

Bill Keefe engraves the name of the recipient on the back of each medal. The Air Medal, most frequently issued, costs the government less than $2. The Commander's Legion of Merit, at right, costs $28.95, goes principally to foreign diplomats. The celebrated Congressional Medal of Honor was first issued to Jacob Parrott, hero of a raid into Confederate territory in a locomotive.

IT'S OFFICIAL! FLYBOY GOT ALL THE MEDALS

Medals Cost Little, Mean Much to GI

Here's a guy who's got every medal in the book. His name isn't Audie Murphy, either.

Richard Keefe, an ex-GI, has over 450,000 medals and decorations in his possession. The only difference is they aren't his. He only takes care of them for the United States Air Force.

A Purple Heart, a Distinguished Flying Cross, a Medal of Honor, a Congressional Medal of Honor, a Good Conduct Medal. These medals are kept at Shelby Air Force depot.

To some, 450,000 may be too many decorations to keep on hand, especially when the majority of them is authorized only for heroism shown in the face of enemy fire. But the Air Force allows next-of-kin to obtain duplicates of awards won by deceased airmen. Requests are received every day at the Shelby depot from every rank and cranny of the country, composed on every conceivable type of stationery, asking for those duplicates.

They come from the widows of the heroes whose sons want to wear their daddy's medals and from mothers who want to keep the decorations in memory of their sons.

When a request of this type is received, it is first sent to Washington by the St. Louis Records Office, for verification—not so much to determine the validity of the request but to get a complete list of the medals or decorations the veteran was entitled to wear. In the great majority of such letters, the request is made for "a medal my boy won while he was in Europe." He may have been entitled to three or four decorations.

This is where the so-called "government red tape" begins and ends. As soon as the request is fully verified, it is forwarded to Shelby, where the authorized medals and decorations are immediately mailed to the home address of the next-of-kin.

Naturally, most of the medals are mailed to relatives of enlisted men. But the requests which draw the greatest stir are those which are made in the name of high ranking officers. Probably the most prominent request was that received from the widow of General Hoyt S. Vandenberg. The former Air Force chief of staff had been awarded almost every medal and decoration given by the United States during his 30 years of service.

Since the value of the medal or decoration is measured more in sentiment than in actual monetary worth, the money involved in providing the next-of-kin with duplicate awards is surprisingly small. The most coveted of all American decorations, the Congressional Medal of Honor, is purchased for $54.00, while most of the lesser awards are priced at less than $2.50. By far the most expensive decoration is the "Commander's Legion of Merit, which is awarded almost entirely to foreign diplomats. This award costs the government $28.95.

During World War II, 930,142 medals and decorations of all types were awarded in addition to 588,635 Oak Leaflets, which are given in lieu of a second award. Of this total, approximately 73 per cent went to members of the Air Corps with the Air Medal accounting for 65 per cent of all Air Corps awards.

The Air Force may be a young organization when compared to the Army, the Navy and the Marine Corps, but it has had its share of heroes too. There were the Tokyo Raiders, the Flying Tigers and the men of the Eighth and Ninth Air Forces who brought the Nazis to their knees through their round-the-clock bombing missions.

The program of supplying duplicate medals and decorations to the next-of-kin relatives of the hero is the Air Force's way of paying a lasting tribute to their heroic deeds.

150 Sign Petition To Divert Trucks

About 150 citizen electors of the village have signed a petition praying for diversion of through truck traffic in Route 61 to Route 598, Harold V. Ruckman, initiator of the petition, announced Monday.

Citing that vibration by trucks, fumes and noise are bothersome and injurious to safety, the petitioners request S. O. Linzell, director of highways at Columbus, to take steps to divert this traffic into Route 598, which the petitioners assert is one mile shorter between Columbus and Norwalk than Route 61.

"Other reasons why this truck traffic is objectionable," Ruckman said, "are that the truck vibration affects television reception, that heavy truck traffic depresses values of properties, which owners are inclined to sell because of the traffic, and that it's difficult to sleep when these trucks pass by so fast and so frequently."

