Widow of ex-pastor, 80, dies in Zanesville hospital

Widow of the pastor of Methodist churches in Delphi, New Haven and North Fairfield during the 1940s, Mrs. Lella Powers, 80, Frazzysburg, died in a Zanesville hospital Friday morning.

Her husband, the Rev. William Powers, served the three churches a generation ago.

She is survived by five daughters, Mrs. Pauline Chas, West Lafayette; Mrs. Ruth Wegner, Ches-

The Voice of The Advertiser --

Sex education?

Mr. Mack's remark that he finds the absence of sex education in the public schools, "horrifying" deserves note.

He was and is a successful businessman, the head of a family, the parent of five children, four of them still in school; dedicated to his religion and to his community responsibilities.

It is high time, we think, that someone of substance should speak out for this innovation, long past due, to our way of thinking.

Two weeks ago, we published a story that a young citizen of the village was the second young man in a month to be accused of fathering an illegitimate child. We know of at least two others who are in the same predicament, or will be shortly. And of three school-girls who have sought travel data relating to hurried trips to New York, and not for tourism, either.

This is no argument for amendment of the abortion laws of Ohio, which we regard as a separate matter.

It is rather an argument that if we teach the dangers of drug abuse and of improper use of alcohol and tobacco to pupils of the public schools, on the grounds that not to do so is to encourage practices that will be deleterious to their health and to our economic wellbeing (we have to pay for jailers and mental hospital attendants, don't we?), should we not teach school pupils the dangers of promiscuous sex?

Sex education ought to be integrated into the school curriculum at the earliest levels, perhaps in the upper primary grades, given the earlier age of menarche, and responsibly conducted by seasoned teachers so that the problems to which we refer above, and thousands of others that are hushed up but which rend families terribly as they seek to cope with them, can be controlled if not avoided completely.

Karen Sue Horner, Plymouth, alleges neglect and cruelty in a suit to dissolve the marriage she contracted at Hot Springs, Ark., Sept. 8, 1967, with Donald Jack Horner, also of Plymouth, filed in Richland county common pleas court. She seeks custody of one child.

Vet finds key to jail hard to find!

Don't ask to see Plymouth's jail or you may end up locked up in it.

This occurred Monday afternoon to Shelby veterinarian Dr. Robert Scherer, who delivered a package to the village building and asked to see the inside of the jail.

A friend obligingly showed him the building and accidentally locked him in the cell, where he stayed until a veterinarian could be found to let him out.

Donald Barnes, Shiloh, succumbs at 70 board to allow them to ride school buses, attend the senior prom, have opportunities and privileges equally with other pupils and to be allowed to attend baccalaureate and commencement.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sir: The matter of equal rights, which is a creed of our nation, came to my attention this week in the form of a petition: a ruling to prevent married boys and girls or unwed pregnant senior students of Plymouth High school to participate in their graduating exercises and to commute by bus to and from school.

Citizens, evaluate this situation, for your own civil rights are in jeopardy as well as the students'.

Food for thought: Commencement speaker, Chet Long, for the 1965 graduating class of Ontario, used the theme: "Detour to Destiny".

His thesis: "The most important thing in life is living".

Very truly yours, Mrs. Charles E. Powers

South Central ousts Red in tourney

Plymouth bowed out of the Class A playoffs at Madison High school Saturday night, beaten by South Central, 80 to 68. The Big Red was outplayed, outscored and outcoached in the last half after a dull first half that ended in a tie at 26.

The Trojans, victims of Plymouth by two points earlier, went to work in the third period and, led by big Tom Kramb, who measures six feet seven inches, established a lead at 5:35 that they never gave up in winning handily.

IT WAS THE FIFTH meeting of the season with a Class A team for Plymouth and the second tie in a feat. The Big Red faced 14 Class AA opponents and won nine times.

Neither team played spectacularly in the first half and the upwards of 1,000 fans who paid to see this match must surely have thought the bargain to a bad one.

South Central scored first to break the tie in the third period. Craig McPherson took only two shots all night and bagged both. One of them came with 7:33 left in the third quarter to tie it at 26. Lee Wilkins shot at 7:11 left in the third quarter to send Plymouth into a 30 to 29 lead.

KRAMB SANK A FREE throw at 6:36 to tie it again and converted a rebound at 6:06 to establish a brief Trojan lead. Brad Ream threw in a 26-foot jumper at 5:46 to knot the count at 32, the last time Plymouth was in the ball game.

Kramb's rebound at 5:35 sent the Trojans in front at 34 to 32. Ream missed on a retaliatory shot, Kramb was hacked by Larry Taylor and shot a free throw and then Clyde Honeycutt stole the ball at the Red baseline and dribbled the length of the floor to convert. This lead was insurmountable and Plymouth never recovered.

Twice it shrank the lead to two points but was never able to come up with the tying shot, let alone the go-ahead score.

