

Strine to quit as principal

After 35 years as a teacher and administrator, Wayne H. Strine, principal of Shiloh Junior High and Elementary schools, is retiring.

He told the board of education by letter Monday night he does not wish a new contract.

He came here 20 years ago after three years at North Robinson.

He has served as elementary teacher and principal, high school principal and latterly as junior high principal.

After graduating from high school, he attended Ashland college for two years. He began teaching in 1936 in a one-room school, Old 16, in Montgomery township, Ashland county. Thereafter he was assigned to a consolidated school in Montgomery township, then to Sullivans, Ashland county, before going to North Robinson.

Along the way, in 1949, he returned to Ashland college to get his degree. He earned a master's degree at Kent State University in 1956.

He dropped out of teaching two years to manage the Ashland county children's home. And he saw Navy service during World War II.

He plans to join his brother-in-law in the merchandising field.

His wife, nee Agatha Alshouse, whom he married in Galion Sept. 1, 1938, is librarian in Plymouth High school. They have three sons, two grown, and a married daughter and two grandchildren.

Gas shortage to force rise in local rate

New customers for natural gas are out of luck for the next several years and present users can expect increases up to 67 per cent in the next 10 years, a spokesman for Columbia Gas of Ohio says.

R. J. Gordon, Lake Erie district manager, said Mar. 8 the average annual bill for natural gas consumption by a residential family in 1980 will jump to $236. Now it's $141.

Columbia Gas has applied to the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio for authority to refuse service to new residential customers, extending the ban already in effect for commercial and industrial users.

Reason for the situation? "A critical shortage of gas at the source of supply, onerous restrictions imposed by the Federal Power commission to set the price producers may charge at the well head (which makes it uneconomic for some producers to operate a well), restrictions against offshore drilling for ecological reasons."

Relief? "Arctic gas in 1978, if we're lucky, some help from the $38 million Green Springs operation which will convert naphtha to methane, some help from a $130 million Cove Point, Md., regasification plant and termination of a gas pipeline in liquid form will be received from Algeria."

Married pupils to participate in graduation

Participation in baccalaureate and commencement exercises for all married pupils and bus transportation in hardship cases for some married pupils were approved by Plymouth Board of Education Monday night.

With no discussion the board adopted a new resolution on married pupils which also includes pregnant pupils regardless of their marital status. A waiver of board liability is required before pregnant pupils may ride a bus.

The board approved the bid of Buckingham Farm Equipment, Willard, for a GMC chassis for the sum of $5,480 and a Superior body at $2,600, making the total cost $8,080 for a 66-passenger vehicle. A 19-63 GMC bus is being traded in.

The Buckingham bid was slightly higher than one received from Graham Chevrolet, Mansfield. Servicing costs will be lower, the board said, because that Willard is closer than Mansfield.

Two boys win DeMolay award

Two boys win DeMolay award

Two Plymouth boys received the representative DeMolay degree at the hands of Mark Loose, state president, after a dinner at Willard Monday night that marked the opening of International DeMolay week.

They are W. Kelly Clark and John W. Mack. Clark is the youngest child of the William Clarks, Route 61. Mack is the elder son of the R. Harold Macks, Plymouth East road.

The award is conferred upon candidates who show all-around development and achievement scholastically, socially and physically.

Although sponsored by Freemasonry, DeMolay does not restrict membership to kin of Masons but is open to any young man 13 to 21 who is suitably recommended.

Garden club to recycle waste paper

Old newspapers may be left in a special building at Mack's Foodland beginning this afternoon.

Plymouth Garden club, with the cooperation of the Volunteers of America, who constructed the small wooden structure, are taking part in a national project to save trees.

For each ton of paper collected and recycled, 17 trees can be saved from cutting.

Mrs. D. D. Brumbach and Mrs. Raymond Bevier have been instrumental in bringing the program to Plymouth.

They request the papers be bundled and tied or put in large paper bags.

Driver hurt in Sunday crash

Eugene White, Shelby, was taken to Shelby Memorial hospital in McQuade's ambulance early Sunday morning after his car hit one parked at Plymouth street and Mills avenue.

The impact pushed the parked car of Diego Resener, Willard, into another one belonging to Noe E. Gomez.

