The Voice of The Advertiser—

Vote on Tuesday

Only two issues appear on Tuesday's ballot.

We're against one and only lukewarm toward the other.

We don't think the board of education of Pioneer Joint Vocational school district has treated us fairly.

Which is why we're going to vote against its proposal.

Why do we think the board hasn't treated us fairly?

We feel, and feel strongly, that fresh levies ought to stand by and of themselves, not coupled with an existing levy that is expiring.

There are two decisions any intelligent voter must make in the matter of such a school levy: did the school board and its administration use wisely the funds that were provided them during the expiring taxing period and, am I ready to give them fresh money on the basis of that record?

If a child comes to the parent and asks for money to buy a ball, the parent gives it to him in the hope and on the understanding that the child will buy a ball that pleases the child AND the parent. The ball that is eventually acquired may be every one of these things, pleasing and satisfying to both child and parent. But the parent may not wish to repeat the procedure, or may feel that he cannot now afford to repeat the procedure. So the child will have to make do with the ball that he has.

There are many who believe, probably rightly, that they're paying all the tax load they can safely shoulder. They're willing to pay the present bill, which includes 42/100 of a mill of operating money for PJVS. They're not willing to pay a half-mill more. Not for PJVS nor for James Rhodes nor for Jimmy Carter.

Would we support a renewal and a fresh levy? We're not sure. But we are sure that we can't support both of them in one package. So we urge our friends and neighbors to vote No.

The Richland county library district seeks a fresh levy to fund the acquisition of site, construction of a new library and equipping of same, all to take place in downtown Mansfield.

We've had some quibble, from time to time, with the Mansfield library in matters of policy, not in matters of service or its willingness to provide service. Those with whom we've quibbled are long gone from the scene.

Proponents of the library levy argue that the average citizen doesn't pay a dime toward its upkeep. The money to do that comes from the intangible tax. So only the well-heeled, who can afford to own stocks and bonds, pay for the library. This doesn't seem like an equitable situation to us, but that's another story entirely. The question is whether support ought to be accorded the present issue.

We doubt that it will pass. But we're going to cast a reluctant vote for it.

Mrs. Davis wins $1,000 for 'spree'

Mrs. James C. Davis is the luckiest person in Plymouth. She won $1,000 for a shopping spree at Wickes Lumber Co., Shiloh.

And she got it through the back door.

The first winner failed to appear to claim his prize. So a second drawing, Mrs. Davis's name was selected.

After 45 years, Earl McQuate quits as funeral director-embalmer here embalming in the homes of the deceased, with light from an oil lamp. Things are more precise and scientific now. All that is left is to wait for modern preparation rooms. State requirements have been stiffened up. At first, there were no inspectors. They came along a few years after I started in the business."

IT'S CLEAR THAT AN undertaker-embalmer has a dual role. He is a businessman and a professional one, with strict limitations applied by the state as to what he can and cannot do. And McQuate admits that it wasn't easy to walk that tightrope. "In fact, he reflects, "it was a little hard being both a business person and an undertaker. Besides, until the state made it all but impossible for an undertaker to continue with an ambulance service, we had the problems of operating a 24-hour-around-the-clock ambulance service. We couldn't go anywhere unless the telephone was manned."

He gave up the ambulance service in December, 1971. "And I didn't get a single call between that time and when the village got its own ambulance in the summer of 1972."

By 1945, it was clear to McQuate and his wife — "I married the undertaking business as well as the undertaker" — that a pattern was established. They had to develop a funeral home. Mores and customs were changing. Families had less and less public living space and more and more private living space where they couldn't or wouldn't receive their friends and acquaintances. Before 1940, Mrs. Miller sometimes conducted funerals in her home in North street. Otherwise, funerals were conducted in churches and in the homes of the deceased.

Only two issues on primary ballot

Primary election falls on Tuesday.

Polls will be open from 6:30 a. m. to 7:30 p. m.

For the first time in history, all voters in Plymouth will cast computer ballots.

Richland county has now joined the fold.

Only two issues face voters living in Richland county.

One of them is a combined Pioneer joint Vocational school levy, a renewal of 42/100 mill and a fresh tax of one-half mill, making 92/100 mill in all. Proceeds are earmarked for current expenses of the district and for the purpose of enlarging, improving, repairing and replacing equipment and buildings. The tax, if approved, would run for 10 years.

