

At the Jan. 30 meeting, Mrs. Charles Dick was hostess to 19 members and one guest, Mrs. Raymond Willett.

After the business session, which was conducted by the president, Mrs. P. W. Thomas, the program opened by Mrs. E. L. Earnest, who gave a review of "I'm Telling You Kids For the Last Time," by Parke Cummings.

It was in a humorous vein. The pranks and excuses of his three children to "get the best of their parents" brought back many memories.

Mrs. C. M. Lofland prepared an interesting article taken from the Saturday Evening Post, "They Guard The Ramparts," by Don Murray.

The article concerned a small, isolated Air Force company called "Mother Goose" near Moriety, N. M., which scans radar screens for a sign of the enemy, a watch that never ends.

The concluding number on the program were two well-known

National Boy Scout Week

This is National Boy Scout week, and it is a good time to take stock.

It is no secret that the Scouting movement has slipped. It fails to attract the boys who should derive the most good from it — those over 14 and under 17.

Time was when a membership in a going Scout troop was the big thing in the life of a 15-year-old. Now he is drawn by school activities, by dating (which starts a heck of a lot earlier now than it did in our day), and by the desire to earn money so he can have a car.

Matter of fact, a great many 17-Year-olds are engaged to be married, and so far as we know, Scouting doesn't offer anything except leadership to the married man.

Scouting has failed, in part, because it didn't move fast enough to cope with the hopped-up age in which we live. And the reason for that was that adults — the folks who've been the backbone of Scouting ever since it was formed — missed the beat.

An Eagle Scout in England turned out to be a member of the Communist party. Another in Michigan turned a gun on some helpless folks.

You always find one or two bad apples in the barrel, but the purpose of Scouting is to build character, and to drill ideas that make sense into boy's heads so that when they're at Eagle rank there are no Commies and no gunmen.

This is done by good leadership and sound community support. The leadership here is good. Jim Root, who is institutional representative for the Community club, which sponsors Scouting in Plymouth, is a man whom every boy should emulate. He is a Christian gentleman, community spirited, helpful in every way. Don Markley, who has a similar job with the Cubs, is another of the same stripe.

Don Einsel has been for many years an important cog in district Scouting. His quiet way of doing business is an inspiration to any boy who wants to be inspired.

Those who take part in the lower echelons of Scouting — the MacMichaels, the Hollenbaughs, the Davises, the Reddens — are the right kind of fellow.

Yet there is something lacking about it here. Just what that is we find it a little hard to put our finger on. But we suspect that it has to do with a general lack of community spirit and community support — an attitude of letting George do it.

From what we hear, the Georges are getting a little tired of that attitude. And we don't blame them.

A few paragraphs back, we said a man is an inspiration to any boy who wants to be inspired. A boy learns to be inspired at home. In this hopped-up age, with Mom and Pop both out working, it is particularly important to find the time to encourage Junior. Teach him inspiration.

Inspiration, said Ben Franklin, derives from perspiration. You've got to work at it. Scouting will succeed if we all work at it — Scouts, Scouters, and and communities alike.

And the son spake unto his father, saying, Father, shew me that I may be popular among my people.

Thus the father sayeth, My son, if thou wouldst have popularity, thou must not be forward in thy desires for the future of the community.

Thou shouldst not encourage the increase of taxation for whatever cause.

Thou shouldst not engage in community activities conspicuously.

Thou shouldst not abuse the sacred cows of what is and has been, but shouldst avoid making any change.

Thou shouldst not support the faith of thy fathers lest it be the faith which is common among thy people.

Rise not in meetings of the councils of thy elders. Neither speak thy mind in thy lodges and clubs, lest thou be taken for a young fool.

Speak not harshly of thy poor schools. Encourage not their consolidation with others.

Smell not the decay of thy society and thy civilization. Close thy nose to their foulness, and thy mouth to the expression of what thou seest and smell.

For verily, I say unto you, he who speaks out against the evils of man and the products of stupid government findeth the path is stony, and harsh on the feet, and on his soul, and on his popularity.

And the son went unto the mountain and there wrestled with the angels, and when he was sore tired and worn, he came down from the mountain deaf to the words of his father.

I will go as the dictates of my conscience propel me, and I will fear not, for I know my people will pity my wife and my children that they may not long suffer because I am as an ass.