White was charged with reckless operation by Plymouth police.

Mattress afire, damage slight

A burning mattress on the second floor of the Lonnie Tackett home in West Broadway caused a little but smoke damage Saturday night.

Plymouth firemen and CD answered the call at 8:05 p. m.

They removed the mattresses from the house, eliminating the use of water.

Cause of the fire is as yet undetermined.

Davis resigns

James C. Davis has resigned from the fire department to assume duty as a swimming pool operator at the park with Mary Fate park warden party.

Three join CD unit

Robert Garrett, head of Plymouth's Civil Defense unit, announces three members have been added to the roster.

They are David Gibson, Commodore Truman and Larry Hargis.

Theodore A. Ross, a veteran member of the CD, has transferred to the fire department.

BARBARA VAN WAGNER SHIRLEY ADAMS

Two girls win state degree

Two Plymouth High school girls, Barbara Van Wagner and Shirley Adams, 12th graders, will receive the coveted State Homemaker award during the annual state convention of the Future Homemakers of America Apr. 21-22 in Columbus.

The school chapter will receive the award of merit.

An open house and style show are tentatively planned for Apr. 10.

The chapter is now engaged in collecting paperback books to be given to the Mansfield Reformatory and will help with the annual American Cancer society drive in the village.

National FHA week will be observed locally with special displays of work by chapter members. Red-and-White day is being planned.

Three join CD unit

Robert Garrett, head of Plymouth's Civil Defense unit, announces three members have been added to the roster.

They are David Gibson,

Commodore Truman and Larry Hargis.

Theodore A. Ross, a veteran member of the CD, has transferred to the fire department.

Public assault on power structure fail?

When the bloc of four candidates sought election as councilmen in the fall of 1969, it said its reason was "we want to find out where the power is."

Where was the power? None of the candidates ever said, for publication, where he thought it was, although each implied -- and the four collectively implied -- that it ought to repose in a new council.

There wasn't much campaigning. One of the four now," she says. "I think it started when I told Robert Bachrach, in response to his question, that I disagreed with his attitude toward the flood-damage request."

An editorial in The Advertiser, in September, 1970, "perhaps", according to the editor, "the most widely commended editorial we've ever published -- people who hadn't spoken to me for years came in with praise", broke the matter open.

my way of life and I shall always oppose raiding the treasury of the nation or the state or the village for purposes that aren't justified.

The bloc thereafter mounted what observers at council meetings said and still say was an often vicious and blunt assault on the only woman member. It wasn't done by innuendo, they say; it was done openly and harshly and, in the words of one, "would have broken down a lesser woman than Liz Paddock."

When there was a vacancy in the bloc and Robert A. McKown was named by it to fill the vacancy, he asked her one night how she felt about the abuse. She replied that she had been a married woman for 25 years, had learned to live with criticism, and realized the abuse was merely a device to break her down. "Once they bring me to tears," she observed then, "they'd have me in the palms of their hands."

One of the bloc later resigned and came to her home on a dark night to ask to be allowed to sign her nominating petition for mayor.

The strategy of the bloc solidified after Mrs. Paddock questioned in March of 1971 the validity of a bill turned in by the Bachrach Co. for cleaning of snow from the streets.

The bloc was in conflict of interest. Bachrach dramatically tore up the invoice. She wrote him her personal check for the $40, which he held for nearly two months before cashing it. It was cashed on the day that he and others of the finance committee were compelled to sign a warrant to pay The Advertiser for legal printing. The publisher launched an action against Mrs. Paddock, alleging conflict of interest. They said that since she works for the newspaper, the newspaper isn't entitled to be paid for legal notices of the village and she isn't entitled to report on the meetings of the council.

members who resigned, file a statement of revenues or expenses. This was in violation of Ohio law but is of little significance here.

"The bloc gave me publicity that I couldn't have bought myself," Mrs. Paddock now says. "That nasty election card about the political bloc backed off on them and the vicious yellow-and-red sheet passed around to some doors on the day before the election did the rest. The big vote for me, the biggest ever gotten by any candidate since voting started here, was as much because people disliked what they saw and heard as they liked me, the newspaper or what I had done."

