The voice of The Advertiser -

On reflecting on the holiday

The distractions of Watergate, the pitiful efforts of the Cleveland Indians, the high sewer rate and such ought not to deflect our attentions from the national holiday that falls on Monday.

Even though it's a phony holiday, the result of some tinkering in the Cave of the Winds at Washington at the behest of the travel industry, it is officially the day when we reflect, or are supposed to reflect, on the sacrifices of those who gave their lives for the republic.

Let's face a few facts.

Nobody, absolutely nobody, except some damned fool in a storybook, ever laid down his life willingly. He may have done so bravely and without a whimper, for the good of the group, but he never did so willingly.

Nor does patriotism so require.

It would be haunting to go to Greenlawn cemetery Monday morning only to confront the ghosts of those military who lie there (and there aren't but a handful, not those who died in action, anyway) that, with finger pointed and eyes flashing, might say, "You soandso, you cheated me! I believed in the Grand Ideal and all I find is that I gave up what I had for less than Esau's lot." What it would do to you is your business; it would shake the living daylight out of us.

Odds are that instead of sober reflection upon the sacrifices of the war dead on Monday, more than half of us, and only some of them sober, will be out on the highways in another carnage that would beggar the Battle of Iwo Jima.

Some boys urged by doting mothers and fathers will engage in the Great American Pastime Monday afternoon. Any more, these matches are blood-thirsty battles between parents more than simple contests among boys.

A few veterans will turn out for the ceremony Monday and with aching heart and sore feet hoof it to the cemetery, out of step not only with the music of the parade but out of step with what's going on in the country. The Vietnam veteran is bitter because he can't find a job, and we don't blame him. The Korean veteran is bitter because he can't get a government insured house loan, and we don't blame him. The World War II veteran is bitter because prices are out of sight, and who can blame him? And the World War I veteran is bitter because inflation has robbed him of his birthright, and we don't blame him.

It will do none of us any harm to think of these things on Memorial Day. But what's more important, what do we propose to do about them?

'Fetch me a bushel of wind...'

Seventy-two hours after the tornado hit Willard, the telephone rang in the house of Harold Foraker.

"Did the man of the house buy a new car from a Willard company?"

Mrs. Foraker assured the inquirer that indeed her husband had done so, a yellow one, to boot.

"Well, the papers of the transaction are here in my hands in Wellington, Ohio, and you can have them if you get them."

The agency with which Foraker transacted his business was Cy Reed's Ford-Mercury Sales.

Other documents belonging to the agency, reports Lee Cavin, editor of the Seville Chronicle, in the edition of Friday, alleged in Mount Hill cemetery at Seville. And the Alvin Brauns-in-Lee road, Medina county, picked up sales slips of the agreement dating to 1965.

Willard is 45 miles as the crow flies from Seville.

Whether Reed wants or needs the documents blown to Wellington and Seville wasn't known at press time. Comment generally was that the afflicted had done a remarkable job of cleaning up the debris.

Joseph F. Lillo dies suddenly of heart attack

Joseph Francis Lillo, 52, a maintenance supervisor in the Fate-Root-Heath Co., died there unexpectedly May 14 of heart seizure.

He had earlier told friends in the village that he felt poorly.

A life resident of Willard, he had worked for F-R-H since 1940. He also operated a fresh produce business.

He was a communicant of St. Francis Xavier Roman Catholic church, Willard, and a member of F.O.Eagles and the VFW.

Only four hours before he died, he remarked to the editor of The Advertiser that he was a lucky man because he escaped injury during the Willard tornado. The two-year-old boy who was killed in the twister met his death in Lillo's establishment.

He is survived by his wife, Betty; two daughters, Mrs. Anita Hastings, Rock Island, Ill., and Debbie, at home; a son, James, Plymouth, three brothers, Tony, Willard, Louis, New Haven, and Frank, Shelby, and five sisters, Mrs. Ezra Elliott, in New Mexico; Mrs. Emmitt Hicks and Mrs. Arthur Hicks, both of Shelby, Mrs. Mary Barnhouse, Plymouth, and Mrs. Estill Rowe.

The Rev. James Risaacher was celebrant of the funeral mass from the church Thursday at 10 a. m.

Burial was in Maple Grove cemetery, New Haven township.

Village renews fire contracts

Fire contracts with Plymouth and New Haven townships were renewed by village council May 15.

On recommendation of a committee composed of Councilmen Donald E. Akers and James L. Jacobs, Sr., and Mayor Elizabeth G. Paddock, which met with the trustees of both townships, contracts will run for one year.

Plymouth township will pay a flat sum of $5,000 for 15 fires. Each fire over that number will be billed at $100.

New Haven township will pay $1,600 for the first four fires and $400 for each fire thereafter.

Jacobs suggested that some of this money be set aside for a new pump.

The committee said that where fires occur and how often make this an equitable arrangement.

Quentin Brown, owner and foreman of the company that will construct the lateral sewer system, said they hope to begin work by June 1.

The mayor will investigate legal technicalities that might prevent the village from selling gravel at the lagoon site for the construction company.

She and the council agreed that since the land belongs to the village, it is practical to use the gravel, thus aiding the sewer fund.

The mayor requested a statement be entered into the minutes concerning the tornado in Willard.

