Mrs. Baker lay slumped in an easy chair, her husband ranged across the threshold of the frame house in Walnut street where she lived. Mrs. Baker died of a skull wound, although she was shot in the abdomen and chest. Her husband lived a few minutes. Both were buried yesterday. — Advertiser photo

Estranged husband murders wife, shoots self in Monday-morning tiff at Shiloh

A 49-year-old Shilohan murdered his 40-year-old estranged wife and turned the death weapon on himself early Monday in a bizarre denouement of a long-standing family fight.

Leo Baker, 49, uncle of the young husband who murdered his wife and then killed himself near Tiro in January, shot and killed his wife, Mary, formerly a waitress in the H & M Grill here and lately an employee of Plymouth Drive-in theatre, shortly after 8 a.m. Monday. Then he fired a bullet into his right temple.

She died almost instantly of a skull wound, Richland County Coroner D. C. Lavender ruled. He lived a few minutes after inflicting the fatal wound.

JUST AFTER 8 A.M., BAKER appeared at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Marilyn Bailey, from where he had been living with his brother, Marion, in Route 178, and asked her to drive him to her mother's home in South Walnut street. She refused, knowing Richland county common pleas court had ordered him to keep away from his wife pending trial of her suit for divorce.

But Baker drew his weapon, a .cal. 22 revolver, and ordered her to accompany him. She turned off her washer and dryer and drove her father to her mother's home. When they mounted the porch of the neat, tidy frame house in South Walnut street, Mrs. Baker refused him entry. Then she saw her daughter and opened the door to her husband.

"What are you doing here?" she asked. "You know you're supposed to keep away from here."

"I want to come in," her husband said. "I've got the clothes to bury me in the car."

THEN HE DREW HIS REVOLVER, forced her into a chair, and fired several shots. At least one of them entered her left abdomen. Another penetrated her skull near the left eye. A third entered her chest near the left breast. She slumped into an easy chair only six feet from the door, mortally hit.

He then turned the revolver on himself. His body lay across the threshold of the door, feet on the porch, head and torso in the living room.

The bodies lay thus when Richland county sheriff's deputies responded to a telephone call from Mrs. Dora Russell, a neighbor across the street, who had been told by her children that "strange things are going on at Mrs. Baker's."

Police Chief Robert L. Messer said Monday he noticed Baker was annoying his wife at a drive-in theatre Friday night. "If I'd picked him up then, maybe he would have had the pistol with him, and this wouldn't have happened," he said.

LAVENDER RULED THE deaths a murder and suicide. Both bodies were removed by the McQuate Funeral home, Shiloh, for burial. Mrs. Bailey refused to allow her mother and father to be buried from the same funeral home, so one of them was brought to the McQuate Funeral home here.

She told police her father said he had his visit timed so he would not encounter the younger Baker child, Donna, 16, a pupil in Shiloh High school, who had already reported for instruction at the school.

Police reported Baker was in a local tavern early Monday to fortify himself for the visit to his wife's home.

Mrs. Baker had left her husband several times. On Feb. 25, she petitioned the court of common pleas (domestic relations branch) for a divorce, citing the following conduct: "drinks intoxicating liquors to excess, has a violent temper, beats and shoves, and uses vile, indecent and obscene names."

That she feared for her life is reported by some of her acquaintances, including court attaches, who report she often said "he'll shoot me one day."

THE BAKERS WERE MARRIED at Monroe, Mich., Sept. 23, 1932, when she was a girl of 15.

She is survived by her parents and a brother, Duane Young, who lives in Mulberry street here. He is survived by his parents, the Wesley Bakers, and three brothers, Maurice, of near Plymouth, and Norris and Marion, of near Shiloh.

The Rev. Edgar Eckert, pastor of Rome Community church, conducted funeral services yesterday. Mrs. Bakers service was conducted from the McQuate Funeral home at Shiloh. His wife from the McQuate Funeral home here. Burial was in Mt. Hope cemetery.