The other is a new levy of 56/100 mill to fund the issuance of building bonds to pay for construction of a new library in Mansfield to serve the Richland County Library district. The levy, if approved, will raise $5,520,000. It would be settled in 23 years.

If the two levies pass, cost to the taxpayer would amount to $1.58 cents a year for each $1,000 of tax valuation. A property owner whose home in valued for tax purposes at $10,000 would thus pay an additional tax of $15.80 a year.

Voters of Plymouth living in Huron county will also be called upon to support the proposed levy.

For the 26th consecutive year, The Advertiser presents its salute to the graduating class of Plymouth High school, proud of each of them, and no less proud than to be doing business in a community that thinks enough of its young people to send them off in such splendid fashion.

the entire village falls within the Richland County Library district.

Poling place for Richland counties is First United Presbyterian church. Poling place for Huron counties is Charles Rhine armory.

A custom of Plymouth poll watchers for years will die this year. It all but died last year, the first year that Huron county installed computer voting. The time-honored practice of waiting outside the polling places for the local results will no longer obtain, since the results must be tabulated by computer in the county seat and won't be posted locally until the time necessary for the results to be delivered by sheriff's deputies to each polling place outward from the county seat has elapsed.

Since Plymouth is the farthest polling place from the county seat in each county, results won't be available here until two or three hours after the polls have closed. In November, when the ballot will be much larger, results are not likely to be available until long after midnight. In November, 1978, Huron county results weren't posted until 12:36 a. m. on Wednesday, the day after polling took place.

Some of the memories come back quickly. Others, no quite so pleasant, come back more slowly.

Consider "Once there was a family that lived in the north end of Mansfield. They were going home by car and they didn't obey the 'stop, look and listen' sign at the railroad crossing east of Shiloh. The train hit them and killed them all. I had to walk along the tracks to collect the remains and prepare a decent burial."

"Once we had 11 funerals in 10 days. Janice once did three funerals in one day, because I was stuck in the snow outside of town."

"Another time, on an ambulance trip to Willard, the coach couldn't go through the snow between here and New Haven. The baby didn't wait. So it was delivered right there on my stretcher."

"When we got into the Railroad street house, what quite a job getting it ready. The late Helen Lofland and the late Otto Kinsel and Francis Guthrie, who still lives here, helped us remodel it and lay the carpet. In those days, we laid carpet up the stairs only as far as the eye could see — that's all we could afford! The carpet was burgundy colored, too."

EARLY BIBLICAL TEXTS refer to elaborate procedures for burial of the dead, a common Christian practice since earliest record. But time and tide wait for no man. In the two generations of Earl McQuate's experience, he's noticed substantial and dramatic changes in the public's attitude toward and the business. The services are much shorter and more dignified. Funeral directors have access to recorded music and some of them have organs right in the funeral home. When funerals are conducted on Saturdays or Sundays, the attendance is bigger. Working people don't want to or are unable to take time off to attend funerals during the week. Cemetery people don't want to work on weekends or holidays or at night. To accommodate them, the funeral usually has please see page 11

Wanted: quarterback

New head football coach of Plymouth High school is David G. Coulter, until now assistant coach in Lima Central Catholic High school. He says he'll use the wing-T and tight slot series on offense, emphasizing the dive, the full-back trap and the power off-tackle plays. And he'll employ the 4-4 defense, which he says is flexible enough to half any offense and to utilize Plymouth players to best advantage.

Further: "I have met the present members of the football staff and it is my sincere desire that they all stay on. I am very impressed with the quality of the assistant coaches."

Main problem: "To find the right quarterback. I would like to throw the football, but that will depend on the talent on hand."

Two baseballers on second team

Two Plymouth baseballers were chosen for second team honors when Johnny Appleseed conference coaches chose the all-league teams. These are Jim Robinson, second base, and Jim Wallace, third base. Each is a 12th grader.

Clear Fork dominated the first team with four selections. These are Jeff Norris, pitcher; Rob Fellure, first base; Chuck Golden, third base; and Doug Ute, outfielder.