My ears are long and I hear much; my voice is loud and I bray much; but I assume not burdens that are not good for me or that I cannot carry. —A. L. P.

The better half of this publishing venture is all hipped up over her trip to the Big City. After a jaunt through the department store that left us paralyzed in the region of the waist, she came back to the hotel for a six-buck banquet that had a dinky-doo-doo of food and the balance of hip-diddy-doo-day.

Frankie-boy Lausche was on hand, and from where we sat it looked to us like he can whip any IF he can get the Democratic nomination. He has poise, an unruly lock of hair that would absolutely wow the mothering element in old ladies, and a skill at swaying the "pee-pul" that few can match.

Ohio has had its presidents, none of whom were any great shakes, and almost had another in Robert Alfonso Taft, whom Phil thinks and this is strictly a one man opinion — was out of step with his times. Frankie-boy would certainly be a lot better than some and no worse than most.

The Little Woman is going around telling everybody that Mrs. Lausche spoke to her. Know what she said? They met in a corridor, and Mrs. L. spoke her deathless words, "Pardon me," said she.

A man in Shelby last week said he had it straight that he will never run again. Claimed that Nixon and Ferris will be the ticket. When we asked who in heck Ferris was, he replied: "Oh, some big wheel from Cooney Island."

Prof. L. J. Hottin, head of the school of journalism at Ohio university, gave this pillar of excellence (haw) an honorable mention in the state contest. Said he thought it was a distinctive column, and then we asked if he meant to put the emphasis on the second syllable. He said no.

Anyway, he said as how he thought the first accountant (this being income tax time, everybody talks about accounting) must have been a woman.

He supports his theory this way. One night in the garden of Eden, Adam was late for supper. Eve waited and waited, and finally Adam dragged in.

Like most wives ever since, she lit into him, asking where he'd been. But Adam kept his thoughts

KEY to Cancer 7 DANGER SIGNALS ARE STOP SIGNS TO SEND YOU TO DOCTOR IN TIME

The secret to successful cancer treatment is early diagnosis. How can this be done? Mostly it depends on the individual.

Doctors can find early cancer if a patient is examined at frequent intervals (at least once a year). But an added important safeguard is to watch for early cancer symptoms.

The American Cancer Society has announced that these symptoms are nationwide educational campaign. They are called "Cancer's Seven Danger Signals." And are illustrated on this page.

These "danger signals" if one appears, should mean to you: consult a doctor. Any of them might indicate cancer. To continue to disregard any of cancer's symptoms is foolhardy. Yet many persons, for example, ignore a lip sore for weeks or even months, although it is an easily detected warning sign. Hospital case histories record all too many women who have neglected lumps in their breasts and finally forfeited their lives for the delay.

Other cancer symptoms frequently ignored are blood in the urine, or stool, or a bloody discharge in women, at other than the menstrual period. Obviously these conditions require medical treatment even if not caused by cancer.

Warts or moles that appear and sometimes disappear, should send you to a doctor. If a skin growth of this kind changes in color or size, it could mean the start of malignancy. One that has grown even slightly over a period of time might not become cancerous and cause death.

Don't Mask Symptoms The person who takes potent stomach soothers to get temporary relief from constant or recurring indigestion is looking for trouble. In finding temporary relief he may be masking symptoms that could be serious gastric trouble, ulcers, gastritis, or even cancer.

Hoarseness, or many harmless causes, but if persistent it may be a sign of throat cancer. A cough may be from bronchitis, but if it persists it may be a danger signal of lung cancer.

Danger signal number seven — changes in normal bowel habits — is an occasional attack of constipation or diarrhea. Either of these conditions might be "normal" for some people. The important thing to watch is a persistent change in bowel habits.

Learn the 7 danger signals that may mean cancer. Go straight to your doctor at the first sign of any of these in yourself.

to himself and said nothing. After eating whatever she had to serve, he threw off his garments and lay down on the bed of boughs. In no time he was fast asleep.

The Big City was too much for our friend Jim Ryan, who's back among us — to stay, he says — after sweating out the traffic and high prices and such in New York for nearly five months.

If anybody has a spare turkey just eating his head off and wants to economize on the grain bill, give us a ring at 59, it's for a worthy cause.

W. M. C. has a story about an old owl that was worth hearing. It takes a bit of telling, but the punch line is a doozie.

It was a mark of smart public relations for the Shelby depot to split its united appeal take with neighboring communities. But to get the word to the folks at the depot, involved more problems than man — or woman — can imagine.