Shiloh board votes to join Greenwich

In an unprecedented 6 a. m. meeting, called to allow Dr. Charles O. Butner to attend, Shiloh local school district board of education voted unanimously Sunday to ask the Richland county school board to transfer jurisdiction to Huron county so that Shiloh may consolidate with controversy-torn South-Central.

"We know what we're doing," one board member who wished to remain unidentified said. "Plymouth refused absolutely to consolidate unless the high school were to be in Plymouth. Our patrons would not hold still for that although they seemed willing to go more than half way."

"Sure, South-Central has been having a fuss about location of the school, and whether there should be one or two high schools. We feel that our entry into this district will tend to settle the question by making it logical for the consolidated high school to be out of heavily populated centers. And the district will have enough money to afford a better program, even a full-time guidance instructor."

There seemed no doubt that South-Central and the Richland and Huron county school boards would acquiesce. A tentative approval of the scheme was tied

VENETIAN WOMAN PASSED THE N.P.' TEST?

The poised, smartly-dressed woman at the right of course. You can tell at a glance... and that's why the Ninety-Percent Test is so important. People judge you by what they see (sometimes that's all they have to go on) and ninety percent of what they see of you is what you wear. The fresh finish of drycleaned clothes is more than an extra touch... it's a flower in the buttonhole. It's an integral part of good grooming. The state of your clothes tells volumes about the kind of person you are. In fact, your clothes never stop talking about you.

You buy your clothes to make a good impression. As you wear them, have them drycleaned often. A smart woman takes care to keep that impression fresh.

Consolidation, at long last?

It may be a case of counting chickens before they are hatched, but we'll stick our neck out anyway: it appears that we may get the consolidation of schools that is so necessary to a sound education for our boys and girls.

The meeting Tuesday night at Richmond school may not be conclusive, but we think the cards will fall so that ultimately a consolidation of New Haven, Richmond, Plymouth and Greenfield districts can be effected.

Next step is the construction of a centralized high school, for which some $600,000 is apt to be available by January next. Location? Anybody's guess. Not important now, anyway.

But let nobody think that consolidation per se, and the building of a new high school, is the alpha and omega of the problem.

For once the new school is built, we begin to come to grips with the serious problem of education today — the staffing of the school and the reorganization of the curriculum so that our boys and girls will be equipped to compete in the wide, wide world.

What this entails, in our opinion, is considerably more emphasis on real values in education and much less emphasis upon incidentals. Those who argue that interest of pupils must be maintained with frills and frosting upon the educational pastry couldn't be more in error. What we need to teach is sound thinking through basic instruction in letters and literature, mathematics, physical and natural sciences, social sciences, technique and principles of government, foreign languages and art and music of a serious nature. What we do not need to teach, unless we can afford it (and we very much doubt that that time is close upon us), is the skills that a boy or girl can and must learn at home, or in the Boy or Girl Scouts.

The prospective consolidation will produce a school system of 1,200 pupils, a figure which educational scientists think is ideal, so long as they are distributed 100 to a grade. This is not the case now, and it is not likely that it will ever become the case. Not so long as we have a substantial rural population whose children drop out at about age 14.

The public high school program should not, we contend, occupy itself with vocational training. There is neither time nor money nor organization for that. Vocational instruction is, we feel, a matter for a county school, paid for and managed by the county board of education on a tuition basis.

The local board of education was slow in coming around to the notion that consolidation is good for us, essential and important. If the time was required to think the matter through, we congratulate the board and promise our strongest efforts to obtain compliance with its thoughts.

And if our schools, which have always been situated in Huron county, now can hope to be included in the Huron county board of education's jurisdiction (and we hasten here to add that the Richland county board certainly treated us fairly), is it too much to hope we can prevail upon the powers that be to put this our own in one county entirely?

The advantage to have been places, my young friends, is that you never know when somebody you meet and know well will break into headlines.

Over our Monday morning coffee, we saw the headline that Rene DuBois, the attorney-general of Switzerland had taken his own life in a scandal connected with leakage of diplomatic information. He used to pass by our door every morning, and often we hung on the same strap in the trolley. A brilliant fellow, obviously French through and through, he apparently got himself involved in counter intrigue.