Eighth Annual Roast Set Here July 14-15 By Firemen, Legion

Eighth annual roast to benefit Elbert-Parson post, American Legion, and Plymouth volunteer fire department will be staged in Jacobs' gym in East Main street Saturday and Sunday, July 14 and 15.

Eight hundred pounds of prime beef will go into the roasting pit under command of Ray Bright, assistant fire chief, Saturday evening.

A total of $250 in prizes will be awarded some luck persons in attendance. Top prize is $100. Door prize is $25.

Women of the fire department auxiliary will man a stand with refreshments.

Committee representing the Legion post is James Lindav, new division commander of Richland county; Kenneth Fox and Samuel Robertson. Firemen on the committee are Woodrow Utis, Judson A. Morrison and Woodrow Smith.

Hampered by bad weather — it rained most of Saturday night last year — the seventh roast was a social but hardly a financial success. "With a break in the weather, and the fact we have permission to operate two days this year, we hope the eighth annual roast will be a big success," said Lyle Biddinger, new commander of the post.

"We feel sure the public will support us and that when it gets here it will have a very good show — we welcome young and old."

Mrs. Harry Dick Wins

Water User Argues Well but in Vain

A highly articulate property owner in Springmill road advanced some strong arguments before the Board of Public Affairs Monday night, but he will have to pay $35 for a water tap like any other citizen, the Board decided.

Hugh Washburn said the water line runs across his property and no appreciable expense is involved in affixing a tap to the line in his case. He cited a "boulevard" rate and a "street" rate in other communities, one applicable when the street must be torn up and the other in instances similar to his own.

When Washburn left the meeting, the Board discussed at length the merits of his proposal but decreed that two rates are impracticable.

Louis Lillo, who has been hired by the park board to install 800 feet of fence along the Huron river, met with the board at the water plant to inspect the roof, which is being repaired. He is a prospective bidder on the work.

The Board also inspected the aerator and approved the placing of new cogs in it. This should result in more efficient use of the water softening system.

Luther R. Fetters told the Board that debris remaining from the old water plant in Birchfield street needs to be removed. He suggested Fire Chief Dalton F. McDougal be authorized to set fire to the debris.

Supt. of Water & Light Russell J. Moser was authorized to seek out companies specializing in the trimming of trees to provide for clearance on high voltage wires of the electric system.

No New Cruiser Now, Council Votes; Rates On Gas Not Settled

In a routine four-hour session Tuesday night, village council voted to reject all bids for a new police cruiser, to increase the wages of Henry Trauger by 25c an hour, and to send a delegation to Columbus Tuesday to discuss the forthcoming sewer bond issue.

Neil McCaron, Shelby branch manager for the Ohio Fuel Gas council to negotiate a new gas rate Co., appeared again before the council for his company to replace the ordinance expiring Aug. 16.

It developed a special committee had met with McCaron and made a counter offer.

The council's committee proposed a basic minimum rate of $1.50 a month, instead of the rate of $2.50 offered by the gas company. McCaron had responded to this with an offer to leave the rate of $1.50 monthly minimum as is, but to raise consumption rates by half a cent across the board.

Acting Mayor Thurman R. Ford said he thought the council "was more in the dark than before."

Discussion of the street department occupied considerable time of the meeting. Councilman Lowell Keith was emphatic that employees of the department did not make wise use of their time when painting the parking spaces on the Square.

He cited instances during the past two weeks when only two of the three employees were actually working.

At the same time, Trauger put the question of a wage increase to the council. With the usual pleas of money shortages, the council at length agreed to increase Trauger's wages by 25c an hour to $1.50 and to lay off the third helper in the department.

Gay Tackett asked the council for sewer and water data about the alley connecting West Broadway with Mills avenue. He has sought a lot in the west side of the alley and aims to erect a dwelling there.

Mrs. Watts Hurt

Mrs. Estel Watts was removed to an Ellyria hospital early yesterday for treatment of a compound fracture of the leg.