What's more, he has repeatedly said. "The council is no place for a woman." If that weren't true before his service, he made it so during it.

What is more probably nearer the truth is that Robert Bachrach is convinced his representation to the IRS at Cleveland to exceed the 5.5% maximum salary increase will be turned down. Why else did he summon an IRS representative to a special conference here Mar. 3? If he is turned down it is his consummate defeat.

20 months of confrontation: two sides of a three-sided story in the village council said to the present mayor, "Liz, you're riding high right now (because she consistently opposed the incumbent village administrator, who was widely disapproved of) but that's going to change."

The bloc assumed that Mrs. Paddock's views were those of the editorial. She says, "I didn't wholly agree with what it said, but I agreed with most of it. I wouldn't have been so blunt."

She adds, "But look back in the minutes of meetings for years and you'll find that Robert Bachrach often sought to have the village clean out the creek. The village always said he should pay for it. He got it done and it was paid for by the taxpayer. Sure, the money was there and it may be ethical to get it while the getting is good, but that's not had filed in Huron county court at Willard a suit against the village to obtain payment.

This is when the travesty of the solicitor began.

Joseph F. Dush was discharged by the council in January after 22 years of service as solicitor.

"No action by the council in the 18 years I've been here has been so widely criticized in my presence," says the editor.

Robert Bachrach has since confirmed that the bloc's action was "spite... we didn't like Dush siding with Mrs. Paddock or her husband."

Dush had told the council in April, 1971, that the bill submitted by The Advertiser was lawful and should be paid.

The bloc's judgment, the finance committee paid it.

Dush disagreed and told the council so in writing. The council rejected Dush's advice and asked for the opinion of the attorney-general of Ohio. Meanwhile, the council passed, five votes to none, Mrs. Paddock's abstaining, a resolution demanding her resignation.

When Attorney-General William Brown rendered his opinion, he supported Dush and Mrs. Paddock.

This laid the scene for the mayoral campaign of 1971.

Not in Plymouth's history had there been such vigorous effort to elect a candidate.

The bloc spent nearly $500 in support of its candidate, Hugh W. Washburn, who was a member of the bloc from the beginning. At no time did treasurer, Edward O. Ramsey, appointed by the bloc to succeed one of

'Once they bring me to tears, they'd have me in the palms of their hands.'

and she said, "At the time I thought I had made a tactical mistake in not revealing what was said by the examiner on Oct. 28, a few days before the election. Although he said the meeting was confidential, it really should have been and he had no legal right to make it so and no authority to swear me to confidence. But I respected it. I knew what the council had done and the examiner confirmed it. Now what he said is published and everybody can see what the record of the bloc was."

WITH THE RESIGNATION of Robert Bachrach, the bloc is reduced to two. It isn't likely to regain the power it once had.

What does Bachrach's

resignation mean? He and William A. Forquer said Mar. 7 they were wounded by a letter to the editor signed by Charles D. Bachrach, Robert Bachrach's second cousin. Forquer said he has proof the letter was dictated by "the newspaper."

"The statement is beneath contempt. Whenever the newspaper has anything to say, it says it openly and in the format traditionally reserved for its opinion, with no bones about it," the editor says. "It's also an insult to the

What's more, he has repeatedly said. "The council is no place for a woman." If that weren't true before his service, he made it so during it.

THEN THE BLOC

What does Bachrach's

What does Bachrach's

He consistently said, "Everything in the village was rotten before we came in here." He still says so.

HIS 26 MONTHS AS councilman were a remarkable assault on the power structure of the village, which hasn't changed much at all.

If he'd gone about it differently, perhaps he might have succeeded. There is a lesson in his experience for the young who may wish to alter the power structure, if he will share it with them.

If he won't, they'll have to do as Plymouthites have done for 118 years -- ask questions of their neighbors and read The Advertiser.

Mrs. Forrest Black succumbs at Marion

Mrs. Leona Black, wife of Forest Black, died in a rest home in Marion Mar. 5 after an extended illness.

A former resident of Ganges, she was a member and past matron of Angelus Chapter, OES. Funeral services were conducted in Marion Mar. 7. Burial was near Marion.

She is survived by her husband and two sons, James, Galion, and Marion, Marion.