Others on the first team are Scott McMillen, pitcher, and Chris Earhart, second base, Ontario, Mike Nichols, catcher; Jim Grassman, shortstop; and Roger Temple, Loudonville, outfielder, and Skip Frontz, Crestview, outfielder.

Other second team choices: Bill Elkins, Clark Fork, and Dennis Glines, Loudonville, pitchers; Tim Eckert, Smith, catcher; Scott Smith, Ontario, first base; Dave Dunlap, Lexington, shortstop; Lon McGhee, Clear Fork, and Steve Garber, Ontario, outfielder.

Red rips Spartans

Plymouth wallpated St. Peter's at Mansfield May 22. The score was 20 to 8. The Big Red collected 20 safeties off two Spartan pitchers. Mike Brannan had a perfect afternoon, four for four. Jim Robinson and Barry Tuttle had three hits apiece. Terry Tash caught a home run and Ron Schuller two doubles.

Plymouth put it away in the second, scoring five times.

McIntire's PLYMOUTH DRY GOODS

What's best gift for graduate? Auntie has do-it-ahead recipe

By AUNT LIZ
There are going to be a lot of people scurrying around in the next few days for graduation presents.

The easy way out, natch, is to give money. The United States mint will hate me for this, but I do not think it is too nice a gift. It is too easy and kind of defeats the purpose of a really lasting gift.

On the other hand, a profusion of the same kind of gift like perfume and colognes can also be very lasting. After two graduations in a row, it took the whole family more than five years to use up all our kids' gift.

For the graduate who is leaving home to live away, there is nothing like bath towels and sheets. Most houses have double beds, so twin size can help out an old gray mother when she gets ready to pack them off. For those going off in the wide blue yonder who will live in an apartment, there is nothing like an electric frying pan or a crock pot. They can do everything and will last far into the future when they have their own homes.

I have always thought that a gift, for whatever it is, should be something a person would probably not buy either because it is a real luxury and could be put off until later, or it is something they had not thought about because it is a luxury.

But you can still be very practical. Boys need their own household tools, simple things like a hammer, a screwdriver and that sort of thing, so they do not have to rush home and say, "Dad, where is the hammer?" Every house needs these things, and they are real gifts for the future.

One nice graduate we know is getting the best cookbook that is published. She may take a real dim view of it now, but it will come in handy later.

Girls to me are easier to buy for. They can always use little nightgowns and robe sets, and they can last years. I have some, maybe five years old (they do kind of look it, but are still very wearable in the dark). A good sweater is always wearable, but watch styles, buy something classic which never changes. Sweaters can last a dozen years.

If you know a graduate who has started a collection of something, add to it. It will be a gift that will be treasured through the years and always remembered.

After all the Sunday night graduation parties, no one is going to feel much like doing a Monday night dinner, which you know darn well must be produced.

Do it ahead.

There are 50 million casseroles that can be composed and slipped into the oven at the last minute. You have your favorites of course.

Maybe you do not know this one. It is sausage and noodles. And for what the recipe says is six servings is fairly cheap. A good heaping salad will add to it.

Cook an eight ounce package of noodles and drain. Then brown a cup of finely chopped onions in about a fourth of a cup of butter (use margarine, it is cheaper, but seems to be getting right up with butter).

When they are golden, add a pound of smoked sausage out in inch size pieces, a cup of shredded up carrots, a can of mushroom soup (what would we do without the stuff? It is the greatest thing the soup people ever did) a half cup of milk and sprinkle in some salt and pepper, go harder on the pepper, the salt is not that good for you.

Mix the whole works in a casserole and stash away. Cover it and bake when you want it at about 350 for a half hour. No one can possibly say he does not like this because it has the most lovable American things in it.

Hospital notes

Byron Ream underwent thoracic surgery in Cleveland Clinic hospital Friday morning.

a. m. Ushers for June will be Thomas F. Root, chairman; Robert N. MacMichael, Max Smith and Benjamin Kensing.

What is the NEW MAIN LIBRARY building going to cost us?

It will cost the average homeowner about $12 per year. This is based upon a 0.6 mill bond levy to be paid over 23 years. The bond issue includes $80,000 for land acquisition, $4,690,000 for the building and $750,000 for equipment.