The fracture occurred when she slipped and fell from the steps of her back porch at her home in Mills avenue.

Both tibia and fibula of the leg snapped and penetrated through the flesh, bystander reported.

Mrs. Watts was taken to Ellyria in the McQuate ambulance.

Curpens) and Thomas, 10, and Douglas, 7, had to get about in a horse-and-rig. Cars are banned. Mr. Fey, national secretary of Beta Theta Pi, was arranging the fraternity's annual convention there.

They wore velvet bandeaux as headresses in shades matching their gowns.

Soil Bank Application Blanks Ready

The soil bank is a new feature of the national farm program. Its objective is to encourage farmers to reduce crop acreage thus help overcome farm surpluses which depress the market.

Two types of payments are available — acreage reserve, which will apply to corn and wheat and is for a duration of one year, and a conservation reserve, which will apply to other cropland and will run for a longer period of time. Further information on the conservation reserve is not yet available.

Every Richland county corn farmer should receive notice within the next few days of his soil bank base acreage for 1956. Notices are being mailed from the county agricultural stabilization and conservation office, according to Gaylord H. Culler, chairman.

To earn acreage reserve, payments, the farmer places in reserve specified acres of his corn base and agrees not to harvest corn or any other crop from them. He can then earn payments at the rate of 94 cents a bushel based on the yield determined by the ASC county and community committee.

Maximum acreage which may be placed in the corn reserve is half the corn base or 50 acres, whichever is larger, except that it may not exceed the soil bank corn base acreage. Minimum amount of corn land that may be placed in reserve is the larger of 10 percent of the base acreage or five acres, or the allotment in case it is below five acres.

Farmers who were unable to plant their corn because of wet weather or for other reasons for acreage payments. Small payments are also available for farms on which wheat within the allotment has been destroyed by natural causes or on which wheat was not planted because of weather conditions. To be eligible for acreage reserve on either corn or wheat a farm must be within the allotment or 15 acres, whichever is larger, on wheat, and within the soil bank base for corn.

Price support payments will be made at the rate of $1.50 a bushel (national average) for corn and $2.08 a bushel (Richland county minimum) for wheat planted within allotments. Corn not within the allotment will be supported at $1.25 per bushel.

No crop may be harvested during 1956 from cropland put in acreage reserve. Neither may it be pastured after June 22. Anyone interested in the soil bank for 1956 should call the Richland county A. S. C. office for further information. Application blanks are now available and must be signed before July 20.

A Big Town ACTS Like One

That Plymouth is now a village of almost 1,700 population should give us all pause for thought.

What have we done to grow so fast since 1950?

Let's look at the positive side. This is a clean, safe, godly community, where real estate (except in a few instances) is not too expensive, where rents are low, where there is a good transportation net, where there is a new elementary school building, where church life is strong and vigorous, and where folks are neighborly without being too nosy.

People like to live in towns of that stripe, and we are proud that our town is one of them.

Let's also look at the negative side. Many of the people came here because they had no other place to go. We refer to strangers who settled here to be near their work at Wilkins Air Force station, and would have settled elsewhere had they been able to find a home.

There has been no concerted action, whether by individuals or a group, to attract new residents here. Indeed, to those who may have lived in larger communities, or in smaller

By Phineas Whittleseed

Yesterday was Independence day. We did not see, unfortunately, many flags displayed. On this, of all days, an occasion when we should be proudest not of some of red, white and blue cloth, but of the sacrifices and hardships it represents.

There are a lot of things to think about the Fourth of July. Time was when we thought of the fireworks and noisemaking, then of the casualties that resulted from careless use of torpedoes, sky rockets and two-inch salutes.

It'll be hard on us to read the morning dailies today. More so than on most Mondays, when our regular morning daily is splattered with news of crimes of violence. (Have you noticed that the Cleveland sheets have had at least two heinous crimes on the front page for the last seven Monday mornings?)

