The Voice of The Advertiser —

What can one do?

What can one do to change the course of affairs?

Rep. Charles A. Mosher (R-Oberlin) has many years of useful experience as a legislator, first as councilman in Oberlin, then as state senator, now in the Cave of the Winds at Washington. His suggestions deserve careful attention. We summarize them here.

1. Talk to your representative or any other public official. To be effective, you must be informed. Be concise, straight to the point, rational. Don't hesitate to express honest criticism, but insults and threats will get you nowhere.
2. Read and listen to varied sources, and think them out at length, before you make up your mind. "As a life-long newspaperman, I warn you that newspapers and columnists are not adequate or conclusive sources of information; they are sometimes terribly mistaken."
3. Letters to the editor are well read and do have influence. Express yourself in that way.
4. Be an active worker in a political party.
5. Why not run for public office yourself?
6. Support good causes with your contributions, even though they're not tax deductible.
7. Be activist; insist that valid, aggressive political positions be taken by lay groups in your church, your union, trade association or almost any group to which you belong.
8. If you feel some of the older special interest groups have lost their punch, join and support with energy and money some of the new issues and program oriented groups.
9. Women wield great influence because they have time and because they are by nature influencers of public opinion.
10. Keep the heat on. Hold public officials' feet to the fire. Be stubbornly persistent in expressing your beliefs. Demand standards of pragmatic excellence in performance, in public integrity and in ethical conduct.
11. Keep alert for new information and be quick to adapt your thinking to be consonant with it.
12. Select your leaders carefully. Vigorous leadership by men and women who have the genius to inform, persuade, inspire and manage is essential to the success of any human venture.

They sound like good suggestions to us and we commend them to those who think our system is feeble.

Clean up or close, Linn tells restaurant

Huron county health authorities lowered the boom on S&M Shell restaurant at New Haven last week.

The restaurant was given 30 days to rectify what the county board of health said are violations of health standards, based on inspections during 1971. The restaurant is owned by Clay Distributing Co., Attica, and is leased to Mrs. Marilyn Preston.

Roger Dixon, sanitarian, said he found among others these deficiencies:

- Grease dripping from filters above grill
- Excess iron sediment deposits in water circulation gear
- Evidence of rodents
- Violations in refrigeration requirements (temperature in display cases above tolerable limits)
- Failure to separate garbage from burnable trash

General uncleanliness of premises

Floor space under appliances unclean.

Dr. George Linn, Sr., health commissioner, said unless the deficiencies are corrected in 30 days, the license to operate will be revoked.

Mayor orders pay increases in defiance of Phase II

Mayor Hugh Washburn ruled Tuesday night in defiance of the federally controlled wage hike freeze, Administrator William Forquer and Assistant Clerk, Mrs. Quentin Ream should be paid the raises accorded them Nov. 16.

He said that since a majority vote of the council approved a $1,500 annual raise for Forquer and $700 for Mrs. Ream, they should be paid.

Solicitor Joseph F. Dush said the council should be prepared to justify the raises should they be questioned. He investigated the problem with the Internal Revenue service and was informed that raises could be justified if the work load and additional duties were increased to warrant such a raise over the 5.5 percent set by government order.

The council will study a new proposal for hospitalization for village employees.

Forquer said the present policy is unsatisfactory and a new plan under Blue Cross would cost about $5 a month less. The village is now paying $43.38 for each employee under a family plan, which does not have as much coverage as the newer Blue Cross plan, that would cost $38.53 monthly or $15.28 for a single person. For this amount, coverage is for 120 days, average for such policies. For a small additional amount the coverage can be extended for 365 days.

Trent Dill, Blue Cross representative, told the council enrollments in the policy would have to be determined by Blue Cross and that it is usual for municipalities to set up with a month's probationary period based on employment. One of the main reasons for the village changing from Blue Cross to Continental last year was that under the former, employees could only be enrolled twice a year, whereas the latter had only a 28-day waiting period.

Dill said the rates he quoted would be in effect until July 1, 1972, and that they are usually changed on a yearly basis.

The question of salaried employees receiving compensation for seven paid annual holidays was aired. An amendment to Ordinance 21-70 will be considered to state that extra months will be paid for the holidays.

The question of overtime pay for salaried employees will also be incorporated into the amendment once it is re-authorized.

Members of the police department had overtime on their paychecks, which Councilman Kenneth Edelberry said he had not authorized and would not approve. Councilman Edward O. Ramsey, the other member of the police committee, was not present at the meeting.

