Two teachers to retire, four others quit system

Two veteran teachers will retire from the Plymouth system in June.

Plymouth Board of Education accepted their resignations Monday night.

They are Mrs. Harold Cobb, Plymouth Elementary school, and Miss Elizabeth M. Kinsel, Shiloh Elementary school.

Mrs. Cobb has taught 29 years. Miss Kinsel has taught 25 years.

Resignations of four other teachers were also accepted.

Michael McFarren, the successful football coach who has already resigned that post, will retire from teaching to enter private business. He is a high school science teacher.

Miss Rebecca Archer, high school business education teacher, Allen G. Swank, high school social studies teacher, and Mrs. David Dunn, Shiloh Elementary school instructor, who has been on maternity leave, also resigned.

The board of education expressed its informal opposition to House bill 251, which would allow the hiring of non-certified persons to coach athletics.

Fazzini said four teachers want to be relieved of coaching duties "because it hurts their teaching obligations." He expressed mixed feelings about the proposal. Federal law, he said, requires that where boys are offered the opportunity to compete in a given sport, the same sport should be offered to girls unless, as in football, it is patently impossible, where upon a suitable substitute must be offered. Plymouth may be required to eliminate some sports if it cannot find teachers willing and able to coach them. Fazzini said he thinks that if a board should hire a non-certified person, he should have a strong educational background. He said he believes the bill will be passed, despite his personal opposition to it.

The last time that Plymouth had such a situation was during World War II, when H. James Root, an alumnus, volunteered to coach the basketball team.

Another bill before the General Assembly would require that school board treasurers have baccalaureate degrees in related fields. None of the board endorsed the measure.

Dr. Allan Raymond, representing Friends of Kids, asked the board if the school has a policy about volunteer assistance. Fazzini told him there is such a policy laid down by the county board of education. Raymond will be given a copy.

Whether to alter building plans at Shiloh was suggested by the architect, James Crawford, Mansfield. At question is whether the front of the existing building should be broken in, at a cost of $7,810. This would save on maintenance, he said, and present a better appearance. It was agreed that some windows, such as in the all-purpose room, shall be left exposed. Crawford will come to the next meeting with more detailed plans.

Fazzini said about 30 persons have shown interest in being hired as football coach. The applications will be screened so the board may interview five or six of the best candidates.

Text book and social studies were adopted Principal Mark E. Sheely, Plymouth Elementary school, said some texts were prepared in 1982 and are out of date. He added some teachers have texts and are preparing their own lessons.

No funds will be available next year for elementary school counseling. Accordingly, Miss Suzanne Farrar will revert to her regular teaching assignment.

Application will be made to the state department of education for funds to pay for a new school bus.

Varsity track and field squad was authorized to compete in an indoor meet at Ashland college on Mar. 28.

Fazzini suggested raising the mileage allowance from 15 to 20 cents a mile and asked the board to think about it before action is taken at the next meeting.

Board members heard Mrs.

Daniel M. Henry explain the work-study program, which she supervises here and also in the Lexington and Crestview districts.

She explained what is being done in cooperation with the CETA program and the federal funding.

Board president, Mrs. Roger Pugh, has called a special meeting for Tuesday at 7 p.m. for the processing of grievance III in the negotiations with the teachers.

Robber shoots ex-resident

A 64-year-old former Plymouth resident was shot by an armed robber in his place of business near Sandusky early Sunday morning.

John Hass, manager of the L.K. motel at 3309 Milan road, was rushed to Sandusky Memorial hospital with a single bullet wound in the abdomen. He was in surgery for several hours before doctors said he will recover.

Hass was shot by a black man, described as being in his early twenties, of average height and build, wearing a green Army jacket and stocking cap, who rang the bell of the motel shortly before midnight Saturday. Hass had retired for the night into had retired for the night into the apartment adjoining the office, which he occupies with his wife. He responded to the bell in his pajamas and robe and admitted the caller to the office.

The man completed a registration form and paid for a room. Hass put the money in the cash register.

Sales permit of Bob's Cafe suspended

Permit to sell alcoholic beverages of Bob's Cafe, 8 East Main street, has been suspended for three days, starting Apr. 6 at noon and extending through Apr. 9 at noon, upon conviction by the liquor control commission of sale of malt liquor to a person under 21 and delivery of malt liquor to said person on July 28, 1978.

whereupon the man produced a call of 22 handgun and announced a holdup.

Hass said he did not offer resistance but stepped back from the register. The robber scooped up the cash, estimated to be about $61, leaving coins where they were. Then, as he was leaving, he turned and fired a single shot at Hass, striking him just above the navel.

Then he ran out of the door, taking his registration form with him.