Because in this benighted nation of ours, so rich and so sure of itself, yesterday we massacred more folks than ran the risk of hanging or death at the firing squad 180 years ago today in proclaiming that we would be now and henceforth would remain free and independent of the British crown.

We did it with the invention given birth, nurtured and brought to full flower in these 48 United (?) States — the automobile. State Highway patrolmen worked around the clock yesterday, diligently and ruthlessly putting the pinch upon reckless and careless drivers. And still we knocked off more than were killed in most of the battles we have had to fight in 180 years to keep our country free.

It's a sad commentary on what we've become.

So long as the subject is driving, Ernie Henes at Wellington calls attention to a suggestion made by the Hornell (N. Y.) Patriot. Youngsters who want the family car should be required to submit to the following test:

1. Has the lawn been mowed?
2. Where are you going? Why?
3. Whom are you going with?
4. Do you know how to fix a flat tire or repair the car yourself?
5. Do you have your own money for gas and oil?
6. Have you washed the car this week?
7. Have you waxed the car this month?
8. Is your homework done?
9. Are your shoes shined, your nails clean, do you have a handkerchief in your pocket?
10. Is this trip necessary?

Ernie says he thinks that cards printed with that text should sell like ice cubes in Hell.

And on the subject of Independence day, it comes to mind that George M. Coburn, the celebrated Irish-American actor and playwright, was born on July 4, and never stopped telling everybody about it. He said, "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy!" to his wife, Catherine. He was married to her for 30 years. He was president of the nation. He never told anybody about it. Fact is, he never told anybody anything. And towns in different locales, we have less to offer than what they were used to. Higher water rates, no sewage system, crowded schools, low pay for teachers, government by paralysis, no jobs to keep young people at home.

Plymouth is a town of 1,700 persons. Is it as good a town as others of 1,700? We say that it is and will punch in the nose those who say that it isn't.

Does it have as much as other towns of 1,700 have? A blind man could see that it does not. Why not? We are not sure that it will serve any useful purpose to explain why not, because it means naming names, and that'll make folks mad.

But those who dragged their feet know who they are, and they should realize by now that you can't stand still. A town is bound to grow in spite of the diehards who want to keep it as it was. But this is 1956. It is required nowadays that a town of 1,700 live and act and function like other towns its size.

The time to start was long ago. But it is not too late. Only trouble is, now it's more expensive. It's the price you pay for dragging your feet.

his stupid New England jealousy, unfounded, it turned out, prevented him from running for another term in 1928.

He thought his wife, the former Grace Goodhue, a fine lady from Northampton, Mass., who still is interested in baseball and never misses the World Series, was interested in a secret service man attached to the White House.

Actually, they talked baseball. Cal never spoke about baseball to his wife. In fact, there is evidence he didn't speak to her more than twice while they were married. Which was why, at Rapid City, S. D., Cal gave the undying slogan of the nylon hose industry to newspapermen: "I do not choose to run."

A wife that'll talk baseball with her hubby seldom cheats on him. The game is like that.

Some noted fellows have chosen the Fourth of July to die — John Adams, second president, and Tom Jefferson, his successor, in 1826, and James Monroe, in 1831. What a blow it must have been to the young republic to lose such great workers for democracy in a single day!

Nathaniel Hawthorne, one of our great native authors, first saw light of day on July 4, 1804.

And on Independence day, 1894, Berthold's famous statue, "Liberty Enlightening the World," which stands on Bedloe's island, New York, was formally presented to the United States in Paris.

We well remember sailing up the harbor in 1946, on a troopship crammed with tired, worn soldiers. One youngster with more battle scars than we could count looked at the Old Girl and said, "Baby, if you expect to see me again, you gotta turn around." (For the uninitiated, Liberty faces the sea, and there is inscribed at her feet the phrase which represents America to the whole world but which some folks tend to forget: "Give me your old, your tired masses . . .")

Freedom as a nation is like freedom as a bachelor: you've got to work at it to keep it.

We ought to remember that, July 4, 1956.