"The Village of Plymouth commends the police department, fire department, ambulance volunteers, village employees and the Fate-Root-Heath Co. who worked so tirelessly in helping with the Willard disaster. I sincerely feel that we did all we could to assist in the aftermath of the tornado. In the name of the village, I would like to thank our residents who offered places to stay, clothing and food."

Councilman Toy Patton is to investigate the cost of a portable generator for the police station. In the power shut down Thursday night, the village was unable to communicate except with the radio in the police cruiser. He will also study whether an old generator that the village owns may be used.

Sheriff John Borgia of Huron county has offered all cities and villages in the county a telephone answering service that would take the place of a local police dispatcher. Costs to the village for a special telephone system will be checked before approval is given.

Solicitor Robert A. McKown was directed to file suit in Shelby Municipal court to try to recover almost $700 in damages to the guard rail in Route 98. The insurance company handling the claim is being sued for a two-year limitation which has expired and the village no proper claim at the time. McKown feels the guard rail should be considered real estate, which has a four year limitation, rather than personal property.

The council heard a complaint from Mrs. Theodore L. Simmons, who stated her car was badly damaged when she drove in the alley behind Plymouth street. She asked the council to pay for the repairs. Her request was disallowed.

Two residents who have been served with notices to remove old vehicles under the village ordinance will appear in the mayor's court, since the 15-day period allowed has expired.

Jacobs will survey the village to see if the situation exists in other sections.

The mayor asked for suggestions as to how revenue sharing money should be spent.

Conserve Two Vital Resources... Water and Natural Gas... In Your Own Home.

How deep is your bath?
 How long is your shower? You'll save a lot of hot water by reducing the depth of your bath and the time of your shower. And you'll get just as clean.

When shaving,
 partially fill the basin with hot water, rather than let hot water go down the drain.

Load'em up. Automatic appliances, like your dishwasher and washer, use lots of hot water. Partial loads waste water and gas.

Need boiling water?
 Start with water from your hot water faucet. Part of the heating is already done. You'll save time. But cover your pan with a lid and do the job faster with less gas.

Stop that drip.
 A leak of one drop per second adds up to 550 gallons a year. When it's a hot water faucet, you're wasting water and gas.

New Appliances.
 Replacing your old gas water heater with a more efficient new one will also save gas. And you can replace with confidence, because if you now have gas in your home, you will continue to be supplied.

A maintenance tip.
 Drain a bucket of water from the faucet at the base of your water heater once a month. This prevents build-up of mineral deposits that cause your heater to use more gas. It will extend the life of your water heater, too.

And by saving gas and water, you'll also save another resource... money.

COLUMBIA GAS
 Gas is precious... pure energy... use it wisely.

age, nothing must be wasted. A few tidbits of this and that can make another meal with a good sauce. There are sauces and sauces, and some are better than others.

My favorite is Newburg, which was known as Wenburg when it was created by a chef for one of his pet customers. Then the chef worked at Mr. Wenburg and changed the name.

I don't know what happened to either man, but the sauce remains. If you can scrounge up about two cups of left-over chicken or turkey, it will make a good meal either on rice or fried noodles.

Saute a fourth of a cup of mushrooms (maybe you can find these in your favorite mushroom spot) in the same amount of butter. Cook just a little bit, then add the chicken, a fourth of a cup of sherry, salt and pepper. Cook slowly for a few minutes. Transfer it all to the top of a double boiler and add a cup of light cream. Just before you are ready to serve it, pour a little of the sauce into a bowl and beat three egg yolks into it. Add it to the mixture and stir until it thickens. BY NOW MOST COOKS have probably exhausted all ways of preparing ground meat. It is plain easy to mix up meat patties with a little onion and broil them, then pour some catsup on top and eat.

You can pretty them up with a sauce which sort of disguises them.

Prepare the patties and have them ready to broil. Cook three slices of bacon until almost crisp, drain and chop finely. Open a small can of mushrooms and have it ready in a sauce pan melt two tablespoons of butter and quickly stir in one and half tablespoons of flour. Add the juice of the meaty rooms and a cup of beef stock (you can use a beef cube for this). Cook slowly over low heat until it is a little thick. Add it mushrooms, bacon and a tablespoon of white wine vinegar.

Broil the patties, and serve with the sauce over each one and top with sprig of fluffly looking parsley.

Both these recipes take a little time to make, but it is the best therapy in the world so you can kind of forget all that is happening. Better than taking pills.

"...didn't even know she was married"

Well, she's married all right. You could have read about it a year ago on page six. Her wedding announcement was printed in the same newspaper that recorded her parents' wedding, her birth, her graduation, and now the beginning of another generation.

When each of these events took place they were duly noted and set down in permanent print in the continuing record of your community. From birth and death announcements to chronicling the mighty events of war and peace, newspapers have been printing the facts in America since pre-Colonial times. And if you believe that "printing the facts" is easy, you should sit in an editor's chair, sometime.

If it's in print it stays there. It can be checked and double-checked. It forms a permanent record. It's not chatter in the air, loose talk "... whose edge is sharper than the sword, whose tongue outvenoms all the worms of Nile, whose breath rides on the posting winds..." as Shakespeare put it. You may take this service lightly. You should live, then, in a community without a newspaper. You would probably find that, without the modifying force of printed news, the winds of slander and controversy would be blowing pretty hard.
