Freeholder's security deposit out, power rates to be increased

An ordinance relieving property owners of a $50 security deposit for utility services was affirmed by village council Tuesday night.

After two more readings, it will become effective Dec. 1.

The council agreed electric rates should be reviewed and changed in accordance with the raise in the fuel clause billed to the village by Ohio Power Co.

Villager, 38, hurt in crash near Mansfield

A 38-year-old Plymouth driver was admitted to Mansfield General hospital Thursday morning after a head-on collision in Bowman Street road.

John C. Harpst, Maple street, was said to be in satisfactory condition.

State highway patrol said Harpst overtook a semi-tractor rig driven by Roger Zimmerman, 31, Kansas, and as he was along-side the rig his car struck head-on that of Mrs. Charlene Maye, Willard, riding with two sons, Jeffrey, three, and Robert, two, in the front seat.

Mrs. Maye was also admitted to Mansfield General hospital.

Arthur Forsythe dies at Tiffin of lengthy illness

Arthur H. Forsythe, 82, Shelby route 1, died in a Tiffin hospital Thursday morning of a lengthy illness.

Born Nov. 4, 1889, in Richland county, he lived there all his life.

He is survived by his wife, Grace; five grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

The Rev. Ronald F. Graham, pastor of First Evangelical Lutheran church, conducted private services Saturday at 10:30 a. m. from McQuate Funeral home, Burial was in Mt. Hope cemetery, Case township.

Kenneth G. Amburgey estimates that since 1970, the charge has increased almost $1,000 a month.

Councilman Toy Patton suggested the village set a rate which will also offset the increase the company is in the process of requesting from the PUCO.

John Sawvel, who prepared the electric rate study put into effect in 1965, told Mayor Elizabeth C. Paddock his study included a detailed report of how the village could raise its rates in the ratio already set, in the event such increases by the power company should occur.

He said he has no doubt the PUCO will grant the company some kind of raise.

The council disapproved a proposed rate change of the Northern Ohio Telephone Co. The company filed its proposed rate increases with PUCO Sept. 27.

For another, pupils of the school have a whoopee set up and some emotion is attached to it.

Emotion is what wins schoolboy football games; victory comes most often, statistics show, to the teams that want it.

For a third, Crestview is fresh off a generally tougher season, so far, than Plymouth. The Couone-party business line is to be increased from $7.25 to $10.90, a two-party line to $8.80 from $6 and a multi-party line from $5.75 to $7.80.

A one-party residential line would go from $5.50 to $7.05, a two-party line would remain the same at $6.25, a four-party line from $3.50 to $4.45 and a multi-party line from $3.75 to $4.65.

The village will send its objections to the PUCO. COUNCILMAN EDWARD O. RAMSEY said business users should not be increased so much, of 50.2 per cent the highest of the increases. He said these customers use more long distance service and pay more for service that way. He said the service is better than it has been to which Councilman Donald Akers said "it is still bad".

Patrolman Robert Seel resigned from the police department, effective Oct. 16. He is returning to auto mechanical work.

The mayor reported the radar gun has been returned by CMI, Inc., which had it a month for repairs. It was delivered to the Mansfield bus station. No one knows how long it was there before it was sent to Plymouth by UPS. The village received a bill for repairs in the amount of $18. The company's advertising states each gun had a two year warranty, but Ramsey, who as a member of the police committee last year, purchased it, said he received nothing in writing at the time. Inquiry is to be made before the bill is paid.

Beginning Monday there will be enforcement of a 9 p. m. curfew until the end of the Halloween season. Parents of offenders will appear in court.

What vote on Issue 2?

Barring a last minute court order, the controversial income tax repeal issue will appear on the ballot Nov. 7.

At considerable expense, the secretary of state is laying the official arguments pro and con before the electorate in a series of newspaper advertisements.

Arguments pro:

The public would always vote on the right to tax, and the amount thereof;

Approval will prohibit collection of the present state income tax.

Its supporters, officially listed by the secretary, are chiefly right-wing Republicans.

Arguments con:

Approval will destroy the homestead exemption and the 10 per cent property tax rollback;

Approval will cause higher taxes for the small businessman;

Approval will reduce state support to municipalities;

Fairness and justice in Ohio's tax system will be eliminated by approval of Issue No. 2, because it would eliminate the ability-to-pay concept of taxation first adopted in 1912.

