

Trucker killed in Rt. 20

A Plymouth native was killed in Route 20 at Route 511 in Lorain county Aug. 7.

G. Standley Johnston, 58, Greenwich route 1, who was raised on a farm here, died when his tractor unit was struck by Richard D. Weidon, 38, Grafton.

Johnston was seeking to turn from Route 20 into Route 511.

Weidon's rig decapitated Johnston. Weidon was taken to Elyria Memorial hospital in critical condition.

State highway patrolmen summoned Weidon on charges of failure to stop within an assured clear distance.

Johnston farmed near Greenwich for 32 years. He was driving for Rowland Trucking Co., New London.

His wife, Edna; two daughters, Cindy, at home, and Shirley, now Mrs. Richard Christ, Ashland; two sons, George S., Jr., Shelby, and Roy L., Greenwich; two brothers, Eugene, Shelby, and Paul, Mansfield; two sisters, Alice, now Mrs. Clarence Vogel, Edinburg, and Helen Weaver, New London, and nine grandchildren survive.

The Rev. Leonard Willford officiated at the funeral Thursday at 2 p. m. from Greenwich Church of Christ. Burial was in Edwards Grove cemetery.

Aid to aging committee to organize

An organizational meeting is planned for Thursday at 7:30 p. m. for members of the Huron county committee on Aging in the Huron county common pleas courtroom in the courthouse.

Purpose of the meeting is to adopt by-laws and to elect trustees to the board of the new agency, Services for Aging, Inc., which has recently been granted a charter by the Secretary of State of Ohio as a non-profit corporation to plan and develop services for aged citizens of Huron county.

Interested persons are cordially invited to attend. Organizing committee is Lucille Conner and Robert W. Peters, Bellevue; Caroline S. Ford and Lawrence Romsted and Dr. Larry Hadley, Monroeville.

William W. Owens, Norwalk attorney, is the statutory agent.

Can village recover overpayments to pair?

Village council will investigate the possibility of recouping money paid to former employees which the Bureau of Internal Revenue ruled was illegally made in the courthouse.

Mack's Laundromat, which is under construction now, will obtain its water by looping the line 385 feet to the village's main line rather than going 85 feet to connect to the line that runs along Route 61. Utility employees think this is a better way to furnish a heavy water user without reducing pressure to residents on the line along the roadway.

The exact overpayment for salaries to former assistant clerk, Mrs. Quentin R. Ream, and village administrator, William H. Haffon, will be determined by the exact overpayment.

Ream and Haffon were recent exhibitors in the Stetline Gem & Mineral society show at Wauson.

Mayor Elizabeth Paddock told the council the council Tuesday night to rescind Ordinance 7-68 requiring any water line connected to the curb box be of "K" copper.

He said newly developed plastic pipe has proven satisfactory and now passes all required governmental standards.

Ream and Haffon were recent exhibitors in the Stetline Gem & Mineral society show at Wauson.

William A. Forquer, will be figured by the present clerk, Mrs. Delores Baker. The solicitor will then proceed to determine if the repayment can be compelled. The village was informed early in January their salaries should revert to only a 5.5 per cent increase but this was not done at the time.

Shiloh to buy fire warning phone system

Shiloh will pay $715.20 for a special telephone alarm system to be used for emergency service. United Telephone Co., Mansfield, will install a service that will ring a warning signal to 30 units, including each fireman and ambulance operator. Clarence (Joe) Harris, president pro tempore of the council, presiding in the absence of Mayor Grady McDonald, said such a system improves on the present one, which prevents some firemen living outside the village from being notified of a fire because they cannot hear the siren.

Approval by Cass and Bloominggrove townships is now required. Resurfacing of Pettit street will be effected by Richland county highway department at a cost of $650 a ton for 6 tons of material.

A bill of $287 submitted by the Fats - Root-Heath Co. for making a steel counterbalance for the tractor was not paid because Councilman Harry Foster said he understood the labor charge would be donated and the materials contributed as a community project.

Garden club sets 11th show here Saturday

Five grand awards will be made to entries in Plymouth Garden club's annual flower show Saturday in United Methodist church.

Entries are to be made between 9 and 11 a. m. and will remain in place until 8:30 p. m. The show will open to the public at 2 p. m.

Incumbent Huron county court judge sitting at Willard, Philip M. White, Jr., is seeking a third term. He was first elected in 1954. He will be unopposed.

Woodcutters for ox roast are, clockwise, Kenneth Heydinger, Percy Dean, Bernard A. Garrett, Frank Chaffins, William L. Van Wagner, James Reflett and Lonnie Hass.