After a lengthy heated discussion, the council agreed to compensate Leonard Fenner and Harry Forquer $300 for the installation of a connecting sewer line from the Fenner development to the existing village line.

Twenty others were named to the merit roll (3.0 to 3.49).

Merit roll pupils are Kathy Drake, Diana Hale, Douglas Hirsch, James Miller, Diana Nesbit, Sue Shuty, Sharon Stee, Charlene Thornsberry, Bradley Turson and Donald and Patricia Woodmansee, eighth graders.

Also, Gloria Bailey, James Cunningham, Deborah DeWitt, Michael Dick, Jay Haver, Linda Lewis, Harold Porter, William Sutter and Jill Von Stein, seventh graders.

No paper on Dec. 30

This newspaper will not be published during the week of Dec. 26.

To allow its staff to take annual leave, it will not be open between Dec. 22 and Dec. 31. The business office will reopen Dec. 31 at 8 a. m. and be closed all day Jan. 1.

Candidates file expense accounts

James L. Jacobs, Sr., unopposed candidate for village council, received no contributions and had no campaign expenses, he said in a sworn statement to the Richland county board of elections.

So did Mayor Grady McDonald, Shiloh.

D. Douglas Brumbach, unsuccessful candidate for mayor of Plymouth, spent $18.

'No funds available for juvenile detention'

Until electors of Richland county vote to tax themselves to fund a juvenile detention home, Commissioner Arthur Touby said last week, "there will be none built, as far as I am concerned."

Touby said Morrow county commissioners told him and his colleagues, Fred J. Tommasher and Richard McFarland, Friday they want no part of a joint facility because they can't afford it.

And Crawford county said it will join with herdeca county in a new center at Tiffin.

Ashtand county has previously opted for remodeling of its room in county premises for use as a juvenile detention facility.

Juvenile Judge Ralph Johns has been highly critical of the commissioners for failure to provide a separate detention center for juveniles, who must otherwise be incarcerated with adult prisoners in the county jail at Mansfield.

To avoid this, commissioners recently opened a 40-cell block in the county administration building to house juveniles separately from adults.

Gas bill to rise

12 cents a month effective Dec. 21

Average bill for natural gas used by Plymouth subscribers will rise by about 12 cents a month, beginning Dec. 21, Columbus, Ohio, Inc., announces.

The increase was authorized by the Federal Power commission and is subject to review by the Federal Price commission.

It is passed on to consumers, subject to refund, under provisions of the contract between the village and the suppliers.

It amounts to $1,100 of one cent for each 1,000 cubic feet of natural gas used.

Wife of cage coach dies at 25 at Marion

Wife of Bryan Neff, teacher in Shiloh Junior High school and head basketball coach in Plymouth High school, Mrs. Barbara Ann Klingel Neff, 25, was found dead by him at their home, 3350 Greil road, Marion, Thursday at about 7:15 p. m.

Dr. Robert T. Gray, Marion county coroner, ruled death occurred Thursday about noon of strangulation by an epileptic seizure.

Her husband returned to their home from his coaching duties and found the front door locked. Through the door he could see his wife sitting at her desk, motionless. He summoned Marion county sheriff's deputies and the Waldo rescue unit.

Born at Marion Sept. 3, 1946, to Raymond and Grace Groll Klingel, she was married to New Bern, Tenn., Dec. 21, 1968. She took a baccalaureate degree at Ohio State university in 1969 and taught two years in Creswell Local School district before returning to Ohio State to enter the graduate college.

In addition to her husband and her parents, she is survived by two brothers, Raymond, Jr., and Roy G. Klingel, both of Marion, and a sister, Mrs. John C. Steinhauer, Waldo.

The Rev. Frank C. Isaacson conducted services Sunday at 2 p. m. from St. Joseph's United Church of Christ, Waldo. Burial was in Waldo cemetery.

The family prefers contributions to the church fund.

What of leftover turkey? Try these three ideas!

By AUNT LIZ
There is nothing like leftover turkey.

It is so versatile. You can make all sorts of mouth-watering dishes. If you can manage to save some nice slices from the breast, it can be cooked like a cutlet.

Each slice should be whipped through some melted butter, then into sauce diable, and finely coated with fine bread crumbs and broiled until they are golden brown.

The sauce is what makes it and it is fairly easy to prepare. Chop up a little onion, add eight crushed peppercorns and a half cup of dry white wine.

