

The Voice of The Advertiser —

On leadership

It is time to reflect on leadership.

Elsewhere in The Advertiser today there are photographs of young men who have been singled out for one sort of excellence. There are six of them. They deserve our admiration and respect.

We are always happier to publish pleasant news than unpleasant news. But the way life is, the unpleasant must, unfortunately, also be exposed.

In the season when we are preparing to offer up our thanks to Him who has provided so amply for us, in accordance with our national custom, it strikes us as appropriate to commend the leadership of him whose photograph heads these columns.

He has done well. He is a great credit to his family, to his church, to his school, to his employer, to his charges.

He was taught well. Ask around his home town and you'll find that his parents were strict but fair. He took his lumps on the team his father coached and got no better and certainly no worse than any boy on the squad.

It is whose concepts that move us. At the beginning of the season, there was a major crisis in personnel. Mike McFarren handled it like a man. His team and everyone involved with it, including the unlucky player, are the better for it.

There were times during what turned out to be a successful season when the Plymouth team did not play well. Who took the blame? Mike McFarren took the blame. And when it played extremely well, who took the credit? Not Mike McFarren. "I've got some good boys out there and they deserve all the good fortune that happens to them," is what he told us in mid-season.

The career he has chosen won't make him rich in dollars and cents. But the rewards that fall to him from leading such young men as are today honored can't be measured in dollars and cents. He is richer than any of us. He knows how to lead. He leads by example.

Leadership can't survive in an atmosphere of distrust, anger, envy or unwillingness to acknowledge talent. Mike McFarren is living proof of it. And there's an important lesson for all of us to learn from it.

11 seeking to join sewers

Only 11 applications to connect to the sanitary sewer system have been received by Raymond L. Brooks, village clerk-treasurer, since the council accepted the system during a recessed meeting Oct. 24.

Villagers have until Nov. 1, 1980, to make connections.

Arthur to quit Jan. 1

John M. Arthur, 72, will retire Jan. 1 as treasurer of Huron county.

He says failing eyesight, his age, and a desire to spend more time with his family are the reasons why he will quit.

He became treasurer in January, 1973, by appointment to succeed Harold Collier, who had been treasurer for over 30 years. Arthur ran for the office in a special election in November, 1973, and was elected for a full term in November of 1976.

An interim treasurer will be appointed by the commissioners to serve for not more than 15 days, while the Republican central committee considers whom to nominate to succeed Arthur.

Ex-villager in new post

What is status of village funds?

The woman mayor, four councilmen and the clerk-treasurer of the Village of Blanchester resigned en masse after the Nov. 7 general election because they were dissatisfied with the results of the election, in which a charter commission was dictated and some tax funds were rejected.

Their common statement to the press was, "We'll be $30,000 in the red by the end of the year."

There are no signs that Plymouth's woman mayor, four councilmen and the clerk-treasurer are about to resign at next Tuesday's council meeting but the end-of-month statement submitted to the council Nov. 7 by Raymond L. Brooks, clerk-treasurer, has some startling facts.

Fact: The electric operation and maintenance account was $29,763.25 in the red.

Fact: The ambulance fund was $5,511.45 in the red.

Fact: The safety fund was $44,559.51 in the red.

Fact: The street fund was $1,354.45 in the red.

Fact: The water operation and maintenance fund was $14,856.71 in the red.

Brooks says he does not anticipate the receipt of any major amount of funds from the Richland county auditor for the remainder of the year.

And what makes the situation even more precarious is that the village owes First National Bank of Mansfield $15,000 on demand note money borrowed to benefit the general fund, with no sign of any opportunity to pay it.

Why are the funds in the red? For one thing, there hasn't been an appropriations ordinance passed for this year.

Ohio law and custom require that an appropriations ordinance shall be the first order of business of a village council in the first meeting of the new year.

WHY WASN'T IT DONE? It wasn't done because the council's hands were tied. How were they tied?

Because the then auditor had not transmitted to the village the certified copy of the action of the budget commission, which consists of the auditor, the treasurer and the pro-securator of the common pleas, notifying the village how much it could anticipate in the way of revenue to meet expenses during 1979.

When did the village receive this certified copy?

In August. Why hasn't the council acted before this?

The new clerk was relatively inexperienced with these matters and needed time to "read into" the procedure. When he came up with a draft appropriations ordinance, councilmen David and Ervin Howard objected to it, said it wasn't in line with receipts.

How much did the budget commission approve for Plymouth?

For the general fund, $58,384.47.

For the electric fund, $206,250.

For the revenue sharing fund, $9,800.

For the highway improvement fund (limited to state highways), $1,600.

For the street construction, maintenance and repair fund, $17,000.

For the water revenue fund, $52,000.

So if the council on Tuesday approved these funds, where do we stand?

With balances as reported of Oct. 31, and red ink as reported that date, the village is probably well over the $58,384.47 allocated for the general fund and the $15,000 plus interest is outstanding.

