

OES installs Mrs. Runion

Mrs. Damon Runion was installed as worthy matron by Plymouth Chapter 231, OES, Tuesday evening.

Mrs. J. Benjamin Smith was the installing officer, assisted by a staff of eight and two pages.

Mrs. Alice Ryder, Bucyrus, past grand matron; Lowell McMeekin, Shelby, past grand patron; Mrs. Bernice Imhof, deputy grand matron, and Mrs. Arlene Moore, the grand representative of New Brunswick, were present.

Other officers installed were William Day, worthy patron; Mrs. Joseph Maynard, associate matron; C. Thomas Moore, associate patron; Mrs. Robert Kennedy, secretary; Mrs. Edd Vanderpool, treasurer.

Also, Mrs. Patricia Adkins, conductress; Mrs. Jack Ball, associate conductress; Mrs. H. James Root, chaplain; Mrs. Orva Dawson, marshal; Mrs. Carl V. Ellis, organist; Mrs. Roy W. Carter, A. D. H.; Mrs. Tony Patton, rub; Mrs. Rebecca Armstrong, Esther;

Also, Mrs. Arline Schreck, Martha; Mrs. Day, Electa; Mrs. Edith Kessler, warder, and Mr. Ellis, sentinel.

Seven standing committees were named by the new matron, who chose Martha as the honor station, the broken column as the emblem; the white carnation; the white carnation with fern as the flower and "Faith of Our Fathers" as the theme.

Tough Trojans next Red foe

For the first time in five seasons, Plymouth's basketball squad will face the new year with an unfavorable record.

The Big Red has tackled Loudonville (which is the surprise of the Johnny Appleseed conference so far -- exactly as its coach said it would be), Ontario, Lexington and Buckeye Central and hasn't much to show for it.

Coach Bryan J. Neff knew his team was green, short on overall height, relatively weak in rebounding and lacking in depth. Whether he thought at the outset of the season he'd go this far with such poor success is his secret.

that rarified air -- he's that tall -- and Clyde Honeycutt, a dandy playmaker and crack shot.

Guy Engler, a seasoned 11th grader, contributes considerably to Coach Terry Hunt's attack.

South Central has shown signs of over confidence in at least two outings and could be had by a team that's willing to meet the Trojans on its own terms and play the kind of ball that will beat them.

South Central ought to've whipped Western Reserve by plenty but barely made it. It outreached Monroeville by as much as six inches in some cases but was hard put to come out with a four point victory.

Kramb is a magnetic man under the bucket but tends to foul overmuch.

MOST TEAMS HAVE had success against the Trojans -- such success as has been had, this -- with a tight box-and-one zone defense, the one contracting on Honeycutt.

"Break up their overloading of the zone, seal off Honeycutt most of the time and contain Kramb and you can beat 'em," one coach says. "I wish you luck. It's not an easy job."

He remains confident "we'll do all right when we catch up and catch on." He implies there is no substitute for experience but experience.

Tomorrow's foe is South Central, with perhaps the best team since the old Greenwich-East Greenwicks-North Fairfield-Ripley district was united. ITS GUNS ARE TOM Kramb, who's a candidate for astronaut, because he's learned to breathe to contain Kramb will be the task of Craig McPherson.

Ray Hughes will doubtless be talking Honeycutt. Plymouth needs to shoot well to stonewall turnovers and to play sound defense to win. These are the ingredients of victory in all games, but this one especially. Because the Trojans are indeed a tough opponent.

New Haven joins funding of new ambulance service

Plymouth ambulance service will begin Jan. 1 to serve the village and Plymouth and New Haven townships.

Trustees of New Haven township met with village council Dec. 19 and accepted a gentlemen's agreement to share costs, as trustees of Plymouth township had done previously. Each township will contribute 25 percent of the costs of running the ambulance service. The village will pay the other half.

This will continue for a six month trial basis. By then the council should be able, it said, to determine what the costs will be, and can "go from there."

The clerk was given the title of clerk-dispatcher of the service by an emergency ordinance. She will receive $1,000 annually for the work.

Resignation of Woodrow Smith, assistant fire chief, was received with regret. He has served the fire department 27 years. He said in his letter "fire fighting is my job for younger men."

The council authorized Mayor Elizabeth Paddock and Clerk Dolores Baker to sign an easement requested by Northern Ohio Telephone Co., providing a clause is added which says the village will always have egress and ingress at the sewer lagoon site. The company has asked for a new easement bordering the lagoon property where it wishes to eventually install underground cables.