Mrs. Atlee Imhoff, Mrs. Florence Yarger, Mrs. Vera Rinehand, Mrs. Dwight Briggs, and Mrs. Emery Grauer visited the funeral home Mar. 6. Mrs. Robert Heyde, Mrs. Carl Carlson, John Beulah Snyder and Mrs. Robert Baker, all of Ganges, attended the services Mar. 7.

meeting will be Apr. 26 at Grotto hall, Mansfield. Reservations are to be in by Apr. 22.

Mrs. John Barnhart gave the Kingwood report. Men's Garden club, Mansfield, is again conducting the annual chrysanthemum plant sale, with advance orders to be received by Apr. 6. Mrs. Barnhart has some order blanks.

Members were reminded that Spr. 28 is the 100th anniversary of Arbor day. Flower show will take place July 28 and 29, to coincide with the firm's ox roast. The president appointed Mrs. C. O. Butler, Mrs. Barnhart and Mrs. Alvin Garrett to serve on the scheduling committee. Mrs. John Gundrum and Mrs. Ben Drake are to obtain the judge.

A discussion concerning rock gardens was led by Mrs. Gundrum. Various plants that are well adapted to a rock garden are the vinca minor, ivy, creeping phlox and some eucalyptus.

Next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Gundrum.

Four drivers were dealt with by Mayor Grady McDonald Thursday night. John W. Mack, Plymouth, was fined $25 and costs for reckless operation.

Eugene R. Cordrey, Shiloh, paid $15 for speeding. Bernard Van Loo and Wesley E. Gardner, both of Willard, paid $3 each for speeding.

11 WWI vets invited to Legion birthday dinner

Eleven veterans of World War I are invited to be guests of honor of Ehet-Parsel Post 447, American Legion, in its hall tomorrow at its 52nd anniversary dinner.

The number of veterans of the war to end all wars<sup>1</sup> diminished by three during 1971. These were George D. Ellis, David E. Scarfield and J. Phillips Moore, who died.

Twelve such veterans are known to be residing here. Eleven of them are Legionnaires. The 12th is Harry A. Vandervort.

The 11 who've been invited specially are J. Elden Nimmons (he's the only charter member of the post, which was organized here as Ehet Post, named for Samuel Carleton Ehet, a Navy ensign who died of influenza in France, on June 1, 1920), Charles G. Lookabaugh, Thomas P. Crabbe (also a veteran of World War I and the only man in Plymouth to have won two Navy Crosses), H. Paul Baker, Maurice Bachrach, E. L. Earnest, Hubert Martin, John Rebmann, Proctor Fort, Henry Gremmer and Clinton C. Moore.

Auntie turns salty (which is rare for her) on roads, chicken

By AUNT LIZ

Don't you feel better driving on an icy, snowy road when you see a nice large yellow salt truck boom into view?

It gives me a feeling of security.

Only there is a large "But" to it all. Studies have proved that the accident rate on snow covered roads has not decreased in 10-year period, although the use of salt has been increased from 1.4 million tons to six million.

Since 1960 the use of salt has increased 1,800 per cent.

Salt will melt ice down to 20 degrees rather than at the freezing point. Still the studies show that drivers who are being more cautious on snow covered roads than those whipping along on a salted road.

Basically we all need salt to survive, but enough is enough of the stuff.

Too much of it scattered around is killing trees and getting into water supplies. Salt pollution can kill fish and wild life, and you know what it can do to your car. It does the same to concrete roads and bridges.

It is also an expensive ingredient to scatter around. Right now the going price for the type used on ice is $11.80 a ton. If cinders can be used -- or rather found -- they cost about a fourth of that amount.

This is going to be a real problem to highway people in the future, and somehow, some way, someone will come up with the right answer. It always happens that way.

Should you be having a problem with ideas of how to cook chicken, this is a rather new one and sounds good.

but don't over cook. Drain, and reassemble them so they look like a whole head again.

In a saucepan heat six tablespoons of olive or regular oil with a minced clove of garlic. To this add a half teaspoon of dry mustard, two tablespoons of wine vinegar, salt and pepper and some parsley if you still have it. Heat it up and pour over the cauliflower.

This can be served cold, by simply not heating the sauce, just mix it together.

