

What should village do?

Undisputed figures furnished to the village council by the clerk-treasurer on May 1 show the electric fund to be in the red by $70,899.85.

During April the electric department collected $21,320.25. It spent $25,306. The accounts in village hall show that for several months outgo has consistently exceeded income.

Leaving aside, for the time being, the question of whether the electric department is being operated efficiently and economically, it is clear that its rate structure is not producing sufficient revenue to pay its expenses. There were times during the past winter when revenues didn't even cover the bill of the power supplier, let alone the overhead costs of operating the system. In April, for example, the power supplier's bill was $19,277.76. This left $2,042.49 to meet overhead expenses of the department.

These overhead costs include a portion of the administrator's salary, a portion of the clerk's salary, a portion of the wages of the electric superintendent, office expenses and a certain contribution to the electric reserve fund, which on May 1 had a balance of $88,195.72. (It will do no harm to point out that, in 1963, when the village asked to transfer money from the electric fund to other purposes, the state board of tax appeals ordered that a reserve fund equal to 10 percent of the value of the system be established forthwith, as a condition of its approval of the transfer. If the rule of thumb that a distribution system is worth eight times its annual billings, that reserve fund ought to be closer to $210,000 than to $88,000.)

Every subscriber realizes that the council must act at once to rectify matters.

What must it do?

It must raise rates so that the deficit, which amounts to about $80 for every subscriber in the village, can be settled promptly and that the excess of monthly expenditures over revenues can be met.

In the first year, if our figures are correct, this means fresh revenue of $120,000 or roughly 50 per cent of annual revenues.

Naturally, once the present deficit is settled, that figure would drop to 25 per cent of annual revenues.

Which must mean, as we see it, a 25 per cent increase in rates.

Will the subscriber hold still for it?

The latest rate adjustment of Ohio Power Co. for residential subscribers served through one meter is dated April 18. There follows a table comparing its rates with those of the village and those of Firelands Electric, the cooperative operating north and east of us.

	O	P	F
60 kwh	$6.17	$3.17	$6.00
800 kwh	$23.14	$24.75	$44.80
1,500 kwh	$37.35	$41.75	$76.20

(Note: no fuel adjustment computation applied in any instance)

Plymouth's rates already exceed those paid by residential subscribers living immediately outside the village's power net. With a 25 per cent rate increase, they will be even less competitive.

What the village ought to do about this is equally clear. It ought to look for a buyer of the system, negotiate a sale for cash, invest the proceeds in federal reserve notes and finance the repair of streets, the lighting of streets, the cost of protection of life and property, and other legitimate expenses, from the interest to be earned thereon. We estimate this to be in excess of $160,000 a year.

Council reprimands mayor for failure to deposit check she didn't know she had Councilman Michael R. Taylor declared another "open season" on Mayor Elizabeth G. Paddock Tuesday night. He said she was delinquent in not depositing a sum of $213 that was forwarded to her from the Shelby Municipal court in January.

The mayor said she was not aware that the money had been received by the village until the utility clerk, Mrs. William Wheeler, showed it to her Thursday. It was deposited on Friday with the April fines.

It apparently had been filed in the safe, to which only the utility clerk has the combination, either by her or a substitute.

Nevertheless, Taylor moved to censure the mayor, which was approved by the council except for Mrs. Allan Raymond and Ervin Howard, who was absent.

Who should be allowed to use the council meeting room was issued. Administrator James C. Root has objected to its use by non-village officials and employees because of the security of the records such as the complete utility billings and unlocked file drawers.

Four hurt in crash in Rt. 224

Four Willard residents were injured in a car-truck collision at Route 61 and 224 Thursday at 6:45 p. m.

Janice L. Stewart, 24, and Brenda O. Ryan, 32, both of Willard, were admitted to Willard Area hospital.

Both were passengers in a car driven by Beverly C. Gann, 30, Willard. She and another passenger, Gerri K. Vesterman, 28, Willard, were taken to the hospital, treated and released.

State highway patrol reported the Gann car stopped at the intersection, headed eastbound. A truck operated by Dwight E. Watkins, 29, Worcester, sought to overtake and struck it in the rear. Watkins was summoned on a charge of following too closely.

Ervin Howard had asked the mayor for its use to conduct labor negotiation meetings a number of months ago, and his request was granted.

