Shiloh votes to purchase new ambulance

Purchase of a radio-equipped ambulance for $10,737 from Burgess Motors, Loudonville, was approved by Shiloh's village council July 25.

Bloomingsrove township trustees acquiesce, the ambulance will be put into service.

The mayor said she believes that it would be a wise move to consolidate the CD and the fire department, to obtain a more equitable situation, since all firemen are paid for their calls and practices while the CD are limited to four members paid for calls.

Councilman Edward O. Ramsey said members of the Boosters have asked if their trailer and dunker can be stored within the fenced area of the armory. The council agreed.

The council briefly discussed the pros and cons of the proposed peddlers' ordinance. The main problem is how to guarantee local persons can engage in a small home business while outsiders who come into the village periodically, pay substantial fees to do so.

Solicitor Robert A. McKown repeated again that the council cannot be discriminatory in how it handles the enforcement of such an ordinance once it is passed.

Picnic set

Auxiliary of Ehret-Parcell Post 447, American Legion, will conduct a family picnic Monday at 7 p. m. in Mary Fets park.

Each family is to bring its own picnic supply.

Appointees limited to locals

Civil defense and ambulance service duty won't be open to non-residents of the village, Plymouth or New Haven townships, village council ruled July 25.

From now on persons posting bond to avoid appearing in the mayor's court will pay the village court costs. Unlike surrounding communities, Plymouth has not been charging the court costs involved in processing violations if the bond was posted.

Councilman James L. Jacobs, Sr., moved that members of the Civilian Defense unit and the volunteer ambulance crew be limited to residents of the village, Plymouth and New Haven townships because of the distances involved.

The Voice of The Advertiser -

Salt, please!

Mr. Ramsey, as usual, is off base.

His charge that the mayor's statement that "the 1973 budget shows a more realistic representation of revenues than previously" is not accurate simply doesn't hold water, which even a blind man could see if he wished.

Item: Look at the emendations to the 1972 budget made by the Richland county auditor's office, showing very substantial reductions in anticipated revenues, so that the official request for known tax revenues conforms to reality.

Item: A non-recurring revenue of $3,000 was shown in the 1972 general fund budget that does not apply in 1973. There is a reasonable question whether such revenue ought not to go to the electric department, which earns it anyway.

Item: Revenues of a restricted charter -- earmarked by law for the fire department and for the park -- were shown in 1972 to be general fund items, whereas rightfully they are not and may not properly be spent for such purposes.

Item: Since the budget filed by law on July 20 is an "asker" budget at best, it follows that to show anticipated revenues in excess of the facts is self-defeating: the county budget commission would be out of its mind to appropriate money where it's not needed. Rather, an "honest" budget that sets forth the truth about revenues and reasonably authentic estimates of expenditures is more likely to obtain from the budget commission the additional allocation of funds that all municipalities need and Plymouth wants badly.

In matters relating to his profession, we take his word as gospel, because he has been a howling success at it for 40 years. But in matters relating to municipal finance, please pass the salt.

Son of Mrs. Coy succumbs at 53 at Shenandoah

Son of Mrs. Odessa Coy, Route 6, New Haven, Kenneth E. Coy, 53, Greenview route 2, died July 25 at his home of a lengthy illness.

Born in North Fairfield, he lived near Shenandoah 18 years. A veteran of World War II, he was formerly employed by Standard Tube Co., Shelby. He was a member of Shenandoah Christian church.

He is also survived by his wife, Olive; three daughters, Joyce, now Mrs. Fritz Ludwig, Hagerstown, Md., and Jane and Jill, at home; a son, Jon, Savannah, and two grandsons.

Sewer plan change rejected by council

Plans submitted by Eugene Gerken for the lateral sewer line in the northeast corner of the Square will be followed "to the letter", village council agreed unanimously Tuesday night.

Because of how the property lines and buildings lie, four easements are necessary to put in a lateral line which will serve Hopyroy's Gift Shop, The Advertiser, Millers' Hardware & Appliances, Nancy's Beauty Salon and McIntire's.