5% of phones unlisted

Dial 160-555-1212 and ask for Plymouth information.

Then ask for the number of John Doe.

Chances are one in 21 the operator will tell you, "I'm sorry, but that subscriber has an unlisted number." There are 832 subscribers in Plymouth exchange, Northern Ohio Telephone Co. reports, with 1,218 telephones. Of these, 40 are unlisted.

The telephone company doesn't like it, because it's an added expense. It's tried to induce the PUCO to allow a rate increase to cover such specific instances. So far it's failed.

WHY DO SUBSCRIBERS prefer an unlisted number? For some it's a status symbol. They feel important if their telephone number isn't readily available. It gives them a sense of power that they alone can reveal their number. "Power is the ultimate aphrodisiac," says Henry Kissinger, who ought to know.

For others it's a matter of prudence. The single schoolteacher who wishes to avoid nuisance -- and sometimes nettleome -- calls from smart-alecky pupils.

The parent of a noble girl who's in popular demand for social engagements often has his number unlisted so that prospective suitors can't call.

A BUSINESSMAN WHO operates a service-type enterprise has more than enough to handle with a 12-hour day, so he has his home telephone number concealed.

Some public office holders have unlisted numbers. They reason that "the people can get in touch with me when they see me or at the municipal building, I don't want to be bothered by them at home."

In some cases of severe illness, especially when the infirm person is aged, the number is unlisted, to prevent needless disturbance of the sick.

Schoolteachers aren't the only ones who seek unlisted numbers. At least one administrator had his home number concealed. "I will deal with parents and pupils in my office from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. five days a week and other days by appointment -- but my home is my castle," he told the Advertiser. (He's not in the district.)

Another man who likes his television, which is in the basement, had his number unlisted because he doesn't want to run upstairs every time the telephone rings for his wife, who's heavily involved in social doings.

his injury has healed, Ray Hughes, Ken Sexton, Doug Smith, Garry Bisel, Rick Ström, Rod Heydinger, Larry Reynolds, Rich Ryder, Keith Stone and Jeff Clabaugh.

Coach Larry Root thinks so and says flatly, "we'll be better than last year."

Plymouth wound-up with a 3-and-7 season in 1971, winner of only two Johnny Appleseed conference games. But for a break or two, the Big Red would have been 6-and-4.

Conferences in mid-year and the loss of Cutright at the end of the season punished Plymouth heavily.

Root starts out his eighth season in charge of the Big Red with 1-4 letter winners. Formal practice started yesterday.

Lettersmen are Ken Carter, Sid Rades, Joe Woodmanson, Mike Hamman (if

Driver held after collision

A 43-year-old Plymouth driver was summoned for reckless operation Aug. 2 after his car struck another in Sandusky street near Parkwood drive.

Billy Vanderpool, 142 Sandusky street, lost control of his brother's car, which was not insured, and left the roadway while heading south, regaining the roadway and sideswiped a car driven by Gienna Jean Hicks, 22 Willard, She has two passengers, a Vickie Welch Willard route 2, and Di-ann Devlin, New Haven.

Suit filed against driver

A New Havenite is defendant in a suit for $1,000 filed in Huron county common pleas court by a Willard driver who alleges her car was struck while it was parked.

Michael Sparkman, New Haven, is alleged to have collided with the car of Jackie Hicks, Willard.

Jeanette Sparkman, Willard, and "John Doe" Rose, of Rose Automobile agency, are co-defendants. Plaintiff alleges one or both owned the car driven by Michael Sparkman.

License surrender frees woman

Mrs. Lequita Joy Maye, 21, Plymouth, voluntarily surrendered her driver's license in Mansfield Municipal court Thursday and Judge Harold Lutz dismissed further charges against her. She was the driver of a car in Washington South road on Apr. 26 in which her brother, Gary L. Cyrus, 22, was killed.

Driver jailed at Norwalk

Howell Gaybeart, 23, Plymouth route 1, convicted in Huron county court Aug. 10 on a charge of operating an unsafe vehicle, was fined $25 and costs. He was placed on probation for 60 days.

Niece of Mrs. Perry McKenzie, Mrs. Thomas Coble (nee Ruth Ann Weir), is a new cartoonist for a newspaper in Middletown area. She is a 1966 alumna of Middletown High school.

Her parents, the Basil Weirs (her mother is the former Elvina Robinson) were recent exhibitors in the Stetline Gem & Mineral society show at Wauson.

THE best lawns of all are fed both Spring and Fall!

The biggest single cause of disappointing lawns is underfeeding. All too many homeowners think that feeding in the spring takes care of the lawn's needs for the entire year. But it doesn't. No lawn food feeds that long. For your lawn's sake, replenish its food supply now to encourage fall's natural processes of developing new blades, intensifying color and thickening the weave.