And a piece in one of the Sunday papers was about the possibility that Giuseppe Siri will become next successor to Peter as supreme bishop of the Roman Catholic church. We used to see him once a week regularly on Thursday afternoons, for an austere tea in his apartments above the Ducal palace at Genoa, where he was and is archbishop. Only then he was only a monsignor. Now he wears the red biretta of a cardinal. Hard-headed, tough-minded, a doer, he would, we think, do a magnificent job as Pope.

We've never begrudged anybody his spot in the sun when, after he's pased our way, he's gone up the ladder. Not even those who got there through balderdash. The sun has a way of shining on those who're phonies so that it's too hot to stay up there on the ladder.

Once, in Ethiopia, a man named John Humbard, a tough, hard, hard-bitten engineer who'd been in high places of government, pointed to the baboons climbing the trees.

"Son", he said, "you want to remember that getting ahead in life, going up the ladder, is a lot like those red-tailed baboons: the higher they go up that tree, the more they expose of that big red backside."

Certainly not couch, as A. B. S. would say, but sound advice.

April is the month when the automobile industry will learn whether 1957 will or will not be a good year.

Inventories of new cars ready to be sold amounted to 729,040 as of Mar. 1. In May, 1956, the figure was well over 920,000.

Production this year totals 1,664,119 units, so far, a slight increase over the 1,615,152 assembled in a similar period last year.

Famous editor speaks mind on juvenile crime

By SAM H. DAY
Managing Editor The New York Journal-American
NEW YORK—We don't know the identity of the first man to publish a newspaper.

Nor do we know the name of the first subscriber, and he was an important person, too.

We're willing to wager though, the court had placed him on probation for the first time.

He was pictured on page one, someone squawked indignantly.

"They shouldn't have printed that!"

Today, the protests still are being heard.

Just what is a newspaper's responsibility in using names and pictures of youthful persons involved in criminal acts?

Are they duty bound to print them for the information of their readers?

Or should they show sympathy for the offender and his family, and shield him from public criticism and scorn?

We think the answer is plain, yet there are editors who disagree as well as readers.

Wednesday, William R. Monks, aged 15, was arrested in Paterson, N. J. He told police he had killed a 25-year-old woman in a $3 mugging.

Several New York papers including the Journal-American, the News and the Times, printed his name and the size of the federal mugshot.

Young Monks had been arrested three times previously, once for purse snatching, and twice for petty larceny. Since his arrest he admitted two additional assaults on women, and led police to the place where he had discarded his victims' looted pocketbooks.

Each time Monks was arrested the court had placed him on probation.

Each time word of his offense was kept from the press in his community. This was designed to aid his rehabilitation. Obviously, it had the opposite effect.

Was public interest best served by censoring news of his career? We don't believe so. By setting him free, suppressing information about his acts, and providing him with a mask of anonymity, the courts actually made him more dangerous to society.

Many well meaning persons believe crime can be fought with censorship.

They would widen the use of secret trials, probation, and parole, and substitute psychiatric care for punishment at the slightest excuse.

They shed tears of sympathy for the young criminal who kills maim and steals, while quickly forgetting the pain and suffering of his victim.

But we can never agree with that which any common ill can be cured by hushing up the symptoms.

On the contrary, we believe J. Edgar Hoover is right when he argues that newspaper publicity is a strong deterrent to crime, and the people should be permitted to know the identity of any wrongdoers in their community.

As viewed here in Washington, budget figures on paper look very much alike, whether they are sound or unsound. The best place to determine whether such figures are valid and proper is at the point where the spending takes place. The very vastness of the federal machine tends to obscure the estimates and the wasteful practices. Accordingly, through your columns, I want to ask for the help of Ohioans who either work for the federal government or have knowledge of some of the ways in which it spends its tax money. I would like such people to write to me and tell me the ways they know in which money can be saved.