After meeting with Gerken last week, E. Bern Miller and Floyd Noble declined to sign easements. Miller said a 20-foot easement would prohibit his store from extending its building and suggested that he with the two businesses to the east jointly hook on to the lateral which will run down Portner street, and that the village run a line over Spring street to take care of the others.

Noble did not want to sign his easement because he thinks his property is not involved, although Huron court records show he owns more land into the present driveway in back of the various businesses than he thinks. If the engineering plans are changed because the easements are not signed, the council agreed, cost to the village would be higher. The proposed line stretching across Spring street to Portner would have to be of a greater depth in order to pick up lines running uphill from the buildings. It would also require several property owners to negotiate private easements among themselves. With the proposed engineering plans only two property owners will have to seek easement from the Millers in order to hook on to the village line. Mayor Elizabeth G. Paddock polled councilmen as to how the village should proceed.

Councilmen Hubert Jacobs, James L. Jacobs, Sr., Top Patron and Edward G. Ramsey agreed with Donald E. Akers that the original plans be followed in order to eliminate the problem of so many privately arranged easements.

Ramsey said the additional cost to the village to change the plans would be prohibitive. Jacobs said two storm sewers already run under the Miller building and the added line would not "change things much."

The easements will be sought promptly in the hope the village will not have to condemn any land for the lateral sewer line. Jacobs reported the new ambulance has been painted a brilliant red by Carl M. McPherson. He added the charge of $125 which McPherson offered to the village since "the ambulance is not of the grade of the two is a real bargain". McPherson washed the motor in addition to the painting. The council passed a resolution authorizing the clerk, Mrs. DeLores Baker, to borrow enough money from Peoples National bank to cover the Friday payroll if necessary. The mayor said she hopes there will be some tax money in before then. The village has received about $7,500 so far in 1972 with $4,500 deducted by the auditor so far for 1972. For the same period in 1971 the village received roughly $13,000 with only $1,900 deducted.

A request is to be made to the county auditor's office for an advance of tax money if none is forthcoming in the next few days.

Ramsey voiced his objections over heavy expenditures in the police department. He said he noted four on duty at the same time. Sgt. Robert Seal said only two were on duty at any time, but the others were present informally and had not formally reported for work.

Ramsey also complained that the village has so far in five months spent over $17,000 for police protection. He was pointed out that Police Chief Robert L. Meiser's salary is included although he is now on vacation time. The mayor said that Meiser told her he hopes to return to active duty later this month.

With August's dog days coming, try this about canines

By AUNT LIZ
 This timely article from the Ohio Historical society's monthly publication, "Echoes", is worth passing on. It is enjoyable and funny.

"Man's best friend is in trouble again. Manicured suburban lawns are the battleground, resounding to the yelps of countless canine breeds, their defenders and detractors. The fray is being taken into city council and state legislative chambers across the land as dogs are again in the headlines.

"Prehistoric man, perhaps as early as 5000 B.C., domesticated the dog. Remains have been found in Ohio which indicate that dogs were both the companion of and an item on the menu for the Indians, who after the meal used canine teeth as adornments.

"Ohio's first settlers invariably brought at least one dog with them on the mountain trek to serve as companion, hunting helper, playmate for the children, and sentry. But about the time of the War of 1812, valuable flocks of purebred merino sheep were imported into the state to enlarge the scope of the agricultural economy. Hungry dogs and sheep do not generally mix, and the famous dog war began. The controversy centered in the halls of the General Assembly.

"The first state law to be passed restricting man's best friend was enacted in Chillicothe in 1814. It provided that if any dog killed a sheep or lamb, the dog's owner was liable for the damages, and any farmer could kill a dog which was harassing his sheep. Since ownership was difficult to prove, the law did not arouse dog owners. But as the sheep and dog populations increased, a movement was launched by sheep farmers to tax dogs, both to limit their numbers and to provide revenue with which to indemnify owners of sheep whose flocks were being decimated.