TURF BUILDER, Scotts lawn food, is ideal for fall feeding. Its high nitrogen content makes your lawn grow thicker, greener and sturdier this fall. And thanks to its prolonged release, TURF BUILDER helps your grass winter better and get off to a faster start next spring too. It's a pleasure to use — clean, lightweight, easy to handle. This weekend would be great!

Old school myth shattered: Eskimo can't -- or couldn't -- build an igloo!

Alaska, the 49th state of the union, is essentially Asiatic in origin and traces of that history are apparent today, reports Anita Riedlinger, 61 North street, a Plymouth High school pupil touring the Pacific Northwest with her family.

"The Athapascans Indians came from Asia, in their mother tongue, 'Alcy-ek-ah' means 'the Great Land' and is the root of 'Alaska'," she observes.

Its acquisition as a territory came when William Seward, President Lincoln's Secretary of State, bought it from Czarist Russia. Detractors called it "Seward's Icebox."

Alaska is big as all get-out and Alaskans take no lip from Texans. "Alaska can be divided in two and then Texas would be No. 3," they say.

WHAT'S BIG STATE-side is even bigger in Alaska and nothing so much so as the mosquitoes. "The only way you can tell 'moose-quitoes' from helicopters is that they don't have blinking lights," Alaskans assert. All kidding aside, says Miss Riedlinger, the mosquitoes are indeed large: "the ones I saw are approximately three-quarters of an inch long!" She recounts a Tlingit Indian legend about them: "Long time ago there was a fierce giant cannibal that preyed on people. From time to time, he would come in, grab some of the people, carry them off and eat them. The people tried to kill him. They thrust spears into him. They shot arrows into him. He just kept coming back. They ripped open his chest where his heart was supposed to be, but there wasn't any heart there! Then they went to see a great shaman.

"What can we do?" they asked. "We stick spears into him but he doesn't die."

"This giant has his heart in his right heel," the wise shaman told them. "To kill him you must trip him and cut it out."

The people went back to the village and got ready. The next time the giant came, one brave man ran up behind him and hit him on the right heel with a club. He fell. They rushed upon him and cut the heart out of his right heel. To make sure they were rid of him, they lighted a big fire and threw his body upon it. It burned and there was nothing but ashes. They took the ashes and threw them into the air, crying "Bother us no more!"

"But the ashes turned into mosquitoes!"

THE RIEDLINGERS reached Fairbanks and drove along Farmers' Loop, a route through the farming district. And they drove down First avenue to see some of the pioneer homes of Alaska, some of which are still occupied.

Recalling that President Nixon sent the Chinese two musk oxen, the Riedlingers visited a musk ox farm.

The beast is a great deal like the bison, she reports, only smaller, with curled horns and very long, shaggy hair. The fur is pulled out by hand and woven into very rare, expensive and extremely beautiful sweaters. Musk oxen grow to 800 and 1,000 pounds. The females whelp every two years in the wild state but once a year in the captive state.

"We visited a real pioneer home," she reports. "It was a log cabin. The occupant stored his food in a cache, on the Chena river, near Fairbanks. He used a fish wheel as his source of income."

Eskimos never used the fish wheel (Eskimos are coastal people, Indians live inland) and anyone living in the state can now use the fish wheel for his own purposes or commercially, but a license is required for commercial use. About five years ago, an Eskimo or Indian and any resident having less than $5,000 a year income were the only ones allowed to use the fish wheel, but a change in the law opens its use to anybody.

The first cabin in the northwest area of Alaska was built in 1902," Miss Riedlinger reports. "As our guides on a riverboat cruise to see it we tender tips of willow branches of which he may eat up to 50 pounds a day. He almost kills these trees and very few bud out again in the spring because of his destruction. But he is an important source of food for the Indian."

The Eskimo naturally lives a difference life because it is tied to tide-water and sea life.

Eskimo clothing is made of caribou or seal skin, but caribou is preferred because of the sewing ease and wearability. Men's and women's clothing is similar in all parts of Alaska. A complete outfit consists of a parka with hood, trousers made completely of fur, skins sewn into gloves, and mukluks lined and trimmed with furs. Women's trousers are longer because they are higher waisted. Geese and other water fowl are used for making parkas, too. Mukluks or boots are actually made in two parts. The upper part is made of hair and skins. Tanned seal skin is used outside for waterproofing. Caribou leg hair is preferred because it is finer and more durable. Mountain sheep and seals are also used, but seals aren't so good because the snow sticks to it when walked on.