We have carefully studied the arguments of both sides (the arguments con are steered by a mixture of Democrats and Republicans) and we confess we find them somewhat inconclusive.

But nobody has satisfactorily explained how, if Issue No. 2 is approved, the money already from income tax collections will be recovered from the school districts and municipalities, and more importantly, what will replace it.

Based on this conclusion, which we believe to be valid, we urge defeat of Issue No. 2, on the grounds that while the income tax is an additional burden, it is nevertheless the only way to reduce the heavy property tax (and bear in mind that we here pay a tax rate that is higher than in any tax district in seven surrounding counties, save in four instances) and maintain an even keel in school finance.

Crestline swamps Red, 38 to 0

Plymouth held to 24 yards rushing; fumbles, interceptions costly

Plymouth humbled, fumbled and stumbled its way to a 38 to 0 humiliation at Crestline Friday night. Although Plymouth teams have been beaten by bigger scores over the past 18 seasons, never has a Big Red eleven seemed so inept in tasting defeat.

Plymouth made just about every mistake in the book, including showing up for the game, played in a quagmire that quickly obliterated most of the numbers on the Crestline uniforms. There were several Red uniforms that were not obliterated, because their occupants were standing around looking instead of blocking and tackling.

It was apparent during the first series that Crestline would prevail. The question was only of by how much.

The offensive set of the Bulldogs' line was so broadly spaced that Plymouth's defense lost concentration and Crestline was able to gain almost as will. Indeed, the Bulldogs rolled up 214 yards rushing and 31 yards passing. By comparison, Plymouth was minus 10 yards rushing in the first half, 24 yards rushing in the whole game, and gained 56 yards through the air.

Crestline took the opening kickoff at its 45 and marched to the end zone in 10 plays, Ted Alligre squirting in for the last 10 on a counter over right tackle. Paul Marsano's run for PATS was short and the Bulldogs had a lead they never gave up.

After an exchange of punts, Tom Eiler intercepted a pass by Ray Hughes and Crestline set out for another score. THIS ONE CAME AT 9:47 of the second period. Alligre cracked left guard for five yards, capping a 21-yard drive in five plays. His run for PATS was short.

The Bulldogs scored the very next time they had the ball. Hughes fumbled at the Red 26, Crestline recovered and scored in seven plays, Jeff Cheney sneaking in from the two. His pass for the PATS was unsuccessul.

It was that way at the half, 18 to 0, and Plymouth went to the dressing room sullen in body and spirit.

The long bomb led to the first Crestline touchdown of the second half. Plymouth punted to the Crestline nine and the Bulldogs scored in six plays, the big one a bomb that Cheney threw to Eiler free behind the Red defenses. He was stopped at the Plymouth 14.

Alligre swept right end for the TD. Marsano ran the PATS and Crestline led by 26 to 0.

THIS WOULD HAVE been enough.

But it was not, alas. On the first play of the final period, Plymouth fumbled away its only chance to score.

The Big Red had driven from its 37 to the shadow of the Crestline goalposts, thanks to two 15-yard penalties and a half-the-distance assessment against Crestline. But the Bulldogs recovered a Plymouth fumble at their 12-inch line and the pressure was off.

When they punted out, Plymouth committed another cardinal sin: it fumbled the punt. The Bulldogs recovered it and on the first play Alan Bryant took a pincushion to his left and swept Plymouth's right end for 58 yards and a score.

A pass by Hughes was nailed by Brocklesby to break up a Red drive at midfield later in the game. Eiler intercepted another and ran it to the Red 25. Crestline could not advance and when Plymouth obtained possession again it sought to pass. Russ Winkler, a reserve back, nailed the throw at the Red 36 and ran it in for the final TD.

By AUNT LIZ
There's a song from an old musical -- the name of neither can I remember -- that has one line I will never forget.
It's "I've got a lot of livin' to do yet."

The big catch is that most of us are just bogged down with our everyday lives.
Right now there's an expedition getting ready to track down the yeti or, as it is more popularly known, the abominable snowman, away up in the Tibetan mountains. Apparently such a thing does exist. Let us hope they have some good cameras with them.

Then there is a fellow from Grand Rapids, Mich., who has actually canoed the 3,200 of the Northwest passage. For centuries it was the dream of explorers, and was finally found by Amundsen, the great Norwegian polar explorer, early in this century.