Councilman David Howard objected to Root's feelings, saying it belongs to the taxpayers. The mayor suggested the school district administration building could be used, Howard said, "it belongs to the district, not to the village."

Both Councilmen G. Thomas Moore and Taylor agreed with the mayor that the school district building would be better.

The mayor called for a motion which would allow any citizen of the village to use the council meeting room for any purpose, which she said could conceivably be for a karate or a belly dancing class.

There was no second. David Howard offered to research the problem further.

The village's insurance policies with State Agency came under scrutiny.

Several years ago the insurance companies added a rider that does not protect the life of a fireman, a policeman nor an ambulance person.

The village is faced with a suit brought by the widow of Mark Didion, who was killed while on a fire call in Ripley township several years ago. The current policy runs until April 1, 1980. It has been automatically renewed when it fell due without the village advertising for bids.

The mayor suggested this is the time to start reviewing the coverage each department feels it should have, which will be time consuming, and to have a complete list of specifications when it comes time to advertise for bids.

She suggested each department head should list what coverage is needed. Moore suggested that a Galion insurance agent who is more familiar with it review it all.

The council agreed that he call such an agent and report to the council as to how the village should go about seeking a better coverage. Representatives of the Prudential Life Insurance Co., James Lewellen and James Maitland, explained what coverage their company can offer the village for hospitalization, dental and life insurance. Taylor met further with them after the meeting adjourned and as a member of the pay ordinance committee will report at the next meeting.

No action was taken on the proposed ordinance because Ervin Howard had not forwarded the information to Solicitor Robert A. McKown. Root told the council there is no question that the village's electric rates are at least 25 per cent lower than what they should be.

He used the Village of Shiloh as a comparison. He said the village should not use four rates.

The mayor said it is obvious the income of the electric department cannot keep up with the outgo and brought out a chart from 1977 with billings for that year, which she said she could not get across to the council.

Filling, a bit starchy, it's better than TV

By AUNT LIZ
Say what you will, television is simply part of our every day life.

Last week the public broadcasting system put on a program about television. I think it was five families that agreed for a sum of money ($500) to have their happy picture machines disconnected for a month. This was done so they would not cheat and just for the heck of it watch one commercial.

By the end of the month, they were all out of their cotton pickin' minds and all agreed they could not live without it. One family said its cost of living soared because it had to go out for entertainment and pay cold hard cash which it had not done before.

Granted, some programs, perhaps 80 per cent of them, are for the birds. The other 20 per cent are worth it. I cannot tell you what a hardship it is to me on a Monday night to discover that M*A*S*H is on not because the network thought something else was better. The something else never is. There is Masterpiece Theater on Sunday night. I do get impatient with it, and trot to the library to read the books they are doing so I am ahead of them, but they are so beautifully done and it does my heart good to tell you-know-who what will happen next.

Over the years some of the programs have been classic. Our whole family learned brain surgery from Ben Casey. We could have marched into any operating room and done what he did. We also learned all the tricks of Elliot Ness on the Untouchables. That was the program that our Siamese cat, Fancy, would sit on my lap and watch. She loved the burning in each episode of the same cat. The FBI really missed the boat when they did not recruit our whole family to help them out in their detecting. We were able to do each program faster than Robert Stack.

The big dissenter of TV in our house, who can rave and rant about how bad it all is, becomes very quiet when he discovers the Yankees or his favorite football team are on. One simply puts up with this.

There are some great memories of some programs in our family. Remember the night Ed Sullivan had the Beatles on for the first time in this country? The four of us lined up as though we were at a concert. At the time it was a very noisy performance to me.

Should your dinner hour interfere with something you want to watch, try a can of soup for a tasty meal. It will help your budget too, since letting a stew simmer away is getting a little out of hand financially, and I always thought beef stew was a really economical meal.

This is filling and a little on the starchy side, but will make hungry people satisfied. It is enough for six. If there are not six to eat it, it can simply be reheated in the oven a few days later.

Slice two cups of onion thinly. Saute them with a minced, fairly good sized clove of garlic and a fourth of a teaspoon of thyme in two tablespoons of margarine (if rich, use butter). Stir them around until they are tender.

Then add two cans of 19 oz. chunky beef soup and two cups of medium sized egg noodles. Throw in a can of beer and cook it until the noodles are tender.

This is a real classic French recipe a l'Americaine. With some fruit or a salad and maybe a chocolate sundae, it will be heartwarming to those you feed.