Mrs. Hass, meanwhile, having heard the shot, rushed to the office and found her husband.

Perkins township police are searching for the robber.

Kin of Butners dies at Willard

Mother of Mrs. Charles O. Butner, Mrs. Ella Schuster, 82, died Saturday night in Willard Area hospital.

She had been in failing health for several months. Most of her life was spent in St. Clairsville, where she was a member of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church.

She is also survived by two sons, John, pastor, and William, Denver, Colo., 14 grandchildren, four step-grandchildren and 21 great-grandchildren.

John Shuster, died in 1971.

A funeral mass was said in her church Tuesday morning and burial was in Union cemetery, St. Clairsville 11.

Boys' basketball five years old, bearing fruit

A program that began here in 1974 with a borrowed basketball and the enthusiasm of its organizer is beginning to produce fruit of the interscholastic level.

And the organizer, Kenneth G. Kelley, who lives in Kuhn road south of here, says it succeeds because "I believe in the coach being fair to the players and I insist that all boys know that."

He calls it the Viking program. There are two teams, one comprised of sixth graders, one of fifth graders. The teams average 40 games a year in league play, scrimmages and tournaments, such as that which began here Mar. 5, sponsored by the Band Parents.

The borrowed basketball belonged to Kelley's son, Kenneth, now a soldier in Alaska. Individual merchants bought uniforms, which were issued to players. Because the teams are now all-star teams, with boys living elsewhere than in Plymouth, merchants in Willard and Shelby are solicited for financial assistance.

"The first year all our players were from Plymouth. We had 25 girls who turned out to be cheerleaders and 12 boys who tried out for the sixth grade team," Kelley says.

"We played at Friendly House in Mansfield, where I played as a kid, and we won five games. We played teams from Lexington and Madison combined, and these boys had had four years of experience playing together. I could see that to be competitive we needed outside help and a fifth grade feeder team."

Scott turned into a family project. Young Kelley, who was then on the high school squad, coached the fifth graders. His sister, Debbie, a high school cheerleader, coached the cheerleaders.

And Kelley pere was in charge of the sixth graders, an assignment he still holds. The teams were entered in the Friendly House league, an all-star league with open recruiting save for St. Peter's, which plays its boys only.

"Since we started this system," the coach says, "we've been getting about two outstanding players from Plymouth each year. But interest is very high. For example, we've got one boy who lives in Ashland. His father has been bringing him to practices for four years and they never miss a practice. I've been told by athletic directors at Friendly House and in the John Sherman tournament that the Vikings have more followers than any team that has participated before."

"Why, in the first year, Lonnie Ebersole and I would load up 20 players and cheerleaders and head for Mansfield. Now I ride alone."

Over the past five years, 75 boys and 35 cheerleaders have participated in the Viking program.

Some of them were outstanding players. The late Robert Brown from Shiloh and Keith McKinney from Willard are "the two best players I ever had," Kelley swears.

"If the coach is fair with the boys, if he gives them a chance to play, regardless of the score, they'll be loyal to him and to the program. I'm proud of the success we've had but I'm prouder of the fact that in five years, only one boy has quit. All the boys work hard because they know they'll get to play in every game, except before the championship game."

When young Kelley left home to join the Army, his father had to recruit successor coaches.

He found two dillies in Willie Babione and Dave

Hall. Babione came out of Fremont, where he starred for St. Joseph's High school. He was graduated there in 1964 as all-conference and all-district player. He went to the University of Toledo, was all-Mid American conference choice in 1967, and the Rockets went 23 and 2, and was chosen captain of the team for the 1968 season, when it finished 18 and 6.

From 1971 to 1972, Babione played with the New Jersey Reds, professional team that furnishes the opposition for the Harlem Globetrotters in their peregrinations across the country. The next year he played in the Continental league with the Toledo Pipers.

Babione was drafted in 1968 by the Oakland Oaks, in the now defunct American Basketball association. He was in the training camp of the Chicago Bulls.

Now married and a father of a boy who shows signs of becoming both an outstanding golfer as well as basketball player, Babione is enrolled in Ohio State university to complete a degree in education so he can teach and coach in high school.

His opposite number, Hall, played with the Wayland Wasps, Wayland, Ky., and Stella, where he graduated in 1963.

What kind of a record does this braintrust have?

"In three years we've won a total of 71 games and lost eight. Four of those defeats were by two points. We won the Friendly House league once - knock on wood, we're trying to repeat this year - and we've won four tournaments."

What does all this cost, in time and money?

The program begins in September and ends in March. Count an average of four hours a week for adult volunteers. Count 29 weeks. Three times four times 29 is 348 hours of volunteer service.

Cost of entry fees, equipment and such is $600 or so, which is offset by the solicitation of volunteer contributors.