The Michigander, whose name is Tony Daukessa, took six summers to do the trip. It must have been a terrific experience. Most of us probably wouldn't have that much courage to battle an angry, cold waterway or put up with unfriendly bears. He says that bears look on every strange object (which includes man) as a potential meal, but he found the wolves downright friendly, like a family dog.

It is heartening, yes? Just to know we still have people among us who have a sense of adventure instead of sitting around figuring out how they can cheat each other.

THERE JUST MUST BE something wrong with our society. A few weeks ago we went to a game at Ohio State, the first one in years. After a while of sitting, we all began to notice how much police protection there was. State troopers were strategically placed around the field plus several up on top so they could survey the whole stadium. I do not remember this from years past. Why must an innocent football game on a sunny, nice Saturday afternoon be such a potential danger? Why do our small high schools demand police protection for their football games? Is it a sport anymore or a small war?

Problems, problems, and more problems. Where do they come from?
The answer is simple: people are not doing things they should be doing. Can we ever get back to more simple living? I think so. Right now we seem to be going through a great messiness which I blame on the crazy weather we have been having. People have been doing all sorts of things which are really out of character. They simply cannot be that evil nor bad. We all do have some of this in us, so we are all guilty.

And guilty we all are, of eating too much. But it is so darned satisfying. Right this minute we are experimenting with a new dish. When we went visiting last month in New Jersey, we had lunch in a very old inn in a little place called Bedminster. The inn has been there since Revolutionary war times. From the little history on the back of the menu, it apparently weathered the years and went through the Prohibition era as a neighborhood speakeasy.

What I ordered that day was the most expensive thing on the menu, $2.95, and after poking around with a knife and fork, I realized it could be reproduced for a fraction, and it was really delicious.

Start with a boned quarter of a chicken breast. Bake it a little bit in the oven, until maybe half done. Take it out and spread it with pate de foie, which has a little brandy mixed in it. Either you can buy a small can of it or make up your own from ordinary goose liver. Every cook book has a recipe of faked-up pate, and it works.

Then roll out a patry shell which you buy frozen. It is puff paste which would take you two days to make from scratch. Place the half cooked chicken in middle and roll up. Bake this until the pastry is done, and serve with a thinish white sauce laced with a little brandy.

Weeks ago nearby daily published a recipe which should be tried at least once. So far we haven't had time, but we will. Should anyone try it, we would be very happy to have a sample. It is called raisin catsup cookies and belongs to Mabel Jarrett, who must really be quite a cook. I think she made this one up herself.

They are drop cookies which when finished get a glaze of one and a half cups of powdered sugar

Faster mail service set-up starts here

A system to speed up special delivery of airmail and first class letters, flats and small parcels was added on Oct. 1.

Postmaster R. L. Brooks said postal authorities recognize the need to improve special delivery service. He noted that Postmaster General E. T. Klassen told a conference in Washington, D. C., "special delivery service for many years has been a disgrace."

At that time Klassen announced plans to install a nation-wide improvement program based on the use of a self-identifying plastic in speedy bags. The speedy bags will be used within the mail system to keep special delivery mail from losing its way among millions of other pieces of mail.

Brooks said a six month test program executed at 4,300 post offices in the west "has shown a reliability rate in the high 90s."

Speedy special delivery bags are made of polyethylene and are 20 by 30 inches. The Postal Service eagle and the words "speedy" and "special delivery" are imprinted in green.

"All special delivery letters, flats and small parcels normally dispatched in mail pouches will be placed in speedy bags, Brooks said. The speedy bags then will be placed in a mail pouch or loose pack in such a manner that approximately four inches of the green imprint on the speedy bag is exposed when the pouch or loose pack is closed.

"Upon arrival at the destination or next processing office, pouches containing speedy bags are opened first and the speedy bag is removed and immediately taken to the distribution area for priority processing," Brooks explained.

He said studies show special delivery mail to be delayed within post offices when it gets intermixed with standard first class mail. This caused it to miss special delivery "runs," he added.

Brooks pointed out the public also frequently contributes to slow movement of special delivery mail when special delivery mail is dropped into street collection boxes or other mail deposit points without checking whether there will be an expeditious pickup afterwards.

"Special delivery mail is best deposited at a post office where it can move promptly to the station that will finally deliver it," he said. Mailers also should consider whether a particular item should go via air mail special delivery to insure fastest possible movement in transit as well as at the destination," he added.