"I wouldn't have known all this," Miss Riedlinger reports, "without a visit to the University of Alaska museum, a must by my standards for anyone coming up here. This is the summer season and we couldn't possibly see winter clothing."

Mittens are made of seal skin or caribou with the skin side out.

"And I've a myth to dispel: Eskimos never lived in igloos, despite what the schoolbooks say. They never knew how to build them until World War II, when the Army came up here and showed them. Igloos were used by Greenland Eskimauks or Eskimos. Alaskan Eskimos live in a semi-subterranean style home with the entrance at ground level and the floor three to five feet below. They are built of sod, driftwood, and whalebone for support. In the summertime the houses fill with water so the Eskimos move to skin tents."

Time passes swiftly in the Far North.

"We are losing exactly eight minutes of sunlight a day. On Christmas day, sunlight or twilight hours are from 10:30 a. m. to 1:30 p. m. Official temperatures are recorded as 30 degrees below zero Fairbanks in the winter and 90 degrees above in the summer. Unofficial reports set the mercury at 70 below in winter and 105 above in summer. They have a saying up here that struck me: 'Many are cold but few are frozen.'

The only things Alaskans worry about is their mortgage and their fuel bill.

"I talked to one policeman who said his fuel bill in the coldest month of the winter was $147."

An odd note about Fairbanks: one fifth of all the pontoon equipped aircraft in the whole world belong to Fairbankers.

was a fierce giant cannibal that preyed on people. From time to time, he would come in, grab some of the people, carry them off and eat them. The people tried to kill him. They thrust spears into him. They shot arrows into him. He just kept coming back. They ripped open his chest where his heart was supposed to be, but there wasn't any heart there! Then they went to see a great shaman.

"What can we do?" they asked. "We stick spears into him but he doesn't die."

"This giant has his heart in his right heel," the wise shaman told them. "To kill him you must trip him and cut it out."

The people went back to the village and got ready. The next time the giant came, one brave man ran up behind him and hit him on the right heel with a club. He fell. They rushed upon him and cut the heart out of his right heel. To make sure they were rid of him, they lighted a big fire and threw his body upon it. It burned and there was nothing but ashes. They took the ashes and threw them into the air, crying "Bother us no more!"

"But the ashes turned into mosquitoes!"

THE RIEDLINGERS reached Fairbanks and drove along Farmers' Loop, a route through the farming district. And they drove down First avenue to see some of the pioneer homes of Alaska, some of which are still occupied.

Recalling that President Nixon sent the Chinese two musk oxen, the Riedlingers visited a musk ox farm.

The beast is a great deal like the bison, she reports, only smaller, with curled horns and very long, shaggy hair. The fur is pulled out by hand and woven into very rare, expensive and extremely beautiful sweaters. Musk oxen grow to 800 and 1,000 pounds. The females whelp every two years in the wild state but once a year in the captive state.

78 pupils attend vacation church school

Estate of Dale Edward Owens, Shiloh, amounts to $6,370, an inventory filed in Richland county probate court shows.

A frequent visitor at the David Dick home near Shiloh, Carl Wagner, 79, Van Buren, was interested Monday after services at Findlay. He was a retired farmer and a member of Van Buren United Methodist church. His wife, Blanche, two sons, Earl and Leonard, and two daughters, Mrs. Ruth Rule and Mrs. Florence Woomey, survive.

Relatives who attended services for Mr. Wagner were Mr. and Mrs. David Dick, Mrs. Grace Barnard, Mr. and Mrs. Leo McQuillen and Mrs. Fred Cuppy. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cuppy and daughter, Pamela; Mrs. Glenn Swanger, Mrs. Dwight Kessy and daughters, Mary and Carol McDonald.

Mr. Wagner is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Barnard, Mrs. Dick and of Mrs. Fred Cuppy.

Services were conducted Monday at Bellefontaine for Mrs. Cassie Roams Henry, 27 High road, Shiloh, who died in Shelby Memorial hospital Saturday morning.

She was the mother of Mrs. A. G. Dent and grandmother of Mrs. Walter Steele, Mrs. Robert Rakasgraw, Mrs. Reinhold Seibitz, Mrs. Dean Moffett and Mrs. Kenneth Mumaw. Burial was in West Liberty cemetery.

Veteran fanciers of draft horses, Charles E. and George L. Myers, Shiloh, won top honors at the annual Richland county fair, the former in grade draft and two hitch classifications, the latter in four-hitch classification.

On Monday, the first day of vacation church school, there were 78 in attendance, including the play nursery. There were 18 teen-age helpers, 19 adult helpers and two pastors, the Rev. Dr. Leonard Reckhard and the Rev. David Genzler. A program is being planned for tomorrow at 8 p. m. in Mr. Hope Lutheran church.

