

C. R. Reeder, Miss Adams wed in Presbyterian ceremony

Miss Shirley Gayle Adams was married to Charles Richard Reeder June 11 in First United Presbyterian church in a double ring ceremony performed by the Revs. Raymond Powers and Robert Bellingham.

The bride is the daughter of the Donald B. Adams, Flanktown road, Shiloh, a 1972 honor graduate of Plymouth High school. The bridegroom, the son of Mrs. Paul Reeder and the late Mc. Reeder, Fenner road, is a 1965 graduate of Plymouth High school and a veteran of military service.

White carnations decorated the altar.

The bride chose a long-sleeved gown with lace inserts in the bodice and down the length of the sleeves, ending in lace bands at the wrist. The lace bordered the hemline of her skirt and the chapel train.

A small flowerette held her bouffant veil.

Her bouquet was an arrangement of pink, blue and white flowers.

Her sister, Mrs. Robert Castle, matron of honor, wore a long straight-skirted pink gown, with mandarin collar and short puffed sleeves.

Bridesmaids, Beverly Adams and Mary Reeder, sisters of the couple, wore blue gowns.

Another sister of the bridegroom, Shirley, and her niece, Sheila Faye Castle, junior bridesmaids, were attired in pink and blue respectively.

A second niece, Robin Lynn Castle, flower girl, wore blue.

Ring Bearer was Donald Bruce Adams, Jr.

David Biesel served as best man. The bride's brothers, James and Robert, and John Taylor and Larry McDonald ushered.

Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Reeder wore blue. The former's corsage was of blue and white flowers. Mrs. Reeder's was of pink and blue carnations edged in pink.

Mrs. Peely Borders, the bride's maternal grandmother, and Mrs. Mary Conrad, the bridegroom's paternal grandmother, chose blue. Their corsages were of white carnations. A reception took place in the church rooms.

They will live in Mansfield.

Angels win three games; Akers fans 85 batsmen

"He's not overpowering with his speed but he gets 'em out!" That's the capsule explanation of how Ronnie Akers has fanned 85 batsmen in 38 innings of mound duty with the Lou Gehrig Angels.

He struck out 19 and allowed only three hits, one of them a three-run homer by Southworth, in vanquishing Milan, 11 to 3. Akers collected three hits, Rich Barnett two.

Barnett went to the mound for a 28 to 5 swamping of Plymouth Pirates. Jim Vanderpool smashed three homers and drove in six runs. Akers cracked four doubles and knocked in five runs. Barnett also homered for the winners. His opponent, Rod Ebersole, homered for the Pirates.

Akers was again in form in an 11 to 6 conquest of Shilo's Tigers.

He was the winning pitcher, fanning seven in three and a third inning. Dave Schiefer, who started, also fanned seven.

And the pitchers clouted home all of the Angels' runs with two homers apiece.

THE ENERGY CRISIS IS THREATENING YOUR WAY OF LIFE

Shame on what you can do about it!

The national energy crisis is the most serious problem facing America today. Without adequate energy supplies, there is no way to solve most other major national problems.

The worsening crisis involves all primary fuels—oil, gas, coal and nuclear—together with the electricity dependent on those fuels. Natural gas which supplies almost one-third of all U.S. energy needs is already unable to meet current demands.

Unless the public recognizes the problem and urges government to cooperate with industry for a prompt solution, we could move from crisis to disaster as early as the winter of 1973-74.

The Columbia Gas System has formulated an Action Program which it believes the Federal Government must adopt to enable the gas industry to deal effectively with the growing gas supply crisis. While this Action Program is directed primarily to the gas shortage, it will ease the total energy crisis by contributing directly or indirectly to adequate supplies of other energy—nuclear, coal, oil and electricity.

Your support of these actions is urgently needed.

Domestic Exploration and Development Must be Greatly Expanded.

For the last four years more gas has been used in the lower 48 states than has been found. Gas being used is not being replaced and none has been found to provide for increased needs. This trend must be reversed as quickly as possible.