"Bills introduced into virtually every legislative session aroused dog haters and lovers to heights of oratorical and literary effort that many did not dream they possessed. In defense of dogs, a Braceville Trumbull (Trumbull) County resident, Darwin Doge, penned in 1847 - as was not his custom - these lines as a letter to a farm journal editor:

"You have been saying so much lately about dogs being worthless, and doing me so much mischief, and ought to be taxed that I've got mad. You need tell me that dogs are worthless for I couldn't hardly live without mine, they ketch a great deal of game, and then I make a great deal a selling pups - and then they are so healthy for children to play with, and then nobody not nothing can come about me to steal anything day or night, and if any critters gets in my lots, or if any body elses dogs comes about my door they are sure to receive bodily damage. . . . What if they do kill some sheep, they dont eat em all up, and then they belong to rich owners, and if they kill fokes once in a while it aint much loss for we are over run with fokes now and game has got so scarce that poor fokes cant hardly live.

"And you want to have em taxed but you wont never get it done for some of the legislators keeps dogs and they wont do it. what make us pay twenty five cents or a dollar for every dog? It would ruin the state. I will take my gun and fire in blood up to my knees before I'll submit to it. . . . I wouldnt give one pint of postage for all the (news) papers youve got."

Dog detractors counter-attacked by citing sheep-killing statistics which by 1968 had reached more than 48,000 a year, with half again as many injured by dogs. That year the damage was done by some of the 184,102 Ohio dogs tallied by the secretary of state, Hamilton, which had the largest human population of any country, also claimed the most dogs - 5,744 - but the fewest sheep.

"In spite of feeble attempts by the General Assembly, dogs were not effectively taxed and sheep killing continued. Most Ohioans and their legislators wisely took the middle ground charted by Colonel John Johnston of Miami County near Piqua who counseled sheep growers to take better care of their flocks, pen them at night, and thereby enjoy the profits of the wool joy the profits of the wool industry and the companionship of dogs. By the end of the century the steam had gone out of the anti-dog movement. A James Thurber and a Will Rannels, both of Franklin County in recent decades, could extoll in cartoon and art the once maligned dog.

"But a new battle is now being waged. Those who pick their way gingerly through urban residential areas or who fastidiously remove debris from lawns are the new generation of dog antagonists. Neighbor is again pitted against neighbor as the war cry rings: "Kick my kids, but leave my dog alone." City councils pass with increasing frequency litter and leash laws designed to keep the peace. Humane societies and dog wardens are swamped with activity and the pet industry mushroomed, with some $3 billion worth of dog and cat food sold in the United States last year.

"As the howls and yips of highstreet breeds break the silence of suburbia and as litterers are sold for tax free income, the dog lover sticks by his right to own and enjoy his dog as a sentry in an age of increasing lawlessness, often as a hunter, and as a lovable companion. Odds are, the dog will ever be with us, as he always has."

It really works. Help it. Work.

Mrs. Moore, Mr. Marvin wed here

Mrs. Joanne Moore and Albert Marvin, Jr., were married Saturday at 1:30 p. m. in St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church by the Revs. Ronald F. Graham, pastor of First Evangelical Lutheran church, and Edward L. Ball, Most Sacred Heart seminary, Shelby.

The bride chose a short dress of turquoise dotted Swiss fashioned with long full sleeves. She wore a matching veil. Her flowers were turquoise daisies.

Her sister-in-law, Mrs. G. Thomas Moore, matron of honor, was attired in yellow, cut along princess lines with short sleeves. She wore a nosegay of white daisies.

After a reception in the church rooms, the couple left for Modesto, Cal., to visit the bride's daughters, Mrs. Susan Wilbur and Miss Cathy Moore.

You can learn all you want to know, and most of what you may need to know, about glaciers by visiting Glacier National park, in northern Montana.

To do so requires your presence and your curiosity. Anita Riedlinger, Plymouth High school pupil, who's touring the Northwest and Alaska with her parents, the Raymond Riedlingers, says glaciers are of three types: the cap glacier, which is on top of a mountain; the hanging glacier, which is attached to the side of a mountain, looks like it might fall but is the least likely to do so, and the valley glacier.

When the ice in the glacier melts in the spring, it forms a rille called a "mill stream". This cuts a ditch-like crack in the glacier and flows westward to the Pacific ocean.

In the winter, this freezes; the melted ice runs to the bottom of the ditch, gathers and freezes and a large-ea of ice called a "mill well" results. This must melt before the water can flow again in the spring.