This all boils down to $15.38 a child a year, or 53 cents a week.

On this testimony, Ken Kelley rests his case.

A directed verdict in favor of affiant seems assured.

Taylor charges paper with 'negative attitude'

A report by Donald Vanderpool, head of the ambulance service, to village council Mar. 6 touched off an attack by councilman Michael Taylor on The Advertiser.

After Vanderpool had said "Plymouth is fortunate that it has such a well-run service, technically and economically, compared to what I saw in Florida," Taylor said he welcomed Vanderpool's remarks. Then he observed "there is too much of a negative attitude in the community and most of it comes from The Advertiser."

Mayor Elizabeth G. Paddock, toward whom the slur was directed, objected. She said she has always tried, in every formal and informal way, the local ambulance service is without comparison anywhere. "And so in the fire department," she added, "Solicitor Robert A. McKown also held forth for a time."

Administrator James C. Root requested 62 hours of overtime, which he has accumulated since he took over the position. It was agreed with the request he turn in any emergency overtime for each payroll period.

The solicitor is to call Eugene C. Gerken, sanitary sewer engineer, concerning his estimate of additional costs for the sewer system of $162,729.18.

McKown questioned several items Gerken included in his detailed account of the sewer construction.

Gerken also stated in his report there is a sum of about $20,000 in claims against the insurance company of Owen Alderman & Co. Inc., to be settled and that costs of $8,500 he has incurred for legal fees during the litigation should be included in reimbursement when a settlement is made.

At the request of Councilman Ervin Howard the village administrator, to help with some approximate figures for repaving streets.

The cost of the Square from Route 61 to the bridge will be $15,283, from the bridge to where the concrete steps at an incline in West Broadway, $24,900, an area in Riggs street to Plymouth Locomotive Works area, $1,972, West High street, which carries undue heavy trucks, $7,238, and the area of West High and Bell streets, $1,338.

The totals are $51,231, which can be reduced to about $47,000, road said, with various discounts allowable in the work.

At the suggestion of the mayor, the clerk was authorized to write to the First National Bank of Mansfield requesting the properties it has purchased be blacktopped and local parking be permitted.

What of new shopping malls? How does small town cope?

By AUNT LIZ

All of us sit around and try to figure out how to keep a small community going: provide parking which brings in customers and ultimately brings in more tax money.

It is kind of a losing battle. Every community within a 40-mile radius of us is having the same problem, and some are not exactly villages; they have populations up to 20,000 or so.

Last week really did it to the whole area. A Cleveland store opened in Sandusky. We already have Richland Mall, which has taken its toll from local business.

What is going to happen is the battle between the two malls.

I sat across the table at a luncheon the other day from a lovely lady and she simply said one was better than the other. Which one, I do not think I should say. But one shopping mall is going to lose to the other, while meanwhile the local businesses lose to both.

Granted, we all must visit a mall for certain things we cannot find locally, but how do we all look for the things which are readily available at home? Part of it is laziness, and no one really looks.

A long time ago I saw this coming and figured the best way a small community could survive was with good housing and good people who worked some other place — and that is exactly what is happening to us. A nice part-time business can survive nicely so long as it is not the sole income of a family, except for some major businesses which each community must have. I will use a good grocery store as an example.

Still we have people who do their grocery shopping elsewhere. Sure, they get a thing or two cheaper, but add up the gas it takes to get there and how much have you saved? I am very guilty of this because I might want an odd-ball thing that is simply not available locally, like chutney. I also know that the beef and chicken cubes I like are not here, which means I jaunt to the city, I can find them.

What it all boils down to is that our little communities are not doing too well and will continue along this line until all the people pitch in and support it all.

There is one big catch to it all.

As businesses go downhill and there is less tax revenue in a community to pay for essential services, somehow the moola has to come from some place. And where is that? It is all of us.

This could most likely be developed into some kind of a thesis for a graduate student. What happens to a small town with two good shopping malls within less than an hour's driving time?

Those large chains found a real market and the small communities have the burden and if anyone can come up with an answer to it, I would welcome it. Officials in our village can yip by the hour about improving the community, and this I do listen to, but I always want to ask "Where does your wife do her major shopping?" But being chicken, I do not.

And speaking of chickens, they are in style right now.

Chicks are very versatile. Ask one, and he or she will say no we are not — we want to survive. They do not want the reputation.

Try this:

Start with about a three pound bird. Cut in serving-size pieces. Dredge it in flour which is nicely seasoned with salt and pepper. Brown it nicely in whatever you brown with. Put it into a casserole.

To this you add about a half cup of sliced mushrooms with a cup each of sour cream and of water and a fourth of a teaspoon of thyme. Pour it