- 1. Producer Rates. The Federal Power Commission should encourage an expanded exploratory program on the North American Continent by allowing substantially higher rates to producers than those currently in effect. The Administration, Congress, and the public must understand that the increasing cost of exploration is inevitable.
- 2. Lease Sales. The amount of federal land made available for exploration must be increased substantially both in the Gulf of Mexico and on the continental shelf off the Atlantic Coast. Federal lease sales must be held more frequently, with greater areas of land involved.
- 3. Sanctity of Contract Legislation. Congress should pass the bills now before it which will, first, assure producers that approved contract prices will not subsequently be changed by Federal Power Commission order, and, second, set more realistic standards for determining gas prices. These measures (H.R. 2513 and S. 2487), known as the Sanctity of Contract bills, can contribute significantly in providing the economic incentive that producers must have to undertake costly drilling programs.

Nonhistoric Sources of Gas Must be Made Available Promptly.

Historic domestic sources of gas cannot fully satisfy the nation's growing requirements. Therefore, the prompt development of other sources of gas is essential.

- 1. Oil and Gas From Alaska. Construction of the trans-Alaskan oil line must be permitted to move forward at the earliest possible date. Not only is the high quality oil from the North Slope of Alaska needed to supplement present domestic supplies, but the gas associated with this oil must be added to the nation's supply of energy by the latter half of this decade. This gas cannot be recovered until oil production starts, so the line to bring out the oil must be built.

- 2. Import Policies for Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG) and Petroleum Liquids Required for Synthetic Gas. Practical import policies for liquefied natural gas (LNG) and the petroleum liquids required to produce synthetic pipeline quality gas should be established as soon as possible. The problems of national security and balance of payments can and must be reconciled with the fact that synthetic pipeline quality gas and LNG are the quickest means of expanding the nation's gas supply.
- 3. Coal Gasification Research and Development. Research and development of the gasification of coal must be pursued vigorously in the years immediately ahead. Coal gasification offers one of the most promising sources of gas in the 1980's and thereafter. Thus, adequate funds should be appropriated each year for coal gasification research. The existing joint industry-government program for accelerating the construction of pilot plants for gasification of coal should be funded promptly. The industry portion of $10 million for the first year of the program has already been committed; the government portion of $25 million for the next fiscal year is still pending before Congress.
- 4. Joint U.S.-Canadian Energy Board. The National Administration should seek to create as soon as possible a joint U.S.-Canadian Energy Board to help coordinate programs which would make Alaskan and Canadian natural gas available to the United States market. The joint Board should be a clearinghouse for expediting all matters necessary for the development and delivery of this gas.

Better Energy Administration Needed.

- 1. Amend National Environmental Policy Act. Congress should promptly review the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) and amend it to clarify certain provisions and administrative interpretations. Passed in 1970, NEPA had as its objective the improvement of the environment and quality of life. This objective must be achieved. However, because of vague standards set forth in NEPA and because of unwieldy procedures often used by administrative agencies to implement the Act, the initial actions under NEPA have paradoxically obstructed efforts to supply the American people with clean burning natural gas. The result is not only a serious imbalance between the ecological and energy needs of the nation, but, ultimately, an imbalance between different environmental considerations.
- 2. A Department of Natural Resources. A Department of Natural Resources should be established. The President's departmental reorganization plan contained in his message to Congress on March 29, 1971, and embodied in Senate Bill 1431 should be enacted. It should, however, be amended in accordance with Senate Bill 1025 to include the Environmental Protection Agency in the Department of Natural Resources.

As you can see, the national energy crisis is complex. It threatens the physical, economic and social well-being of every American. We have informed Congress and the Administration of our Action Program to help correct the national energy crisis.

You owe it to yourself and your community to become more informed about the grave national energy situation. Write for a free copy of the brochure we have prepared which presents the facts of the energy crisis together with the details of the Action Program. Columbia Gas has developed to help correct this crisis. Congress and the Administration have been informed of our Action Program.