Cook this until it becomes a thickish paste. Add a cup of sauce espagnole (which in reality is nothing but a basic brown sauce, and a package of brown gravy mix will work), a teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce and a half teaspoon of parsley.

If you end up with scraps from your holiday turkey, they work excellently in a salad.

Measure out bean sprouts. Whatever you do with, add a third of that of diced turkey. That is it.

A rather nice sauce goes into this. Make it a little ahead so it stands an hour or so to let the flavors mingle.

In a jar with a good tight lid mix a half cup of salad oil, two tablespoons of sesame seed oil, four tablespoons each of wine vinegar and soy sauce, two-thirds of a teaspoon of salt, two teaspoons of sugar and two tablespoons of dry mustard. Shake this all together really well.

SHOULD YOU HAVE both turkey and oysters left over, they can be combined into a hash. You do need two cups of each, though, to make this. Bring the oysters slowly to a boil in their own juice plus a cup of water, simmer for a few minutes. Drain and chop them up.

In a skillet, mix three tablespoons of melted butter with three of flour, add a cup of the oyster liquid and stir until it begins to boil. Slowly add a cup of light cream which has been seasoned with salt and pepper. Simmer a bit, then add the turkey. Simmer a little more and add the oysters.

IF YOUR HOLIDAY bird was a great success and there doesn't look as though there's just possibly be another meal, take a better look and try to scrounge up a cup of meat. With it, you can make an aspic.

You can make it with either tomato juice or water. Start with three-fourths of a cup and add an envelope of unflavored gelatin. Cook over a bare flame until it is dissolved. Then mix in three-fourths of a cup of mayonnaise. Add the cup of turkey with a half cup of diced celery and about a fourth of a cup of chopped-up salad olives. This can either be put in a small bowl or in a smallish ring mold and chilled. Should you use a mold, slice some hard-boiled eggs and place the slices around the bottom, so when it is unmolded, it will be more decorative.

Turkey recipes can go on and on. There's always turkey chow mein, curry, and what is better than a large, fat turkey sandwich with ordinary mayonnaise and lettuce?

Janet K. Broderick wed here to Ohio State student

Miss Janet Kaye Broderick became the bride of Stephen Marriott Saturday at 2:30 p. m. in St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church.

The Rev. George Koerber was celebrant. Bouquets of white chrysanthemums decorated the altar. Family pews were marked with large white satin bows. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Broderick. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Marriott, Columbus.

Mrs. Dudley Arnold, the bride's cousin, played an organ prelude. Later she accompanied Orva Dawson, an uncle, who sang The Lord's Prayer and "Ave Maria".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown designed with a high waisted white velvet bodice. The high neckline was edged with a small ruffle. A large velvet bow fell from the back of the waist line down the length of the organza skirt. Full sheer sleeves were caught at the wrists in a wide velvet band.

A small white pillbox was her headpiece. Her veil fell into a train. It was edged with a border of finely designed lace. She carried a bouquet of yellow center daisies with white roses, lilies-of-the-valley and ivy. Susan Miller was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Vicki Gilger, Elizabeth Ross and Terry Henry. Amy Eichelberger was the flower girl.

They wore long gowns of sapphire blue velvet. The high neckline and long sleeves were edged with ruffled lace. Their headpieces were flat velvet bows with veils falling down the back. They carried white carnations tinted with blue.

Steven Davis, Columbus, was best man. Kenneth Davidson, Columbus, the bride's brother, Joseph, and Donald Schumaker, Columbus, ushered.

MRS. BRODERICK chose a pink sleeveless A-line dress trimmed in white. It had a matching jacket. She wore a corsage of white rosebuds with carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a long sleeved blue knit. Her flowers were pink roses and white carnations. His grandmother was attired in brown.

A reception took place in Ehret-Parsel Post, American Legion. The bride's table carried out a color scheme of blue and white. The four-tiered cake was decorated with small deep blue flowers with white slippers and doves. The top tier held a miniature bridal couple.

Sandy Gilger registered guests. Penny Bevins and Deborah Haynes, Columbus, and Terry Addis, Tiffin, assisted guests. After a wedding trip to Florida, the newly married couple will live in Columbus, where he is finishing classes in Ohio State university. He will receive his degree next spring. After the first of the year, he will be practice teacher in Westerville schools. Mr. Marriott is a 1967 graduate of Wheatstone High school and employed in the advertising department of Radio Station WCOL.