In making this request I am not asking for examples of past waste, nor am I seeking to catch anybody either in bad judgment or wrongdoing. What I am seeking now is to find holes we can plug up. Here are some examples of the kinds of things I would like to know:

(1) To your knowledge, is some federal department or agency engaged in projects that are not needed? If the answer is "yes," is such work directed by a law or by some regulation?

(2) Do you know of any federal department or agency having large groups of employees with too little to do?

(3) Can you give concrete examples of unnecessary paper work, extravagant spending, inefficiency, or duplication of effort on the part of federal departments and agencies?

I hope that the answers I receive will be factual and directed to the matters herein mentioned. It would be most helpful if they could be in such form that I can have copy made, and the writers' names off at the bottom, and then forward the information to appropriate committees and departmental offices.

Thank you for your help. My address is 124 Senate Office Building, Washington, 25, D. C. Sincerely, John W. Bricker Pride is probably the worst sin. This week I have been doing a lot of housework. The terrible part is that I have gloated about it. For the first time in my life I have received "fan mail." Not only letters. One came with a sample.

Soup-making is more of an art than I dreamt. It must be like making coffee: there are as many different ways of making coffee as there are ladies to make it. Mrs. Albin O. Hahler sent her pet recipe for soup with a sample. It certainly isn't too perfumy, but it is the cleanest smell that I have encountered in a long time.

She starts out with a large kettle in which she dissolves two cans of Lyons in four and one half pints of water. To this she adds one half pound of powdered borax and lets it cool until lukewarm. Then one half pint of ammonia is added and 12 pounds of strained clear grease is stirred into the mixture for about 20 minutes. When it is nice and creamy looking, she pours it into a wooden mold lined with heavy waxed paper and lets it stand 12 days in a cool place. By the time it is ready to cut into square it is a masterpiece.

Another recipe, which came from the former Martha Art who is now Mrs. E. L. Hensel, Wellington, has almost the same ingredients with the addition of one half cup of kerosene. Mrs. Hensel adds that for guest soap of rose can be added and pink coloring or any other combination of flavors and shades. For fancy shapes, it can be poured into gelatin molds.

My other bit of mail came from one of Seville's best cooks, M. Lee Cavin. Called "A Kana Recipe for Homemade Laundry Soap," it is really different in respects of how hard our people's grandmothers must have worked on the prairies. Castor oil is dissolved in an iron kettle in water, to which 16 pounds of meat scraps are added. After it has boiled and cooked, the tins of salt are mixed in.

Some day I am going to try a recipe. But aren't we lucky that we can simply go into a store and buy it already made? These little bits of progress we sometimes take too much for granted.

A bit of the modern way of doing things came into our home the other day. Some houses must not have every appliance on the market, but the producers seem to think we do. We received the annual report of an insurance company with which we have policy on a 33 1/3 record. It's pure luck that we have a photograph, or we would never know the condition of the company. There is one pie mix on the market which I now avoid because leaves me so frustrated. The directions for mixing tell you to set your electric heater at a certain speed. I have no electric heater.

Taxes due Saturday

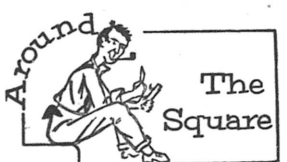

Saturday is the deadline for filing personal tax returns.

Nearly 50 per cent of all returns are filed in the final week of March.

Auditors are authorized to extend the time of filing. "Huron County Auditor Bernard F. Ken said Monday, "but unless we have some personnel turn up sick, we won't do it in Huron county this year."

Those would be unfair, he said, if those who filed their returns early. "And it would delay the distribution of this tax to schools, libraries, vital police, health and fire services, and such."

The auditor's office at Norwalk and Mansfield will be open until 5 p.m. Saturday to accommodate late filers.

Senator Burns, the potentate from the precinct to the north, was in a better mood this other day, having jounced — and won over — a bad case of the gripe. The senator is one of our special friends. Special because we trade scathing remarks in good spirit and neither of us gets mad.