First, they decided to offer prizes. The more tickets you bought for a buck, the more chances for a prize. But there are those whose moral or religious convictions wouldn't allow them to participate in a lottery. Arrangements had to be made to allow them to specify they weren't to be considered, nor was the money they contributed to be spent for the purpose.

Then the powers-that-be let donors specify where their dollar would go. When it was all over, they had speculations for towns that have no united funds, for Los Angeles and Reno and towns in Kentucky and Indiana and all over the place.

When it was all boiled down, they had $11,398 to disburse. And it was evenly distributed by communities.

It was smart public relations, we repeat, and smoothly handled. And the watchdog at Wilkins is "world-wide." Everybody talks about "world-wide responsibilities."

It was like a lass we saw in the IBM room. She was headed north and so were we and what we saw behind her was world wide belief us!

Plymouthite Admits Setting Fire to Car

A Plymouth man confessed early Tuesday morning to having set his own car afire in Noble road north-east of Shiloh Monday night.

He was Oscar Patterson, who rooms over a clothing store in Plymouth.

Shiloh Fire department was called at 10 p.m. Monday to fight the fire. The exterior finish of the top and the entire interior were burned.

Patrolman J. McKittick, Mansfield station, State Highway patrol, investigated. He found a two-quart Mason jar lying near the blazing car.

License tags of VS 1153 having identified the owner, McKittick summoned Chief R. L. Meiser of Plymouth police department. Fingerprints were taken at 2:30 a.m. Tuesday and after questioning, Patterson admitted he set the fire to recover insurance.

McKittick's suspicions were aroused when he saw the engine black was not damaged.

Patterson was lodged in Richland county jail until a complaint filed by McKittick can be heard by the Mansfield municipal court.

Trustees Unhappy With Fire Contract

A new contract to succeed that which expired in January, extending fire protection by the village of Shiloh to Cass and Bloominggrove townships, is still pending.

Trustees and the mayor and council haven't been wholly able to get together on the matter of personnel in the fire department. A spokesman for the trustees states that each township is willing to pay the additional $5 a month rent asked by Shiloh's council for the firehouse addition provided the townships can have more voice in running the department. "Inasmuch as we each pay a third of the upkeep," he said, "we think we should have a say about running it."

About New Haven, Mrs. Van Wagner Writes—

Fire Truck Suit End Foreseen by Accord

Stipulation by the defense to reimburse New Haven township in the amount of $4,987.76, representing payments to Harry Supt. for a new fire truck and certain fire equipment, has ended a recovery suit by trustees of the township.

Plaintiffs agree to keep 500 feet of hose and other equipment devalued by Suptin amounting to $1,450.50.

Suit was filed by Walter Noble, in behalf of present trustees, to recover funds paid to Suptin in pursuance of an agreement with the former trustees. Plaintiffs contended the purchase was illegal because bids were not properly advertised for and because expenditures from the general fund were improperly earmarked.

Approval of the agreement reached by attorneys of the contending parties is expected to be forthcoming from Judge Windsor Kellogg of Medina county common pleas court, who was sitting on the case because Judge Robert Yetter had disqualified himself owing to previous knowledge thereof.

New Haven township has since entered into fire protection agreements with Willard and Plymouth.

Two Churches Hear Visiting Youths Talk At Sunday Services

Sunday morning church services in the Methodist and First Presbyterian churches were conducted by the younger members.

At First Presbyterian church, four students, enrolled in religious education, conducted the service. Participating were the Misses Kathy Johnson and Dinny Dunlap, Ken Anthony, and Larry Howe, delivered the sermon.

At the Methodist church, two foreign students enrolled at Baldwin-Wallace college at Berea, Abraham Muhawi of Jordan and Sung H. Kim, a Korean, took part in the church service. C. Otis Port, also a student of Baldwin-Wallace, and Gerald Schneider, a student of Ohio Northern university at Ada, members of the congregation, took part also.

Ebenezer Asirvatham of Madras, India, spoke to the church school at the Plymouth and Shiloh churches. Mrs. Muhawi and Mr. Sung took part in the church service at the Shiloh Methodist church earlier.

The youth of the two churches and the First Evangelical Lutheran church joined for a supper at the First Presbyterian church, and all took part in the United Youth service at 6:30 p. m. at the Lutheran church.