There's never a glacier on both sides of a mountain. Larger glaciers move faster than small ones: the bigger ones inch along at 30 to 40 feet a year, the smaller ones at five to 10 feet a year.

COPYREADERS WILL go mad with this fine distinction: a crevas is a large crack in rock; a crevass is a large crack in ice.

Glacier park came into existence as the 10th national park, after Yellowstone (first in 1872), Yosemite, Mt. Rainier, Crater Lake, Petrified Forest, Grand Canyon, Grand Tetons, Olympic and Tetons, Olympic and Virgin Islands.

But it's been there a long time. Ripple marks left by water show the land is at least two million years old. Miss Riedlinger was fascinated by the flora of Glacier National park.

"The flowers must bloom in two months time here," she observes. "The lichen is a hearty plant and is the most common of all. Red Mountain heaths have needle-like leaves and a small surface so they hold down the loss of water and help prevent erosion. Carpet pink forms a thick crowded mat of plants that shield the rocks. He must have put them there because He meant for all His land to prosper!" She was equally taken

Double ring ceremony performed in New Washington

Joe Deskins, Shiloh, took Miss Evelyn White as his bride in St. John's Lutheran church, New Washington, July 15, in a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Ralph House in a setting of white gladioli, carnations and baby's breath lighted by two seven-branched candelabra.

Wedding Prayer", "Whither Thou Goest" and the benediction.

The bride wore white organza and Chantilly lace styled with Empire waist, high neckline and Dresden sleeves. The A-line skirt was full in back. cold and wind. Nannies have one or two kids a season. The babies are helpless for a few days, then totter after their mothers for meal calls. Mountain goats can go straight up a rocky cliff because their trotters are fashioned of heavy, horny outer shell with spongy protruding pads that adhere to the rock.

"Eagles eat kids when they can. They also eat ptarmigan. Alaska's state bird, which migrates here. The ptarmigan uses natural coloration to evade birds of prey and carnivorous animals; they're pure white in the winter and brown-speckled in the summer. They eat bugs, seeds and flowers. The chicks hatch in July, fly when they're 10 days old and are adults at eight weeks. Their bristly feathers extend over the back and serve as a sort of snowshoe, so they can flee from predators. Ptarmigan nests on the ground and won't leave the nest for any reason. The hen sits on the nest and stays fast."

The Plymouth traveler admits she never heard of Steven Tying Mather (July 4, 1867-Jan. 22, 1930) before her trip to the Northwest, but she's prepared to admit he is one of the legitimate heroes of America. It was he who founded the national parks system by defying and establishing policies for future generations to see.

"There will never be an end to his good," she observes.

Protection...

We once had a subscriber who had never lived in the town, did not know anyone in the town and had only been in the town several times in his life. He was interested in our town because an aunt had died and left him her home. He wanted to receive the paper to read the legal notices so that he could comply when his property was involved.

Yet some people living in the community completely ignore the only legal source of information on laws, which affect their lives, their pocketbook, their actions, and literally change their life in some respects from the cradle to the grave. This newspaper is the only legal source you have for obtaining that legal information which you can use to protect yourself.

State laws may be enforced by local police but an ordinance establishing a new village law cannot be enforced unless that ordinance has been published twice in this newspaper. A new tax levy or a renewal tax levy may not be placed on the ballot for your vote unless the amount of the tax, the length on time of enforcement and the use of the tax money are published in this newspaper. A township zoning ordinance or a village zoning ordinance cannot legally be enforced unless that complete ordinance, including a map, have been published in this paper. Often legal notice of hearings and public meetings must be published in this paper before actions at those meetings are legal. The village, township and school district are all required by law to publish their notices in this newspaper.

A newspaper must comply with numerous restrictions set forth in the Ohio Revised Code before it can meet the requirements for legal publications. For example a newspaper must publish editorials or it does not meet the requirements defining a newspaper and cannot be permitted to print legal notices. Even the charges to be made for publication are set by the State of Ohio.

Ignorance of the law is no excuse. That's why you should protect your interests by studying the legal notices which appear in this newspaper—they affect your life.