KRAMB SCORED 12 points in the third period that proved his dominance of the game. He is only a 10th grader and with Honeycutt, Dale Bond and young Guy Ebinger, a valuable part-timer off the bench, gives the Trojans a strong nucleus for the coming two seasons. Plymouth was beaten because it shot less well than did South Central (the Trojans converted 30 of 69 tries, Plymouth only 49 of 70) and because it had fewer opportunities at the foul stripe (South Central missed 11 of 31, Plymouth nine of 19). But neither did the Big Red create its opportunities. Against a zone defense it was singularly inept in attacking and took no pains to adjust the fault when it was clear to enter the ballhoop that something needed to be done. What's more, it was weak on defense.

South Central opened the lead to 10 midway in the final period and, thanks to some clutch free throw shooting by Kramb, Honeycutt and Ebinger, stood off what challenge Plymouth was able to put up.

South Central clearly deserved to win. It carried the fight to Plymouth in the second half. It utilized the substantial abilities of Kramb to the utmost, never lost its poise and capitalized on a cardinal sin of basketball: "never leave have noted your obvious efforts to be fair, although sometimes brutally frank, in your sports coverage.

It was noted that Fields High school played Clear Fork High school in the Class AA basketball tournament last week. Clear Fork defeated Fields badly.

But what irritates me is that all of the players on the Fields team are inmates of a state institution where, in addition to being rehabilitated, they are also supposed to be punished.

Yet a boy attending Clear Fork High school who is, say, on probation obviously would be prohibited from playing on the Clear Fork team.

I have no objection to Fields High school as such. I have no objection to the school organizing a basketball team and engaging it with other schools, if they are willing to allow limited competition of this sort.

But it strikes me as manifestly unfair that a boy who behaves himself and tries hard to do what is right may not have the opportunity to obtain the glory of interscholastic basketball competition, whereas a boy who, for whatever reason, has misbehaved and been convicted of it, sufficiently seriously to be put in an institution, has an opportunity not only to obtain the glory but also to win the state championship!

It is in fairness, I personally prefer vantage points. Yours for fairness in sports,
J.W.B.

By AUNT LIZ
Right after the first of the year, the New York Times reprinted four of its most popular recipes of 1971.

Each Sunday in its magazine section, there is a page devoted to food. For the most part, the recipes call for things you simply cannot buy in an average store, but they do come up with some that are easily made.

Of the 52 recipes of the year, the four chosen were for a sea food stuffed crepe, which takes about a full day to compose; one for French omelets, Madeleines, which are very good, but require a specially shaped pan which is not easily found; a beef stew I have already written a-hout, the one with all the garlic that's really good, which can be made ahead because a day of aging helps the flavors, and a fourth for a frosty lime pie that is delicious.

Turn on your oven to 350 degrees, then mix up one and a fourth cups of graham cracker crumbs with a fourth of a cup of very fine sugar and a fourth of a cup of soft butter. Mix up and line a nine-inch pie pan. Bake this for 10 minutes.

For the filling, separate five eggs and beat the yolks in a double boiler until they thicken. Gradually beat in one half cup of sugar. Keep on beating until it is really thickened. Next, stir in two thirds of a cup of lime juice and two tablespoons of grated lime rind with a dash of salt. Don't let it boil; just stir it over boiling water until the spoon is coated. Cool it, then add the beaten egg whites with a fourth of a cup of sugar. Fold it together gently and pour in to the cracker crust. Bake it for about 15 minutes. It is to be cooled, and can be frozen. When you are ready to eat it, cover the top with whipped cream and decorate with sliced strawberries.

THIS IS A PARTY RECIPE, really, but if you are cooking with the idea of raising money for a project, this one will do it. It was used many years ago to help the building fund of a church in Haysville, Ky., and was highly successful. It is called "Fried Pies."

Start with a half cup of sugar and a tablespoon of baking powder. Cut in four tablespoons of shortening. Beat two eggs well and add a can of evaporated milk, the 1 1/2 oz. size.

Add the liquid mixture to the dry and stir very well. Let it sit over night in the refrigerator.

The next morning have some applesauce ready or spicily cooked apples to use for a filling and a skillet with a little shortening in it.

Take out small amounts of dough, a bit at a time, and roll out the size that you want them. Fill half with the apples, fold over the other half and seal the edges by pressing a fork around, then gently fry over a low heat.

This comes in a Christmas present called "What's Cooking in Kentucky". The recipes come right smack out of the kitchen and you know they work, or the women would not have signed their names to them and been embarrassed about failures.

There is another one which the kids will really like. It's called "Corn Dogs". Gather up winners and make a batter of a cup of flour, one cup of cornmeal, two teaspoons of baking powder and a beaten egg. Add a cup of milk and mix well. Then add two tablespoons of melted shortening. These are to be deep fried. Dip the winners in and fry a way until they are golden. If you have skewers or wood sticks for each one, it won't be so messy and will be easier to eat.