Red to face Loudonville on home court

Plymouth's Big Red has an even chance to win its first contest of the 1971-72 basketball season on its floor tomorrow when Loudonville's Redbirds, victims of Crestview Friday night, come to town.

It is likely that Plymouth will start five veterans, Bill Van Wagner, Larry Taylor, Brad Ream, Jeff Reed and John Conley, using Lee Wilkins as a spot swing man.

Conley will run the offense, with Fazio as the other back court player.

THE REDBIRDS DID not play at all well at home in their league opener with the Cougars. They shot poorly -- only 25 percent -- and were unsuccessful of 51 tries -- and allowed Crestview too many shooting opportunities. The winners bagged 26 of 61 tries.

The Redbirds could not penetrate the zone defense thrown up by Crestview in the second period and frittered away a six point lead obtained in the first quarter.

Crestview outscored the Redbirds in the last half, 33 to 26.

AND THE COUGARS OUTREBOUND Loudonville, 32 to 26.

PLYMOUTH MUST clearly dominate the boards to have height and strength to do it. Van Wagner, Taylor and Wilkins are big enough and seasoned enough to rebound with all but five players in the Johnny Appleseed conference.

Whatever the outcome, Freddies face Minutemen

IT SAYS HERE -- Wrestling fairer for boys

By THE OLD TIMER

Growth of wrestling as an interscholastic activity has been the phenomenon of the late sixties and early seventies.

Let's face it: no matter the enrollment of the high school, only 24 boys can compete in interscholastic wrestling, 12 with the varsity and 12 with the reserves.

Another 12 freshmen can play in Class AAA high schools, often there is a 10th grade team. But some exceptional 10th graders are called up to the reserve or varsity teams.

This is not a practice that everyone, including this corner, approves of. There is value in having a callow boy compete with his peer group.

WITH WRESTLING, IT'S a different story. Many boys who're naturally possessed of less than their full growth can achieve at their weight-for-age level by competing in the lightweight classes.

Some of them advance to middle- and heavier-weight classes as they grow in age and size.

This is what makes wrestling so attractive to all who're enrolled: there is a chance for 'weeny'.

To undertake a wrestling program is expensive because the cost of the mats is high. An athletic center can expect to lay out $2,500 for a practice mat and a competition mat (the former may be smaller, so that more than two competitors may practice at the same time) and for timing devices and other implements.

A basketball program can be set up for about a tenth of that figure, assuming the gymnasium is available. (Since the wrestlers use, presumably, the same space, it is of no use to try to charge the cost of the building against the basketball program; but if there's only one floor, and wrestlers also must use it, such time as they are on it reduces the time the basketballers may use it).

So it follows that wrestling can be undertaken chiefly by those schools rich enough to have two gymnasiums.

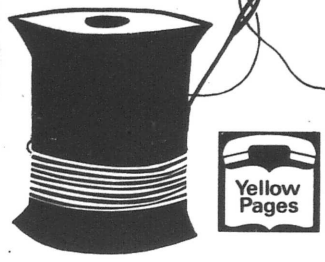

Until recently, we didn't qualify. AUTHORITIES HAVE found some fault with the wrestling program, largely with the technique, if one dares call it that, of encouraging a boy who, say, at 115 pounds isn't quite good enough to compete for his school at that weight to starve himself so that he can compete at the next lowest weight.

This is no less to be deplored than the technique of using drugs or whatever to permit an injured player to compete or of using coaching devices that accord one team an unfair advantage (such as a closed circuit TV system: legal in Ohio for use AFTER a game but not for use during a contest).

But in some schools (take Maple Heights, for instance) and colleges (Hiram comes to mind), they pack 'em in for wrestling like they've never done for roundball.

By and large, the wrestling program deserves encouragement. Certainly it is superior to basketball for ALL boys, because basketball is a game designed for the tall ones. A short one must be exceptional to merit the opportunity to play. Coaches will -- and this is to their discredit -- go out of their way to seek to develop a clumsy, un-

Ohio attacks shortage of teachers

A new approach to the balancing of a surplus of personnel in certain teaching areas and a shortage of industrial arts instructors was launched today by the Ohio Department of Education. State Supt. of Public Instruction Martin W. Essex explained that while a surplus of teachers in certain areas does exist, it does not extend to the area of industrial arts, where there are 20 to 40 vacancies. Also, 21 per cent of the 3,000 instructors in the state are on temporary teaching certificates.

four state universities -- Bowling Green, Kent State, Miami and Ohio State. The sessions will end in August, 1972, when the participating teachers will be granted provisional certificates for full-time employment for the 1972-73 school year.