THE MAN WITH THE NUDE SKULL A-loud as how, Thursday, before stepping into his new station wagon, we need to exhort all and sundry to begin to do things for themselves instead of letting George do it. If George didn't do it, around here, anyway, it might not get done. But the man is right. There is a little too much of the attitude of materials and a little little of the attitude "we must have so much to do" to call ourselves honest citizens, and it is high time we put forth with it."

Write this down in your notebook: don't ever invite your old school teachers for dinner unless you banish the kids. They remember too much of what you were when they were their age. Result: kids learn too much too soon, and discipline (which in the very young is based more upon fear than respect, goes down the drain.

Children under 19 to get free polio shot

All children under 19 years of age may receive free Salk vaccine by reporting to the elementary school Apr. 8 at 9:30 a. m. Parents have been furnished with pre-registration cards so that children:

1. who have received no inoculations of anti-polio vaccine may receive two free ones between Apr. 8 and the end of May.

2. who were inoculated with two doses at least six months ago can receive the third, or "booster", vaccination now. All children of whatever age up to 19 are eligible. Children of tender age must be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

The same program is available to Shilohans on Apr. 10.

School campaign set

Plymouth High school pupils will electioneer vigorously during April for candidates for president and vice-president of the student council in an old-fashioned political campaign.

Candidates for president are Gary Levering, Linda Bright and James Root.

Candidates for vice-president are Janice Bowman, William Archer and James Dye.

down in New Haven school Mar. 20, when S. G. Stine, director of new construction of the state department of education, whose interest in the local situation is whetted because Huron County Supt. Ralph Brown is a former pupil and protégé of his, met with South-Central, Shiloh, Plymouth, Richmond, New Haven and Greenfield township boards to thrash out possible solutions.

The South-Central-Shiloh alignment sprung from these conversations.

The two districts will have a valuation of $12,222,884 in properties in Richland county, now behind in re-valuation for tax purposes, catch up. Total pupil enrollment would be 1,525, of whom 391 would be high school pupils.

And what of Plymouth? Policy of the local board in seeking to go it alone in order to keep a high school within the village limits guided its negotiators.

A MEETING WILL BE HELD at Richmond school Tuesday to determine further whether the proposed consolidation with Richmond, New Haven and Greenfield would be acceptable to all parties.

A valuation of $11,345,000 would develop from this consolidation, although all four districts have substantial bonded indebtedness amounting to $470,000. Total pupil enrollment would be 1,200, with 254 of these in high school.

The new consolidation thus could raise $551,050 in new indebtedness for a new building, assuming the state will allow the district to bond itself to the maximum of nine per cent.

Location of the new high school? Probably in Huron county's New Haven township, with exact location to come about after negotiation and assessment of the factors of geographic center and population density center.

PLYMOUTH, WITH NO school buildings situate in Richland county, would thus leave the Richland county school system, by acquiescence of the Richland and Huron county school boards. Procedure: Plymouth would request transfer from Richland to Huron county of the Richland county board. Then Plymouth and other three districts would ask for consolidation among the four districts.

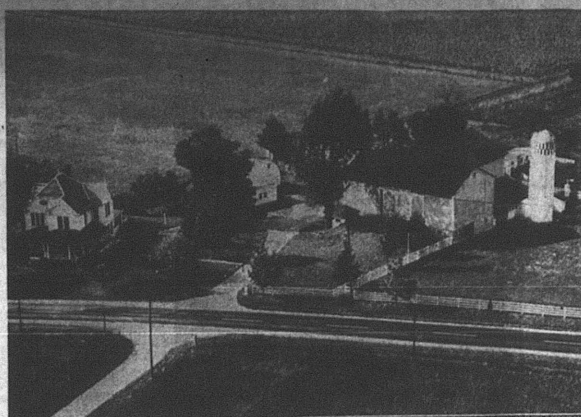

An interim board of education would be appointed. At the first general election following, new board members would be chosen by popular vote.

A landmark in the sports world will replace the famous Pagoda (inset) at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway this spring. Here is an artist's conception of the Control Tower and Tower Terrace, which will be ready for the 41st annual 500-mile race on May 30.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 15.—The new Control Tower at the starting line, flanked by approximately 15,000 Tower Terrace seats overlooking the main straightaway and the new pit area, is nearing completion for the 41st annual 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway on May 30.