Dust pieces of the chicken lightly with flour and brown slowly in three tablespoons of butter with a small onion thinly sliced for flavor. When it is nicely browned all over, add three-fourths of a cup of cream with a little salt in it, then add a teaspoon of minced fresh parsley.

Cover the chicken and put in a slow oven for about an hour. You should turn the pieces a couple of times.

To serve with the chicken, you can do two birds with one stone, a combined vegetable and salad. Trim a nice-looking head of cauliflower and soak it in cold water for at least a half hour, then divide the flowers. Cook in boiling salted water.

For Soybean Weed Control

RELAX! AND LEAVE THE SPRAYING TO US

Let us keep weeds out of your soybeans this year. We can free you to do other important work during this busy spring season. Our custom service includes recommending the chemical program best suited to your land.

For example, on soils of 1% to 4% organic matter, we recommend Du Pont LOROX linuron weed killer. On variable soils, we suggest a combination of LOROX plus LASSO.

You'll like our service, and you'll like the way chemical weed control can increase soybean yields... speed up harvesting... increase profits.

With any chemical follow labeling instructions and warnings carefully.

The Bible Answer To: RICH

Wordly riches last for only a day. They are like flowers growing in a field. The sun beams down, the blossoms droop, their beauty gone. In the same way a rich man comes to nothing in the very midst of his worldly wealth. People may call you a millionaire, but in reality you are a pauper and earthly goods are all you have.

There is nothing wrong with being rich as long as riches do not stand in the way of being rich toward God. Wealthy financier, J. P. Morgan, said "My hope for eternity is in the shed blood of Jesus Christ." He found true joy in this life, as well as hope for the next because his trust was not in money but in Jesus Christ.

WHY NOT BE BOTH RICH FINANCIALLY AND SPIRITUALLY!

Romans 10:12, 13 "... the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon Him. For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."

You are invited to come and worship and help us welcome our pastor, Colin Crouch, as he comes and ministers to us for the first time this Sunday, Mar. 19. All services held at the New Haven School 9:30 a. m. Bible School. Class for every age. 10:45 a. m. Morning Worship Evening Service. Visitors Expected CHRISTIAN ALLIANCE CHURCH Colin Crouch, Pastor

The Stanley E. Condons and Mrs. George DeVany, who was visiting here from Knoxville, Tenn., spent Mar. 4-5 with the John Elliotts, Penton, Mich.

Mrs. Carl Fenner observed her 82nd birthday anniversary Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. James Preddier and their family and the Gene Finks, Willard, the Clarence Lichtles, Mansfield; the Leonard Fenners, Anthony and Carl Fenner at her home in Nichols avenue.

Mrs. Michael Evans, Morehead, Ky., is spending her spring vacation from Morehead State university, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne H.

Strine. Terry Henry will be home this week to spend her spring break from Miami University, Oxford, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel M. Henry. Beth Ross, who attends the same school, will arrive tomorrow to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Ross.

Thomas Henry, a Malone college student, is also home with his father and Mrs. Henry. He recently spent a week in Washington, D. C., visiting the Capitol and talking with legislators.

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Jacobs, Sr., were hosts to her brother, Carl Cox, Newark, and her sister

Lazy Aces set skating party Sunday night

Lazy Aces Saddle club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Green Mar. 8, saw two films "The Versatility of the American Quarter Horse" and "Quarter Horse Racing". After the films, refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bordner and Mr. and Mrs. Green.

A skating party will take place Sunday from 7 to 10 p. m. at Bloomville. A white elephant sale is planned for the next regular meeting Apr. 12 in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Russell Miller, Republic.

CHURCH NEWS

Presbyterian . . .

"People Who Like People", a film strip, was shown during the midweek Lenten service in First United Presbyterian church last night.

A covered dish dinner will be served Wednesday at 6:15 p. m. A film strip, "Where the Action Is" and a motion picture, "The Oak Lane Story", will be shown afterward.

The film strip deals with evangelism as a corporate community action and shows how an urban church successfully used visitation to achieve self-renewal.

"One Great Hour of Sharing" will conclude on Palm Sunday, Mar. 26. Envelopes in which to place such gifts are available at the church.