The key to it all is the general fund, from which expenses of the police department, the village hall, the salaries of the mayor and councilmen, part of the salary of the clerk, part of the salary of the administrator and other important expenses are taken.

What was the total amount allowed the village by the budget commission for operations during 1978?

The figure is $969,672.91.

Of this amount, $409,806 was unencumbered balance as reported by the clerk on Jan. 1, 1978. Property tax accounts for $77,517.91. Local government allocation amounts to $13,000. Classified property tax contributes $600. Other revenue sources - and there are many - amount to $468,750, of which half, or nearly so - $230,750 - is anticipated electric fund revenue. Another $95,000 is sewer utility revenue. And $46,500 is water revenue.

The monthly report filed by the clerk is a copy of that which clerks have used since time immemorial.

It consists of four columns beginning balance, receipts, disbursements and ending balance. What it does not tell the perceptive councilman or citizen who may be interested is whether the appropriations are under or over spent. Ohio law forbids a municipality to spend funds that are not appropriated.

If cuts are to be made, where can they be made?

This is what councilmen are supposed to do - they're chosen to make policy decisions. Can they risk cutting the police department? Only recently, when a police captain resigned the CETA office in Norwalk insisted that an officer up to then paid with CETA funds be put on the village payroll, despite the intention of the mayor to "squirrel" that salary and bring safety fund expenses in line with revenues.

How bad is the fiscal situation?

Leaving aside the $15,000 plus interest owed to the bank, not all that bad. The village is short about six weeks of expenses to make the end of the year. Ideally, all funds should be closed on Dec. 31 with zero balance and fresh funds should be on hand as of Jan. 1. But it doesn't work that way.

If that was so, why did the council raise salaries?

Because the pressure was on from the employees, who hadn't had a raise in two years.

How did the council expect to meet the additional cost of salaries?

Councilman Ervin Howard "By being more efficient in the spending of what money we have we expect to save enough to meet the additional salaries."

The raises for electric, sewer and water employees are funded by revenues of those departments. Raises for safety and cemetery employees are funded by the general fund, it being clear that the cemetery levy does not raise enough to pay for operation of the cemetery.

WHAT'S THE COMPLAINT against Brooks' appropriations ordinance?

The appropriation for the police department, for example, is $83,570 which is $5,175, 53 more than the budget commission has allocated for the entire general fund.

The appropriation for the fire department is $38,650 which is $27,756.08 more than what the budget commission has earmarked for the fire fund.

The appropriation for street repairing is $21,000 which is $9,000 more than what the budget commission says will be available.

Boy hurt in crash

A 16-year-old Plymouth boy was treated and released at Mansfield General hospital Nov. 5 after his car overturned in a field near Routes 39 and 511 about two miles north of Ashtabula.

Raymond H. Hughes, Jr., who lives in Brooks court, lost control of his car, headed east, while rounding a curve it excessive speed. The car went off the road, overturned and came to rest on its wheels.

A Richland county sheriff's deputy was treated and released at Mansfield General hospital Nov. 4 after his motorcycle left Route 603 near Planktown, went into gravel at the side of the road, skidded 131 feet, upset and slid another 121 feet.

The rider, Frank E. Fitzhugh, 35, was thrown from the motorcycle at 60 p. m.

Bank declares stock dividend for 16th year

A five per cent stock dividend, effective at once, was ordered Nov. 8 by the board of directors of First National Bank of Mansfield.

Payment of the dividend is subject to approval by the Comptroller of the Currency. However, bank officials expect approval so the additional shares can be mailed to shareholders by Dec. 5. The dividend will be payable to shareholders of record Nov. 27.

Each shareholder will receive one additional share for each twenty shares held as of Nov. 27. No fractional shares will be issued. Each shareholder entitled to a fraction will receive the cash equivalent of the fraction based upon the current market value.

This is the 16th consecutive year the First National directors have declared a stock dividend.

Avery C. Hand, Jr., president of the bank, said, "The distribution of stock to our present shareholders constitutes a strengthening of capital stock without the dilution of individual ownership. The dividend represents 56,828 new shares of stock, which will bring our total number of shares outstanding to 1,193,383. There are 2,293 shareholders participating in the divi-

Here's recipe for dressing that's novel, inexpensive

By AUNT LIZ

No one has ever made a national survey that I am aware of on what to stuff a turkey with. Someone really missed the boat on this because it should be of utmost interest to every cook.

A gathering up of everyone's pet recipe would really make a good sized book, and that also does not exist, so far as I know. Come to think of it, it would be a fine project for a local club to do and I bet it would sell like mad nationally. This idea is being offered "free" because I am not doing it. I am too busy on a book of my own. I probably the only people who will read it will be our children and those who get free copies, but it is fun.

Back to stuffings. Every turkey deserves it, and so does every turkey eater.