Tony Holman, Speedway President, inspected the $1,000,000 construction project today and reported that all of the work is right on schedule.

Comfortable stadium-type seats, designed especially for the Terrace race, already have been installed in the South wing of the structure, and installation of the remaining seats will be completed early in April. Part of the area under the Terrace, which is 22 rows high, will be used for restaurant facilities and modern rest rooms. Each seat is 10 inches higher than the one in front of it, in order to give spectators an unobstructed view of pit and track action. The price is $12, including federal tax and general admission. Ticket order blanks, showing the price and location of all reserved seats still available for the race—including the Terrace seats—may be obtained by writing to the Speedway office at Speedway, Ind.

All indications point to the most hotly contested speed Classic in the history of the two-and-a-half-mile oval. More than 20 new cars are under construction and early entries already have been received from such popular veterans as Jimmy Bryan, Johnnie Parsons, Troy Ruttman, Fred Agabashian, Jim and Dick Rathman, Pat O'Connor, Don Freeland and Jimmy Reece. A field of 55 or 60 is indicated before entries close on April 15 with the fastest 33 cars eligible for starting positions behind the Mercury pace car. Time trials will be held on the weekends of May 18-19 and May 25-26.

Entrants will be permitted to use the track for "shakedown runs" and practice laps beginning May 1. Mrs. James St. Clair dined Thursday with the Harry Dyes. On Sunday her son and daughter-in-law the Walter St. Clairs, came from Fredericktown for a belated anniversary dinner. Mrs. David William Ellis and Mrs. Samuel C. Model Train Table Has "Peg-Board" Top

A MODEL train table has been designed to permit the wiring underneath to be brought to the surface at any point. This flexibility of wiring enables the young owner of the model train (and his Dad) to have utmost flexibility of track arrangements and accessories.

The multi-purpose top is a 4' x 8' sheet of 1/4" Masonite "Peg-Board", which has scores of holes spaced one inch apart in rows. Tracks may be fastened along any desired route simply by wiring some of the ties through the holes. The table surface is uncluttered by wires, which are strung underneath and permitted to emerge only where needed on top.

Directions for making the sturdy table, as well as putting up a 1/4" "Peg-Board" panel on the wall for keeping accessories of the model train handy, are given in a free plan, No. AE-928.

For tar or chewing gum, rubbing a piece of kerosene into the matted spot makes the sticky substance brittle, so that it can be easily removed.

Kerosene is also good for removing tar, and turpentine is effective in removing paint. However, these substances irritate the skin, so the dog should be thoroughly bathed after they have been used.

If your dog is a long haired terrier, continually among burrs and tangles during the hunting season, his coat should be trimmed every two weeks. Shiloh uncovers mementos of fair there 44 years ago

Shiloh's homecoming on Aug. 20 and 21, 1913—44 years ago—was brought to mind recently by William Noble, who uncovered a photograph of the event and a program circulated among guests.

The program, slightly dogeared from long wear, is reproduced in reverse here, so that it is legible.

Plymouth defeated Shiloh in the baseball game, 6 to 2, but no lineups can be found.

Nor is there a record of who entered the fat men's race.

The automobile parade, set for Wednesday afternoon, was a highlight of the first day's activities.

Even then, daylight saving time was controversial. The printer set the standard time notice in bold face type.

The Ganges band, which was renowned locally for its performances at church suppers, street fairs, homecomings, Memorial day celebrations and such, headed the musical program.

It died some years later, after its musicians went the way of all flesh and its sponsors found that bands don't draw like they used to.

Saturday final day for payment of county taxes

Mar. 31 is the deadline for all individuals, partnerships, associations, and corporations engaged in business to file personal property tax returns with the county auditor.

All residents of Ohio owning intangible property, regardless of its use, such as stocks, bonds, notes, debentures, credit balances with brokers, and other intangible property, are also required to file returns with the county auditor, with the county auditor in each county where the taxpayer owns taxable property. Mandatory penalties are provided for the filing of returns after Mar. 31, 1957.