To enable its staff to take annual leave, this issue was prepared a week early. It was printed Dec. 20.

The business office of The Advertiser will open tomorrow at 8 a. m. It will close Saturday at noon and remain closed until Tuesday at 8 a. m., to permit observance of the annual holiday, Jan. 1.

The staff extends hearty New Year wishes to all of The Advertiser's readers.

Mayor's annual report

What it is, what it ought to be--here, anyway--laid down by incumbent

"If a mayor is meant to show any leadership, an annual report required of him is a place to do it. Not the only place, but a place and an important place, I think."

Mayor Elizabeth G. Paddock is speaking as a political scientist of sorts in saying so.

She shares her conclusions on Dec. 733.41 of the Ohio Revised Code, which says, "At the first regular meeting in January of each year, and at such other times as the mayor deems expedient, he shall report to the legislative authority concerning the affairs of the municipal corporation, and recommend such measures as seem proper to him."

How does this leadership stick? The council is well within its rights to ignore or reject whatever a mayor suggests. But the mayor's report is a public document, open to inspection by any citizen at any reasonable time. It is -- at least in my case it will be -- read aloud so that anybody who objects to it can speak his piece right then and there. But there is no way to change it, and since it is a privileged document -- that is, whatever the mayor says in it cannot be used against him in civil action -- he has some clout. I certainly do not plan to use my report for the purpose of clouting any individual. I do plan on stating simple facts and making simple conclusions from those facts, and then I mean to take an optimistic and positive slant toward our problems."

WHAT ARE THOSE problems?

"Well, I wouldn't care to disclose in advance what I plan to say in my report. Do not plan to use my report for the purpose of clouting any individual. I do plan on stating simple facts and making simple conclusions from those facts, and then I mean to take an optimistic and positive slant toward our problems."

been managed so well, either. My whole theory is that just because we are only 2,000 persons in a little town in Northern Ohio is no reason why we can't have just as efficient a government as any place else. After all, if you were sick, you wouldn't settle for less than the best care, would you? Well, the village has a sickness, let me tell you, and I plan to spell it out in my report and what I think ought to be done about it."

One question that some councilmen have voiced privately is "What will she say about the revenue sharing money?"

Plymouth stands to receive $9,656 in federal revenue windfall during 1973. The money must be spent within one fiscal year thereafter and there are some things it can't be spent for.

Mayor Paddock has a tentative opinion: "I think the money should be spent for capital improvements, things that stand to improve the quality of life for the citizens of Plymouth. But that doesn't rule out expenditure of some of the money for plain old every-day nitty-gritty things that, because of inflation and general wear-and-tear, among other reasons, we haven't been able to pay for up to now."

What are some of those capital improvements?

"This doesn't mean they'll be paid for from federal revenue sharing, but some of them are arrangements of the Square traffic pattern not funded by issue I, expansion of park services, so as to involve our younger citizens wholesomely and profitably, the question of acquisition of additional cemetery space; the refinement of the public safety forces, notably the ambulance, plus some other of lesser importance now, but nevertheless worth considering."

Her report will be submitted Tuesday night.

By AUNT LIZ
There is another one of those happy New Year weekends coming up.

It is worse this year because it is a two-day deal of solid football games. There is a time and place for them, really, like Friday nights and Saturday afternoons. Perhaps one of these days there will be a housewives' revolution about it all.

Trying to solve the problem by staying in the kitchen has its moments and its drawbacks. Maybe a second television is the answer, but to me that is silly, since we hardly have the one we own on very often. Perhaps I am really out of it, since I still prefer the radio and especially when the Saturday afternoon operas are on. They now are taking the place of Big Ten games.

And what are all of us girls going to do over the weekend? You can always start spring housecleaning and tear all the curtains down, which is a really great idea if you did not do it last spring at all. In between, you must know, you will be carrying tidbits for everyone to munch on—they will refuse a decent meal, no doubt!

Did you know that Americans spend $750 million a year on potato chips? Are you contributing your share? You should be ashamed. Another $1.48 billion is spent on cookies and crackers, and it really is cheaper to make them at home.

This may be a Christmas cookie recipe, but it is spicy and durable and an excellent way to start a new year off. It is for Moravian cookies, and the recipe is one carried on from the days when Salem village in Winston-Salem was a real place to live, not just a tourist attraction.

YOU WILL NEED A very large bowl or a jelly making pan to mix it all up. The average kitchen bowl isn't enough.

