The Voice of The Advertiser —

On Monday —

Plymouth will pause Monday to pay tribute to those who gave their lives in defense of the republic.

There aren't very many of them, truth to tell, and there are even fewer interred here. Which is not by any means to say that their contribution was any the less important. Nor to imply that their families and loved ones miss them any the less.

The point is that hardly anybody cares. The time and effort and some money of the sponsoring organization are principally expended on the observance in Greenlawn cemetery. Taking the last 10 years as an example, if you omit those who marched in the parade — the high school musicians, the handful of veterans, come children on bicycles, the Boy and Girl Scouts and Brownies and Cubs, the Midget leaguers and a few who ride caparisoned ponies — the number of persons at the observance would scarcely be enough to play four tables of bridge.

It has ever been thus. In 1934, for example, our predecessor railed editorially that No repeat No Memorial day observance took place in Plymouth that year.

From time to time over the past quarter century, we've heard some citizens carp and complain that the grass wasn't mowed or the hedges weren't trimmed. But not a single one of these complaints was laid on the grounds that it was a deceased soldier, let alone one who fell in combat or who died while on active service, whose grave was not tidy.

Monday is Memorial day and it is a military observance. That others may wish to seize the opportunity to pay their respects to civilian dead is perfectly acceptable. But it is the day of the soldiers' and sailors' and marines' and coast guardsmen's widows and orphans and families. Visitations to the graves of the men who fell, or who died while on active service, ought to be the duty of each of us.

Those who stand at the roadside and watch the parade ought to remember why the parade is formed: it is a solemn procession to the cenotaph to pay tribute to those, here and elsewhere, who paid the supreme sacrifice, who in dying showed the greatest act of love. For as it says in John 15:13, "Greater love has no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

A native of New Haven, Fern M. Palmer, 79, Norwalk, died in Gaymont Nursing home there Monday of a brief illness.

A Plymouth High school alumnus and a teacher in Plymouth schools were among 19 graduate students to receive advanced degrees from Ashland college Sunday.

Mrs. Dana Call dead at 83 at Willard

Widow of Dana W. Call, for many years clerk of Huron county court of common pleas, Mrs. Edna Ries Call, 83, died Saturday in Willard Area hospital.

She was in failing health for a long time. Born in New London, she lived most of her life in and near Norwalk.

She was a member of First United Methodist church in Norwalk and of its Branch Phelathia class. She was a member of the OES.

She is survived by a son, George S. Dayton, a daughter, Ruth, now Mrs. Joseph F. Dush, Willard; two granddaughters and a step-grandson, eight great-grandchildren and three step-great-grandchildren.

A son, Norman D., and a great-grandson died earlier.

The Rev. Richard Bower conducted services at Willard Tuesday at 1 p.m. Burial was in Grove Street cemetery, New London.

Youth hurt in crash Saturday

Excessive speed caused a two-car collision Saturday at 4:35 p.m. at Plymouth street and Springmill road.

Frank R. Garber, who was southbound in Springmill road, was hit by a motorcycle driven by Betty A. White, Willard, going north.

White was thrown from his vehicle and taken to Willard Area hospital by the Plymouth ambulance for treatment.

Gen Tel Co. reports expansion

Installation of additional call-switching equipment for growth in the Plymouth exchange has been completed. General Telephone Co. of Ohio announces.

Charles T. Winn, Norwalk, customer service manager, says the project was engineered to meet present and future growth here.

"Equipment for 200 additional customer lines and terminals for 200 more telephone numbers is now ready for customer use," Winn says.

Based on past growth and forecasts for the next few years, the call-switching equipment should be sufficient until 1984, Winn notes.

The manager says equipment also was added for a 33 percent increase in trunk (calling paths) for handling direct-distance dialed calls from the exchange.

Assailant sentenced

A 21-year-old Sandusky man shot John Hass, 64, Plymouth, in the L.K. motel in Perkins township near Sandusky May 10 won't be prosecuted on the charge, which was dropped.

Instead, Isaiah (Ike) Thomas will go to prison to serve two consecutive four-to-25-year terms after he pleaded guilty to the Apr. 5 attempted aggravated murder and aggravated robbery of Junior McGowan, 64, in Perkins township, Erie county.

Both Hass and McGowan have recovered from their wounds.

Thomas got about $60 from the cash register of the motel which Hass then managed. He has since returned to his home here.

Her name is Kelly Dent. She lives at 32 West Broadway with her father, William. She'll be entered in the 100-meter hurdles, because she placed fourth in that event in the district meet at Bowling Green Saturday. Her time was 15.8 seconds, three-tenths of a second behind the winner.

In the high jump, Miss Dent took sixth place with a leap of 4 ft. 10 in.

Branham throttles Mounties

Plymouth obtained revenge over Mapleton and Mike Havenstein there May 15.

The Big Red scored early and made it stand up in a 6 to 5 victory.

Mike Branham allowed the Mounties just five hits, one of them a home run by Leigh-liter in the fifth. Branham himself clouted a four-base blow, in the second, with one on.

Plymouth scored one run in the first when Terry Tash walked, advanced on Greg Gillum's single and scored on Gary King's ground ball.

The Big Red got two in the second. Randy Collins singled and Branham brought him home with the home run.