Perhaps you know this one in one form or another. Start with some package corn bread (if you are really ambitious, you can make your own, but his is an easy way out) and make enough which will result in four cups when crumbled.

After that is done, melt four tablespoons of butter in a skillet and add two cups of finely chopped onion, one cup of finely chopped green pepper, and a half cup of finely chopped celery.

Cook while stirring until they are crispy tender. Remove from the stove.

If you are really efficient, you will cut all these things up the day before and stash them away in your refrigerator. It can take hours to do such fine cutting. Toast three slices of bread until rather crisp. Break them up in a bowl with the corn bread and two rather coarsely chopped hardboiled eggs, then add this to the vegetable mixture. Season with salt and pepper, add a half cup of canned chicken broth and throw in three raw eggs. At this point, more pepper. You have to guess at this. Don't worry about getting too much into it all because the heat takes a lot of the flavor away.

Notice that this has no eggs. For years I have believed that every turkey needed some, so I always throw it in. That is up to you. I have even thrown it in illegally where I did a bird for public eating and no one has ever said a word. Just like I truly believe that every mince pie should have a little brandy and it was all gaily consumed. It is very hard to change an old dog's habits.

There is one thing about cooking a turkey: it stays put in the oven which gives you time to do something about vegetable tables.

This works for either small zucchinis or an eggplant (find smallish ones). Cut the end off, do not peel, cut into quarters, then quarter each one. Do not salt them, but let them sit on a paper towel.

Make a batter of one and half cups of flour and one and half cups of beer at room temperature. Mix together, and let it sit for three hours. The beer does something to the flour and you end up with a nice batter; only a chemist can describe this one.

Dip the vegetables in the batter, and deep fry as much as your pan can hold. Stash in the oven to keep warm until you are ready to serve it.

Another thing which goes nicely with a happy, plump bird is cranberry sherbet. What is nice is that it can be made a few hours ahead.

Start with boiling a quart of cranberries in one and three fourths cups of water until they are soft. Strain the juice and put the berries through a sieve. Then add one and three cups of sugar and one cup of water to it. Boil for five minutes.

While they are cooking, soak two teaspoons of unflavored gelatin in a fourth of a cup of water, then add it. Chill it all until it is beginning to solidify.

When that is done, bring it out and in a chilled bowl, whip it all until it is fluffy. In another bowl, beat two egg whites with a speck of salt until they are fluffy and fold them gently into the other mixture.

Center

Mike Wheeler, 12th grader, won honorable mention by JAC coaches for play as offensive center in Big Red line that contributed to a 7-and-3 season.

Red to face Eagles here

"Bigger but not so quick as last year" is a capsule summary of Plymouth's 1978-79 basketball squad that opens an 18-game slate against a weak Monroeville team here Wednesday night.

Couch Keith Diebler is nevertheless optimistic that his team will do better than last season.

He has his work cut out for him.

Clear Fork returns most of a squad that participated in the regional tourney last year. Lexington is as tough as usual. Plymouth can't expect any bed of roses in Johnny Applesseed conference play.

This was a league that was organized by the then Plymouth coach, Harold E. Daup, to be a basketball league. Plymouth has won the championship just once. It can hardly be expected to do so this year.

The Big Red met Tiffin Walcott, which has an extraordinary big man, on the Sandusky street courts. Some of his candidates were occupied with football and indeed four of the first eight have but lately come over from the grid squad.

As matters stand now, Diebler is likely to start Jeff Ream, an 11th grader and letterman, Randy Neeley, who has come on strongly; Ron Schuller, Terry Tash and Mike Berberick.

The sixth man will be Jerry Wheeler.

Jim Wallace is No. 7. And a newcomer, one of the tallest players on the squad, Harvey Robinson is likely to be No. 8.

As for the other four places on the traveling squad, Diebler wants to wait until all the facts are in.

Debutless, last night's scrimmage and Friday's JAC preview, which will be played here, in Plymouth's last year in the league, will throw some more light on the personnel. Diebler thinks his program "is about to turn the corner, we're coming along pretty much as I planned it and give us some time and be patient with us and we'll be respectable if not champions."

The schedule is tough. Potent Dalton replaces Mapleton and Plymouth has home-and-home games with Lucas and Buckeye Central.

Big Red 16th by computer

Monroeville's Eagles capped their first undefeated season, albeit tied once, by placing sixth in the final computerized standings among Class A teams in Region 9.

New London, victim of Monroeville in a thriller, placed 13th. Plymouth was 16th, Black River 24th, South Central 27th, Cresview 28th, Western Reserve 32nd, St. Paul's tied for 47th, Mapleton 49th and last.

Among Class AA teams, Loudonville's undefeated Redbirds, winners of 10 straight, placed seventh in Region 6. Clear Fork was ninth, Edison 24th, Ontario 63rd.

Lexington, the only Class AAA team in the Firelands and Johnny Applesseed conferences, was tied for 62nd and last in Region 2.