Takes a nasty storm and a failure of the power to show who your friends are. Common predicament makes strange bedfellows. Folks who wouldn't give you a tumble during the week are the first to offer help when things go wrong.

They come when the pressure is on and go when it's off. Hardly any time to say even thank you. Just another of the many attributes of living and working in a small town. You wouldn't find such a thing in a city.

PRIMER FOR AMERICANS

You live in the United States of America. You are an American.

Real Americans like their country. They are proud of it. They think it is a good place to live. And they want to keep it good—to keep it getting better all the time.

Why is America the way it is? What makes it a good place to live? The answer is simply this:

Throughout our history most Americans have believed that every person has certain rights and duties and responsibilities.

Americans have believed that there are certain things people should do, and things they should not do.

They have also believed in certain things that people are, and are not.

These things that people believe are called principles. This book is an attempt to state the Principles of America in simple, primer fashion so that you can understand them, learn them, and remember them.

This is important. It was because earlier Americans believed in these principles and guided their lives by them, that America has grown to be the good place it is.

If all of us learn and remember these principles—if we also guide our lives by them—then we can help to keep America growing better, and better, and better.

And if we follow these Principles of America, we can help make the world a better place to live in, too.

The Principles of America are these . . .

1. Each Person is of Importance and Value as an Individual.

This is the cornerstone . . . the foundation of all our other beliefs in a person's right to live his own life, to speak for himself, to choose and change his leaders.

From it comes our hatred of those "isms" under which the individual has no value or importance as a person, but is only one of many unimportant people who have to live the way their leaders tell them to.

Coming directly from that first principle are two others that are also part of the foundation of Americanism.

2. We Believe that All Men should Enjoy Personal Freedom.

3. We Believe that All Men are Created Equal.

It is worth noting that the Declaration of Independence expressed the belief that "all men are created equal." It did not state or imply a belief that men develop equality or have equal ability, or that they should ever be forced to an exact equality of thought, speech or material possessions.

That would be equality without freedom. Americans have always believed the two should go together.

In our Constitution, and in other laws of our land, there are set down principles to protect the rights and freedoms and equality of individuals.

4. The Right to Freedom of Speech.

This includes freedom of the press, of radio, of motion pictures, of every means by which man may express his thoughts.

5. The Right to Freedom of Assembly.

As we believe in the right of individual action, so we believe that individuals should be free to act together.

6. The Right to Freedom of Worship.

Not only is the individual free to worship as he will, but religious themselves are free and equal.

7. The Right to Security of Person and Property.

Not just one, but three Amendments to the Constitution (4th, 5th and 14th) protect against illegal search and seizure, or loss of life, liberty, or property, without "due process of law."

8. The Right to Equal Protection before the Law.

As individuals are equally important, so laws must apply equally to all, without special privileges for any group.

9. The Right to Freedom from Slavery.

This includes "the right to quit," for no individual may be forced to work for another.

10. The Right to Petition the Government.

The right of the individual to "petition the government for redress of grievances" is evidence of the American belief that government is the servant, not the master, of the people.

11. The Right to Vote for people of your choice.

This is the individual's most potent weapon in the protection of his rights and freedoms . . . a weapon that to be effective must be constantly and wisely used.

Other Principles hold that every man has . . .

12. The Right to a Good Education.
13. The Right to Live where he pleases.
14. The Right to Work where he wants to.
15. The Right to Belong to an Organization.
16. The Right to Own Property.
17. The Right to Start his Own Business.
18. The Right to Manage his Own Affairs.
19. The Right to Make a Profit or to Fail, depending on his Own Ability.
20. Every Man is entitled to Freedom and Equality of Opportunity.
21. Every Man may Earn his Living When, Where, and How he wants to.

There are also Limiting Principles . . .

Principles of individual freedom sometimes clash with those of individual equality. Therefore our rights as individuals must be limited, and those limitations are themselves principles.

22. The Rights of any Individual shall not Interfere with those of Other Individuals.

Your right to swing your arms stops where the other fellow's nose starts.