What about operating costs?

Other than taxes on overdue books, the library receives its operating funds from county collections of taxes on intangibles. Unless you own such things as stocks and bonds, chances are that you never have or will have to pay for operating the library.

Why must we build now?

The longer we wait, the more it will cost to rebuild. Also, any delay will force us to make some major repairs to the old building.

All about Plymouth...

Mrs. Charles Hanline returned home Sunday from Seattle, Wash., where she has been the last month with her son, Earl, who is recuperating from injuries received in an automobile accident in Coeur d'Alene, Ida., while on his way home from Alaska.
The Hanlines' daughter, Karen, who is teaching in Zanesville, spent the holiday weekend with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward O. Ramsey spent last week camping in the Pocono mountains near Stroudsburg, Pa., with their son, Charles, and his family, Scarsdale, N. Y.

Mrs. Mark Caywood will be back at the end of the week from Eugene, Ore., where she has been visiting her grand son, H. Bennett Shaver, and his family.

Former Mayor and Mrs. William Fazio, Orland Park, Ill., spent the holiday weekend with their daughter, Mrs. Elaine Tackett.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cornell, Lake Worth, Fla., arrived Friday and are visiting his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Cornell.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Moore, Columbus, visited his mother, Mrs. C. C. Moore, Saturday.

After 45 years, he's quitting to be arranged during the day, which means only a few beside the immediate family show up.

"Caskets these days are more and more constructed of metal instead of wood as in the old days. Almost everybody installs a vault in the cemetery. It must be done, by order of the cemetery association."

"Many families express the wish that flowers not be used. An undertaker has to tread a fine line there. The florist is often his friend and is certainly his business associate. The use of printed obituary notices handed to mourners at the funeral home, whether before or during the funeral, is dying out."

"What people wear to the funeral home is certainly changing. In fact has changed a lot since I started in the business. There used to be a day when every man and boy had a dark suit that he wore to funerals. Now come to the funeral home in the brightest colors. Women always used to wear a hat and gloves and a subdued dress. Now they come in much more informal wear."

THE LAW SAYS That the undertaker must be the first paid from the proceeds of the estate. Nevertheless, this undertaker has had to swallow some bills over 45 years. Most of them were for ambulance calls. McQuate estimates that one in four wasn't paid for.

Robert J. Wechter, Chicago, Ill., joined his wife and son over the holiday weekend at the home of her mother, Mrs. D. B. Faust.

David Wiener, Lexington, spent the weekend with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Meltrine, Monday his mother, Mrs. M. Wiener, joined them for a holiday dinner.

Mothers and grandmothers were guests of honor on Mother's day at the Max Caywood home. Mr. Caywood, his brother, James D. Bucyrus, and his brother-in-law, Kenneth Roethlisberger, cooked a special dinner. It also honored the birthday anniversary of the letter's mother, Mrs. Harold Cobb, Shiloh. Their guests included Mrs. Gerald W. Caywood, Mrs. Ray Bright and Mrs. Cobb.

A son, Richard Forest, 2nd, who weighed 9 lb., 8 1/2 oz., was born Friday to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Van Wagner, Ventura, Cal. He is the first grandchild of the William L. Van Wagners.

Still, the business is not without its rewards. One of these for this mortician was the Carl M. Lofland Memorial plaque awarded by Plymouth Chamber of Commerce Apr. 9, 1964, for outstanding service to the community during 1963. He displays it proudly.
What does the undertaker do in his spare time? For many years, he flew a private plane, and after he had a license as a pilot, he taught his wife to fly. They had their own plane, which they kept at Wild airport, for several years before they sold it a couple of years ago.
When he disposes of the furniture business, Earl McQuate says he plans to "sit and rock a little." But he doesn't intend to be completely inactive. Both of the McQuates enjoy traveling. They do a lot of it now, going back and forth to Mexico to see their elder son. Circumstances so far haven't allowed them much time to visit their grandchildren - they have two - but younger son Douglas is approaching retirement eligibility and Grandpa and Grandma McQuate figure to see the little McQuates more often.

Hospital notes
Glenn Frakes was released Tuesday by Shelby Memorial hospital.
James Vice was released from Mansfield General hospital Friday.