Mrs. Hugh Boyce was hostess to the Franklin Art club Aug. 9, when 10 members and one guest attended.

Mrs. Hugh Boyce and daughter, Mrs. Harold Cobb, were in Warren Thursday to visit Mrs. Boyce's niece, Lucille Phelps, a patient in General hospital there.

Mrs. Doris Morgan, Pine Bluff, Ark., and Mrs. Cheryl Miller, Little Rock, Ark., arrived Sunday to spend several days with Mrs. Boyce.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Billingsley, Canton, were Sunday guests of Mrs. Boyce.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brumbach, Euclid, spent several days at the Leo Russell home last week. Mrs. Rudy Eblinger, Lorain, spent Thursday and Friday at the R. A. McBride home. On Sunday, Miss Hilda Eblinger and Mrs. Millie Sheehan, Lorain, were callers of the McBrides.

Robert Forsythe was honored Sunday with a birthday dinner at his home. Guests were his mother, Mrs. Ruth Forsythe; his daughter, Kay, Columbus; his son, Robert, Jr., and Mrs. Forsythe, Johnsville, and Mrs. Myrtle Sloan. Shiloh Firebeilles met Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Carolyn Seaman.

Nine members answered roll call by naming their favorite food.

It was voted to buy two more electric roasters and a large coffee urn. It was reported that a round $2,400 was netted at the ox roast.

A discussion on making a trip in the near future was held. Members will meet Sept. 7 with Mrs. Hazelman Sloan.

The hostess served a lunch including an anniversary cake, as this concludes the third year.

Hiring of two teachers fills staff, religious education approved by 3 to 1

Hiring of two teachers Monday night completed the faculty for the 1972-73 school year.

Plymouth Board of Education approved contracts for Mrs. Eliza Fugate, Shelby, to teach sixth grade science at Shiloh, and Miss Debra Chandler, Ashland, a recent graduate of Bowling Green State university, to teach high school English and journalism. Mrs. Fugate has a year of experience in Pioneer Joint Vocational school, Shelby.

Request of North Richland County Council of Christian Education filed by its president, Earl J. Huston, to continue religious instruction to pupils through the sixth grade was approved over the objection of President R. Harold Mack, who said the program is unlawful and "wastes the substance of what our churches are trying to do by themselves." The vote was three to one. Member Timothy Rook was absent.

Bid of David Insurance agency, only one received, to furnish liability coverage on all vehicles for $841.45, was accepted.

STATE LAW REQUIRES kindergarten pupils to be transported both to and from classes. Supt. John Fazzini was empowered to hire bus drivers to do so at $3 an hour. Mrs. Martha Moran was engaged as full-time kindergarten teacher. A total of 70 pupils who would normally attend Plymouth school have been entered in kindergarten, but only 37 at Shiloh. Some Plymouth pupils will be bused to Shiloh, Fazzini said.

Policy of granting advance leave to certificated personnel was adjusted from 10 days to five days, to comply with law.

Urging to impending confinement of Mrs. Don Beverly, cleaner in Plymouth Elementary school, Mrs. Marvin Smokey was hired as replacement.

Mrs. Jerry Kilgore, Don Beverly, D. D. Brumbach and Robert Guthrie were approved as substitute bus drivers. Cornelius Hale and Don Beverly were hired as substitute cleaners.

CAFEETERIA PRICES WERE CONTINUED, at 40 cents for elementary and junior high pupils, 50 cents for high school pupils and 65 cents for adults, but sandwiches were advanced five cents to 25 cents.

Mrs. Frank Fenner and Mrs. Elizabeth McClintock were approved as teachers in the Title I remedial reading program, on recommendation of the coordinator, Herman Workman, who was reengaged at $1,075. Mrs. C. David Rish was rehired as secretary at $440 and Mrs. Kenneth V. Myers as clerk for $220.

A change order submitted by Marr, Knapp & Crawford, Mansfield architects, deducts $2,920 from the contract to repair the roof of Plymouth Elementary school and to construct a new bus garage at Shiloh. Janotta & Herner, Monroeville, is the low bidder. Total contract is now $39,070.

On request of Mr. and Mrs. James Huston, Rome South road, their daughter, Mary Beth, will be allowed to finish her education in Crestview school district, provided there is no loss of revenue to Plymouth district. She is a 12th grader.

Mrs. Nellie Hall resigned as part-time cook in Shiloh cafeteria after 17 years of service. She will retire.

Something you hear often from a new car dealer is that with those used car dealers they never know where their cars come from or what they are. No more!