ON THE INTANGIBLE PROPERTY, productive investments are taxed at five per cent of the income yield, unproductive investments are taxed at two mills on each dollar valuation, and deposits two mills on the dollar. Money, credits and other taxable intangibles are taxed at three mills on each dollar valuation.

All tax collected is paid to the local county treasurer and is used for local schools, libraries, health, police and fire services. Last year the tax paid to the county treasurers on personal property was approximately $131 million and the tax paid on intangible property was approximately $27 million.

Wattleses nearly finished with expansion work

The George Henry Wattses are nearing completion of a $90,000 expansion program in their trailer court at 7570 46th avenue, North, St. Petersburg, Fla., reports the St. Petersburg Independent.

He is a former postal clerk here. The expanded establishment will be ready for its first trailer on Apr. 10, the Wattses report. Each trailer lot measures 35 by 50 feet. Each has a raised patio, some nine by 25 feet, others 10 by 30 feet.

The present club house will be remodelled and increased in size by 300 per cent.

One feature of the Wattses' court: free Christmas dinner, on the proprietors, all you can eat.

His post office training, reports the Independent, stands Watts in good stead in running the trailer court. He sees to it each trailer has its mail delivered in a box mounted at the trailer.

James E. Mann, resident manager, asserts the court is "close to the beaches, the shopping centers, to St. Petersburg and Pinellas park, and is on a local bus line. It's all-trailer, for adults only, and no pets."

Grange notes

A cake walk and square dance will be sponsored by the home economics committee of Richland county granges in Union Grange hall, near Shelby, tomorrow. All granges in the county are invited to take part in the event, whose proceeds will be used for juvenile and home economics work.

Bendle's orchestra, Shelby, will play for dancing beginning at 8:30 p.m. Refreshments will be sold throughout the evening.

Mrs. Charles Oberlin, Mrs. Carl Dill and Mrs. Leo Hartman comprise the committee in charge. A card party will be staged Saturday night by Hazel Grove grange at the Grange hall. Each family should bring sandwiches and cookies.

On Tuesday the grange will hold a pot luck supper at 7 p.m. for members. The Graces and home economics committee are in charge of the arrangements.

It's no sin to go motorizing Sunday, but the way some people drive is a crime.

Arnold strives for good syrup

Quality not quantity, is the motto of Justice of the Peace Arnold and his partner, Marion Baker, who manufacture syrup in their camp on Arnold farm in Route 178 of Shiloh.

Partners have hung 435 barrels in the woodlots now operated by the two — 150 in the Arnold woodlot and 285 on the farm operated by the only "sugar house" in the vicinity that is painted white. "This is going to be a short season," says, "There has not been enough freezing and thawing for the sap to run, and if this warm weather continues, the buds will start early. When that happens, we pull our buckets. Quality not quantity is our slogan, and we will not boil down into syrup any sap that shows any discoloration.

Syrup we make has to be good and clear. Our reputation is based upon it." Up to Saturday the partners had "syruped off" approximately 25 gallons of syrup, which retail this year for $5.50 a gallon, Arnold says. It takes anywhere from 32 to 40 gallons of sap to make one gallon of syrup, depending on the season and the sweetness of the sap.

Pals plan dance for Apr. 5

A dance will be presented by the Shiloh High School Shiloh Pals 4-H club. The Kempf's orchestra will play from 8:30 to 1:30 p.m. on April 5. The public is cordially invited.

B-Squares meet

B-Square Farm Womens' club met at the home of Mrs. Everett Fry in Scott street Mar. 20. Thirteen members and nine children were present to enjoy a pot-luck lunch at noon.

Mrs. Charles Lake led devotions and the club sang "America the Beautiful", after which Mrs. Howard Sloan conducted the business meeting.

Mrs. Orlan Dickerson read an interesting history of the club, which was organized Mar. 5, 1924. Mrs. Dickerson and Mrs. Cloyd Sloan are the only surviving charter members.

The April meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. G. D. Seymour in the Guthrie road.