Bill Hudson, who got two hits, singled in the third. Marty Carly sacrificed and Hudson rode home on a wild pitch.

Branham led off in the fourth with a second hit. Tash drew a walk. Gillum was safe on a fielder's choice. Wallace walked. King hit safely scoring two runs but Wallace was thrown out at the plate.

Mapleton scored two runs in the fourth and fifth and one in the sixth. It has the tying run at second with two out when Branham fanned Ashton in the seventh.

what will the NEW MAIN Library offer?

Expansion of book, periodical and audio-visual materials. Framed art works for loan. More reader space, public typewriters, audio-visual equipment, facilities for the handicapped, conference rooms for public use, better work space, adequate public restrooms, increased security for valuable local history and genealogy collections plus efficient temperature and humidity control.

The new building will feature a multi-purpose room which will provide a facility for the very popular children's story hour program. This room also will be available as a community meeting facility. Additionally, the new building will provide two tiers of parking which can be reached from West Third Street on the North and Library Court on the South.

Why not just add on to the old building?

It would be like adding a ranch style house to a log cabin. The current building is in an advanced state of deterioration. The roof is in bad shape and some highly restrictive load limits have been imposed on some sagging floors. It is totally inefficient from an energy standpoint. A new, functional addition would result in extreme engineering difficulties with regard to temperature and humidity control. Even if the old building was sound, an addition would cause more work inefficiencies than it would solve.

'Uncle Sam' was New Hampshire man, 'US' was label on meat crates

By AUNT LIZ

Our Congress seems to do all sorts of interesting little things that it does not let the rest of us know about.

Now years later, I have discovered that when John Kennedy was president, the boys officially proclaimed that Sam Wilson, who lived in New Hampshire way back when, was the official "Uncle Sam" of our country.

It was ever published in the papers, I surely would have read it with great delight. There is nothing like a quaint tidbit of Americana to warm the heart of an old history teacher.

Our Sam was one of 11 children and lived in Mason, N. H. As a 14-year-old he was a "service boy" in the Revolutionary war.

When that problem was settled, he and his brother, Ebenezer, struck out on their own and got to Troy, N. Y., where they were in the meat packing business. Then came the War of 1812, and they somehow got an Army contract to supply meat to troops, also by then they simply were known as Uncle Sam and Uncle Eben to everyone.

The crates that went to the Army were neatly labelled "US" so they would know which was which. One day someone asked what the US stood for, and someone else quickly said "Uncle Sam."

That is how it all started. Eventually the good brothers left this world and during a parade in 1861 in Amesbury, Mass., a real character dressed up in red, white and blue. An enterprising photographer took his picture. Being very efficient, he seemed to have not gotten the guy's name, which was George Buchanan, so some one else came along, and the reasoning is long forgotten, labelled the picture "Uncle Sam."

This little tale should be in every American history book, but it is not. It is such little tidbits that make history so fascinating.

Another thing I realized last week was how different each part of our country is. We drove about 500 miles to another world, New Jersey. We were only there a day, which meant lunch and dinner, and I could not help from noticing that where we had lunch there was not one hamburger nor cheeseburger on the menu. They had all sorts of club sandwiches, salads and soups.

Then we had dinner in a lovely place in what New Jersey calls the hunting country. That is where Jackie Kennedy has a house and I guessed we were the only table of non-millionaires in the place. It was very friendly and everyone seemed to know everyone else, and we were the strangers, but who can help from not being nice when two strangers appear accompanied by two charming, white-haired ladies?

We always take our mother and her dearest friend who live together in a nice Eastern Star rest home, out to some place that we hope they will enjoy. I think they did and so did our house dog, who got doggie bags out of it all.

The menu in that place also amazed me. Not one T-bone, nor any other kind of steak up it. It had everything else, veal, chicken in fancy forms and fish of all kinds.

Being so close to the ocean, they can have what we out here call real luxuries. We brought some ocean-going things back with us and when we were choosing it all, the telephone rang and the young man who was helping us (he is the third generation of a family store) answered it. It was someone telling him they would not get their order because some characters had heated a fish truck from the big Fulton street market in New York with $30,000 worth of fish.

I would like to know where all that smelly stuff ended up. I can fully understand robbing a bank or a jewelry store, but a truck filled with fish!

One thing we indulged in from that little fish store was a whole pound of lump crabmeat. Others may have Rolls Royces in their driveways, but I can open the freezer part of our refrigerator and fondly look on that little container. I have great plans for it. There is enough to make something for four, but right now I am of the opinion that I can eat a double portion of it.

With something so rich, you need to cut back on what goes with such things. I think I came up with something a few weeks ago which just adds a little extra touch. Mix up soft butter — and margarine works just as well with finely chopped parsley (watercress works, too, if you can find it) — spread it on a small round of bread or Melba toast. It is pretty and plain easy to eat.

Surprised? Electricity does so many things around the home, it's easy to forget just how much you count on it.

Most likely, you don't have everything listed above. And just as likely we forgot to mention some things you do have.

The point is this: while the cost of electricity has gone up, when you consider all the things it does for you each day, it's still an excellent value.

But chances are you're using more than you used to: most folks are.

So, if you think twice about how and when you use electricity, you can make it even more valuable.

We have some booklets available with lots of energy saving ideas. And they're yours for the asking.

At Ohio Power, we want you to get the most out of your electric service.