Essex said the reason for the shortage of fully qualified industrial arts teachers is that, historically, many move on to more lucrative positions in business and industry. And, Essex continued, still others are going into vocational education. Essex said the oversupply of teachers is mainly in the areas of social studies, physical education and English. Interested teachers who meet eligibility requirements should contact industrial education personnel at the participating universities. Selected teachers will receive a $50 weekly stipend and free tuition.

BGSU to raise student fees

Bowling Green State university board of trustees announces a fee increase effective winter quarter, 1971.

This fee increase will also affect the instructional and general fees at the Firelands campus, Huron. Instructional fee for Firelands students will increase from $150 to $200. However, the general fees at the Firelands area will decrease from $50 to $25. Overall fees for the winter quarter will be $225.

Part-time students will be charged at the rate of $26.25 a credit hour. Students enrolled for eight credit hours will be charged $210 and the full $225 rate will begin at nine credit hours and continue to 18 hours.

Firelands campus fees have remained at $200 for the last two academic years. The increase in instructional fees will bring it in line with charge with the main campus rate. The reduction in the general fee reflects the need in previous years to utilize general fees to pay instructional costs. Additionally, the several auxiliary services, student services (such as medical, placement and counseling), large athletic programs and other similar expenses funded by general fees at the main campus have not reached full development at Firelands.

Fees at the main Bowling Green campus have increased to $250 with instructional fees at $200 and general fees at $50. Firelands students who enroll for one half or more of their credit hours in the extension division (junior, senior, and graduate courses) will be billed at this main campus rate.

V.C. Hoffman, Jr., weds at New Washington

Miss Linda Hoehn became the bride of Vance C. Hoffman, Jr., Nov. 27 in St. Bernard's Roman Catholic church, New Washington.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roma Hoehn, New Washington. He is the son of Vance C. Hoffman, Sr., and of Mrs. William Derach, Kentwood, Mich.

The Rev. Omar Rethinger was celebrant in a setting of orange and gold floral decorations.

The bride's cousin, Mrs. Doris Arnold, organist, accompanied Mrs. Harriett Morrow, who sang "Somewhere," "O ne Hand, One Heart," "Ave Maria," "The Lord's Prayer," "A Time for Us" and "Love Story."

Mr. Hoehn gave his daughter in marriage. She chose a gown of silk satin. The high-necked fitted bodice was edged with Alencon lace. The same bands of lace encircled the waist line and the skirt, which fell in folds to the floor. Appliques of lace were scattered down its front. The long full sleeves were tightly gathered at the wrists in a band.

Her veil was a mantilla of illusion edged in Alencon lace and fell into a deep train. She carried a cascade arrangement of white roses, carnations, lilies of the valley and p.o.p.o.m. chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Rod Hinkel, Gallion, was her sister's matron of honor.

Another sister, Heidi Hoehn; the bridegroom's sister, Deborah, and Alice Siesel, New Washington, bridesmaids, wore pant dresses with Empire bodices of dark orange velvet designed with short puffed sleeves and scooped necklines. The remainder of the outfit was in light orange satin chiffon. Each wore a dark brown choker and carried bouquets of fall flowers.

JAMES SANDS, KALAMAZOO, Mich., who served with the bridegroom in Vietnam, was best man. Mr. Hinkle, David McKown, Richard Lahmon and Robert Hall, all of Plymouth, ushered.

Mrs. Hoehn wore an ensemble of beige crepe and brown velvet with a matching brown velvet coat. Her flowers were yellow roses.

The bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Frank Hoffman, chose navy blue. Her flowers were autumn shades of chrysanthemums.

A buffet luncheon was served in the church social hall, where an orchestra played for dancing.

Donna Smith and Barbara Diven assisted at the buffet table. Peggy Sharp served the bridal cake. Charlene Briegel registered guests.

They went on a wedding trip in the Poconos in Pennsylvania. She wore a brown velvet pant suit with brown accessories and wore the corsage from her bridal bouquet. They are now at home in New Washington.

The new Mrs. Hoffman, a 1968 graduate of Buckeye Central High school, is employed by Timken Co.

A 1968 graduate of Plymouth High school, he served two years in the Army with most of his tour of duty in Vietnam. He is employed by the Fate-Roor-Heath Co.

The night before the wedding the Hoffman family were hosts at a buffet for members of the bridal party at Eshret-Parel Post, American Legion.
