Bombshell hits council: oxidation type $90,000 too high

A bombshell dropped 'on village council in special session Aug. 23.

Design engineers for the proposed sanitary sewer system told the council that because of soil deficiencies on the Bittinger-Sickel farms north of Plymouth, cost of the sewof Plymouth, cost of the sewer oxidation lagoons will be a-bout $190,000. This is $70,000

The report plainly shocked the council, which had "sold" the $150,000 general obligation bond issue early last November with a last-minute switch to the sewer oxidation system on the argument its installation cost would be approximately the same as the trickling filter but its operat-ing costs would be much less. ROGER W. LOVELESS, chief sanitary engineer for Alden E. Stilson & Associates, Columbus, told the council that because only 40 per cent of the lagoon area is covered with suitable material to sup-port lagoons, costs would run as high as $200,000 and no less thes $150,000. Het work at than $180,000. He struck at $190,000 as a happy medium. Cost of the trickling filter plant is $120,000.

Difference in cost of operation and management would be about $5,000 'annually, Loveless said, in favor of the oxidation Iagoon method.

At this point retiring councilman Elmer E. Markley spoke up firmly. "I can't conspoke up irrmly. I can't con-scientiously go absead with this additional cost without sub-mitting the whole thing to the voters again. We sold it to them on the idea it would cost much less than the other sys-tem and we would save as much as $30,000 or $35,000 on operating costs. Now it's going to cost more. The people won't stand for it and I won't stand

Then Loveless said the vill-

In the initial plan, $150,000 of general obligation bonds, $90,000 in federal aid, bonds, $90,000 in federal aid, $400,000 in mortgage revenue bonds settled out of sewer service charges and the bal-ance in the sewer service fund (now about $50,000) would have paid for the project with-out special assessments. This was attractive at the polls. Now, says Loveless, the federal government may come up with only $40,000, because its share of costs under the new design is altered. And if the bonding company holds to its ceiling of $400,000 for mortgage revenue bonds, the village will have to resort to special assessment financing. I have been learning some-thing about writing a column. Girls my age aren't suppos-ed to have any ideas or say anything that criticizes how things are. Pop calls this The Existing Order. I catch it when I say something about The Existing Order. Mostly I catch it from girls my own age, and some box

Material a bit thin, but Red has spirit

The material is thin, not especially fast, above average in size but highly willing, with good spirit.

That's a good capsule description of the 1961 Big Red grid squad after the first 10 days of practice for the season which opens at Galion against Col. Crawford Sept. 9.

Coach Bill Ramseyer's out-fit numbered 34 officially, but some dropouts for medical and other reasons and some absenteeism during the first 10-day period have deprived him of a full squad.

Although there're 12 lettermen, not all of them are seasoned under fire, having qualified for monograms on the bit-by-bit process rather than by sustained service on the field.

Still, it's plain that Jimmy Hamman, Phil Fletcher, Gary Utiss and Roger McQuown may be the operating back-field on offense most of the time. And the forward wall, also on offense, is more often than not apt to consist of Dick Lewis and Billy Young at ends Jim Fetters, Dave Barbour and Everett Eckstein at tackles, Ken Kieffer, John Echelberry and Duke Sammons at guards and Bob Young over the ball.

Fetters, Eckstein and Barbour are the only 190-pounders in the lot.

kickoffs, last season. Lewis is more seasoned than Billy Young, probably faster, and seems a likely aerial target. At this stage of the season, installing the new system—Ramseyer will teach the straight T—and installing morale have occupied the young coach's time. Whether he can develop a second eleven to relieve his more seasoned outfit, only time will tell. There is greater will than skill, understandable at this early date.

greater will than skill, under-standable at this early date, but Ramsever does not under-estimate the desire.

Lack of depth at quarter-back and fullback is a handi-cap that will have to be coped with. Lack of experience else-where is also a drawback which can be overcome as the season wears on.

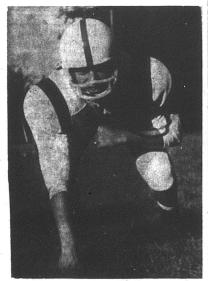

With only seven seniors on

With only seven seniors on the squad as of now, Ramseyer can look ahead to steady im-provement in the future.

Francis Dorion, Paul Kale, Barbara Kale and Delores Klepar won club champion-ships Sunday as Huron Valley Bowmen climaxed their 1961 season.