23. The Rights of any Individual shall not Interfere with the Welfare of the People.

Freedom of speech does not give the individual the right to shout "fire" in a crowded theatre.

24. Every Individual owes Obedience to the Laws under which he Lives.

The individual has the right to talk against a law, to work and vote to change that law, but NOT to disobey that law.

Principles that are Patterns of Behavior . . .

Many of our principles of individual freedom and equality are guaranteed to us by law. But we have other beliefs, other general rules of action and conduct that have grown to the status of principles. And these too, are foundations of Americanism.

25. A Man shall be Judged by his Own Record.

A man's family background, his race or his religion, is not as important as what that man himself can do, for Americans believe a man must stand on his own feet.

26. A Man is Free to Achieve as much as he can.

We believe that where any boy may become President, where any man may achieve greatness, there is the greatest incentive for every man to do his best.

27. To Achieve anything, a Man should be Willing to Work.

Americans have always known that "you don't get something for nothing," that to get anything takes a willingness to work.

28. Achievement also Depends upon the Ability to do a Good Job.

Add to "willingness to work" the ability to produce results and the combination is the basis for most individual achievement in our country.

29. Every Man has the Right to a Fair Share of the Results of his Work and his Ability.

Because of this belief, America has not only produced more goods, but they have been more fairly and more widely shared by more people than in any other country.

Security is the Ability of a Man to Provide for himself.

The only true security for any individual is the opportunity, the ability, and the determination to work and plan and save for his own present and future. Self-reliance is vital to individual independence and personal freedom. No man can be "proud and free" who depends on others for his security.

31. When an Individual cannot Provide his own Security, the Responsibility should be Assumed by Others.

We believe that no one should starve, or be without adequate clothing and shelter, so those who have more than their basic needs share the responsibility of providing the essentials of security for those who need help.

32. Each Individual must Deal Fairly with others.

Honesty, fairness, and personal integrity are virtues that help free and independent individuals get along with each other without losing their independence.

33. Fair and Free Competition is a Good Thing.

Americans have always believed that competition among individuals or groups encourages greater effort which in turn brings greater benefits to all.

34. Cooperation among Individuals is Vital.

PASSMORE EMMENOWA has said: "The freedom to compete vigorously accompanied by a readiness to cooperate wholeheartedly for the performance of community and national functions, together make our system the most productive on earth."

Principles of Individual Responsibility . . .

Freedom for individuals carries with it an equal responsibility to use that freedom wisely. If we wish to remain free, we must faithfully fulfill this responsibility.

35. The Individual is Responsible for himself and his Family.

He must protect them and provide for their present and future well-being.

36. The Individual has Responsibilities to the Groups of which he is a Part.

He must give of his best to his community, his church, his employer, his union, and to every group in which individuals cooperate for their mutual benefit.

37. The Individual has Responsibilities to his Country.

He must be an active citizen, interesting himself in local, state, and national government, voting wisely, thinking and speaking and acting to preserve and strengthen freedom, equality and opportunity for every individual.

38. The Individual has Responsibilities to the World.

Man's horizons have expanded. What happens in the world affects him, and his actions can affect the world. Today, therefore, each man has a responsibility to act—and to encourage his country to act—so that freedom and cooperation will be encouraged among the people and the nations of the world.

For America's Future

Most of us have faith in our country's ability to move forward, to improve, to grow, to provide more and more individuals with more and more of everything they want and need in life . . .

If we, the people of the United States, want to have more material benefits, we must believe in and follow these two principles:

39. The only way we can Have More is to Produce More; and

40. As we Produce More, we must make it possible for More and More People to Enjoy that which we Produce.

If we, the people of the United States, want to have a better life, spiritually as well as materially . . .

41. We must stand firmly for our Beliefs, our Rights, our Principles.

There are those who would chip away our confidence so that their special brand of tyranny might creep into America. They must not succeed. So, let us ask of every plan, or act, or idea . . .

Is it With or Against the Principles of America?