What Can You Do?

Raise your voice. Your government and your elected officials are sensitive and responsive to your needs, when you make them known.

Write to your Senators and Representative. Tell them you are concerned about our nation's energy crisis, and urge each of them to support the positive actions that are needed if we are to prevent this crisis from becoming a disaster.

By AUNT LIZ

Right now there should be about 10,535,030 people mighty unhappy in the great state of Ohio.

This figure, of course, is based on the 1970 census, so there really could be 10 or so more at the moment.

One of the state departments really blew it.

Everybody probably knows that a specially designed Edison bottle filled with some flavor of hooch -- what kind and what company I do not know -- is being distributed only in Ohio. That part is fine, so far as it goes. But only 750 cases were to be made and sold, so at 12 bottles to a case that means 9,000 bottles. That does not go around one apiece if the population is 10,542,030 people.

Probably at least a third of them are really serious bottle collectors, so someone really gets left out. It is not fair. Only certain state stores are to receive the covered bottles. And in one case I know of, a gal drove 20 miles to one to put her order in, but when the clerk discovered she came from a neighboring town, they said, "Sorry, none for you."

Her reaction, of course, was instantaneous and continued for several hours.

Can you blame her?

HERE IS OUR HAPPY state government sanctioning a special little collector's item and then only allowing a certain segment of the population to even get near it.

Each state store has been furnished with a list of the stores which have it for sale. For the most part they are stores in the urban areas. There are a few middling sized cities listed, but very few.

The other day I heard that the mayor of Milan was unable to purchase one. Perhaps by now someone in Columbus has realized what a terrible public relations goof he has made. In fact, I think it would be nice if the state gave a bottle to each resident to Mr. Edison's home town. It would then assure the financial stability of the community, since they will be so highly marketable to the rest of the 49 states that didn't get in on it.

Bottles are just one more thing which have become so popular to collect. Even those who do not collect them would be happy to own such an investor's item. If an empty bottle can sell for hundreds of dollars and has been distributed quite widely across the country, think what one bottle only in Ohio can mean.

If you are among those who are very unhappy about it, write to this address and tell them: Dept. of Liquor Control, 33 North Third street, Columbus, Ohio 43215. THERE SHOULD BE one very grateful person in that office, I have his name but am not telling anyone. Right now he is very unpopular and is probably getting too many letters to cope with.

Since it is getting to be berry time of all sorts, get yourself some blackberries, three cups to be exact. Make a flaky pie crust and fill it with the berries, tossed lightly with a cup of sugar and a tablespoon of grated orange rind. Then do a lattice-like topping of the crust. Bake as you do any pie.

When it is time to serve, and it should still be very warm, sprinkle a little bit of blackberry brandy over it. You can add some whipped cream to top it off.

With vacationing children at home, this is really the time to maintain a well-filled cookie jar. If it is a substantial cookie, you are further ahead. And this is nothing like what is called the "rock" variety. You get a lot of them in one recipe and they are really filling.

Cream a speck less than one cup of butter (use it, no substitutes, it is worth it) with a cup and a half of sugar. Then beat in three eggs. To this add a teaspoon of baking soda which has been dissolved in two tablespoons of hot water.

Have ready in another bowl a pound of raisins, three cups of flour, a pound of walnuts and dates, a teaspoon each of cloves and cinnamon.

This really is not a very economical recipe, so you really can omit the half cup of candied cherries. But they do add to it, especially if you have both red and green ones. Sprinkle a little salt over it all.

Mix the two bowls together, drop by the spoonful on a greased cookie sheet and bake about eight minutes at 350. They get harder after being out of the oven. The way they are really good is to have them chewy, but only a genius can determine the cooking stage for that sort of doneness. Should yours turn out to be really nice and chewy, you are simply plain lucky and you can forget that Edison bottle that would have made you rich overnight.