Cream three fourths of a cup each of butter and lard with the same amount of brown sugar. Then add a pint of black molasses (be sure it is the right stuff).

Measure seven and a half cups of flour with four tablespoons each of ground cloves, cinnamon and ginger and a teaspoon of salt. In a cup mix a tablespoon of soda with a fourth of a cup of boiling water. Add them alternately to the cream mixture. Mix very well with your hands; a spoon will never do it.

Cover and keep in a cool place over night, or from morning until night time. Roll out quite thin—the soda will cause them to rise; cut in various shapes and bake on a greased sheet at 375 degrees for a few minutes.

Do not turn your back on them. They are spicy, as you can tell, and I suspect that spices back in the 1700's were so scarce that they were saved for something special like this.

By the time you polish off this recipe, you should have enough cookies to last through the games.

Lotis Garrett, Shiloh native, dead at 78

Formerly of Shiloh, Lotis V. Garrett, 78, died in Fairview hospital, Lakewood, early Dec. 17.

Born in Shiloh July 26, 1894, he lived most of his life in Lakewood, where for 25 years he was superintendent of the former Telling Belle Vernon Dairy Co.

He was the son of the late William Garrett. The late Hobart (Kid) Garrett was his brother. He was graduated by Shiloh High school in 1915.

He was a member of Lakewood Christian church, of Bigelow Masonic lodge and of Al Sirat Grotto.

His wife, nee Eva Mellick, survives. The Rev. Jack Mellick, Wellington, conducted services at Shelby Dec. 19. Burial was in Mt. Hope cemetery, Cass township.

Miss Betty Hunter came Dec. 20 for Christmas vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hunter. A junior in Oberlin college conservatory of music, she played the oboe in a college orchestra that performed on Christmas eve on Channel 5, Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunter took a Christmas buffet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Bernhard and family, Mansfield, Dec. 17 and attended the performance of the Christmas oratorio in First United Presbyterian church. Their daughter and son-in-law were members of the orchestra.

Members of the B-Square club dined and their Christmas gift exchange at the Frontier Inn, Plymouth, Dec. 19.

Mrs. Vera Russell entertained for Christmas Mr. and Mrs. Jack House, and family and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hudson, all of Springfield; Mr. and Mrs. Tony Gwartz and family, Shelby; Mr. and Mrs. George Rinehart and family.

Mr. and Mrs. David Dick spent Christmas eve with the Richard Foxes in Greenwich, and Christmas day with the Leo McQuillens, Rome.

The Harry Seamans had an early Christmas and family gathering at their home Dec. 17. In the group were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Seaman and two daughters, Shelby; Mr. and Mrs. John Niver and family, Worthington; Mr. and Mrs. Van Verburg and son, Willard; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lee Seaman and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hawkins and sons of this place and David Seaman.

The Paul Kranzes entertained on Christmas eve Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Kranz and son and daughters, Springfield; their daughter, Sara, Mansfield; Mary Beth, home from school at Elkhart, Ind., and the Thomas Kranzas.

THIS IS A VERY SPECIAL time to buy a piano or organ for that very special person... For music lovers to find a site at Christmas time is a very special event. You'll be delighted to find bargains galore, wonderful selections in choicest woods and finishes. We make them all at prices low enough to make real bargains. New spinet pianos from $339. New spinet organs from $555. REASON IS... our remodeling schedule is running late, space is needed for workman. Some of these beautiful pianos and organs have been man-handled a little, everything is dusty. Too busy to see that every instrument gets hand polished before delivery, but we do guarantee you each instrument delivered to YOUR satisfaction with special care in free delivery, piano's properly tuned, and organs with music courses, and factory war warranties. Please come and get one of these wonderful instruments at very special prices NOW... some very special terms available at this time of year also, like no down payment and defer your first payment till March 1973. Over 100 fine instruments in stock on sale. Choose from Hammond - Wuritzer - Everett - Kimball - Wawall pianos & organs. You shouldn't postpone the pleasure a piano or organ can give you any longer, particularly knowing most can be purchased as little as $12 to $15 monthly. IF THIS ISN'T the time for your family to buy, ask about HARDEN'S exclusive 5 year Lease Plan with applicable purchase option. You'll be glad you did. HARDEN'S Music, 173 S. Main. Marion 614-382-2717 or 614-382-3514 City parking near. Open Monday through Friday till 9, Saturday 5:30 till Christmas. 14,21,28c
